Morris, W. A tale of the house of the Wolfings and all the kindreds of the Mark, written in prose and in verse. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1890. 2+387+16 p. por. O. hf. cl., $3.

This latest work of the author of "The earthly Paradise," written partly in prose and partly in verse, reproduces the life and manners of a remote past. It is the story of the Wolfings, a branch of the Gothic people in their picturesque life in the wood and their struggle with the Romans. It possesses an epic force and significance, and the way in which Thiodolf, their leader, and that of their brother Mark-men, was led to sacrifice his own life in order to insure the success of his people, has a noble pathos.

Russell, A. P. In a club corner: the monologue of a man who might have been sociable. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1890. c. 2-328 p. D. cl., $1.25.

A wide reading and an excellent memory are shown in this volume of literary talk on a variety of subjects. The book is not divided into chapters, nor marked off into separate papers. The author strays from one subject to another, such as conversation, long sermons, old age, oblivion, subsisting by authorship, solitude, style, Sheridan, Garrick, manners, the faith cure, etc., etc., the topic being indicated by a marginal index. A wealth of illustrative anecdotes adorns each page, and renders the volume a most valuable one for reference. By the author of "A club of one," published anonymously.

Salmon, D: Longmans' school composition. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1890. 3+305 p. D. cl., 75 c.

Embraces in one volume Longmans' "Junior school composition" and "Senior school composition." The first part contains: Synthesis of simple sentences; practice in simple sentences; sentences combined; punctuation, easy narratives; easy essays, letters and grammar. The second part, chapters on the choice of words and the arrangement of words, grammar, the sentence, simile and metaphor, brevity, strength, etc.

Sandeau, Jules. La maison de Penarvan [Fr.]. N. Y., W: R. Jenkins, 1890. 292 p. D. (Romans choisis, no. 15.) pap., 60 c.

A story of French life as exemplified in the resistance of the old noblesse to modern innovations, and the leveling of rank. The style is singularly pure and the story unobjectionable.

Sparhawk, Frances C. A chronicle of conquest. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1890.] c. 8+239 p. D. cl., $1.25.

"Little Polly Blatchley," grown up into a pretty girl of eighteen, is the heroine. Her studies at Vassar break down her health, and her doctor orders her a rest of some months. She goes to the Indian school—the Carlisle Barracks—in Pennsylvania to visit a friend, and takes a deep interest in the Indian question. Details are given of the educational methods pursued at this institution, and many touching stories related of the scholars. An argument is made against sending the educated Indians back to the Reservation—it is thought it would be better to launch them into civilized life.

Stockton, Frank R. The great war syndicate. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., [1890.] c. '89. 191 p. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

A story telling how a war between England and the United States is waged on behalf of the United States by a syndicate of capitalists. This syndicate contracts to do the whole business, and to bring about peace within a certain specified time, for a fixed sum. Penalties are named for each additional day the war may run beyond the date fixed, and extra payments, on the other hand, if its duration be less. The syndicate carry on the war most successfully through certain amusing inventions of their own.

Stockton, Frank R. The stories of the three burglars. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., [1890.] c. '89. 159 p. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

"The stories of the three burglars" are told by three gentlemen who follow burgling as a profession, and who, much against their will, fall into the hands of the householder upon whose premises they have begun to operate. He has overcome them by guile, and having securely corded them against any attempt at escape, suggests that they pass the time until the arrival of the constable (the scene is laid in a country house) by narrating somewhat of their experience.

Story, Florence M. Master Travers. N. Y., T: Nelson & Sons, 1890. 8-157 p. il. D. cl., 60 c.

The story of two little English children of seven and four, who are left a fortune. They go to live at Winsdale Hall with their guardian, and enjoy the many pleasures money can buy. The story offers some lessons in discipline, etc.

*Sweet, H: A primer of phonetics. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1890. 11+113 p. 16°, cl., 90 c.

Tasma, (pseud.) Her earliest youth. N. Y., Frank F. Lovell & Co., [1890.] 2+348 p. D. (Lovell's international ser., no. 66.) pap., 30 c. An Australian novel, by the author of "Uncle Piper of Piper's Hill."

Taylor, Lucy. Going on pilgrimage: a companion to the "Pilgrim's progress" for young pilgrims. N. Y., T: Nelson & Sons, 1890. 7-168 p. il. S. cl., 80 c.

An explanation of the meaning of "Pilgrim's progress," and the application of its lessons.

Thanet, Octave, [pseud. for Miss Alice French.] Expiation; il. by A. B. Frost. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1890. c. 5+215 p. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The last year of the late war, when Arkansas was infested with murderous, thieving bands of "graybacks," is the time. A succession of murders committed by such a band to obtain a large sum of money is the motive. The attempt to discover the murderers is rich in thrilling adventure. Plantation life, and "cracker" life are well described.

Tiernan, Mary Spear. Jack Horner: a novel. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1890. c. 3+347 p. D. cl., $1.25.

A story of the late war, opening in Richmond in 1862. "Jack Horner" is an infant left in a basket on the steps of the house of rich Southerners one Christmas Eve. Only four years of his life are embraced in the book, but he is the means of bringing together the hero and heroine, and is the centre of a mystery, which has many interesting phases. The writer's sympathies are with the South; author of "Homoselle."

*Tozer, Rev. H. Fanshawe. The islands of the Aegean. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1890. 12+362 p. maps, 12°, cl., $2.25.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

MARCH 29, 1890.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE LOVELL COMBINATION.

THE formal announcement, in a circular printed in another column, of the success of the plans of which Mr. John W. Lovell has been the master-spirit, marks an important point in the development of the book trade. Whatever its outcome and final result, the evolution of the scheme to its present status gives Mr. Lovell a strong position in the trade, and makes him at once an important figure in trade history; and his persistency and generalship deserve hearty recognition.

The extravagant rumors that have found place from time to time in the daily press and elsewhere, of a general syndicate that should absorb the book trade at large and prevent competition, we have often had occasion to ridicule. The present arrangement may be considered a long step toward a general combination; but happily it stops short within legitimate bounds, and while checking illegitimate will not prevent legitimate competition. It is undoubtedly true that the "cut-throat" competition in "cheap 12mos" and "poets" has resulted in deteriorating quality as well as in breaking prices, while the bookseller has been confused and loaded down with an infinite multiplicity of rival editions. Some end had to come to this; whether this combination is the right end will be determined by Mr. Lovell's management of the great establishment he will now control.

If he will make a good book at a fair price, not too high as well as not too low, he will do the public and the trade a service. If he tries to put prices too high the public will, of course, fight shy of his books, and competition from the older houses, like Harper & Brothers and others, should keep him right. A moderate price, with a just and not excessive discount, will be a boon all around. Mr. Lovell certainly "speaks fair." We trust the trade will give his plan a fair chance.

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT.

REPORT OF THE JUDICIARY COMMITTEE.

MR. ADAMS, from the Committee on the Judiciary, submitted February 15, 1890, a report (to accompany bill H. R. 6941) of which the following is the text:

The Committee on the Judiciary, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 3853) to amend title 60, chapter 3, of the Revised Statutes of the United States relating to copyrights, having had the same under consideration, submit the following report thereon:

The purpose of this bill is to establish international copyright in the United States. It is proposed to remove from our statutes an illiberal and unwise discrimination against foreign authors now almost unknown to the laws of other civilized nations. The subject is not a new one in this country. It has been discussed in Congress and elsewhere for more than fifty years.

In 1837 petitions of American and British authors were presented to the Senate by Henry Clay. They were referred to a select committee whose members were Clay, Webster, Buchanan, Preston, and Ewing. The report of the committee is believed to have been drawn by Henry Clay. [Here follows the Henry Clay Copyright Report, which was printed in full in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, January 21, 1888, page 57.]

From the time of Henry Clay until now, American authors have urged the passage of an international copyright law. They have urged it first as an act of justice to foreign authors, who, as Henry Clay declared, are citizens of the great republic of letters, and entitled as such to the protection of all civilized governments. They have urged it, secondly, in behalf of sound learning and pure literature here and abroad, because it will tend to prevent the mutilation of foreign texts in this country and the mutilation of American texts abroad. They have urged it, thirdly, and still urge it, as an act of wise American public policy, because it will tend to promote the development of American literature. Said Washington Irving in 1840:

"For myself, my literary career as an author is drawing to a close, and cannot be much affected by any disposition of this question, but we have a young literature springing up and daily unfolding itself with wonderful energy and luxuriance, which as it promises to shed a grace and lustre upon the nation, deserves all its fostering care. How much this growing literature may be retarded by the present state of our copyright law I had recently an instance in the cavalier treatment of a work of merit, written by an American who had not yet established a commanding name in the literary market. I undertook as a friend to dispose of it for him, but found it impossible to get an offer from any of our principal publishers. They even declined to publish it at the author's cost, alleging that it was not worth their while to trouble themselves about native works of doubtful success while they could pick and choose among the successful works daily poured out by the British press, for which they had nothing to pay for copyright. This simple fact spoke volumes to me, as I trust it will do to all who peruse these lines. . . . I trust that whenever this question comes before Congress it will at once receive an action prompt and decided, and will be carried by an overwhelming if not unanimous vote, worthy of an enlightened, a just, and a generous nation."

Nearly fifty years later the following memorial was presented to Congress:

"The undersigned American citizens, who earn their living in whole or in part by their pen, and who are put at disadvantage in their own country by the publication of foreign books without payment to the author, so that American books are undersold in the American market to the detriment of American literature, urge the passage by Congress of an international copyright law, which will protect the rights of authors and will enable American writers to ask from foreign nations the justice we shall then no longer deny on our own part."

This memorial was signed by one hundred and forty-four American authors.

The efforts of American authors to secure the passage of an international copyright law in the interest of American literature have thus far failed. They have failed, as stated by a committee of the last House, "mainly because of the clashing of the different interests concerned in the making of books." "But at last and now for the first time," says the committee, "authors, publishers, type setters, electrotypers, binders, booksellers, and all others engaged in making and distributing books have with singular unanimity agreed upon a bill which they ask us to pass."

The bill thus referred to is substantially the same as the bill now under consideration. It was reported to the House with a favorable recommendation by the Judiciary Committee of the Fiftieth Congress. The report is as follows:

[House Report No. 1875, Fiftieth Congress, first session.]

✓ The Committee on the Judiciary, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 8715) to amend title 60, chapter 3, of the Revised Statutes of the United States, submit the following report:

The present law (title 60, chapter 3, Revised Statutes) limits the benefit of copyright to citizens of or residents within the United States. In this respect the United States stands alone among civilized nations. Either by legislation or treaty, or both, copyright is as free to aliens and non-residents as to citizens or subjects in all countries but our own. Great Britain is apparently an exception, but its exclusion of foreigners from this privilege applies only to citizens of the United States, and for the sufficient reason that our government is the only one that refuses British authors protection in their literary or artistic property. Copyright covers not only books, but maps, charts, dramatic and musical compositions, engravings, cuts, prints, statues, etc.

This bill proposes that the creators of this class of property, whether citizens or foreigners, shall be protected in the enjoyment of it within the limits of the United States. It is now the only species of property which stands unprotected by our laws. Its recognition and protection seem to rest upon the foundation of common honesty. The persistent confiscation of it has been a reproach to our people, a serious discouragement to our authors, a marked injury to our publishing trade, while working demoralization and debasement of our literature.

For some fifty years efforts have been made to change the law. From time to time, after full discussion and the closest calculation of probable effects, bills were reported from committees of Congress, but they failed of passage mainly because of the clashing of the different interests concerned in the making of books. But at last, and now for the first time, authors, publishers, type-setters, electrotypers, binders, booksellers, and all others engaged in making and distributing books have with singular unanimity agreed upon a bill which they ask us to pass.

Under its provisions the foreign author may copyright any future work of his in the United States upon the same terms as a citizen or resident here. But the copies deposited with the Librarian of Congress must be printed from type set within the United States, thus insuring that all the work shall be done here. The publication here must precede or be simultaneous with the publication in the foreign country. The bill contains other minor matters not important enough to be adverted to; all tending, however, to the better safeguarding of the system.

The American author will have the protection for his works which is now denied him because of our own denial of the rights of all others. All European powers have made provision for protecting our authors in their literary property as soon as their authors are accorded similar rights here.

The passage of this bill will we are satisfied, encourage and stimulate American authorship, designing, engraving, and all the arts that enter into the making of good books. By it our authors obtain a wider market—that of the whole world—while they are saved from the competition of the unpaid work of the foreign authors. It will unquestionably raise the standard of literary taste also by banishing the "trashy" and the "gaslight" literature from the field. It needs "no angel from Heaven to tell us" all the harm that such stuff has done our youth.

But will the price of books be increased? This question as well as the moral aspect of the case, must be fairly met. It is certain that the best books written by men and women all over the world will, under international copyright, be sold in the United States for less than they are sold now; and the general consensus of opinion, the argument pushed almost to a demonstration, is that all other books will be sold for as low a price as they are now. The experience of the countries on the continent of Europe before and after the adoption of international copyright may be cited as conclusive on this point. When one solvent and sagacious American publisher obtains the sole right for the American market of a foreign author's work he can make it better, and as cheap at least, as ten publishers who "pirate" such a book under the present management and run a cut-throat competition for its sale. It will be better, for it will be printed carefully and clearly; not as now, hastily and carelessly, sometimes from worn plates or bad type, to the ruin of American eyes; and it will be as cheap per copy, for the market will be assured, and the publisher will find it, as he does now, to his interest to fix the price so as to sell the greatest number.

By way of illustration of this last point it may be stated that a copy of a book in an edition of 1000 must cost six times as much as one in an edition of 16,000. The market—the number willing to buy any given book—is the factor that determines its price. There will, of course, under any system, be cheap and dear editions of every good book, domestic as well as foreign, copyrighted or otherwise.

The works of American authors remain unaffected by the proposed law, except in so far as a stimulus to higher work may, and undoubtedly will, be given to them.

All works of foreign authors published before the proposed law takes effect retain their present status. The law will be necessarily prospective. Its passage will be advantageous to our own authors, publishers, and artists, just to all others, beneficial to our literature, and honorable to our civilization.

Your committee report the bill favorably, with slight verbal amendments.

It is believed that American authors, publishers, printers, booksellers, and all others engaged in making and distributing American books, periodicals, and newspapers are even more nearly unanimous in support of an international copyright law than they were when the foregoing report was written. The International Typographical Union of North America, composed of three hundred and three subordinate unions, representing all sections of the United States, and having an aggregate membership of nearly forty thousand, heartily indorsed the proposed legislation by a resolution adopted at the session held at Denver, Colo., in June, 1889. This resolution was presented to your committee by Columbia Union No. 101.

At the annual meeting of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association held in New York February 13, 1890, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the American Newspaper Publishers' Association is in hearty sympathy with the efforts now being made by American authors to obtain from Congress a fuller security for literary property, and we believe the proposed international copyright bill to be in the interest of the national honor and welfare.

Your committee approve of the substance of the pending bill, but regard its form as objectionable. It provides for the striking out and inserting certain words in certain sections of the Revised Statutes without setting out in full the sections of the Revised Statutes as they will stand when amended.

To meet this objection your committee report the said bill together with a substitute therefor, containing the substance of the pending bill in an unobjectionable form.

Your committee recommend that said substitute bill do pass and that said original bill (H. R. 3853) do lie upon the table.

LIBRARIANS IN FAVOR OF INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT.

OVER two hundred librarians have signed an appeal to Congress (prepared by the American Copyright League) to pass the pending International Copyright bill on the ground that "the proposed law would stimulate American literature, would promote the sciences and the useful arts, would raise the standard of reading, and give it a better and more national tone, and would be in the interest of the whole people." Mr. R. U. Johnson, in speaking of this movement, said: "We may say that the librarians of the country are practically united in favor of the bill. Their sentiment is quite as strong as that of the American magazines, which recently replied without a dissenting voice in support of the pending bill."

THE LOVELL COMBINATION: ITS SCOPE AND PLANS.

THE following circular, which we print from advance proof, is going out or will presently be sent to the book and news trade of the United States and Canada, under date of March 27:

In connection with the issuing of the accompanying Clearance Catalogue, it seems desirable to make an explanation as to the causes that have led to the consolidation of the various interests mentioned; and the results, it is hoped, with the coöperation of the book trade, may be attained.

For several years past little if any profit has been made in the publishing or handling of what are known as the Standard and Competitive Books, such as 12mos and poets. The intense competition has also led to a great deterioration in the manufacture—paper, in many cases, being used that would be spurned by a penny newspaper, combined with printing and binding that have brought reproach upon American publishers. It is notorious that such badly made books have never appeared elsewhere.

To remedy these recognized evils I endeavored to enlist the coöperation of the publishers of these classes of books, but found that the only solution lay in one firm or corporation obtaining possession of the plates and stock of the various editions, and, by enlisting the coöperation of the book trade, maintaining a higher grade of manufacture and stable prices.

For many years the indirect losses to the book trade have been very great, arising mainly from the fact that it was impossible to carry a well-assorted stock with any safety, prices so constantly changing as to make it extremely hazardous to order for more than actual wants.

Books are peculiarly an article of merchandise, the sale of which can be increased or diminished by the larger or smaller stocks carried by the dealers. A large and well-assorted stock will attract purchasers, but such stock can only safely be carried if prices can be assured and indiscriminate cutting be forever abolished.

My plan, briefly, then, is to obtain by purchase the plates of the various competing editions of standard sets, poets and 12mos, now published in this country. This has been practically accomplished.

It is too late to make any changes for this spring, but for the fall trade the editions now in preparation will be printed on fine book paper, well bound, and, prices considered, be as creditable specimens of book-making as can be obtained. To cover the extra cost of manufacture, a slight advance will be made in the prices that ruled for the inferior-made books of last year. The prices will be uniform. All jobbers will be required to sell at publisher's prices, and dealers who will coöperate in maintaining prices can depend upon buying at lowest rates, and upon being protected should competing editions appear at any time. While it is impossible, for this year at least, to regulate retail prices, it is believed that the example of the publisher and jobber will be followed by the retailer, and in selling a fair percentage be added to the cost, so as to realize a reasonable profit. At any rate, the dealer can depend that no discounts will be given by the publisher, except to the trade, and the competition of the publisher will thus be removed. The great object to be attained will be to protect the legitimate bookseller, and any suggestion as to how that may be better accomplished will be heartily welcomed by the publisher.

To close out the inferior-made editions of last year the present Clearance Catalogue is issued. It is recognized that the considerable number of these books still on hand may lead to some demoralization in prices this year. Nevertheless, the stock of these books is less than one-fifth of the normal yearly demand, and the fact that increased prices will rule in the fall will lead to their rapid consumption.

The plates of the competing editions of standard sets, 12mos and poets, that have already been obtained or contracted for are from :

HURST & COMPANY,	} New York:
WORTHINGTON COMPANY,

And the plates and stock of the paper-covered series of

GEORGE MUNRO.	} New York.
NORMAN L. MUNRO,
NATIONAL PUBLISHING Co.,

And it is expected the negotiations with the few remaining firms will soon be successfully concluded.

Competition hereafter can only have one result—the cheapening of prices and manufacture, with a return to the demoralization that has ruled during the past two or three years. No competing edition can be made so cheaply that the trade cannot depend upon a still cheaper one being issued to protect the interests I represent, and therefore no stocks of such a competing edition could be bought with any security as to price.

By declining to handle such competing editions, should such appear, the trade will protect itself. I, on my part, pledge myself to the maintenance of stable prices, uniform alike to all dealers throughout the country. Controlling more than one-half the yearly output of cloth-bound books handled by the trade (school-books excepted) and over three-fourths of the paper-covered books, it will be my constant aim to study the interests of the legitimate book and news dealer; and the plan I expect to inaugurate this year, to be announced later, will, I trust, accomplish that result.

In the sincere hope that a brighter era has dawned for the book trade to publishers, jobbers, and retailers alike,

Very respectfully,
JOHN W. LOVELL.

WAR AGAINST THE THREE-VOLUME NOVEL.

AGITATION against the three-volume novel system has again begun in England. No one can be found who is willing to take the responsibility for the existence of this ancient nuisance. Says a recent writer of novels in a letter to London Truth: "As a novelist, may I ask you to discover who our Procrustes is? 'Not I,' writes Mr. Mudie, 'for I lose by the three-volume novel system.' 'So do I,' protests the publisher ;

'and I also,' groans the author ; 'and I most of all,' growls the public. Who, then, keeps this universally execrated anachronism alive? This is a great mystery ! I can tell Mr. Mudie in two words, however, how it can be killed in one season, to his great surprise, relief, and advantage. Let the libraries—who are the sole purchasers of three-volume novels—issue to the publishers a joint circular discountenancing them, and the thing is done. It could be done by a joint circular from Messrs. Mudie and Smith alone."

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

Wide Awake for April tells the story of Smithsonian and the Smithsonian Institution.

Paper and Press for February, though late, is a superb issue. It may fairly be awarded the first prize among its contemporaries, for variety of contents and beauty of typography and print. All who are interested in matters relating to paper and printing should see this valuable journal. Published by W. M. Patton, 25 S. Sixth St., Philadelphia.

The Literary Digest is the title of a new weekly journal just begun by Funk & Wagnalls. It contains classified summaries of all important papers in European and American periodicals, classified comments on important current events taken from the daily and weekly press, book digests, index of current literature, and a monthly chronicle of public events.

OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES, in his instalment of "Over the Teacups," in the Atlantic for April, discusses music, Egyptian and American works of art, realism in literature with special reference to Flaubert and Zola, and the greatest bibliographical event of the book market of the new world, the arrival of Mr. Bernard Quaritch, with his "collection of rare, beautiful, and somewhat expensive volumes."

THE New England Magazine for April will contain an article on "Egypt at Home," a complete account of the Egyptian collection in the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, by Rev. Dr. W. C. Winslow, Vice-President of the Egypt Exploration Fund. The number will also contain a full-page portrait of Miss Edwards, from a recent photograph by Sarony, with an article upon her work by Mrs. Sallie Joy White, and several interesting fac-similes of passages from her letters and manuscripts.

Freeman's Illustrated Monthly Magazine (edited and published by O. S. Freeman, Passaic, N. J.), established in 1877, and now in its thirteenth volume, proposes to open its pages to contributions from the literary public, and calls upon its patrons to send in their manuscripts. Though published in Passaic, N. J., the Magazine finds its way far from its home and has found it necessary to establish a branch in London, England. The paper is readable and full of news on literature, music, society, and home interests.

JAMES RUNCIMAN has contributed a strong essay to the March issue of The Fortnightly Review, under the title "King Plagiarism and His Court," in which he asserts that popular authors writing under the pressure of successful publishers' demands have during the last dozen years become plagiarists; often in a cowardly, sometimes in a startlingly bold manner. Among the authors specially mentioned are Rider Haggard, Mrs. Burnett, and Mr. Anstey. The writer is seemingly fair and makes a show of clinching his statements with proof.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

THE Channing Club, of Boston, has taken upon itself the task of examining books written for boys, and publishing annually for the use of parents and librarians, a classified, descriptive list of such as are approved. Their first catalogue, of publications of 1888, is now ready and can be obtained by sending a stamp to the Secretary, Mr. George Peirce, 70 Water Street, Boston. It is divided into three classes—one of interesting stories; one of works of history, biography, travel, science, etc.; and one of books which, through the moral principles taught, are especially suited for Sunday-schools. No book has been rejected because of doctrinal teaching, as the list is intended for all denominations, but wherever such teaching is prominent the fact is noted. Besides the necessary items of publisher and price, each title is followed by a summary of the story, or a description of the scope of the work if in the second class, thereby enabling the reader to choose intelligently. (19 p. 24°.)

Catalogues of New and Second-hand Books.—John H. W. Cadby, 78 Worthington St., Springfield, Mass., Americana. (No. 1, 32 p. 12°.)—Francis P. Harper, 17 E. 16th st., N. Y., Books in all departments of literature. (No. 44, 455 titles, 12°.)—S. B. Luyster, 98 Nassau St., N. Y., Books on Angling, Shooting, Field-Sports, Natural History, etc. (No. 170, 942 titles, 8°.)—Jos. McDonough, 744 Broadway, N. Y., Miscellaneous books at reduced prices previous to removal. (No. 65, 684 titles, 12°.)—Edw. W. Nash, 80 Nassau St., N. Y., Americana. (No. 25, 603 titles, 8°.)—David Nutt, 270 Strand, W. C., London, Eng., Works on history and voyages, (No. 15, 1323 titles, 12°;) also a collection of rare books, including a selection of books on folklore, (No. 16, 488 titles, 12°.)—Thos. J. Taylor, Taunton, Mass., Miscellaneous books, (No. 22, 142 titles, 16°;) Americana, (No. 21, 223 titles, 16°.)—S. H. Zahm, Lancaster, Pa., General literature. (No. 39, 247 titles, 8°.)

BUSINESS NOTES.

ALBANY, N. Y.—Joseph McDonough has rented the capacious store, 53 and 55 State Street, which is 150 feet deep, also the three large storerooms over the store, all connected by passenger elevator, and intends to remove his business now at 744 Broadway, New York City, and his old established place, 30 North Pearl Street, and concentrate them in the new premises.

MEDICINE LODGE, KAN.—A. S. McCleary, bookseller and stationer, has sold out.

NEWCASTLE, IND.—Nixon & Son, booksellers, have sold out.

NEW RICHMOND, O.—Frank A. Roberts is desirous of starting a general book and stationery store in some good Western or Southern town. He is in search of information.

OELWEIN, IOWA.—C. A. Hancock, bookseller, it is reported, has given a bill of sale of $745.

SPOKANE FALLS, WASH.—C. W. Weber & Co.'s bookstore has been burned out.

URBANA, ILL.—W. L. Pillsbury has succeeded the firm of Pillsbury & Freeman, publishers.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE plates of W. T. Amies sold by Bangs & Co. on the 26th inst. were bought by Robert Martin, of New York.

THE BELFORD CLARKE CO. will publish in this country the diaries and letters of Sir Moses Montefiore and his wife.

THE malicious rumor that Charles Scribner's Sons were about to cease the issue of Scribner's Magazine, and were also going to make important changes in the firm, is untrue in every particular.

FUTURE volumes of the Dictionary of National Biography will bear upon their title-pages the statement: "Edited by Leslie Stephen and Sidney Lee." Mr. Lee has long been Mr. Stephen's chief assistant, and many articles have been contributed by him.

MRS. SUTHERLAND ORR, who is writing a book on Browning, is a sister to Sir Frederick Leighton, and was one of Browning's most intimate friends. "Not many people," says the N. Y. Tribune, "knew Browning very well in his own home, or had the means of studying his life which Mrs. Orr had."

E. B. MYERS & Co., Chicago, will publish next month a compilation of general laws of the State of Illinois, governing and regulating the powers and duties and the exercise thereof by cities and villages, with explanatory annotations digesting the decisions of the Supreme and Appellate Courts to date, and with numerous practical and approved precedents and forms, useful in carrying on the details of executive and Legislative business, by Henry Binmore, of the Chicago bar.

A BILL providing for a uniform system of text-books for use in the public schools of New York State was introduced in the Assembly by Mr. Courtney, of Monroe. It constitutes a State board of school text-books, to be composed of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, the Secretary of the Regents of the State University, the President of the State Society of School Superintendents, the President of the State Association of Teachers, and the Principal of the Albany Normal Schools. After Sept. 2, 1892, no text-books shall be used in the public schools of the State that are not designated by this board. The board must make an annual report to the Legislature. Ten thousand dollars is appropriated for the maintenance of the proposed body. While in active service each member is to be paid $10 per day.

TWO REWARDS.—Snodgrass—Has the difference between Edward Bellamy and Lot's wife ever occurred to you?—Snively—No; what is it?—Snodgrass—Well, Bellamy made $16,000 by "Looking Backward."

AUCTION SALES.

The Following are Some of the Opinions of the Trade and Press:

"For the time that we have devoted to its examination, are well pleased with it."—ROBERT CLARKE & CO., Publishers and Booksellers, Cincinnati.

"You deserve well of the world till you die, and after, but the book trade is just as ungrateful as any republic, and although they may sling an occasional laurel wreath out your way, the silver buzzard and the golden eagle 'flieth not so fast nor so far.' There is but one Directory of the Book and Stationery Trade and that is Caspar's."—P. F. VAN EVEREN, New York.

"It is just splendid. The most complete book of the kind we have seen."—J. H. KURZENKNABE & SONS, Harrisburg, Pa.

"I am greatly pleased with your Directory. It is the best work of the kind ever issued and deserves a large sale."—NATURAL SCIENCE PUBLISHING CO., New York.

"It seems more complete than anything of the kind I have seen before."—J. B. MARTINDALE, Chicago.

"We like it very much, and we don't know but what it is the best thing of the kind we have ever seen."—P. R. McCARGO & Co., Boston.

"Am very grateful to you for the conscientious care and painstaking effort in preparing so valuable and so complete a work. Be kind enough to enter my name, and mail me all addenda sheets in future, and do not fail to notify me of any new project in this line you may engage in."—Geo. H. COLBY, Bookseller, Lancaster, N. H.

"We have looked it over with great interest and appreciate the fact that it will be of great value to us."—W. O. DAVIS & Co., Booksellers, Cincinnati.

"I think your book a most valuable one and believe it will be better appreciated as it becomes better known."—WILL H. LYONS, Newport, Ky.

"Even a cursory examination of this important directory will convince any one of the thorough manner in which it has been put together and of the value of the completed work. Mr. Caspar has produced a work which, if properly kept up from year to year, will be the standard."—The American Stationer, New York City.

"The Appendix to 'Caspar's Directory of the American Book, News, and Stationery Trades' is a most valuable compilation, exhaustive and complete. The information it contains is absolutely unique and not to be procured from any other source. Hence it is of the first importance to every one in the trades. It is admirably arranged; the references are simple, and being grouped under special heads, makes consultation a matter of little or no difficulty. Such a work is really a great trade text-book, from which the initiated can feel the pulse of the whole book-publishing world. It is a monument of careful, painstaking and accurate labor, and is as reliable as it is extensive. . . . The preparation of this useful volume must have been a work of immense labor and patience, and Mr. Caspar must be congratulated on the success which he has achieved. It is a manual for publishers, booksellers, newsdealers, stationers, and libraries, indispensable to them all."—The American Bookseller.

Volume VIII. of the Variorum Edition of Shakespeare. Edited by HORACE HOWARD FURNESS, Ph.D., LL.D., L.H.D. Royal 8vo, extra cloth, gilt top, $4.00.

The publication of a new volume of the Variorum Edition of Shakespeare, which is now recognized among scholars as a veritable mine of information, will be a welcome event to those who have studied the former plays. Each volume is a Shakespearian library in itself, and contains the best criticisms that have ever been written. Those already issued are "Romeo and Juliet," "Hamlet" (two vols.), "Macbeth," "King Lear," "Othello," and "The Merchant of Venice."

"To enjoy Shakespeare thoroughly, there is but one edition that will suffice, and that is Dr. Furness' own. It is the result of a lifetime of study by the most eminent Shakespearian scholar in America."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

"One of the most notable contributions to Shakespeare literature in the present century."—Manchester (Eng.) Guardian.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE spring trade sale commences April 22.

THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT Co. have just ready "As You Like It" in the Variorum Edition of Shakespeare and "The Reign of Charles V." in their New Library Edition of Prescott's works. They will publish on the 11th inst. Ouida's new novel, "Syrilin."

HENRY HOLT & Co. will publish shortly "Stage Land: curious habits and customs of its inhabitants," by Jerome K. Jerome, author of "Idle Thoughts of an Idle Fellow" and "Three Men in a Boat." It has spirited illustrations by J. B. Partridge of the stage heroine, the stage villain, and thirteen other typical stage characters, of all of whom the author gives descriptions.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. will publish early in ay "The Begum's Daughter," by Edwin Lassetter Bynner, which has been running the past year in the Atlantic Monthly. The story is descriptive of Knickerbocker life and has been pronounced by English and American journals, such as the London Spectator, the Nation, and others, a "very powerful story," which from its first pages showed a fresh and truly original strain.

T. B. PETERSON & BROS. have added to their twenty-five-cent series of popular fiction "The Millionaire's Wife," a new story by Prudence Lowell; "Clara Moreland," and "Viola," by Emerson Bennett; "Miriam, the Avenger," by Mrs. E. D. E. N. Southworth; "Worth the Wooing," and "Handsome Miss Lisle," by Lady Gladys Hamilton; and "The Exiles," a Russian story. This series now includes fifty-nine of their best-selling books.

FUNK & WAGNALLS have just ready "The Seven Churches of Asia, or, worldliness in the church," by Dr. Howard Crosby, who teaches many lessons to church members of his day founded on the letters to the seven churches contained in the Book of Revelation; and a volume of sermons by Rev. Robt. S. MacArthur, called "The Calvary Pulpit; Christ and Him Crucified," almost all of which were preached during the earlier ministry of the present rector of Calvary Baptist Church, New York City.

D. LOTHROP COMPANY have just issued "The Fairhaven Fourteen," by Mariana N. Tallman; "The World's Greatest Conflict," by Henry Boynton, who presents the parallels of France and America in their break for liberty a century ago; "What Saith the Scriptures," a handbook for Bible readers and for thoughtful members of the rapidly growing Societies for Christian Endeavor, compiled by Mary P. Lord; "The Story of Neesima," by Phebe McKeen; and the "Winter Sport Library," contributed to by various well-known authors.

THE WORTHINGTON Co. have added "The Feet of Love," by Anne Reeve Aldrich, with photogravure illustrations by Wm. Martin Johnson, to their International Library. The writer is the author of a book of poems published some time back under the title "The Rose of Flame." The scene of the story is a seaside summer resort on Long Island, and the chief character a young clergyman of a Protestant Episcopal church, which is almost the property of some rich residents of the pretty village. It is a tale of love and sacrifice told with many artistic descriptions, and filled with worldly wisdom and observation.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish on the 12th inst. "The Mistress of Beech Knoll," a love-story, pure and simple, by Clara Louise Burnham; Bret Harte's latest story, "A Waif of the Plains;" the first two volumes of the Riverside Science Series—(1) "A Century of Electricity," by T. C. Mendenhall, a new edition of a book which has been received with great favor as a clear and comprehensive account of discoveries and achievements in electrical science up to the present time, to which have been added new chapters and a new preface; (2) "The Physical Properties of Gases," by A. L. Kimball, an accurate and readable account of all that has been discovered concerning the subject; "The Roman Singer," by Marion Crawford in the Riverside Paper Series; and Longfellow, Whittier, and Holmes Leaflets, compiled by Josephine E. Hodgdon, in the Riverside Literature Series.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted: in the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

The diary of Carl Willard, the son of the minister in North Parish, furnishes much of the material for a story of the doings of the boys in a country town. They are a live set, each with a strong individuality. They get into scrapes, of course—as such boys always do—but they also learn from their experiences, and show how responsive boys are to wise efforts for their good.

The hammer: a story of the Maccabean times; il. by J: Jellicoe. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1890. 7+372 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

"The joint authors have given a vivid and interesting picture of Jewish life in the second century B.C. The opening chapters show to what an extent the Jews had fallen away from the old faith, and were endeavoring to disown their ancestry by assuming Greek dress, Greek manners, and even Greek names. Then follows a stirring account of the persecution of the faithful under Antiochus and of the rise of the Maccabees, with the aged Mattathias at their head. The remainder of the volume is devoted to the struggles of Judas, 'the Hammer,' and his intrepid band of followers against the Greeks, until his death in the famous battle of Eleasa, 'the Jewish Thermopylæ.'"—London Athenæum.

Dilke, Sir C: Wentworth. Problems of Greater Britain. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1890. 8+738 p. maps, O. cl., $4.

This is not a revision of the author's "Greater Britain," published over twenty years ago, but an entirely new book. It is a careful and exhaustive study of England and her many colonies and dependencies, regarding each as part of the political whole. Sir Charles believes there are many obstacles in the way of the plan of federation cherished by many Englishmen, the chief being the impossibility of a customs system which would be equally acceptable to all the colonies. He also shows how slight is the tie which binds the colonies to the mother country. If Canada desired annexation to the United States, the home government would not, in his opinion, oppose it with force. His greatest apprehension is for India, which does not love its conqueror. Much space is devoted to a Russian invasion of India. Other problems, also equally interesting, affecting the future of England, are discussed at length.

- In this volume many interesting subjects are discussed. Beginning with instinctive thought, its etherealization by means of language, the author treats of the social contract between God and man, the meaning of the formula "Kingdom of God" as promulgated in the days of the Patriarchs, applying its principles to the subject of a general social reformation. He touches upon such questions as the relation of church and state and church and school, the purification of politics, the labor question, and the various phases of the race problem.

- Powell, E. P. Liberty and life: discourses. Chic.,

C: H. Kerr & Co., 1889. c. 3-208 p. D. cl., 75 c.
 In the preface Mr. Powell sets forth the general point of view from which his book is written. "Evolution has brought us to face such new views of life, and of our responsibility as the finality of the animal kingdom, and inheritors of an eternal evolution of organic and functional power, that we must recast our views of sin altogether. Henceforth sin will be held to be not a personal affront to the Creator, but a course of action that degrades ourselves in either body or mind. . . . We are placed in charge of ourselves by the fact of self-consciousness."

Tourgée, Albion W. Pactolus Prime. N. Y. Cassell Pub. Co., [1890.] c. 7+359 p. D. cl $1.
 Pactolus Prime is the boot-black of one of the prominent hotels of Washington; he is a negro, and is reputed to have made a fortune in his business; he talks like a highly educated man. Senators, judges, lawyers, and doctors are his customers, and as they in succession fill his chair, he converses with them on the present condition of the negro race in America. Many opposite opinions are thus elicited. While all agree on one point, that the negro is not receiving fair play, no remedy is suggested for his benefit. There is a slight story in which Pactolus is a pathetic figure.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

APRIL 5, 1890.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE DISCOUNT QUESTION IN ENGLAND.

THE nuisance of discounts is one of the "burning" questions in England quite as much as in this country. For a quarter of a century, at least, the English bookseller has fought it, as we have, in vain. In the meantime the evil has become chronic and eaten its way almost into the vitals of the book trade, impairing its usefulness and making it impossible for a bookseller, pure and simple, dealing in current literature, to make a living profit from his business. The publishing trade in the meantime there as here seem to have underrated the gravity of the situation, possibly because the immediate effect on the volume of their business was not as perceptible to them as to the distributing agents. There has been some decrease in business of course, and year by year it has become more difficult to make a market, yet somehow the machinery has been kept in motion and the shrinkage has been attributed to any and every cause but the right one, it seems to us. A few of the leading publishers here, recognizing the evil, made an attempt some time ago to induce their fellow-publishers to unite in an effort to regulate discounts, but received such half-hearted support that they became discouraged and abandoned the crusade.

Now Mr. Frederick Macmillan, of Macmillan & Co., London, tired of the existing state of affairs and thinking that "the time is ripe for some serious action on the part of all concerned towards a settlement of the 'underselling' question" is making an heroic effort to interest our English brethren in the matter. In a letter to the London Bookseller for March 6 he presents his views, which we commend to the careful study of our friends:

"Although this is no doubt a matter that primarily concerns retail booksellers, it is of serious importance to authors, publishers, and all concerned in the production of books, and also to bookbuyers and those interested in the welfare of letters. A well-stocked book-shop is a centre of mental culture, and any disorganization of trade that renders the existence of such centres difficult or impossible is an injury to the community.

"For many years it has been felt that something should be done to get rid of the irregularity of prices and discounts that is the cause of the evil referred to, but the difficulty of any organized action among booksellers is so great that, although much has been thought and said, nothing has been done. It has been suggested that the body which has it in its power to take the necessary steps is the publishers; and believing such to be the case, I am impelled to write this letter.

"There appear to be two courses open—either to fix the limit of discount which should be allowed from published prices, or to abolish discounts to the public altogether. A careful consideration of the question has led me to conclude that the latter of these two courses is the sound one. If the principle of giving discounts to purchasers be admitted, it is difficult to fix a limit to them, and it seems to me that the best and only satisfactory plan is a general reduction of retail prices, and the diminution of trade allowances to such a point that the full published price may reasonably be demanded and obtained from purchasers. I am of opinion that a trade price of 10d. in the 1s., with the present discounts at settlement, but without odd books, would be at once sufficient and just, and at the same time not large enough to tempt the bookseller into giving discounts to his customers, and so beginning over again the process of demoralization. I am strongly of opinion that any attempt to legalise a discount of 25 per cent. from published prices would be ineffectual; and I do not think that publishers (though I can only speak certainly as to my own firm) would be willing to take steps in such a direction. I do not believe that there would be any difficulty in getting the public to pay full prices if it were clearly understood that the rates allowed to booksellers were not such as to enable them to give discount. Of course so long as it is known that discount is obtainable a purchaser will press for it, and when he has got it will have the feeling that if he had used a little more pressure he might have made a better bargain; but the ease with which, when in isolated cases books have been published at net prices, the bookseller has been able to sell them without discount, leads me to think that a general movement in that direction would be unattended with any real difficulty.

"Although a considerable number of houses might not be unwilling to fix the terms for their publications on a net basis, they cannot be expected to take such a step (which among other things would involve a good deal of trouble in the revision of the prices of existing books), unless they are assured that they would be acting with the general approval of the retail trade, and that their books would not be placed at a disad-vantage with those of other publishers who might or might not follow their example. The change, should it be adopted, would be made with the view of benefiting their customers and assisting in the settlement of a difficult problem, not with the expectation of any direct advantage to themselves as publishers.

"It therefore seems to me that the first step necessary is to obtain some expression of opinion on the part of the retail trade, as to the practicability and advisability of such a new departure; and it has occurred to me that you, sir, as the editor of the recognized organ of the book trade, might perhaps be willing to receive replies to a series of questions issued to the trade generally. If these questions were answered widely (and I cannot believe that any bookseller is without an opinion, one way or the other), they would form a real basis for discussion at a meeting of publishers which might be summoned to consider them.

"For my own part, I have no doubt that, with the hearty coöperation of the retail trade, the net system could easily be introduced, and that its adoption would put the whole business of book-selling on a healthy and prosperous basis."

THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY four or five years ago succeeded in getting a fairly representative opinion from the retail trade in favor of reducing retail prices, close discounts to the trade and no discounts whatever to any one else, but so far as we know that opinion was allowed to repose in the pages of the WEEKLY. We therefore look forward with interest to this movement of Mr. Macmillan, which is significant as being the first which has been made openly and boldly by the representative of one of the largest houses on both sides of the Atlantic.

ANNALS OF SCOTCH PRINTING.

MACMILLAN & BOWES, Cambridge, England, have recently published a sumptuous work under the above title. The first part was written as a series of articles for The Printers' Register by Dr. Robert Dickson, who was compelled to abandon the work by ill-health. The task was completed by Mr. John Philip Edmond, who found himself called upon to deal with the majority of the printers whose work called for notice. Practically the scope of the plan includes all the printers who followed their calling in Scotland up to the close of the sixteenth century. It has been carried out with patience and thoroughness in the way of research, and with abundant bibliographical knowledge of early printing generally. Indeed, it is a work that will interest bibliographers and antiquarians more than printers.

It is a technical account of some three hundred and thirty articles—some of them books of high literary importance, most of them fragments and tracts of little more than antiquarian value. The bibliographical memoirs which divide the work into its system of chapters are necessarily meagre, as so little is known about the men who printed in Scotland anterior to the seventeenth century. It is a somewhat singular fact in bibliographical history that for nearly three hundred years no knowledge whatever was extant as to the name of the earliest Scotch printers. At the end of the last century George Chalmers, in collecting material for his "Life of Ruddiman," found in the records of the General Record House of Scotland a patent issued by King James IV., which proved that a printing-press was established by Walter Chepman and Andrew Myllar at Edinburgh in 1507. The partners were to have a monopoly of printing certain books specified. And as it was thought expedient that certain named liturgical books should be used generally throughout the realm as soon as they could be printed and supplied, the two printers were solely authorized and privileged to publish the same.

After Chepman and Myllar came Thomas Davidson, who in 1541 was chosen to print certain Acts of Parliament of James V.; John Scot, who printed from 1552 to 1571; Robert Lekpreuk, a contemporary of John Scot, who in 1564 received royal authority for printing the Acts of Queen Mary and in 1567-8 was constituted King's printer for the space of twenty years; Thomas Bassandyne, who obtained Scot's types and assisted Lekpreuk, and who printed the first folio Bible in Scotland; John Ross, who printed some comparatively unimportant books between 1574 and 1580; Henry Charteris, originally a bookseller, whose chief undertakings were editions of the works of early Scotch writers, and who was succeeded by his son Henry in 1599; Thomas Vantrollier, a Frenchman, who first established a press in London and removed it to Edinburgh in 1584, where he had the honor of printing the first of King James' works; Robert Waldegrave, another Frenchman, came after Vantrollier, and was succeeded by Robert Smyth, an English printer, in 1592; then came Robert Charteris, who succeeded his father, the younger Henry Charteris, and who was King's printer during the whole of his career. He died in 1610, with which date the work closes.

In regard to the biographical details, the authors give the narrative partly in their own words, and partly in those of ancient charters and documents of archaic phraseology. The bibliographical portion is highly creditable. No pains seem to have been spared to seek out information; original sources have been resorted to, and the collations are scientifically done. There are many illustrations, chiefly fac-similes of types. The book is a handsome and imposing volume of over five hundred pages, beautifully printed in old style type. The edition is limited.

CURIOSITIES OF FRENCH CRITICISM.

SOME curious facts concerning literary criticism have just been published at Paris by M. L. Lucas, the son of the eminent critic, M. Hippolyte Lucas, under the title of "Portraits et Souvenirs Littéraires." Among the souvenirs is the following note from A. Dumas, père: "My dear confrère, have the kindness to let me go down to posterity by saying, in the Siccle, that my 'Voyage au Sinai' is the chef-d'œuvre of chefs-d'œuvres. Thousand compliments." M. Berlioz writes even more to the point: "My dear friend, will you kindly, if you can, introduce in your next feuilleton a few words announcing my concert on the 19th at the Conservatoire? Duprez, Manol, and Mme. Gras will sing one of my trios, and Duprez will play a piece which I have written in Germany, and which has never before been heard in Paris. . . . You might say this apropos of my return from Germany, and add that it is a long time since I gave my last concert at Paris."

A CURIOUS LITERARY HAPPENING.

THE Giornale di Sicilia, a daily paper, published at Palermo in Sicily, in its issue of the 8th of February last, informed its readers as follows:

LEONE, THE ROMANCE OF A BRIGAND CHIEF.

To-morrow we will begin a new story, published the first time in Boston, U. S. A., and due to the fervid fancy and exquisite art of a distinguished American author.

From the title alone our readers will be able to appreciate the interest which this new appendix of ours is destined to awaken. It is superfluous to state how rich is this romance with most interesting scenes, with splendid descriptive pages, and with extraordinary poetic and dramatic situations; the nature of the story lending itself to the work of a bright and broad imagination as is that of our author.

We have intrusted its translation from the English to an amiable and highly cultured lady of our city, who, from time to time, favors our paper with her valuable contributions.

We add nothing more; trusting that our readers will be grateful to us for the choice we have made in the publication of this American novel.

And, in fact, the next day there appeared the first chapter, and the publication is still going on.

"The curious thing about this is," says the Boston Transcript, "that the original novel was published by the Ticknors, of Boston, several years ago in their Round Robin Series, without the name of the author—as all the novels in that series were published—and that the author of this 'Leone' was not an American, but an Italian, nay, a Sicilian native of Palermo. Luigi Monti, A.M. (Harvard); the young Sicilian of Longfellow's 'Tales of a Wayside Inn,' and well known among us as a teacher, lecturer, and author of other works.

"It will much surprise the editors and readers of the Giornale di Sicilia when they will find out, as they soon will, that the 'distinguished American author' was their own countryman."

WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO ABOUT IT?

From Geyer's Stationer.

"TRADE is fair, but the dry-goods fellows are trying to eat us up—but we are pretty tough."

The above is an extract from a letter sent to this office by a firm of booksellers and stationers located in Hartford, Conn. It is, however, by no means an isolated complaint, nor one without foundation in fact. The same story comes from business men engaged in the same lines of trade in every part of the country, and they invariably point in one direction—towards the department dry-goods store.

In regard to "combines" of every sort, whether in the form of department stores, in productive industries, or in transportation facilities, we are on record as believing them to be, in the long run, highly injurious to the general welfare of communities, and inimical to good citizenship, inasmuch as they are built up at the expense of the independent employing class, particularly men with small capital. Especially is this true of department stores and manufacturing monopolies.

But other considerations are equally important, among which is the "live-and-let-live" principle. The bookselling and stationery business affords telling examples of the violation of this and other principles of vital importance to the maintenance of business integrity and general confidence, through which the legitimate or regular dealer finds himself cut to pieces on prices in a way affording no redress, and leading him to the conclusion that he is the victim of unfair dealing.

The logic of the tendency to crush out small and special traders concerns manufacturers very much. When the great houses have "eaten up" all the little ones needful to their purpose, what shall prevent them from crowning their ambition with a publishing or a stationery manufacturing department, or even a paper-mill or two, just as many big establishments now own, or control the products of cotton, silk, linen and woollen mills? This may seem laughable, but it is far from impossible.

Undoubtedly the anomalous conditions existing in the two trades mentioned are largely due to the practice of giving big discounts and the fiction of published prices, by which the bazaar man, with profits dropping into his till from a multitude of sources, and a trade that enables him to turn over his stock rapidly, can give buyers nearly the full discount, or can afford to use books and stationery, instead of chromos, as a lure for customers. This matter of discounts, however, is entirely within the province of manufacturers, producers, and jobbers, and if they choose to let things drift in directions detrimental to special dealers in their lines, that settles the matter. If petty jealousies and unworthy rivalries are permitted to crowd out of mind more generous and comprehensive views; if the pursuit of selfish ends blinds men to the broad and general principles underlying trade, by which they, in common with others, must stand or fall, none can prevent.

NEWS OF STANLEY'S COMING BOOK.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have received the following letter from the great African explorer:

CAIRO, EGYPT,
VILLA VICTORIA, March 6, 1890. }

Messrs. Charles Scribner's Sons, New York City.

SIRS: I am happy to inform you, that I am so far advanced with the writing of my book "In Darkest Africa, and the Quest, Rescue, and Retreat of Emin, the Governor of Equatoria," that more than half the ms. has been already mailed for England. By the 1st of April next I hope to have finished with the whole of it. When that is done not Vanderbilt's wealth would induce me to write upon the subject at any length again. Therefore, you will be justified—nay, authorized—in stating that the book bearing the above title is the only authentic and complete account of the work performed by Emin Pasha Relief Expedition which I have written or shall at any time write.

Yours faithfully,
HENRY M. STANLEY.

MR. MARSTON returned from Cairo March 12, and brought with him a considerable portion of the manuscript of Mr. Stanley's forthcoming book. It is hoped that the work will be in the hands of the public before the end of May; it will be in two volumes, and, so far as can yet be estimated, it will run to a thousand pages. The book will contain three important new maps, showing the course pursued by the great traveller and his companions, and giving the results of their explorations in the heart of the Dark Continent. There will be about one hundred and fifty illustrations, and those of the greatest interest have been entrusted to M. Riou, the well-known French artist, who is himself thoroughly conversant with the characteristics of African scenery, and is equally at home in the delineation of the manners, customs, and fierce forays of the native races.—Publishers' Circular.

HE PONIED.—Professor: Who wrote Cæsar's Commentaries?—College Student: Why—er—Bohn.—Life.

OLD BOOK CHAT.

JUDGING by the sales, it would seem that just at present autographs are more in demand than books in England.

At the sale of Mr. Richard How's library, Mr. Quaritch bid £102 for a quarto Bible translated into the American-Indian (Virginian) language, with Psalms in metre, two volumes in one, Cambridge, U. S. A., 1663, and New Testament, 1661, first edition of this very rare version. A "Myles Coverdale Byble," 1535, imperfect, fetched £24.

IN view of the probable sale of the world-renowned, but almost inaccessible, Middlehill Library at Cheltenham, England, which was formed early in the present century by Sir Thomas Phillips, the British Museum and the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge have agreed to unite in securing those mss. which it is thought of importance to retain in England. The total sum of money for purchases to be guaranteed by these three bodies will probably amount to £20,000.

THE section of the Hart catalogue which will attract most attention is that containing descriptions of the books remarkable for their bindings. Among them are what appear to be very fine specimens, although, of course, it is impossible to pronounce as to their genuineness without a close personal inspection. However, we may take it for granted that to those items which come from the Hamilton Palace or Sunderland libraries no suspicion can apply. But frankly of "Pompadour" provenances, of books said to be bound for Diane of Poitiers and Henri II., of Groliers, and Clovis Eves, I am more than inclined to be sceptical. I believe there is a place in New York where they can be bought "wholesale, retail, or for exportation." Among the more noteworthy items is a volume bearing the initials on the covers of the "Martyr King," which was purchased at the Sunderland sale, and is undoubtedly genuine. Another interesting book is one bound by De Seuil in beautiful condition, the delicate tooling on the back being in perfect preservation. A lot that should cause a great deal of attraction is a copy of Aristotle, which once belonged to Edward VI., and has that monarch's autograph notes in it. It has unfortunately been rebound. Among other beautiful bindings I notice half a dozen examples of Le Gascon, a couple of Maolis, a volume bound for Henry VIII., etc.

It has been said the taste for collecting old Bibles has lately experienced a "boom." This I doubt, but the anxiety to possess a really rare or valuable edition of the Scriptures is so widespread and old a one, that it may safely be said to have been a "booming" line of collecting since book collecting began. Do we not read that Cardinal Mazarin sent collectors through Germany to buy rare and curious volumes? In all probability, the Bible which for years bore his name was secured in that manner. The fact is that, of all books, the Bible was, in the infancy of printing and years after, a most valued and coveted possession. Something of this spirit we see to-day. Bookdealers know by experience the fabulous value set upon a "rare and ancient Bible," which eager and hard-up clients so often offer them for sale. When the volume comes to be examined it usually turns out to be some common, worthless, or imperfect seventeenth century version, not more valuable than its own weight in waste paper. How, then, to know a valuable Bible? In reality this is a comparatively simple thing. Unless it happens to be the first edition of some particular version, or interesting for a choice binding, an autograph, or a provenance illustrée, the chances are the book offered for sale is worthless. What, then, are the most interesting Bibles in the English language? To begin with one, we hear a great deal about the "Breeches" Bible. This version is interesting on various accounts; but only the first edition, the work of English refugees at Geneva, is valuable. For many years it was the Bible of Great Britain. Edition after edition to the number of nearly two hundred was printed, and until 1611, when the present authorized version (soon itself to be superseded) was published, the Genevan or "Breeches" Bible held full sway. For quite twenty years after the King James' version was read in the churches the Genevan version was the more popular among the common people, and did not finally succumb to its newer rival without a long struggle of forty or fifty years. A fine copy of the first (1560) Breeches Bible is worth $150. Later issues can be bought by the ton at from $10 to $1 apiece! Yet every possessor of any edition firmly believes he has a treasure which is to enrich him forever. I remember passing in Southampton Row, London, a little bookstore every day for two weeks, and seeing an old Bible hanging by a string, marked 2s. 6d. One day I took it down and glanced at it, and found it was a copy of the 1560 Genevan version. I soon possessed it. Upon collating I found it was all right, bound it at a cost of $15, and put it into an auction, where it realized £20! Needless to say even in London such bargains are rare. Another and far more valuable version is that put forth by Coverdale in 1535. This was the first English Bible. Its value may be inferred from a statement of the fact that but one perfect copy is known to exist. It would fetch not far short of $5000. In all fairness it should have been given the first place in this notice, but as the present does not pretend to be more than "chat" I may be forgiven for not keeping strictly to rules of precedence. It is a fact seldom appreciated in the trade that a fine copy of a scarce Bible is one of the most valuable of books. Next week I shall say something more about the Coverdale Bible and some others. Meanwhile it is interesting to note that although so popular, and dedicated to Queen Elizabeth, the Genevan version was never sanctioned either by Parliament or royalty for public use in churches. BIBLIOPHILUS.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

DU MAURIER, Punch's famous satirist-artist, is writing a novel which he will illustrate himself.

DOM PEDRO, Ex-King of Brazil, it is reported, has consented to write a memoir of his life, which will at the same time be a review of forty years of the history of Brazil.

VASILI VERESTCHAGIN, the famous Russian painter, has written a novel entitled "Xenia Repina," which has been translated by B. MacGahan. It will be issued early next month by George Routledge & Sons.

MR. HUGH THOMPSON, whose delightful eighteenth century drawings have given so much pleasure to readers of The English Illustrated Magazine, is a witty young Irishman. He has lately accepted a commission to illustrate Scott's novels—a task which will occupy him some years.

DR. SIMON N. PATTEN, professor in the Wharton School of Finance and Economy, has in press a book entitled "The Economic Basis of Protection." He "claims to re-examine the whole question of Free Trade vs. Protection, in the light of modern economic theories, and to show how the free-trade theories are inconsistent with the best results of late economic thought." The book will unquestionably mark an epoch in this discussion.

DR. E. J. JAMES, professor in the Wharton School of Finance and Economy, is preparing for the American Economic Association a paper on the "Canal Question in the United States." He will "show how great a mistake the American people have committed in allowing its canal system to fall into decay." He is warmly in favor of the construction of a new system which shall unite the great waterways of the West with the Atlantic seaboard at various points.

PRINCESS THERESA, the only daughter of the Prince Regent Luitpold of Bavaria, has just published a valuable work on her recent travels to the North Cape. The Princess, an experienced traveller, published five years ago a record of her travels in Russia, which she undertook under an assumed name and accompanied only by a few attendants, in order to obtain a truer insight into the characteristic features of the country than is generally possible to royal travellers. The Princess, who is now in her fortieth year, writes under the pseudonym "Therese v. Bayer."—Tribune.

MRS. CAMPBELL-PRAED has lately finished a novel to be called "The Rival Princess." This lady is an Australian, as her father was a squatter in Queensland. Her maiden name was Rosa Murray-Prior, and she was born at Bromelton Station, on the Logan River, in that easternmost province of the Continent. On her father's side she is of Irish descent, and she is a granddaughter of Colonel Murray-Prior, who fought at Waterloo in the 18th Hussars. When Queensland was enrolled among the Australian colonies, Mr. Murray-Prior was appointed Postmaster-General, and he afterward served in various Queensland Ministries. It was thus that his daughter acquired the knowledge which she afterward utilized in "Policy and Passion" and "Miss Jacobsen's Chance." It was in 1872 that Miss Murray-Prior married Mr. Campbell-Praed, son of the well-known banker, and nephew of Winthrop Mackworth Praed, the poet.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

BEGINNING with the May number, The Andover Review will have a new department devoted to the Literary Outlook, under the charge of Professor Arthur Sherburne Hardy.

THE manuscript of Stanley's magazine article has reached New York, and is to be published in the June Scribner's, of which an extra edition will be printed to meet the expected demand.

THE first three chapters of Andrew Lang and Rider Haggard's joint novel, "The World's Desire," appears in the New Review for April. It will continue the adventures of Ulysses, which the authors think are wound up too abruptly by Homer in the Odyssey.

The Racket is the title of a new humorous weekly published in New York. The management announce that "this will be a very innocent and very harmless racket, and there will be no hard feelings after it." A weekly insurance policy for purchasers is one of the features of The Racket.

THE publishers of Scribner's Magazine have, of late, received an increasing number of requests for artists' proofs of engravings printed in its pages. Heretofore the publishers have thought it wise not to allow these to go out of their own possession. They have now decided to give an opportunity to those interested in the subject to obtain such proofs as they want for their own use, the charge to be one dollar for copies on India paper, and fifty cents for copies on plate paper. This offer is made only to regular subscribers of Scribner's Magazine, whose names are on its books.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE EYTINGE PUBLISHING Co., New York, has published a translation of the younger Dumas' "l'Affaire Clémenceau."

GEORGE ROUTLEDGE & SONS will publish in England a collection of stories and witty sayings by the great American showman, P. T. Barnum.

ESTES & LAURIAT are to publish this fall General Ben Butler's reminiscences. The work will be in two volumes. The title has not yet been decided upon.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS are said to have already in hand orders for 50,000 copies of Stanley's "In Darkest Africa." The price of the book has been fixed at $7.50 for the two volumes.

THE SWEDENBORG PRINTING AND PUBLISHING Co., New York, has fallen heir to the income of a large part of the property of the late David A. Hopkins, of Bergen, N. J.

HARPER & BROS. will publish at once a new story of our Indian frontier for young people—"The Red Mustang," by W. O. Stoddard. It will have a number of spirited illustrations by H. F. Farny.

THOMAS WHITTAKER will publish at once Prebendary Row's new book, "Christian Theism, a brief and popular survey of the evidences, upon which it rests; and the objections urged against it considered and refuted."

THE PROGRESSIVE PUBLISHING Co., London, has published a "Biographical Dictionary of Freethinkers, of All Ages and Nations," by J.

M. Wheeler. The compiler contemplates a "History of Free Thought in England."

B. WESTERMAN & CO., New York, will publish for the United States, in connection with Weidmann, Berlin, "T. Macci Plauti Fabularum Reliquiæ Ambrosianæ," edited by Studemund, long favorably known as a Plautus scholar.

"LOOKING BACKWARD" has reached its 333d thousand. If the copies were laid end to end, they would make a continuous line over thirty miles long; or, if placed one upon the other, would make a column more than four miles high.

WM. C. BRYANT & CO., 24 Broadway, Brooklyn, N. Y., will publish at once "A National Method of Physical Training," by Edwin Checkley, the exponent of a simple system of reducing flesh without dieting or appliances, and of building up slender people of sedentary habits.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish shortly under the title, "Robert Browning: Personalia," a little book by Edmund Gosse, the well-known English writer. It will contain a notable article printed in the Century some years ago, Mr. Gosse's recent paper in the New Review, with prefatory matter and an epilogue, with a poem by Mr. Browning never printed.

PREPARATIONS are now being made for an International Exhibition to be held in the Island of Jamaica, B. W. I., in January, 1891, under the auspices of the Government of Jamaica. In view of the very considerable and increasing trade between the United States and the West Indies, the committee have appropriated a large space for American exhibits. No charge will be made for space in the exhibition buildings, nor will duties be levied on any of the exhibits unless sold in the island. Thomas Amor, Secretary to the Committee, Stewart Building, 280 Broadway, N. Y., will furnish particulars to those who may be interested.

It is said that a literary form almost wholly new to English literature will be introduced in a volume which Messrs. Harper & Brothers have in press for early publication. The book is a collection of examples of a striking species of composition, carefully selected and translated from the French. This literary form has of late years been carried to a high degree of development in France, but it has not as yet been naturalized in other countries, except to a certain extent in Russia. The volume will be illustrated from one hundred and fifty drawings, by H. W. McVickar, after the French manner—or rather, after his own inimitable manner.

"A BORN COQUETTE," by Mrs. Hungerford ("The Duchess"), is to be shortly published by Jno. W. Lovell. The story is now completing serial service under the Tillotson auspices. The syndicate named has newspaper control of Mr. Black's 1890 story, entitled "Stand Fast," and of Geo. M. Fenn's "A Mint of Money," for early publication. They have also secured a story by Mrs. Oliphant for publication in the fall, and have as well as concluded arrangements with James Payn, W. Clark Russell, Mary Dickens, Justin H. McCarthy, Commander Cameron, Mrs. Southworth, Mrs. A. K. Green, Grant Allen, and the Queen of Roumania ("Carmen Sylvia") for fiction to be syndicated at once.

THE GLOBE PRINTING HOUSE, of Philadelphia, is pushing the third volume of Mr. Seilhamer's

"History of the American Theatre" towards completion. The new volume will cover only eight years of American theatrical annals, which is explained by the fact that in the epoch between 1792 and 1800 not fewer than a hundred English actors and actresses of distinction came to America. Mr. Seilhamer was fortunate enough to procure material for biographies of all of these, including circumstantial accounts of the English careers of Hodgkinson, Mrs. Wroughton, Mrs. Melmoth, Mrs. Oldmixon, Mrs. Hatton, Mrs. Whitlock, Mrs. Warrell, Mrs. Fontenelle, Charles Powell, Williamson, Marshall, Darley and Bates, not to speak of those of a later period, Mrs. Merry, Jefferson, Warren, Bernard, and Cooper. The facts were drawn almost wholly from English newspapers and files of English playbills, not being accessible in any other shape. This epoch is also remarkable for the development of dramatic criticism in America and for the activity of American playwrights. Both subjects are fully treated in the new volume.

GINN & Co. will publish shortly for the corporation of Harvard University two monographs. The first will be "A History of the Veto Power in the United States," by Edward Campbell Mason, Instructor in Political Economy. Mr. Mason's work will include a chapter on English and Colonial Vetoes, and a chapter on State Vetoes. The body of the work is a systematic discussion of all the Presidential vetoes, arranged by subject and based on a study of the records of Congress. Then follows an investigation of the Constitutional questions which have arisen out of the use of the veto power. An appendix contains a chronological list of Presidential vetoes, with complete references to the journals of the two Houses, and a bibliography of the subject. In an introduction the editor, Professor Hart, will discuss the veto in modern Constitutions. The second number of the series will be "An Introduction to the Study of Federal Governments," by Albert Bushnell Hart, Assistant Professor of History. This monograph will contain an historical introduction, with brief sketches of the rise and institutions of the principal federal governments which have existed from the establishment of the Greek federations to the present day. To each sketch will be appended a brief, critical bibliography. Then will follow a parallel arrangement of the texts, in English, of the four most important federal Constitutions,—those of Canada, Germany, Switzerland, and the United States. There will be an appendix containing a list of special authorities on federal government, and of references to discussions in more general works.

BUSINESS NOTES.

NEW YORK CITY.—James R. Steers, assignee for Lockwood Coombes, gives notice to the creditors of that firm that they are required to present their claims with the vouchers, duly verified, to him at his place of business, No. 55 Liberty Street, New York, on or before the 19th day of June, 1890.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—Mr. Fetterman has removed his stock of books and circulating library from Twelfth and Main Streets to Fourteenth and Main Streets. Mr. Warson, proprietor of the "Antiquarian" bookstore, says that his new location on East Twelfth Street is 100 per cent. better than the old [stand] on East Eleventh Street.

THE GREAT RED DRAGON;

Or, The People vs. The Money Power. By L. B. WOOL-FOLK. 331 pp., cloth, $1.00. Original! Stimulating! Patriotic! Read what is said of it: "The whole book bristles with startling facts." "Presents the cause of the evils now affecting the business world." "No man can afford to remain in ignorance of the revelations in this book." "Remarkable power in statement." Address all orders to the publishers, GEO. E. STEVENS CO., CINCIN-NATI, OHIO. For sale by the leading New York jobbers.

A NEW BOOK BY FRANCES HODGSON BURNETT.

LITTLE SAINT ELIZABETH,

And Other Stories. By FRANCES HODGSON BURNETT. With 12 new full-page drawings, by Reginald B. Birch. Square 8vo, uniform with "Little Lord Fauntleroy," $1.50.

Mrs. Burnett's "Little St. Elizabeth" is a story that reminds one of the author's "Fauntleroy" in the art and feeling with which the girl's character and the incidents of her life are pictured. The lovable little maid is of French birth, and her education has been among priests and with relatives whose devotion to the Church and to the poor is great. Her adventures after she is brought, under peculiar circumstances, to New York, and is placed in the care of a bachelor uncle, form the theme of the fascinating story. The other tales, "The Story of Prince Fairyfoot," "The Proud Little Grain of Wheat," and "Behind the White Brick," are, like the title story, full of the delightful humor and tenderness of feeling characteristic of Mrs. Burnett.

"Elizabeth is as charming a girl creation as Mrs. Burnett's boy hero, Little Lord Fauntleroy."—London Graphic.

"Elizabeth is one of the most winning of Mrs. Burnett's child heroines."—London Athenaeum.

UNIFORM WITH THE ABOVE.

Little Lord Fauntleroy. Illustrated by R. B. Birch. Square 8vo, $1.00.

Sara Crowe; or, What Happened at Miss Minchin's. Illustrated by R. B. Birch. Square 8vo, $1.00.

Expiation.

By OCTAVE THANET. Illustrated by A. B. Frost. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

The scene of this story is Arkansas in the last year of the Civil War, when the country was infested with plundering and murderous "graybacks." The character portraits and the pictures of the adventurous life of the time are given with strength and vividness. The movement of the story is rapid, and the reader's interest is maintained throughout.

The Lawton Girl.

By HAROLD FREDERIC. 12mo, cloth, $1.25; paper, 50 cents.

A powerful piece of romantic realism, characterizing vividly not only the personages of the novel, but the entire social life of the town in which the scene is laid. The story has a very strong human and pathetic side, and the trials, struggles, and accomplishments of "The Lawton Girl" are depicted with much sympathy and delicacy of touch.

THREE FAMOUS FRENCH WOMEN.

The Wife of the First Consul.

Translated from the French of Imbert de Saint-Amand, by T. S. PERRY. With portrait, 12mo, $1.25.

From the French of the same author.

The Happy Days of the Empress Marie Louise. With portrait, 12mo. In press.

Within the past few years M. Imbert de Saint-Amand has written a series of volumes which have made him one of the most popular authors of France. Each has for its nucleus some portion of the life of one of the three eminent women who presided over the French court, either at Versailles or the Tuileries, immediately before, during, and after the revolutionary epoch. But though thus largely biographical, the volumes are equally pictures of the times they describe. Probably no times in any country were ever so picturesque, so crowded with events, and so peopled with striking characters, and M. Imbert de Saint-Amand conveys an impression of them unrivalled for reality and vivacity.

Bright Skies and Dark Shadows.

By Rev. HENRY M. FIELD, D.D. 8vo, $1.50.

A charming narrative of the author's recent journeyings in the Southern States. It is descriptive and pleasantly historical in its pictures, and contains much that is instructive and suggestive in its examination of social and political problems.

English Lands, Letters, and Kings.

By DONALD G. MITCHELL. Vol. I., From Celt to Tudor. 12mo, $1.50; Vol. II., From Elizabeth to Anne. 12mo, $1.50.

"A bright, pleasant, chatty record, true to history, and full of useful hints and suggestions."—Boston Sat. Eve. Gazette

"A most charming book for lovers of the purest and best literature."—Hartford Post.

JUST PUBLISHED: Semitic Philosophy.

Showing the Ultimate Social and Scientific Outcome of the Original Christianity in its Conflict with Surviving Ancient Heathenism. By PHILIP C. FRIESE. 1 vol., 12mo, 263 pages, $1.00.

In it many interesting subjects are discussed. Beginning with instinctive thought, its etherealization by means of language, the author treats of the social contract between God and man, the meaning of the formula "Kingdom of God," as promulgated in the days of the Patriarchs, applying its principles to the subject of a general social reformation. He touches upon such questions as the relation of church and state and church and school, the purification of politics, the labor question, and the various phases of the race problem. A work unique in its combination of peculiar and original ideas, with strong practical suggestions.

"Peculiar in its combination of original ideas with strong practical suggestions."—Herald and Presbyterian, Cincinnati.

SHORTER THAN THE SHORTEST.

We have JUST PUBLISHED the Twenty-first Edition, from entirely NEW PLATES, of ## Eclectic Shorthand.

By Prof. J. G. CROSS, M.A. 1 vol., cloth, $2.00.

The three most important characteristics of Shorthand, Simplicity, Legibility, Brevity, are more fully secured in Eclectic Shorthand than in any other system. Because of these three features it can be practically acquired in one-third the time necessary to master any other system of verbatim reporting.

Hundreds who have failed in an attempt to learn some one of the old systems have readily acquired a practical use of this system.

Send for full descriptive circulars containing testimonials and demonstrating by comparison with other systems that the Eclectic is the SIMPLEST, the BRIEFEST, and the most LEGIBLE system of Shorthand in existence, or a copy of the book will be sent, postpaid, for $2.00.

Eclectic Shorthand Dictionary.

1 vol., 8vo, cloth, $3.00.

From SIMS ELY, Court Reporter, Eighth Judicial District, Kansas.

"The Eclectic Dictionary is far more comprehensive than I had anticipated. To recite its many advantages would be to quote its entire contents from cover to cover. To the student this new work is simply indispensable."

"Every practical reporter also will find within its pages many 'pointers' and many new 'short-cuts' hitherto unthought of."

Something New for Shorthand Writers.

Curve-Line Shorthand Blanks.

What experienced teachers say of them:

"It has met with the hearty approval of our entire school."—J. M. LIND, Univ. of Denver, Denver, Colo.

"I will recommend my pupils to use them. They will certainly be quite an aid."—G. L. HUDKINS, Cawker City, Kan.

"I am satisfied that I can write from 10 to 15 words per minute faster than on the straight lines and find it less tiresome."—F. F. DEAN, Washington, D.C.

NOTES IN SEASON.

WARD, LOCK & Co. will publish early in May, in their Minerva Library, Lane's "Manners and Customs of the Modern Egyptians," fully illustrated.

W. S. GOTTSBERGER & Co., have just ready "Ekkehard," a tale of the tenth century, by Joseph Victor von Scheffel, translated from the German.

PORTER & COATES have in preparation a library edition, in four volumes, of Grace and Philp Wharton's "Wits and Beaux of Society" and "The Queens of Society." The volumes will be illustrated.

BANGS & Co. will hold their regular Spring Parcel Sale on May 6 and following days. Invoices should reach them by the 19th inst. at the latest, at which time the catalogue must go to press.

JAMES H. EARLE has just ready "Boston Girls at Home and Abroad," by S. Fannie Gerry Wilder, a new book for young people, full of descriptions of home and foreign sights and experiences; also, "From Farmhouse to White House," a story of George Washington, by Wm. M. Thayer, forming a new volume in the famous Log Cabin Series.

DE WOLFE, FISKE & Co. have just published "Lake Champlain, and Its Shores," by W. H. H. Murray, an examination into, and a narrative of, the traditions and history of Lake Champlain, with a description of the yachting, camping, and fishing, to be obtained on its waters and shores. Mr. Murray's famous chapter on the great national park is included in the volume.

MACMILLAN & Co. will publish at once a timely book on the silver question, to be entitled "Silver in Europe." It is written by S. Dana Horton, who was a delegate of the United States to the International Monetary Conference, held in Europe in 1878 and 1881, and whose book on the "Silver Pound, and England's Monetary Policy since the Restoration," has been received with great interest by economic students.

T. Y. CROWELL & Co. have just ready an authorized translation of Don Armando Placio Valdés' delightful novel "Sister Saint Sulpice." The scene of the story is laid for the most part in Andalusia, and in Seville, the poetic and beautiful city of the south so full of Moorish traditions. The free and pleasure-loving life of the people, their customs and amusements, their graces and follies are described with a master-hand. It has been well described as a "prose idyl written by a 'realist.'"

THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT Co. have in press "Gleanings for the Curious from the Harvest-Fields of Literature: a mélange of excerpts," collected by Dr. C. C. Bombaugh; "For a Mess of Pottage," a novel by Sidney Lyon; "Messalina," a tragedy in five acts by Algernon S. Logan, author of "Jesus in Modern Life," etc.; and a work on the "Economic Basis of Protection," by Prof. Simon N. Patten, of the University of Pennsylvania. In the department of medicine they have in preparation "Therapeutics of the Diseases of Women," by Dr. J. M. Keating; the fifth edition, revised and augmented, of Dr. James E. Garretson's "System of Oral Surgery;" and the seventh edition of Dr. J. M. Da Costa's "Medical Diagnosis."

HARPER & BROTHERS have ready "Pastels in Prose," illustrated from 150 drawings (including a frontispiece in color) by H. W. McVickar. "Pastel in Prose" is the term used to designate a striking species of literary composition, ranging from the dramatic to the lyrical in character, and in some instances resembling the story in form. It is almost wholly new in English literature, but of late years it has been carried to a high degree of development in France. This volume contains examples translated by Stuart Merrill from the French of Théodore de Banville, Alphonse Daudet, Judith Gautier, Charles Baudelaire, Catulle Mendès, Maurice de Guérin, Stéphane Mallarmé, Émile Hennequin, and others. MM. Catulle Mendès and Stéphane Mallarmé furnished the translator final proof-sheets of selections from their new volume, and MM. Ephraïm Mikhaël, Pierre Quillard, and Achille Delaroche each wrote a "pastel" especially for the volume. W. D. Howells contributes the introduction.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; in the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Aldrich, Anne Reeve. The feet of love. N. Y., Worthington Co., 1890. c. 3-290 p. il. and por. D. (Worthington's international lib., no. 9.) cl., $1.25; pap., 75 c.

Gilead, a Long Island seaside summer resort, is the scene. The leading characters are a handsome young clergyman of the Protestant Episcopal Church, who is courting an heiress, and a fair young girl, who is companion to the heiress. Between the companion and the clergyman there is a disgraceful secret connecting their past lives together. The characters are careful studies, and the conditions surrounding them are artistically worked up, leading naturally to the dramatic ending. An episode is introduced of a French priest and his crippled nephew that is very tenderly dealt with. The author wrote a volume of poems called "The rose of flame."

*American Iron and Steel Assoc. Annual statistical report for 1889. Phil., American Iron and Steel Assoc., 261 S. 4th St., 1890. 76 p. 8°, pap., $2.

*Appel, Theodore, D.D. The life and work of John Williamson Nevin, D.D. Phil., Reformed Church Publication House, [1890.] 800 p. por. 8°, cl., $3; shp., $3.25; mor., $3.50.

Baldwin, Ja. Harper's school speaker. Book 1. N. Y., Harper, 1890. c. 240 p. D. (Harper's educational ser.) cl., 60 c.

Divided into 2 parts. The first contains selected poems and prose extracts for Arbor Day, and an introduction on Arbor Day by G. W. Curtis; the second part embraces poems and prose selections suitable for Memorial Day, or Decoration Day.

*Barber, T. W. The engineer's sketch-book of mechanical movements, devices, appliances, contrivances, and details employed in the design and construction of machinery for every purpose; with descriptive note and memoranda. N. Y., E. & F. N. Spon, 1890. 243 p. il. 8°, cl., $3.

*Bjorling, Philip R. Pumps: historically, theoretically, and practically considered. N. Y., E. & F. N. Spon, 1890. c. 231 p. il. 8°, cl., $2.50.

Boisgilbert, Edmund, M.D., (pseud.) Cæsar's column: a story of the Twentieth century. Chic., F. J. Schulte & Co., [1890.] c. 367 p. O. cl., $1.25.

The events described take place in New York City, in the year 1988, the city containing at that time ten million inhabitants. The author paints a future full of terror. He seeks to show that civilization or human knowledge has been attended with a corresponding growth in human pride and in selfishness—that the world has grown brilliant, but heartless. The Brotherhood of Destruction, an oath-bound revolutionary organization with world-wide ramifications, and with a membership of over a hundred millions of discontented workingmen, plays a prominent part in the story, which culminates in a bloody battle in the streets of New York, and the death and burial of civilization.

Braeme, Charlotte M., ["Bertha M. Clay," pseud.] In love's crucible. N. Y., Street & Smith, [1890.] c. 4-263 p. 1 il. D. (The select ser., no. 37.) pap., 25 c.

*Buok, J. D., M.D. The nature and aim of theosophy. New enl. ed. Cin., Rob. Clarke & Co., 1890. sq. 16°, cl., 75 c.

Burnett, Mrs. Frances Hodgson. Little Saint Elizabeth, and other stories; il. by Reginald B. Birch. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1890. c. 10-146 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Young readers will be charmed with this modern version of the old legend of St. Elizabeth. The little heroine has been educated in France by an elderly aunt, who has become very religious in her old age. She dies when Elizabeth is ten years old, and the little girl is brought to New York, to reside with a rich worldly uncle. Her brief story is very touching. The other tales, "The story of Prince Fairyfoot," "The proud little grain of wheat," and "Behind the white brick," are fairy tales.

*Campbell, Sir Gilbert. Dark stories from the sunny south; or, legends from the Mediterranean. N. Y., Ward, Lock & Co., 1890. 175 p. 12°, pap., 40 c.

*Campbell, Sir Gilbert. Mysteries of the unseen; or, supernatural stories of English life. N. Y., Ward, Lock & Co., 1890. 143 p. 12°, pap., 40 c.

*Campbell, Sir Gilbert. Wild and weird; or, remarkable stories of Russian life. N. Y., Ward, Lock & Co., 1890. 162 p. 12°, pap., 40 c.

Child, Theodore. Delicate feasting. N. Y., Harper, 1890. 5-214 p. D. cl., $1.25.

This dainty volume is a sort of higher handbook of the kitchen and the dining-room, based upon truly scientific and artistic principles, and upon careful observation in the centres of civilization. It is not a compilation of recipes. Although it gives many practical hints and directions, its chief value lies in showing how intelligence can be applied to cooking, eating, and table-service, and its chief charm in suggesting how to elevate every dinner to the dignity of a delicate feast. In brief, it tells what good eating is and how to get it.

*Cook, Nellie Leigh, comp. Gems of poetry from various authors. N. Y., J. B. Alden, 1890. 12°, cl., 50 c.

Crooks, G. R., D.D. The life of Bishop Matthew Simpson, of the Methodist Episcopal Church. N. Y., Harper, 1890. c. 13+512 p. por. and il. O. cl., subs., $3.75.

The subject of this memoir is considered one of the greatest of the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church. His career is inseparable from the progress of Methodism. As a preacher and as a promoter of many notable enterprises which have developed and extended Methodism, he stands foremost among the divines of his church. His early life is described by himself. Dr. Crooks, who was a life-long friend of Bishop Simpson, takes up the story where the Bishop leaves off, and tells of his successes with true literary and dramatic skill.

Danvers jewels (The). N. Y. and Chic., Rand, McNally & Co., 1890. 4-257 p. D. (Globe lib., v. 1, no. 121.) pap., 25 c.

De Graff, E. V. The school-room guide to methods of teaching and school management. 70th ed., rewritten. Syracuse, N. Y., C. W. Bardeen, 1890. c. '77, '84, '90. 342 p. D. cl., $1.50.

De Leon, T. C. Our Creole carnivals; their origin, history, progress, and results; with sketches of outside carnivals. Mobile, Ala., The Gossip Printing Co., 1890. 5-39 p. O. pap., 25 c.

*In this list, the titles generally are verbatim transcriptions (according to the rule of the American Library Association) from books received. Books not received are indicated by a prefixed asterisk and this office cannot be held responsible for the correctness of their record.

*Dear uncle: a comedy in four acts; adapted from the French of L'heritage de M. Plumet; by Horace W. Fuller. N. Y., De Witt Publishing House, 1890. 44 p. 16°, (De Witt's acting plays, no. 353.) pap., 15 c.

Dixon, A. C., ed. The person and ministry of the Holy Spirit. Balt., Wharton, Barron & Co., 10 E. Fayette St., [1890.] c. 7+187 p. D. cl., 75 c.; pap., 50 c.

Twelve sermons, by as many different speakers, on the subject set forth in the title.

Douglas, Alice May. Gems without polish: a story of the country week. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, 1890. c. '89. 5-423 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The "Lady's Delights" is the name of a group of ten young girls who form a Harry Wadsworth Club. Their doings are recorded in this story; they are interested in many schemes for showing kindness to the poor and neglected, chief among which is the sending of poor children to the country for a short summer vacation. The excellent influence this vacation has, both upon the children and the charitable people who take them in, is well described.

*Foster, Ja., comp. Treatise on the evaporation of saccharine, chemical, and other liquids by the multiple system in vacuum and open air; also the construction and working of the different systems. N. Y., E. & F. N. Spon, 1890. 760 p. il. and pl. 8°, cl., $7.50.

Foster, W. E. References to the constitution of the United States; with an appendix. N. Y., Society for Political Education, [1890.] c. 2+50 p. D. (Economic tracts, no. 29.) pap., 25 c.

This is a model piece of bibliography. It refers to the sources of the Constitution, in Teutonic, British, and Colonial institutions; gives the amplest references to every step in the formal drafting and adoption of the Constitution; and by volume and page indicates not only every book and public document, but also every important magazine article or review elucidating constitutional provisions, commenting upon them, or comparing them with the fundamental law of foreign countries. An appendix briefly sets forth the decisions of the United States Supreme Court on constitutional questions since 1865.

Frederic, Harold. The Lawton girl. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1890. c. 9+472 p. D. cl., $1.25; pap., 50 c.

The story of a young girl, who, flying from a squalid, wretched home, falls into evil ways. Some years afterwards she repents her life, and resolves to return to her birthplace, to earn her living honestly, and live down her past. Her experience is very pathetic, and is well told. The scene is Thessaly, a small New York town, and there are some realistic descriptions of the people, both high and low, of a strike, and of local politics and politicians.

*Gardner, Celia E. Seraph—or mortal? [A romance.] N. Y., G: W. Dillingham, 1890. 430 p. 12°, cl., $1.50; pap., 50 c.

Gill, Rev. Joshua. The human heart: a Bible reading. Bost., McDonald, Gill & Co., 1890. c. 4-112 p. 1 il. S. cl., 50 c.

*Halliday, G: Mechanical graphics: a second course in mechanical drawing; with preface by Prof. Perry; arranged for use in technical and science and art institutes, schools and colleges. N. Y., E. & F. N. Spon, 1890. 262 p. il. 8°, cl., $2.

*Hodgetts, E. A. Brayley, comp. Liquid fuel for mechanical and industrial purposes. N. Y., E. & F. N. Spon, 1890. 134 p. 8°, cl., $2.50.

Jones, Rev. Erasmus W. Gold tinsel and trash: stories of country and city. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, 1890. c. 5-319 p. D. cl., $1.

The first story covers over a hundred pages; it is followed by seven shorter stories; while they all bear particularly on Methodist usages, they are specially pointed against "the rising tendency among professed Christians to indulge in worldly and unholy amusements."

Kingsley, C: Two years ago. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1890. 5+224 p. O. pap., 25 c.

Lessing, G. E. v. Minna von Barnhelm, oder das soldatenglück, lustspiel in fünf Aufzügen, von G. E. Lessing, 1763; with an introd. and notes by Sylvester Primer. Bost., D. C. Heath & Co., 1890. c. '89. 2-245 p. D. (Heath's modern language ser.) cl., 60 c.

*Little, G: Herbert. The marine transport of petroleum: a book for the use of shipowners, shipbuilders, underwriters, merchants, captains, and officers of the petroleum-carrying vessels. N. Y., E. & F. N. Spon, 1890. c. 251 p. il. 8°, cl., $3.50.

*Lowery, Woodbury. Brodix's American and English patent cases. V. 13, Decisions on the law of patents for inventions rendered by the U. S. supreme court from the beginning. This v. from 102 U. S. (12 Otto), 1880, 105 U. S. (15 Otto), 1882. Wash., The Brodix Pub. Co., 1889. c. 44+626 p. O. shp., $6.50.

*Michigan. Supreme ct. Cases decided July 11-Oct. 18, 1889; W. D. Fuller, st. rep. V. 76. Chic., Callaghan & Co., 1890. c. 40+740 p. O. shp., $3.50.

*Miller, S: A. North American geology and palæontology for the use of amateurs, students, and scientists. Cin., Rob. Clarke & Co., 1890. 664 p. il. 8°, cl., net, $5.

Mitchell, Donald G. ["Ik Marvel," pseud.] English lands, letters, and kings; from Elizabeth to Anne. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, [1890.] c. 2-347 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The first volume published last year covered "from Celt to Tudor." The present volume opens with the seventeenth century. The great historical figures of the period, the famous men of letters, the famous writings, and the kings and queens who filled the English throne down to Anne, are the subjects of many pages of delightful narrative. Walter Raleigh, King James' Bible, Shakespeare, Webster, Ford, Massinger, and others, King Charles, Jeremy Taylor, Milton, and Addison, are but a few of the topics touched upon.

Montgomery, Rev. M. W. The Mormon delusion; its history, doctrine, and the outlook in Utah. Bost. and Chic., Congregational S. S. and Pub. Soc., [1890.] c. 4-354 p. D. cl., 75 c.; pap., 50 c.

Beginning with the life of Joseph Smith, the founder of Mormonism, this volume carries the reader rapidly through all the phases of this so-called religion down to its condition at the present date. It is a story of most unpleasant facts.

*New Hampshire. Report of the commissioners appointed to ascertain and establish the true jurisdictional line between Mass. and N. H. to the N. H. legislature, June session, 1889. Manchester, J: B. Clarke, pub. pr. 10 p. 2 maps. O. pap.

*Parkhurst, Rev. C. H. The Swiss guide. [A spiritual guide.] N. Y. and Chic., Fleming H. Revell, 1890. 32 p. il. sq. 8°, leatherette, 50 c.

Pastels in prose; from the French, tr. by Stuart Merrill, with il. by H: W. McVickar, and an introd. by W: D. Howells. N. Y., Harper, [1890.] c. tr. 10+268 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Charmingly poetical sketches in prose form from the French of Louis Bertrand, Paul Leclercq, Théodore de Banville, Alphonse Daudet, Judith Gautier, Ephraïm Mikhaël, Pierre Quillard, Charles Baudelaire, Achille Delaroche, Émile Hennequin, Catulle Mendès, and others. The little volume is a gem of bookmaking. It opens with a delicately tinted frontispiece, has a small page with wide margin, and is rich in vignette illustrations, which have caught exactly the French spirit of the text.

Stoddard, W: O. The red mustang: a story of the Mexican border. N. Y., Harper, 1890. c.

3-284 p. il. sq. S. (Harper's young people ser.) cl., $1.

The red mustang and his rider, Cal. Evans, are the heroes of an exciting tale for boys. It opens on a ranch in southern New Mexico, and is rich in adventures with the Indians, etc.

Switzerland. The federal constitution of Switzerland; tr. by Edmund J. James. Phil., Porter & Coates, 1890. 3-46 p. O. (Pub. of the University of Pa., no 8.) pap., 50 c.

Thayer, Mrs. Emma Homan. The English-American. Chic., Donohue, Henneberry & Co., 1890. c. 2-463 p. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

In preparing "Wild flowers of the Pacific Coast," Mrs. Thayer had many opportunities of studying life in Colorado in the mining-camps, etc. These studies she has utilized in a novel, whose scene is laid in this state. It opens in London, with American and English characters, but is quickly transferred to Colorado. It is a tale of love and mystery.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

APRIL 12, 1890.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

"PUSHING SALES ON THE WHOLE LIST."

THE ever-increasing enterprise of travellers, the fact that a superior class of men is more and more called into requisition in that business, the development of travelling facilities which makes it possible for them to cover each year a wider field, and the anxiety of the travelling men to report as large bills as possible to their principals, have led to one change in the publishing trade which is not altogether profitable in the long run. We mean the massing of orders upon special bills of new books at large discounts for quantities. It is much easier for a traveller to push a customer to a thousand-dollar order for "leaders" of the season, at an extra five or ten for large orders on new books, than to make up such an amount by obtaining orders for the standard books scattered through a publisher's list. Yet, after all, the real success of a publishing business is based on the continuity of sale of standard books. In the first place, the "leaders" push themselves for "all they are worth," and are the very ones on which the dry-goods bazaars and the undersellers make their "drives," so that on these the bookseller feels the full force of competition and knows that his enormous discount means nothing when he must meet the prices of the dry-goods stores. On these lines the well-appointed bookstore has little, if any, advantage over the underselling trade; the book is famous or notorious, and the customer who wants it comes in and asks for it. But on standards and stand-bys the case is altogether different. Here the customer buys a book largely because the bookseller offers it to him at the right time and in the right way; trade is thus actually increased by good bookselling and the publisher feels the benefit of it.

The real test of a traveller's success ought to be not in big drives on special lines, but on large, well-assorted orders, which show that retailers are doing the best for publishers all along the lines of their publications. There are, of course, innumerable difficulties in the way of this kind of bookselling, some of which did not exist a generation ago; nevertheless the profit is still in this direction. It is here that the bookseller is beyond competition of the dry-goods bazaar; it is here that he does a real service for the community, for which the community is fairly ready to pay a moderate commission. * Big discounts are one of the enemies of this system because they give the new book a seeming advantage, however false it proves. One of the first steps toward rehabilitating the book trade in this direction is, above all, a better system of trade discounts.

THE feeling generally in the book trade regarding the Lovell combination seems to be, in the expressive language of one who himself does quite a large publishing business, that it is "one of the best things that has happened to the book trade in years—provided the combination does as fairly as it talks and can hold out long enough." We imagine that there is no reason to doubt the combination's purpose to do as it says—in fact to do otherwise would be diametrically opposed to its interests. As to its ability to hold out, we believe Mr. Lovell is sanguine that it can do so long enough to make the movement a success.

GLADSTONE ON INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT.

THE following letter to Mr. R. U. Johnson, Secretary of the American Copyright League, in regard to the Copyright bill now before Congress, disposes decisively of the report set going by the opponents of the bill that the great English commoner had expressed himself in condemnation of the measure:

HOUSE OF COMMONS LIBRARY, March 25, 1890.

MY DEAR SIR: I set so high a value upon the recognition by the United States of the principle of international copyright, a principle which has been now almost universally adopted in Europe, that although I regret some of the provisions of the bill now before Congress, I cannot refuse to express my sympathy with the efforts which American authors have so perseveringly made to procure legal protection for the rights of foreign authors, and my hope that these efforts may be speedily crowned with success. Imperfect as the present bill is, it will, if I rightly read its provisions, place both American and non-American authors in a more equitable position than they have hitherto occupied.

It is quite erroneous to suppose that I have formed any opinion in favor of the royalty scheme as against this bill. I remain, my dear sir, faithfully yours,

W. E. GLADSTONE.

R. U. JOHNSON, Esq.,

Secretary American Copyright League.

WEBSTER'S DICTIONARY—ANCIENT AND MODERN.

MESSRS. G. & C. MERRIAM & Co. under the above heading have issued a circular letter calling attention to the difference between their edition of Webster's Dictionary, and the cheap reprint which is offered by some newspapers as a premium, and in other ways being circulated, from which we take the following :

There have lately been placed upon the market several books called "Webster's Unabridged Dictionary," "The Original Webster's Unabridged," "The Mammoth Webster Dictionary," and the like. They are sold at a very low price, or given as a premium, and in many cases they are represented as being substantially the same with the "Webster's Unabridged" which we now publish,* and which is generally accepted as the highest authority in the English language.

These books are cheap and inferior reproductions of early editions of Webster which have long been superseded by modern improvements. There remains undoubtedly some permanent value in these now ancient books. But it should be clearly understood that both in a mechanical and a literary sense these cheap reprints are essentially inferior to the "Webster" of to-day, that they are from thirty to sixty years behind the times, and that they cannot be depended on as a standard authority.

A word as to the claim of unparalleled cheapness. We learn that it is often asserted that these reprints are the substantial equivalent of "an eight to twelve dollar book." In fact, the best of them is only a literal copy of a book which in its day we regularly sold at a wholesale price of from $4.00 to $5.00 and which was retailed at from $5.00 to $5.50. This, too, although that book was much superior in paper, print, and binding to the present imitation, and was then the best Dictionary of the time instead of an antiquated one.

For a comparison of the actual merits of the cheap reprints and our book, two methods are possible. The one would be a recital of the vast labor and expense by which the early work of Dr. Webster and his associates has been carried forward in successive revisions, to keep abreast of this most rapid age—an age which coins and changes words as fast as it creates and discovers facts. This recital may partly be found in the series of prefaces to the later editions which are given in our book. But the intending purchaser may be better satisfied by a few points of comparison between the modern and the ancient books—a comparison which he can easily apply and extend for himself. His eye will at once be struck with the mechanical differences. In the one book the print is clear, in the other it is poor and blurred because it is printed from plates produced by photogravure and not cast from type. A poor paper has also been used, spongy, thick, and of very inferior material—producing an apparent similarity of size to the present "Webster" although there are several hundred pages less of matter. The binding is generally very flimsy and in no case at all equals the real "Unabridged." Further, the reader notes at once the great advantage of the pictorial illustrations which appear on almost every page of the book of to-day, while the other edition lacks them entirely, or gives in an appendix a far smaller number (not more than half), of inferior value, set inconveniently apart from the words to which they belong.

Whoever will go on to compare the new book with the old, page by page and word by word, will soon see that in the revision the original matter has been reworked with the greatest care, intelligence, and thoroughness. He will constantly meet with new words added, new definitions appended; and he will recognize that while the original merit of Dr. Webster's definitions has not been sacrificed, they have in many cases been judiciously improved on Dr. Goodrich's principles as explained by Dr. Porter in the preface of the present edition, and as applied in the revision by Dr. Goodrich, Dr. Porter, Professor William C. Whitney, Professor Daniel C. Gilman, and their associates. The labors of these gentlemen and their large corps of assistants increased at every point the value of the original work. It is simply justice to say that it is to them and their successors—for the editorial labor on the book has never ceased for the last thirty years—that to this little army of skilled workers hardly less than to Dr. Webster himself it is due that the "Webster's Unabridged" which we now publish is the recognized standard of the English-speaking world.

THE SPRING TRADE SALE.

THE SPRING TRADE SALE, which begins on the 22d inst., seems to be remarkable for its slim catalogue and the absence of all but three or four of the large houses more than for anything else. The sale opens with Lee & Shepard's invoice, which covers 32 pages of the catalogue and which will probably occupy the whole of the first day. The second day opens with an invoice from A. D. Worthington & Co., of Hartford, comprising seven popular subscription-books. This will be followed by a three-page list of books from the New York Book Exchange (Lovering?), a fair-sized list from the Worthington Company, and small lists from the Arundel Bookstore of New York, the Jones Brothers Pub. Co., of Cincinnati, W. B. Franke, W. W. Munsell & Co., of New York, L. A. Morrison, Selmar Hess, W. B. Clarke & Co., of Boston, Reeves & Turner, and five invoices for the "Account of whom it may Concern." The third day's sale opens with a small invoice of John Highland's books, followed by small lots of books or albums, etc., contributed by the National Publishing Co., E. R. McCall, J. H. Wulfekoetter, Thayer, Merriam & Co., Bradlee Whidden, The Keystone Pub. Co., Oldach & Co., and others. At the close of the sale of books will be offered the electrotype plates and stock of the estate of the late Thos. Belknap, of Hartford, Conn., including Lossing's Histories of the United States, in English and German, and of the Civil War, the autobiography of Frederick Douglass, Bp. Brownell's Commentary on the Book of Common Prayer, "Woman in Battle," and "Free Trade or Protection. Which?" There will also be offered the plates of Dr. Barclay's "City of the Great King," Sergeant's "Government Year-Book," and the steel plates of nearly three hundred engravings suitable for octavo or quarto publications.

[*In justice to the publishers of the reprint, Lyster & Coryell, we note that they say in their circular offering the book to newspaper publishers: "The history of this book is as follows: Under the copyright law of the United States an author obtains a copyright for twenty-eight years and a renewal for a further period of fourteen years. This edition was copyrighted in 1847, and the copyright therefore expired in 1889."—ED. P. W.]

OLD BOOK CHAT.

THE Collector, an amateur journal, says in answer to a correspondent :

"A copy of the first folio Shakespeare, 1623, in perfect condition, is worth from $3000 to $5000. — very recently had an excellent copy—perfect, except that vol. 1 had a few pages in fac-simile—which he held at $2750."

Pray, Mr. "Collector," how many volumes are there to the first folio Shakespeare?

LORD ACTON'S extensive library is being prepared for sale by auction by Messrs. Puttick & Simpson. The library is entirely characteristic of its noble and learned collector, consisting chiefly of books of an erudite nature, nearly all in foreign languages. In the whole of this large collection there is hardly a book which even a ripe scholar could open without increasing his knowledge. The most interesting peculiarity of it is the almost exhaustive series of works on the topography and antiquities of foreign cities. English books are chiefly conspicuous by their absence, and, indeed, it appears that the collector was not a great patron of the English booksellers. We understand the first portion will be sold at the end of June or the beginning of July.

"NOTHING is more curious than the freaks of bibliophiles. Why, for instance, should first editions of even minor nineteenth century poets be so keenly sought for, whilst those of eighteenth century giants are neglected? Why should a first edition of Pope's 'Homer' be worth less than one of Morris' 'Odyssey'? Or Boswell's 'Johnson' than Mr. Birrell's 'Obiter Dicta'? The first edition of the latter costs, in London, a guinea. A copy of the first edition of Boswell's 'Johnson,' with an autograph inscription by the author, was bought the other day in Oxford Street for 12s."—Pall Mall Gazette.

The reason is not so far to seek as one might suppose. The man who pays big prices for modern nineteenth century authors is not, properly speaking, a bibliophile at all. He would as soon buy a paving-stone and frame it in gold, if "society" said it was the proper thing to do. But the Pall Mall Gazette's own bibliophile, who has himself a fine collection, is cast in a different mould, and cannot appreciate the reasons which animate the freaks of people whom in his innocence he classes as "bibliophiles." But to seek for a reason where reason never enters is rather a hopeless quest.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

THE BOSTON PUBLIC LIBRARY has published a "Catalogue of the Bibliographies of Special Subjects in the Boston Public Library," prepared by James Lyman Whitney. This catalogue includes, with other matter, the "Index to notes about books and reading, and to the special book lists found in the catalogues of the Boston Public Library and other libraries, and also in periodical and other publications" (published in the Bulletin of the library for September, 1883), with additions. The compiler states that many titles have been taken from the "Index of reference lists and special bibliographies included in periodical and other publications of recent date," which was prepared by Wm. C. Lane for the Harvard University Bulletin. The catalogue opens with a helpful list of titles to guide in the selection of books. 71 p. 8°.

Catalogues of New and Second-hand Literature: Andrew Baxendie, Edinburgh, Miscellaneous Books. (No. 27, 1636 titles, 8°).—F. M. Crouse, Indianapolis, Ind., Americana, etc. (April list, 4 p. 8°).—U. P. James, Cincinnati, Political Economy, Americana, etc. (No. 35, 16 p. 16°).

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

T. T. TIMAYENIS, of the Minerva Publishing Co., and author of "The Original Mr. Jacobs," etc., has been brought to law by Anthony Comstock on the charge of issuing alleged objectionable literature.

DR. LE PLONGEON, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who has been lecturing before the Lowell Institute and similar organizations on Yucatan antiquities, is about to publish "The Monuments of Mayax and their Historical Teachings," a work upon which he has been engaged for many years.

GEORGE WESLEY ATKINSON, the new member of Congress for the First District of West Virginia, is the author of "A History of Kanawha," "After the Moonshiners," "The West Virginia Pulpit," and "A Revenue Digest." He now has in press an extensive work on "Prominent Men of West Virginia."

THE AUTHORS' CLUB, of New York, last week formally accepted Mr. Andrew Carnegie's gift of $10,000. Mr. Carnegie intended that his gift should take the form of a trust for beneficiary purposes, but the club's articles of incorporation did not allow the club to act as trustee of funds for the purposes named. Mr. Carnegie therefore modified the terms of his gift so that the money could be used without trust restrictions.

ALPHONSE DAUDET, in a recent conversation, described how he had been led to write his new story, "Port Tarascon: the last adventures of the illustrious Tartarin," Henry James' translation of which is to begin in the June Harper. "I love Tartarin," said M. Daudet. "Perhaps I would let him rest in his lovely town for some time to come, had not a wholly personal consideration encouraged me to start him again on his adventures. The past year has been a hard one for me; I have suffered a great deal; and as I was searching for a distraction from my sufferings—for one of those tasks that absorb one, and make one forget physical pain—I thought of Tartarin. Pascal forgot his neuralgia in working at mathematics; I have forgotten my rheumatism in the company of Tartarin. The Tarasconian hero is perhaps indebted to me for his fame; I am indebted to him for repose, and for helping me to forget my sufferings. Ought I not to feel beholden to him?"

PERSONAL NOTES.

MR. E. B. WILLSON, manager of the business department of the Baltimore Publishing Co., has resigned his position to embark in another branch of business. He has succeeded to the business of the Hollenbeck Lock and Knob Company, whose extensive works are located at Jordan, N. Y. Mr. Willson started in the book trade at the age of 13 with Messrs. Kelly, Piet & Co., and has continued with the successors of that old and respected firm for a period of fourteen years. Mr. Willson's sudden severance of association with his many friends in the trade is very much regretted, as he has many warm friends among the booksellers all over the U. S., among whom he travelled for about nine years with much success. He carries with him the best wishes of the members of the trade.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Dial, published by A. C. McClurg & Co., Chicago, reached the eleventh year of its existence with the April issue.

Mrs. AMELIA E. BARR's new story, "The Household of McNeil," began in the Easter number of the New York Ledger.

GEORGE EDGAR MONTGOMERY has assumed the chief editorship of the New York Saturday Evening Gazette, the first number of which will appear under date of Saturday, April 12. The Gazette will be of the size of the New York Sun, and will consist of twelve to sixteen pages. It will be a family and home newspaper, with strong literary features.

Burnsiana will be the title of a monthly magazine, the first number of which will be published about April 15. It will be devoted exclusively to literature in connection with Robert Burns, and will be under the editorship of John D. Ross, author of "Scottish Poets in America." The publication office is at 13 West Forty-second street, New York City.

PROF. JOHN FISKE will open The Popular Science Monthly for May with an account of the life of Edward L. Youmans, including the story of his association with Herbert Spencer. Prof. Fiske was a warm friend of the late Prof. Youmans, and describes his fruitful labors in popularizing science and the evolution philosophy in America with sympathetic appreciation.

IN answer to inquiries concerning George Kennan's articles, the editor of The Century states that the concluding papers in Mr. Kennan's series of "Siberian Travels" were interrupted by the author's illness and by his succeeding course of lectures. Mr. Kennan has, however, prepared brief articles on the general subject for the April and May Century, and hopes soon to be able to write one or two more papers concluding his Siberian and Russian travels. The latter will appear later in the year. In the May Century Mr. Kennan will have an article entitled "Blackened Out," in which he describes the methods of the Russian Press Censor. Two pages of The Century for August, 1889, are reproduced in fac-simile, showing how the Censor endeavored to prevent Mr. Kennan's article in that number from being read in Russia.

W. D. HOWELLS has written his first juvenile serial. It is called "A Boy's Town," and describes the daily doings and dreamings of a typical American boy forty years ago in a little town on the Great Miami River, in southern Ohio. Nothing very memorable ever happened there, "as the grown-up world counts events," Mr. Howells says, but it was just the kind of a town for a boy to be a boy in, and "every day was full of wonderful occurrence and thrilling excitement" to that boy in his narrative. The first instalment appears in Harper's Young People, published April 8, illustrated by H. F. Farny. The narrative may be considered as partially autobiographical, for Mr. Howells was an Ohio boy himself, and has doubtless drawn largely upon the recollections of his younger days for the material of "A Boy's Town."

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

HENRY ALTEMUS, Philadelphia, has published an edition of Jerome's "Idle Thoughts of an Idle Fellow."

H. T. FRUEAUFF (the Book Antiquary), Easton, Pa., calls attention elsewhere to Pres. Schultze's admirable little handbook entitled "Books of the Bible Analyzed." It has been highly commended by the press and clergy as being one of the best condensed and comprehensive treatments of the authorship, contents, and purposes of the various books of the Bible. The little book has already gone through three editions.

THE novel "Xenia Repnina," announced in our last issue, is by Mrs. B. MacGahan, not by Verestchagin. Mrs. MacGahan is a Russian, now permanently living in New York (the widow of the N. Y. Herald correspondent who made himself famous in the Russo-Turkish war and elsewhere). M. Verestchagin, the artist, has written a short introduction or preface to the book, which, though the authoress is a Russian, has been written in English.

D. C. HEATH & Co. have just ready the first volume of "Deutsche Literaturgeschichte," by Prof. Carla Wenckebach, of Wellesley College. The purpose of this work, which is to be in three volumes, is to offer students a history, in the German language, of the growth of German literature. While the book aims to be popular, it is not on that account less scientific. The best authorities have been canvassed, and it is believed that it is in harmony with recent investigations. The first volume of "Meisterstücke zur Literaturgeschichte" is bound with this volume of the "Literaturgeschichte."

THE University of Pennsylvania is about to begin the issue of a series of monographs representing work done in the fields of philosophy, psychology and ethics. The first number is announced for April, and is a work on "Sameness and Identity," by Professor Fullerton. Following this number will be a series of studies from the Laboratory of Experimental Psychology, and an edition of Descartes' "Meditations," with Latin and English texts and philosophical commentary. The series will be published by the University of Pennsylvania Press, under the editorship of Professors Fullerton and Cattell.

THE SEEGER & GUERNSEY Co., 7 Bowling Green, New York City, will issue immediately their "Cyclopædia of the Manufactures and Products of the United States." The work claims to comprise all articles produced in this country, with the names of the best and most accredited manufacturers for the use of buyers and sellers throughout the world. It is divided into two sections, the first presenting a classified index of American productions, giving names of manufacturers, the second containing elaborate descriptions of such manufactures to which reference is made in the first section under the name of any manufacturer contributing material for second section.

MR. GEORGE WILSON, Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of New York, has prepared a catalogue of the portraits and bronze and marble busts of the men prominent in the great enterprises of this century belonging to that organization. It is entitled "Portrait Gallery of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York," and furnishes biographical sketches of about eighty individuals. Mr. Wilson has shown Grandma—Your book seems very interesting ; when you've done with it will you lend it to me ?

Frances—No, grandma, it's not a proper book for you to read ; it's intended for girls.—Telegraph.

excellent judgment in the preparation of the biographies. Much of the information given has been obtained from the records of the Chamber of Commerce and the families of the subjects represented, and the facts are presented in a very attractive and satisfactory form.

GINN & Co. will publish in May a series of "Common School Music Charts" prepared by W. S. Tilden, teacher of music in the State Normal School, Framington, Mass. The series will contain about twenty pages of exercises, which by a peculiar construction of notation will afford a great variety of little songs, proving an encouraging introduction to more advanced study. The necessity of having new plates for Wentworth's "Elements of Algebra" has started this author to write a new book, which will be called "Wentworth's School Algebra" and will be suitable for high schools and academies. A "Reference Handbook of English History," by W. M. Gurney, drawn from Dugdale, Freeman, Palgrave, Longman, etc., and identifying every prominent English personage from Edward the Confessor to Victoria, will also soon be ready.

MACMILLAN & Co. will publish shortly Dr. Francis Warner's lectures on "The Growth of Intellectual Faculty," delivered for the Teachers' Training Syndicate, in Cambridge, Eng., during the Lent Term in 1888 and 1889. The author insists on the necessity of observing physical facts, their causes and effects, when considering mental and moral questions, and has worked out a system of observing pupils in school. Special attention is given to such states as "attention," nervousness, sleep, fidgetiness, disobedience, lying, headache, low development, etc. Observations made in schools are largely referred to, and the notes of many cases are given. The book will be illustrated with diagrams. They will publish at once a new book by Dr. J. G. Fitch entitled "Notes on American Schools and Training Colleges." The well known "Lectures on Teaching," by the same author, has passed through many editions, having been adopted for use by the Teachers' Reading Circles throughout the country.

J. W. BOUTON will receive subscriptions for the United States for "La Collection Spitzer" the descriptive catalogue of the unrivalled collection of works of art, composed of 3500 or 4000 objects divided into thirty-six principal series. Spitzer has exercised a rigorous system of selection, and each specimen in its series is a work of art and a lesson. The catalogue will contain introductions to each series or section by authors whose names are a guarantee of scientific and literary value. The first volume is now ready and covers antiques, ivories, ecclesiastical plate, and tapestries. The six volumes will contain 350 plates, and from 800 to 900 illustrations, all reproduced by photographic process, insuring perfect accuracy. One volume will be published about every six months. The work will be limited to 600 copies printed on vellum paper, and 25 copies on Japan paper, and subscriptions will be received for the complete work only. The name of the subscriber will be printed on each copy, and a complete list of subscribers will be published in the last volume.

THE tercentenary of the death of Christopher Plantin, the famous Dutch printer, will be celebrated during the coming summer at Amsterdam, Holland. Bookworms from all parts of the world will be invited to attend the festivities. Mr. Vandenpeereboom, the Dutch Minister of Commerce, and one of the greatest collectors of old books in Europe, will be at the head of the affair.

WILLIAMSON & Co., Toronto, have just ready "The Hittites—their inscriptions and their history," by John Campbell, professor in the Presbyterian College, Montreal, who has already a well-earned reputation among archaeologists and students of ancient and sacred history. The author has given twenty years of study to this book and has written it for the educated reader of the English language, keeping it free from obscure technicalities and within the limits of his mother tongue. The book is a study of the records of the Hittites in Egypt, at the Tigris and Euphrates, in Palestine, and in their struggle with the Aryan race in which this ancient people were finally vanquished. The work is one of the most important as yet published with Canadian imprint.

WEBSTER'S UNABRIDGED ANCIENT EDITION.

A so-called "Webster's Unabridged Dictionary" is being offered to the public at a very low price. The body of the book, from A to Z, is a cheap reprint, page for page, of the edition of 1847, which was in its day, a valuable book, but in the progress of language for over FORTY YEARS, has been completely superseded. It is now reproduced, broken type, errors and all, by photo-lithograph process, is printed on cheap paper and flimsily bound. A brief comparison, page by page, between the reprint and the latest and enlarged edition, will show the great superiority of the latter. These reprints are as out of date as a last year's almanac. No honorable dealer will allow the buyer of such to suppose that he is getting the Webster which to-day is accepted as the Standard and THE BEST,—every copy of which bears our imprint as given below.

If persons who have been induced to purchase the "Ancient Edition" by any misrepresentations will advise us of the facts, we will undertake to see that the seller is punished as he deserves.

THE AUTHORIZED TRANSLATION OF

Sister Saint Sulpice,

FROM THE SPANISH OF

Don Armando Palacio Valdes,

BY

NATHAN HASKELL DOLE.

This piquant and delightful novel, though written by a "realist," is a prose idyl. The scene is laid for the most part in Andalusia and in Seville, the poetic and beautiful city of the South, so full of Moorish traditions. The free and pleasure-loving life of the people, their customs and amusements, their graces and follies, are described with a master-hand.

The heroine is a fascinating nun, not bound, however, by perpetual vows, and conscious of having mistaken her vocation. Vivacious, beautiful, wealthy, passionate, spontaneous, and true to her southern nature, she easily wins the hearts of all. Equally seductive is she to a cool, cynical, selfish Malaganian and to the young Gallegan poet who tells the story of his courtship and final success with a delightful frankness that wins the reader's sympathy.

The book is full of life and color; there is not a dull page in it; whether it describes the hero's railway journeys with amusing incidents, or life at the Springs, or picnics down the Guadalquivir, or receptions among Seville aristocracy, or wild and rather ferocious scenes among the common people. It is full of humor and humanity.

The story is preceded by Señor Valdés' remarkable prologue concerning the art of the novelist. The author's portrait makes the frontispiece.

HEROES OF "DARKEST AFRICA."

HENRY M. STANLEY, the African Explorer. By ARTHUR MONTEFIORE, F.R.G.S.
12mo, 160 pages, cloth, 75 cents.

"In presenting us with a popular biography of the great traveller whose latest adventures are being followed with such breathless interest, Mr. Arthur Montefiore has supplied an obvious want by giving a clear and connected view of all Stanley has hitherto accomplished, and putting the reader in a position to understand the great drama that is now being enacted in Central Africa."—The Literary World.

DAVID LIVINGSTONE, His Labors and His Legacy. By ARTHUR MONTEFIORE, F.R.G.S. 12mo, 160 pages, cloth, 75 cents. (Uniform with above.)

GARENGANZE; or, Seven Years' Pioneer Missionary Work in Central Africa. By FRED S. ARNOT. Introduction by Rev. ARTHUR T. PIERSON, D.D. Numerous illustrations, and an original map. 8vo, cloth, 200 pages, $1.25.

A work of thrilling interest. The author's two trips across Africa, entirely unarmed and unattended except by the local and constantly changing carriers, and in such marked contrast with many modern adventures, strongly impress one to ask if another Livingstone has not appeared among us.

PICTORIAL AFRICA.

Its Heroes, Missionaries, and Martyrs. Stirring narratives of their perils, adventures, and achievements, with description of the peoples, and countries of the "Dark Continent." Including portraits of all the most remarkable travellers that have visited Africa. Fully illustrated, royal 8vo, 400 pages, cloth extra, richly gilded, each copy in a box, $2.50.

"Every one nowadays who reads at all is familiar with Africa as Stanley, in his later travels, has made it known. But as nearly twenty years have passed since he set out on his search for Livingstone, not a few have almost forgotten the circumstances which led him to Africa, and the success which made him famous. The book is generously illustrated, full of interest, and should be in every library as a direct and powerful agent in giving information and exciting interest in missionary work in Africa, while it will also awaken in every reader the desire to peruse for himself the stories of Livingstone and Stanley as told in their own words."

—Public Opinion.

NOTES IN SEASON.

RAND, McNALLY & Co. will publish at once an edition in paper covers of their unabridged "Journal of Marie Bashkirtseff."

THE "English Catalogue" has just been received at the office of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, and will be supplied to subscribers early next week. As the edition is limited those desiring a copy will do well to send in their orders at once.

T. B. PETERSON & BROS. publish to-day Zola's latest novel, "La Bête Humaine" (the human animal), translated by George D. Cox. It is issued in their popular Twenty-five Cent Series, which already includes the bulk of Zola's writings.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT Co. have just published the "Recollections" of George W. Childs, containing reminiscences of noted persons with whom Childs has been intimately acquainted, together with interesting incidents in his own life; "Love in the Tropics," a romance of the South Seas, by Caroline Earle White; and "Syrin," Ouida's latest novel.

ROBERTS BROTHERS have just ready "London of To-Day," by Charles Eyre Pascoe, an illustrated handbook for the season of 1890, fully illustrated. They have in preparation "Sorrow and Passion," a collection of the shorter stories of Honoré de Balzac, translated by Katharine Prescott Wormeley; also "Miss Brown," by Eliza Cook, a new novel by a new author.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have just ready "The Wife of the First Consul," translated from the French of Saint Amand by T. S. Perry, and have in press two more books by the same author, "Marie Antoinette and the End of the Ancient Régime" and "The Happy Days of the Empress Louise." Mr. Henry M. Field's "Bright Skies and Dark Shadows" is also ready, and a revised edition has been prepared of Lafayette C. Loomis' "Index Guide to Travel and Art Study in Europe."

WM. C. BRYANT & Co., 24 Broadway, Brooklyn, N. Y., have just ready "A Natural Method of Physical Training," by Edwin Checkley—"Mighty Little Checkley," as the New York Sun dubs him. The new system of physical training introduced by Prof. Edwin Checkley has created something of a sensation in the athletic world and among the schools of hygienic culture, by reason of the fact that the new system condemns most of the popular methods. Prof. Checkley's system is one of novel simplicity which does away with all appliances, all "health lifts" or other machinery, and reduces physical training to its natural first principles by beginning on the inside of the system, as it were, instead of starting with an effort to cover the body with superficial muscles. The volume, which has already received flattering notices from all sources, is neatly gotten up and illustrated with a number of diagrams.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. have just ready in a dainty little volume the "Dramatic Opinions" of Mrs. Kendal, the charming English actress, which recently appeared in Murray's Magazine. They will publish next month "The Influence of Sea Power upon History," by Capt. A. T. Mahan, U. S. N., with twenty-five charts illustrative of great naval battles. The object of the work is an examination of the general history of Europe and America and exemplification of the great determining influence of the maritime strength upon great issues, a point which many historians have either overlooked or touched upon superficially. The period embraced is from 1660 to the end of the American revolution. They will also publish shortly "With Fire and Sword," by Henry Sienkiewicz, an historical novel of Poland and Russia, translated by Jeremiah Curtin, author of "Myths and Folk-Lore of Ireland." Sienkiewicz, it is claimed, has by his picturesque and artistic descriptions of nature, as well as by his strong analysis of the masculine character, "placed himself at the head of Polish novelists. He combines Dumas' facility for conceiving and planning with Turgénieff's melancholy illumined with the brilliant dry humor and laconic pathos of Bret Harte."

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

Burnham, Clara Louise. The mistress of Beech Knoll: a novel. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1890. c. 4+413 p. D. cl., $1.25.

This is a love-tale, without any disguise. The scene is laid in a small town near Boston. By the author of "Next door" and other novels.

Camden Mountains (The); the Norway of America: a handbook of mountain, ocean, and lake scenery on the coast of Maine; il. by W: Goodrich Beal. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1890. c. 48 p. il. obl. T. pap., 25 c.

*Case, T: Physical realism; being an analytical philosophy from the physical data of sense. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1890. 8°, cl., $5.

Checkley, Edwin. A natural method of physical training: being a practical description of the Checkley system of physiculture; il. from photographs taken especially for this treatise. Brooklyn, N. Y., W: C. Bryant & Co., 1890. c. 152 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

The author of this book believes that there is more "straining" than "training" in a good many popular systems practised in and out of the college gymnasium. The method he himself advocates departs radically from familiar systems. It is outlined in a series of chapters entitled "The bugbear of training," "How to carry the body," "How to breathe," "Muscles and what they do," "The joints and their development," "Exercises for muscles and joints," "The treatment of obesity," "Training for women," "A word about children," etc. The system is not dependent upon any appliances whatever, and seems natural and sensible.

Copeland, T. Campbell. The ladder of journalism, how to climb it. N. Y., Allan Foreman, 117 Nassau St., 1889. c. 138 p. T. pap., 50 c.

An excellent little book of practical information, for the beginners in journalism. It is the work of a practical newspaper man, and is the result of many years of observation, labor, and experience. Sets forth the duties of the city editor, the telegraph editor, the editorial writer, the exchange editor, the proof-reader, etc.; has chapters on: assignments and special duties; district work; musical and dramatic criticisms; newspaper illustrations, etc.

Darnell, H: Faulkner. The craze of Christian Engelhart. N. Y., Appleton, 1890. c. 3-264 p. D. (Appleton's town and country lib., no. 50.) cl., 75 c.; pap., 50 c.

Christian Engelhart's "craze" is a belief that he—or rather the intelligence which gives him his individuality—has previously upon this earth animated another human being. His theory is based upon the many remarkable visions which have occurred to him at different periods of his life. He seeks sympathy and advice from a broad-minded scientist, Prof. Wilderhaft, who has for years sought to penetrate the secrets of the unknown world. He listens to Christian's story, and makes no attempt to deter the young man from making a test of his last intuition which has foreshadowed to him that death lies in wait for him in a new enterprise he has on hand. Prof. Wilderhaft's character is an elaborate study.

Greek words, with their most important meanings; with discriminations of similar words. Chic., J: C. Buckbee & Co., 1890. c. '89. 9+357 p. O. cl., $1.50.

Contains the cream of the lexicon; designed to aid students in acquiring a vocabulary as speedily as possible by showing them what words, and what meanings are the most important. In the arrangement of the groups of words the leading word is first given, with the chief related simple nouns, and adjectives, followed by the verbs compounded with a single preposition arranged alphabetically. The main purpose is to show at a glance the number, meaning, and use of the compounds of each verb with a single preposition.

Fitch, J. G. Notes on American schools and training colleges; reprinted from the report of the English education department for 1888-89, with the permission of the Controller of H. M. Stationery Office. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1890. 133 p. D. cl., 60 c.

Mr. Fitch is one of Queen Victoria's chief inspectors of training colleges. He came to this country in the winter of 1888-89 to examine some of our leading schools and colleges. The matter in this volume represents the greater part of his official report, and is most interesting and instructive.

*Gibson, R. J. Harvey. A text-book of elementary biology. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1890. il. 12°, cl., $1.75.

Graham, Mary. Margaret Ellison: a story of Tuna Valley. N. Y., Ward & Drummond, 1890. 2-325 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Hamilton, W: R. Practical instructions for the national guard of the United States. Pt. 2. N. Y., Appleton, 1890. c. 99 p. T. pap., 25 c.
Contents: Military signalling; Grand guards and outpost duty; Water transportation of troops; Military customs, and things to know; The new tactics.

Harte, Bret. A waif of the plains. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1890. c. 231 p. il. T. cl., $1.

Opens in the year 1852, with an emigrant train crossing the plains. A little boy and girl get down from the wagons to play, and are lost. Finally they are rescued by another train, while their own party is attacked by Indians, and all murdered. The story hereafter deals with the fortunes of the boy and girl. The boy, however, is the principal hero. His story ends with his eighteenth year, and with a promise of an account of the rest of his life in another volume.

Kendal, Mrs. Madge. Dramatic opinions. Bost., Little, Brown & Co., 1890. c. 3-180 p. por. S. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

Some biographical details of Mrs. Kendal's stage life and private life, and some clever remarks on the stage, on plays, audiences, etc., etc., make up the contents of this pretty book. The papers were originally published in Murray's Magazine.

Kimball, Arthur L. The physical properties of gases. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1890. c. 8+238 p. D. (Riverside science ser., no. 2.) cl., $1.25.

Does not claim to be an exhaustive treatise on gases, but an accurate and readable account of all that has been discovered concerning them. While strictly scientific in its statements, it is intended not for technical students, but for all intelligent readers.

La Rame, Louise de, ["Ouida," pseud.] Syrlin; or, position. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1890. 2-499 p. D. (Lippincott's ser. of select novels, no. 108.) pap., 50 c.

"Syrlin" is the name of the hero, and is an addition probably to the title-page made by the American publisher, as "Position" is the running title in the book itself. The object of the novel is to illustrate the pride of "position" as seen among the English nobility. "Syrlin" is an actor and a genius, who has a hopeless love for a married woman. The novel is in line with many of "Ouida's" previous efforts, being rich in clever characterization of married flirts, and inconstant husbands, and in brilliant descriptions and bright society talk.

*Louisiana. An annotated index of the acts of the legislature, from 1870 to 1888 incl., with references to the decisions of the supreme court through the 41st Annals; by Rob. H. Marr, jr. New Orleans, F. F. Hansell & Bro., 1890. c. 403 p. O. shp., $5.

Lyman, E. A. Exercises in geometry, for supplementary and review work. Bost., Leach, Shewell & Sanborn, 1890. c. no paging, obl. T. pap., 25 c.

*McCook, H: C. American spiders, and their spinning work: a natural history of the orbweaving spiders of the United States with special regard to their industry and habits. In 3 v. V. 1. Phil., H: C. McCook, 3700 Chestnut St., 1890. 374 p. il. 8°, cl., $10.

*McIntyre, G. P. The light of Persia; or, the death of Mammon: poems of prophecy, profit, and peace. Chic., The Wage Worker Publishing Co., 1890. 221 p. 12°, cl., $1.25.

*Maine wills, 1640-1760; comp. and ed. with notes by W: M. Sargent. Portland, Me., Brown Thurston & Co., 1890. 12+953 p. 8°, cl., $5; hf. shp., $6.

*Mathews, W. S. B., ed. A hundred years of music in America. Chic., G. L. Howe, 39 Exchange Building, 1890. 720 p. por. 8°, subs., cl., $5.50; hf. mor., $6.50; full mor., $7.50.

Maupassant, Guy de. Pierre and Jean; with a preface, by the author; tr. by Hugh Craig; il. by Ernest Duez and Albert Lynch. N. Y., G: Routledge & Sons. [1890.] c. 34+329 p. D. pap., $1.50; hf. leath., $2.25.

The motive is essentially French. A young man is led by circumstances to suspect the virtue of his mother, and to doubt the paternity of his brother. This cloud breaks upon a family that has lived together for nearly thirty years, loving and respecting each other. The story in itself is slight. It is in the development of his characters, in the wonderful analysis of motives and emotions, and in the gradual, but firm leading up to the one grand climax, that the author shows his power. Has an introductory paper on "The novel."

*Mississippi. Supreme ct. Reports of cases, v. 66; cont. cases decided at the Oct. term, 1888, and the April term, 1889; rep. by Brame & Alexander. Phil., T. & J. W. Johnson & Co., 1890. c. 22+860 p. O. shp., $6.

*Momerie, Alfred Williams. Church and creed: sermons preached in the chapel of the Foundling Hospital. N. Y., T: Whittaker, 1890. 258 p. 12°, cl., $1.50.

Montefeltro, Padre Agostino da. Selections from the sermons of Padre Agostino da Montefeltro; ed. by Catherine Mary Phillimore. 1st ser. N. Y., Ja. Pott & Co., [1890.] 10+174 p. D. cl., $1; bds., 50 c.

Subjects: God; The soul; The spirituality of the soul; The purpose of life; The claim of God upon our lives; Family life; Pain; Hope; The observance of Sunday; Liberty; The working classes.

*Needham, Mrs. G: C. Poetic paraphrases. N. Y. and Chic., Fleming H. Revell, 1890. 96 p. 16°, cl., 50 c.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

APRIL 19, 1890.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE ENGLISH AND AMERICAN BOOK MARKETS.

To any observer who knows both the American and the English book trade, there are many puzzles both in their likenesses and unlikenesses. The basis of any book market is the number of persons able to read and to buy books. Now the United States has a population nearly double that of Great Britain, a greater proportion of literacy and, if not greater wealth per head, a wealth rapidly increasing in a larger ratio. It ought, therefore, to be the better market. Is it? Mr. Bunce, in his most interesting and suggestive paper in the April North American Review, is not the first person to answer the question in the negative. If not, why not? That is a still more difficult question to answer.

The explanation is not solely, or perhaps chiefly, in differences of copyright or trade system. It has been pointed out, time and time again, that Tennyson sells most widely in America and Longfellow in England—presumably because lack of copyright permits cheap editions. But, as Mr. Bunce points out, when cheap editions are printed of standard authors which can be sold under equal conditions on both sides of the ocean, the English sale is vastly greater than the American. This also seems to be true of new copyright books, outside of fiction—witness again Mr. Bunce's facts. A curious confirmation is that while English publishers are able to brag of the size of their editions, Mr. Bunce finds it difficult to obtain any facts as to American sales, of which our publishers are commonly chary, despite the reputed American tendency to "brag."

The only directions in which America seems to realize its potentialities as a book market are the great illustrated magazines and the story weeklies. Even against these are to be set over the enormous sales of special editions of the Illustrated London News and the Graphic, which come nearest to our magazines, and of the religious or semi-religious weeklies, which have decided advantages over our "story papers."

BOTH countries are under the disadvantages of a trade system built up, or rather down, from an artificial retail price, although "underselling" scarcely reaches the same extent there as here, and the antiquated system of supplying thirteen copies at the price of twelve, "the baker's dozen," gives the English dealer an incidental advantage after he has given away his "3d. in the shilling." or 25 per cent. off, the usual English retail discount except at the railway bookstalls of Messrs. Smith. That the trade conditions in the two countries, different as they are, have certain likenesses of disadvantage, is emphasized by Mr. G. W. Smalley's comments in the Tribune, printed in another column, upon the letter of Mr. Frederick Macmillan, already given by us, the latter being himself a publisher of experience in both markets.

THE letter of Mr. Smalley, while containing a great deal of wholesome truth, gives wrong impressions. He argues that underselling is of "advantage to the public." Is it—in the long run? We have an old-fashioned notion that it is not, by whomsoever and in whatever trade it may be practised. "Underselling"—that is, the systematic reduction of prices of an article until it reaches the cost price or even goes under that—may not be an unmitigated loss to the merchant indulging himself in that extravagance, but it is bound in the end to become an indirect loss to somebody. The merchant engages in trade to make a "living" profit. If, therefore, he gives away certain of his products for the same price he paid for them, or for less, no one will assume that he is doing so for philanthropic or charitable purposes. Nor is he satisfied in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred with simply attracting customers—in some way or other, the loss on one article must be made up on the higher price on another article—or creditors must suffer. Does this pay the public in the end? But it is less in this direction that the loss is felt by the public than in another. Cheapening the selling price tends to cheapen everything connected with that article, and finally, if competition becomes extreme, to deteriorate its quality; cheaper material must be used and cheaper work must be done in order that the public may have an advantage. Unfortunately the public lends itself to humbug, and too seldom recognizes that when it makes ten cents at one end it is losing fifty at the other.

THE book trade, if it be true to its calling, renders a service to the public which ought to command a remuneration according to its ability as fixed as that of any of the professions. The publisher creates a product which ought to be worth the price he asks for it, or be worth nothing at all. But so short-sighted have we become that we are daily stultifying ourselves, saying one thing and doing another, until we have become like the cheap Johns who start their wares at two dollars, expecting in the end to get but fifty cents. And all this Mr. Smalley thinks is to the advantage of the public. The underselling system breaks faith. The moment a publisher begins to sell his book below the price he himself puts on it, he throws over all the dealers who help him sell his book. He gets them into a trap as it were. The individual buyer sometimes buys his book cheaper than the retailer, and the retailer cheaper than the jobber. The machinery for selling books is thus broken down, and the local bookstore, which should increase business, can no longer live, and business cannot fail to be decreased. And this step has been the open door to all sorts of trade evils, that ruin the bookseller and do no good to the public. The appeal for reform means that the question has come directly before the publishers, whether they prefer to let the trade be ruined and depend chiefly upon the mails and the cheap Johns for selling their books, or to keep their faith with the bookseller and consult their own best interests by adhering to the prices they themselves set. We hold that the peculiar conditions of the book trade make underselling not legitimate competition, but cut-throatism; that these very conditions give the publishers power to put and keep their books at fair, living prices, and that any other course does not help the public interest, but hurts it.

ANOTHER point. Mr. Smalley says, "Roughly speaking, it [underselling] pays in London and does not pay in the smaller provincial towns." In a wide view, we do not believe underselling pays anywhere. London in respect to bookstores is even worse off than New York City, which, considering its population, ought to have at least two-thirds more than exist, and do that much more book business. Indeed we hold that neither of the English-speaking countries has the actual book market each should have under fair conditions, and that "underselling," which really means a trade system inviting underselling because of its nominal retail prices, is largely at the bottom of the difficulty. Mr. Macmillan's appeal should ultimately be of service to both trade and public, English and American.

ENGLISH AND AMERICAN BOOK MARKETS.

BY OLIVER B. BUNCE.

Copyright, 1890, by Lloyd Bryce. Reprinted by permission from the North American Review.

AN assertion made in a recent magazine article that there are twenty readers of books in the United States to one in Great Britain only exaggerates a little a prevalent conviction. Declarations similar to this are continually put forth, not only here, but abroad, until almost every one has come to believe them to be true. And yet it is easy, I think, to show that they are unsupported by facts; and my present purpose is to marshal a little illuminating testimony bearing thereon.

The method of publishing and circulating books in one country may yield larger profits than the methods of other countries—as, for instance, the high-priced books for circulating libraries in England compared with the low-priced books in this country—but a fair test of the reading activity of any people largely lies in the rewards they are willing to pay the authors whose books they peruse. A comparison between the profits of authors in England and authors in the United States shows a striking difference. When I remember how enormous were the gains of Sir Walter Scott, how brilliant were the profits of Charles Dickens; when I recall that Bulwer received a hundred thousand dollars* for the privilege of printing a cheap edition of his novels for ten years; that George Eliot was paid thirty-five thousand dollars for "Romola," and made seventy-five thousand dollars out of "Middlemarch;" that within three months after the publication of the fourth volume of Macaulay's "History" the Longmans sent him a hundred thousand dollars, I wonder in what fairy-land these things could have occurred.

I know not what Tennyson's arrangements are with his present publishers, but at one time he received the fixed sum of twenty-five thousand dollars a year for his copyrights, whether he published anything new or not. It would be interesting to compare these figures with Longfellow's yearly receipts. Trollope frankly tells us just what he received for his novels, which in many instances was not less than fifteen thousand dollars down. Mr. Roe was the most successful of recent American novelists, and yet it is doubtful if any of his much-read novels yielded him more than half this amount. Anthony Trollope's prices were not at all exceptional, every English novelist in the first rank obtaining as much, and a few considerable more. Some single books in this country, such as "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "The Wide, Wide World," "Ben-Hur," have yielded their authors a large profit; but I know of no author publishing rapidly book after book whose average receipts are at all equal to those of English authors of corresponding rank. And if we compare exceptional books, England still pays much more liberally than we do. George Eliot, as I have already mentioned, is said to have made seventy-five thousand dollars from "Middlemarch." "Ben-Hur," large as the returns have been, can scarcely equal this.

If a disinterested person desired to ascertain the comparative literary activity of two countries, he would naturally compare the literary journals of each with the other. Could there be a surer test? If we place before us copies of the Athenaum, the Saturday Review, and the Spectator, we see at once what is going on in the English world of letters. If we place by their side the only three American periodicals with which comparison can be made, the Nation, the Critic, the Literary World, the difference is rather astonishing. In a copy of the Athenaum now before me I count thirty-six columns of book announcements and advertisements; in the Nation of the same date about seven columns, the columns being of equal length. In another number of the Athenaum I find twenty-three columns against four columns in the Nation of the corresponding issue. The other American literary journals exhibit a similar disproportion in comparison with English journals. How are we to account for this remarkable difference? Is it to be believed that the lesser activity pertains to a much larger body of bookbuyers? If all other evidence was closed against us, this fact would be sufficient to show in which land books are the more bought and the more read. An examination of these announcements by detail is exceedingly suggestive—here so few books comparatively within the higher range of thought; there so much activity in every branch of intellectual effort.

Every one knows something of the great circulating-library system of England. The magnitude of the Mudie library is of itself proof of the existence there of a very large, alert, and eager book-reading community. We have many libraries in this country—public libraries, circulating libraries, free libraries—but their aggregate consumption of books is much below that of Mudie's. In truth, it is not uncommon for Mudie to take on the day of publication more copies of a book at a high price than could be sold throughout the United States at a lower price. When, for instance, Anthony Trollope's autobiography was published, Mudie subscribed for 1500 copies, the retail price being five dollars. I think any publisher here will bear me out in saying that it is doubtful if so many copies could be sold in this country even at half the price. The book was published here in cheap form, at about twenty-five cents, and had, no doubt, a very good sale. Had it been published in England at that price, I am justified in saying that the sale would have reached some immense figure. When Froude's "History of England" was first published, Mudie subscribed for a thousand copies; yet no publisher here thought it prudent to make an edition for this market, although a thousand copies, at the usual price of works of the kind, would have insured the publisher against loss. These instances indicate the volume of Mudie's business. The ordinary edition of a three-volume English novel is five hundred copies, the greater number of which are taken by Mudie. Published here at a dollar and a half, the edition could not exceed two thousand copies, or if in paper covers at fifty cents, five thousand might be reached. The English edition must be estimated to have for each copy from ten to twenty readers, counting each family as one reader.

Mudie's central establishment at London and his branches in all the towns are so large, so vital a fact in English publishing that they render the issue of many books possible that could not otherwise be printed. This system, moreover, greatly increases the rewards of authorship. The prices of books for circulating libraries are very high, and with every notably successful book the profits are greatly beyond anything that we experience in America.

But while the prices by the library system are high, English readers obtain books for perusal at a very small cost. For five dollars a year a subscriber has the command of all the literature of the day; for twenty-five dollars a year he receives his fortnightly parcel of various books, which he may taste, read, or reject at his pleasure. Here with us every individual book, so far as it looks for individual buyers, has to overcome the reluctance, if not the hostility of the public; for no man will deliberately purchase a book unless he has assurance that it is what he wants. Under the English library system the reader is brought in contact with every book, no given book involving a special outlay; and hence every new production enjoys an opportunity that is denied most of the new books under our methods. I believe that the English library system, with its large body of alert and accessible readers, has been the means of building up an expansive and catholic literature. It may be asked how it is that the innumerable public libraries with us do not produce similar results. There are several thousands of them, and yet, while they obtain books at much less cost than the English libraries do, they seem to exert a very small effect upon numbers printed. On the contrary, editions have become smaller as these institutions have multiplied, so that the suspicion arises whether they are not detrimental to literary interests. How there should be this difference in results between circulating libraries supported by subscription and libraries free to all comers, I am not prepared to say. As for subscription circulating libraries in this country, they are wholly insignificant. Their total purchases of books make a paltry showing by the side of Mudie's splendid orders.

One misleading circumstance in comparing the sale of books in England and the United States is the habit of putting the sale of high-priced books, designed almost exclusively for circulating libraries, in comparison with the same book here at a very low price for popular circulation. Obviously in such cases there must be a wide difference between the relative figures. But if we could compare readers with readers, instead of buyers with buyers, the difference would vanish. It is also necessary, in making comparisons, to select books the authors of which have equal popularity with readers on both sides of the ocean. Macaulay in numerous very cheap editions has had an immense sale in this country, but at a much higher price he has had an immense sale in England. If we knew the number of readers his books have had in England through the libraries, we should be in better position than now to make an exact comparison between his readers here and abroad. A few years ago, when a cheap edition of his history was put upon the English market, sixty thousand volumes went off the first month or two, and since then innumerable editions have been printed.

One of the most brilliant English successes in recent years is Green's "History of the English People." The English publishers announced about a year ago the sale of a hundred and thirty-two thousand copies. I know of nothing with us comparable with this. Higginson's "History of the United States" has had a very large sale, but the price is much lower. It is intended, moreover, for young readers, and there has been a large school consumption. I am not unmindful of the wonderful success of General Grant's "Memoirs"—a success unprecedented in literature. But look how many circumstances combined to make it so. A general, passionately loved, writing on his death-bed the history of campaigns that enlisted the profoundest patriotism of the people, insured for it at the beginning a vast circulation. Then we recall how it was carried by thousands of active agents to every house in the land. Never was there a book waited for by so eager, so admiring a multitude. A book produced under circumstances so extraordinary and sold by methods so special is in no wise a test of the intellectual tastes of the people. We must compare the sale of Green's "History," not with that of Grant's "Memoirs," but rather with the sales of Bancroft, or McMaster, or Hildreth, if we would accurately judge of the comparative demand for historical literature. When the first volume of McMaster's "History of the People of the United States" appeared, it was believed to have been inspired by Green, and was hailed with enthusiasm. There were many indications of a brilliant literary and popular success, and yet the sale has not been more than a twentieth of that of its great English model. This is very significant, and is enough, of itself, to dispose of the notion that we buy more books than the English do.

Some years ago Macmillan published what is known as the Globe Edition of Shakespeare. This edition was a compact 12mo volume, printed in small type, but type so perfectly cut that the impressions looked as if they were taken from copperplate. It was in every particular a fairly perfect specimen of book manufacture; yet the price was only sixty-two cents. Fifty thousand copies went off immediately. An edition was published in this country, probably from duplicate plates, but the price was higher and the sale comparatively slight. About the same time there appeared in England a religious series known as Heaven Our Home Series the name being derived from the title of the first book. This series attained in England, it is said, a sale close to a hundred thousand copies each volume; but the reprint in this country, as near as I can ascertain, did not reach a tenth of this figure.

But there are frequently local differences that account for marked divergences—sometimes price, sometimes the local popularity of the author. It is not easy to find a book that stands upon equal conditions in both countries. Looking over the list of recent books, there is one which seems to me to afford favorable circumstances for a just comparison. Charles Darwin is probably as well known and as popular with readers here as in England. I am unable to say what difference there is in the sales of his books in the two countries; but the recent biography by his son, Francis Darwin, gives us just the facts we are in search of. This book is published in England in three volumes at $9, and in this country in two volumes at $4.50; yet the sale in England at double the price has been twice as large. Moreover, as the greater number of copies there went into the libraries, they had probably ten times as many readers. I consider this a conclusive test as to the comparative demand for intellectual books by readers in England and readers in the United States.

Much has been said about the greater sale of the "Encyclopædia Britannica" in the United States than in England. Several editions were published here at a much lower price, and the sale was pushed in each instance by an army of active agents. Had this work been published in this country at one-half the English price, and sold, as it was in England, through the regular book channels, the showing would have been very different. Nevertheless, the large consumption here of a work of so high a character is very creditable to our people. We are distinctively, as a nation, buyers of dictionaries and cyclopædias. There is abundance of money in the country, and a wide-spread thirst for practical information, even on the part of those who care nothing for literature. We are, however, by no means alone in this. It is declared that two hundred thousand copies of Chambers' "Information for the People" have been sold in Great Britain, and that Knight's Penny Magazine, which was a sort of cyclopædia, had at one time a circulation of the same number.

Encyclopædias with us have been pushed with great ingenuity and energy, and in recent years they have been sold in large numbers by the instalment plan. This method of selling books cannot be considered as at all indicative of our national literary tastes, inasmuch as most of the people that buy in this way are ready for anything that gives them immediate possession with pay-day somewhere in the future, whether it is a cyclopædia, a piano, a sewing-machine, or a new carpet. The only index of the intellectual tendencies of a people is what they search for and select. Unless, indeed, there is selection, there is nothing that concerns the present question. The demand at the libraries is one index of what readers prefer; the demand at the bookstores is another; although neither the libraries nor the bookstores escape the crazes of the hour, and are often beset by people who never resort to them except when rushing to read the last literary sensation. It is obvious that the idle reading of any book that chances in the way is not an intellectual proceeding. There are hundreds of thousands of our people carrying a little spare money in their pockets who are ready to kill an unoccupied hour with a book, indifferent as to whether it is "Peck's Bad Boy," a sensational romance, or a comic almanac.

There are many "libraries" of standard works published in England in excellent style and at a very low price, with which we here have nothing to correspond. Morley's Universal Library consists mainly of classics. The volumes are a crown 8vo, neatly printed and bound in half cloth, the price being thirty-six cents per volume.* Although not commenced until 1885, the sales last December were authoritatively declared to have reached four hundred and eighty-six thousand volumes. A certain proportion of this number, however, probably came to America, where the publishers have a branch house. The Chandos Classics is a collection of standard authors, in compact volumes, bound in cloth, at thirty-six cents each, of which the publishers announce that they have sold over three and a half million copies. Bohn's Library is famous the world over, and the sales have been enormous; but I have been unable to obtain definite figures. Some recent "libraries," consisting of minor gems in literature, selling as low as six and twelve cents, have been projected in England, and are popular successes. The Canterbury Poets, consisting solely of poetical selections, neatly bound, and yet selling at twenty-four cents each, is a recent successful venture, some of the volumes reaching large sales. The Camelot Library is a series of well-selected books, neatly bound in cloth, at twenty-four cents a copy.

A small proportion of each of these "libraries" comes to America, but no publisher here has ventured upon anything similar. We have editions of the standard authors offered at low prices, but they are, for the most part, clumsily made, badly printed, and vulgarly bound. No man with a taste for well-made books can touch them. In addition to these libraries the great authors are issued in England in delightful styles at almost a nominal price. A new edition of Thackeray is a charm to behold, and yet the price is but twenty-four cents a volume, or in half-binding thirty-six cents. The Brontë novels are now appearing in exquisite little volumes, necessarily with small type, but perfectly printed, and in tasteful half-binding at thirty-six cents, and in paper covers at the astonishing low price of twelve cents each. The latest venture in this line is an edition of Kingsley's novels in octavo volumes from new type, perfectly printed on excellent paper at the astonishing price of sixpence (or twelve cents). A hundred thousand copies of the first of the series, "Westward Ho," went off immediately, and the sales now are far beyond this number. Editions that unite perfect workmanship with great cheapness are not made in the United States. The enormous sale in England of these low-priced editions disposes of the assertion often made that the English people do not care to own books, but read simply what they borrow from the circulating libraries.

One surprising feature in English publishing is the immense consumption of evangelical literature. Some years ago the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge published "The Pilgrim's Progress" at two cents, the first edition being a million copies. Many other of the religious classics have been published at the same astonishing low price. This society has a magazine, entitled Dawn of Day, with a monthly circulation of 250,000 copies. The activity of the society is one of the most remarkable and interesting features of English publishing. We have nothing here that fairly compares with it. It is now issuing a series of penny tales by the most popular novelists. Twelve had been issued up to last December, with an aggregate sale at that time of 1,340,000 copies.

We in this country print many books, but the issues of the cheap-fiction libraries, which are scattered in such numbers over the country, are rather to our disgrace than our credit. When one looks at the display of these volumes on the bookstand, he asks in despair whether it is possible that there is no such thing as taste. In one thing we do, indeed, evince a great supremacy; for no nation equals us in a knowledge of the arts of how to make a book hideous. In that public education of which we boast so much, in that spread of intelligence in which we think we are so superior, how is it that taste in these things is so rare? In former years the books that the peddlers carried through the country, and which were bought by farmers' wives as ornaments for the centre-table, were monuments of showy and vulgar taste. To-day the paper-covered novel equals these examples in all that is repulsive. In any fair estimate of the intellectual tendencies of a people, productions of this character should be placed on the debit rather than on the credit side.

In magazine literature we compare favorably with the rest of the world. Reviews of a high intellectual character are more abundant in England than here, but magazines of a superior popular order are numerous with us, some of them circulating very largely. These productions are handsomely printed, their pictorial features excel in artistic quality anything abroad, and their literature is commonly very good. In all particulars they reflect credit upon the country, and afford certainly a surprising contrast to the cheap issues of popular fiction. How is it that taste can be so manifestly absent from one class of our publications and exhibit such ascendancy in another? The demand for magazines of discussion, of symposia on religious, socialistic, economic, and political themes, has recently greatly increased. This is not so much evidence of a taste for literature as proof of a remarkably wide-extended intellectual fermentation on all matters immediately affecting the practical and moral welfare of the community. In England there is a noticeable demand for magazines of a religious or semi-religious character. I have already spoken of the Dawn of Day. Good Words is an estimable and widely-read magazine of this class, and there are others. We have nothing here exactly their equivalent, although there are periodicals designed specially for Sunday-school teachers, which have a large clientèle. Nor have we anything here that is a substitute for Chambers's Journal, which is extensively read by intelligent artisans, and always unites useful articles with entertaining fiction. As for story-papers of the Ledger class, they are numerous under both flags, and the running pretty nearly equal.

When the American publisher hears of the great number of bookbuyers here, he wistfully asks himself, Where are they? He knows that school-books, text-books, and books of reference sell largely, and that occasionally there is a great rush for a novel of some kind. But if there are twenty readers in this country to one in England, or ten to one, or one to one, where are they? He finds the English literary journals teeming with announcements; he sees Murray, and the Longmans, and Macmillan, and Blackwood, and Kegan Paul, and many other houses, ceaselessly producing volumes which here would soon ruin any publisher that should put his capital in them; and wonders again where the great body of American readers is to be found. For books of science, for standard histories, for books of information, there is considerable demand; but for books of imagination, outside of fiction, books strictly intellectual in character, books that come distinctly under the name of literature, there are very few buyers indeed. One of our great publishing houses fortifies itself with its periodicals, another with its school-books and cyclopædias, another with a great printing establishment; but no house can stand alone in the field of belles-lettres and survive. The houses that have attempted it have gone by. There is a public that devours the newspapers; there is a public that buys the magazines, sometimes mainly for the pictures; there is a public that idles over the last sensational novel; but the public that exhibits a genuine taste for higher reading, and is ready to welcome productions of genius in this field, is very limited indeed. And yet this public is larger than the consumption of books indicates. The appetite of every true lover of books is omnivorous; he needs a large income in order to satisfy his literary hunger. There are hosts, therefore, who would become an eager constituency for books did their means permit it. For these people we need cheap and neat editions of standard authors, such as are produced in England, and for new publications an extended and thorough circulating-library system.

THE DISCOUNT QUESTION IN ENGLAND.

G. W. Smalley in the N. Y. Tribune, April 6.

THE dispute about discount in the bookselling and book-publishing trade of Great Britain is not one by which the public can expect to profit. It all springs from what is called underselling, and it is underselling, not the suppression of it, which is to the advantage of the public. But, say the retail men, it is carried to such a point that the selling of books by retail is no longer a paying business. The political economist would reply, "Then go into some other business that does pay;" or, rather, "The capital now employed unremuneratively in retail bookselling will migrate into some other business that is remunerative." Unless, perchance, it should meantime disappear, and with it the unhappy owner. That is a detail of which political economy takes no account, but which is of some account to those who are not above sentiment, and not superior to the misfortunes of their fellow-men.

Whether retail bookselling does in fact pay, or does not, is a matter that has of late been publicly discussed, and the evidence is as conflicting as evidence usually is. The question may be answered either way. Roughly speaking, it pays in London, and does not pay in the smaller provincial towns. Perhaps there are not many who sell books, new books, at retail, and sell nothing else. The business goes hand in hand with the selling of second-hand books; often a lucrative pursuit, and with the selling of stationery and what are called fancy articles. It pays, in any case, in the hands of those who swim with the stream, who conform to circumstances, who obey the conditions of the time in which they live. The old-fashioned people go to the wall. If a man persists in asking $1 for a book which people can buy next door for 75 cents, he will probably complain that his business does not pay. If, discovering this, he then sells it for 75 cents, but has paid the same sum for it originally, his complaint will not be less loud. The cheap bookseller who prospers is a man who diminishes his price to the public, but preserves his margin of profit all the same. He makes special arrangements with the publisher, and buys on more favorable terms than he formerly did, or than his neighbor now does. The publisher, for his part, quietly increases the published price of his book, and gets a larger share rather than a less share of the plunder.

Competition is, however, so keen that the discount to the public has increased, and is still increasing. I do not add that it ought to be diminished. The present rule in London is three pence in the shilling for cash; exactly 25 per cent. off the publishers' price. A book issued at the nominal price of a shilling may be bought anywhere for nine pence. But as the retail dealer buys the same book from the wholesale dealer at eight pence, and gets thirteen copies for twelve, and a discount besides of 5 per cent. off the amount of his invoice, the business does not seem a bad one. He pays 91 pence and a fraction for thirteen copies and sells them for 117 pence; a profit of 26 pence on the 91 pence of capital; or nearly 30 per cent. A tradesman who cannot live on a profit of 30 per cent. ought perhaps to try something else than trade. But, he says, the linen-draper steps in between me and the public. He actually sells books below cost in order to attract the public to his shop, and induce them to buy his other wares, the profit on which is large enough to recoup him for his small loss on the books. No doubt the linen-draper is capable of this wicked act. It is an old trick, and there is no act of Parliament against it, nor any act or other thing to prevent the bookseller from retorting upon his rival and selling pocket-handkerchiefs under cost in order to entice the people to buy books at a price higher than the market price. Then there are the stores, about whose wickedness we used to hear a great deal more than we do now—the Coöperative Stores. They, too, sell books; and sometimes sell them at what is called trade price, in other words, sell them for the sum they pay for them.

It is Mr. Frederick Macmillan who, among others, makes himself responsible for the statement that it is rapidly becoming impossible for a bookseller, pure and simple, dealing in current literature, to make a living profit from his business. No doubt Mr. Macmillan is right, if the publisher's view of what constitutes a "living profit" is to prevail. Mr. Macmillan is a partner in a very eminent publishing house, and anything he says on the publishing or selling of books deserves attention. He has written a long letter about bookselling to a trade organ, and expresses some sympathy with the booksellers in their present difficulties. Before we proceed with that, might I suggest to Mr. Macmillan that some of his sympathies might be bestowed on another person concerned in the book business, the author? If the figures I have given above are correct, the seller of books, even in his present wretched estate, makes a profit of 30 per cent. Will Mr. Macmillan be so kind as to tell us in what proportion the profits on a successful book are distributed between author and publisher? Does the author make a "living profit" on what is commonly the only capital he possesses, his brains? Let us take a recent case. We will suppose that an eminent firm publishes a book of reminiscences in two handsome volumes at $7.50, and that, notwithstanding the high price, the public buys four editions of it. That, surely, is a successful book, and one that ought to pay everybody concerned a living profit, and perhaps something more. Does Mr. Macmillan think he could find out what share of the proceeds the author received, and how much the publisher kept for himself, and, if he could, will he let us know?

A private transaction? Oh, no, Mr. Macmillan, that is one of several mistakes into which you publishers occasionally fall. It is a matter of very considerable public interest. It concerns the community deeply that literature should be encouraged, and should be profitable to the producer of it. The patron on whom the author once in some measure depended has disappeared. The publisher has taken his place. He is, or ought to be, the Maecenas of the nineteenth century. But if Johnson were living now, do you think he would soften the terrible lines which he wrote under the sting of Lord Chesterfield's neglect?

"There mark what ills the scholar's life assail—Toil, envy, want, the patron, and the jail."

To substitute publisher for patron would spoil the metre. Would it much affect the sense?

The publisher is a man of business, the author is not, or seldom is. Do you think publishers have always borne that in mind? They have drawn their own contracts. Have the interests of the author or of the publisher been most carefully considered in those printed forms, filled up according to circumstances which are presented to the author, all unacquainted as he is with affairs, for him to sign?

Do not imagine, my dear Macmillan, that I address these questions to you because I mean to imply that you personally do not conduct your business on the most honorable principles. I am persuaded that you do. But I apprehend you would admit, or perhaps even assert, that among your many rivals in the business of publishing books are to be found some whose treatment of authors is less considerate than your own. I will not say, and perhaps you would not, that any of them are dishonest. I prefer to use a word which was a favorite with Matthew Arnold, and to suggest that in their dealings with the authors on whose productions their own prosperity depends, some of them are sometimes indelicate. You would not, I think, refuse to go as far as that. You would say, no doubt, there are publishers and publishers, and that not every firm is so scrupulous in its transactions or so high-minded as your own.

If they were, how would you explain, for example, the existence of the Incorporated Society of Authors, and what construction would you put upon some of its recent proceedings? Some of the most respected and popular authors of the day are members of that society. They have an Executive Committee, and that committee go so far as to declare that there are firms of so-called publishers which exist solely by robbery and cheating. Surely you, and all other publishers of high character and repute, must desire to dissociate yourselves as widely as possible from the scoundrels who profess to carry on the same business that you do. You would agree with the committee, would you not, in their urgent recommendation that authors should send their agreements with publishers for examination by the society before signing? If there were clauses in those agreements injurious to the author he would be warned not to sign. If there were none, no harm would be done. You would heartily disapprove, I am sure, every attempt to induce an unwary writer to bind himself not to publish in future with any other house than that which was then to issue a particular book—an attempt which Mr. Besant calls monstrous and indecent. You would, if the society called upon you for advice, strike out that agreed statement of the cost of production which the less delicate publisher sometimes inserts, and is sometimes careless enough to exaggerate. You would not justify for a moment the refusal of a publisher to submit his books to examination, in order that his statement of the expenses of publication, of the number of copies printed and sold, and other such interesting and vital particulars, might undergo an independent audit. You will rejoice in the appearance of that little treatise promised by Mr. Besant on "The Cost of Production," and that other now preparing on "The Different Methods of Publishing," including, I think, the Half-Profit System, and probably pointing out the method by which the indelicate publisher charges the author full price for advertisements which cost the publishers nothing, and omits to deduct the discount he obtains on the nominal prices of paper, printing, and other important items. Mr. Besant, less scrupulous in his choice of words than our lamented friend Arnold, talks of frauds. You would join him in exposing and repressing and preventing them. In short, you and the Incorporated Society of Authors have so many aims and interests in common that you will perhaps permit me to wonder that you are not already a member of it. For the one person to whom it is of the utmost consequence that the business of publishing should be freed from all stains and all suspicion is the publisher.

THE COLE LIBRARY.

MELANCHOLY as it seems to say it, yet the dispersal of another great library; a collection of books brought together with faultless taste and years of patient effort and study, is un fait accompli. That the dispersal took place amid the owner's friends and neighbors, men who had known and liked Mr. Cole, themselves earnest collectors, is the silver lining which, dark as may be the cloud, surrounds it. Mr. Cole himself would have been glad to have seen the audience gathered on three days of last week at Messrs. Bangs' auction-rooms to do homage to his collection. The leading bookdealers of New York, and a large body of collectors, also, were present. Among the former the chief buyers were Mr. Pierce and Mr. W. E. Benjamin, while among the latter Mr. Peter Marié, General Hawkins, Mr. Bement, and Mr. Stirling were the most prominent bidders. Among the items sold were the following: A MS. on vellum of the fifteenth century—Aristoteles—"Opera Logica," bound by Matthews, $40. (Benjamin). The charmingly bound MS. in two volumes, an illustration of which formed the frontispiece of the catalogue, a Biblia Latina of the fifteenth century, $240. (Bement). It may sound heretical to say so, but I do not believe the quality of the MS. was such as to justify such an expensive binding. Mr. Bonaventure secured a bargain in four volumes, unmistakably, as the Times points out, bound by Padeloup, though not so stated in the catalogue, having Louis XV. arms on the sides, and in marvellous condition at $10 per volume. Another bargain was that secured by Mr. Sabin, in the copy of "Ship of Fools," printed at Basilæ in 1506; he secured it for the low price of $21. An edition, translated into English and printed by John Cawood at London in 1570, fetched $60. This in perfect state was very rare. Another very interesting volume sold was the "Reualitiones Sancte Birgitte," printed by Koburger, of Nuremberg, in 1500, $21 (Blake). "Academie des Arts, etc.," 2 vols., 1695, with many fine old portraits, $64 (Harling). "Burton's Book Hunter," first edition, on large paper, 1862, $37 (Sabin). A finely extra illustrated copy of "Childe Harold's Pilgrimage," bound by Pratt, was sold to Mr. Marié, for $280. The copy of "Coryat's Crudities," with the errata in fac-simile, brought $65 (Sewall), which, considering its condition, is quite enough. A really fine copy is worth $200 or more. The splendid and all but complete set of Dr. Dibdin brought the considerable price of $30 per volume; a total for the set of $1680 (Mr. Stirling). The set could not be duplicated for the money and so can hardly in fairness be called dear. But it would be a pretty hard set for a dealer to sell, I think. The extra illustrated copy of the "Bibliomania," which had cost Mr. Cole close upon a thousand dollars, was knocked down to Mr. Benjamin for thirty dollars less than the cost of its binding, i. e., $120. This was one of the bargains, par excellence, of the sale. Mr. Pierce secured for $105 a "Book of Hours," 1498, printed by Simon Vostre, but not in good order. Six copies of "Ireland's Stage" on large paper brought an average of $33 apiece. The first printed edition of "Pierce Plowman" (1550), $50 (Pierce); the same buyer getting for $32 a copy of "Lilly's Euphues and Anatomy of Wit," 1580-92. Mr. Marié bought an elegant ms. on vellum of the fifteenth century, a Missal, for $176. A very fine Nuremberg Chronicle, with Latin text, richly bound $180. Mr. Benjamin bought the Aldine "Poliphili" of 1499, the editio princeps, for $145; Mr. Mason buying the second edition of 1545 for $90. Mr. Cole's extra illustrated copy of "Tuckerman's Book of the Artists," enlarged to 6 vols., brought $690 (Bentley). The magnificent and widely-known extra illustrated copy of "Walton's Angler," in six thick folio volumes, with about one thousand additional illustrations, was a wise purchase on the part of Mr. Stirling for $1680, curiously enough the identical price paid by the same buyer for the set of "Dibdin." He is heartily to be congratulated on his taste and courage in the purchase of these two books. The copy, also extra illustrated, of "Zouch's Life," richly bound, brought $125 (Benjamin). This should have gone with the "Walton's Angler." "Wood's Athenæ," on large paper, the best edition, brought $64 (Pierce). A copy sold in London recently for £20. I have not space to notice the engravings or autographs at any length. Among them I noticed a very rare Broadside by Blake, which fetched $21, curiously enough bought by a Mr. Blake.

The sale brought about $15,000. Although prices were in many cases high, it will be seen from the above that bargains were by no means unobtainable by those attending the sale.

BIBLIOPHILUS.

TESTIMONIAL TO ANDREW GEYER, BY THE BOOKSELLERS' AND STATIONERS' PROVIDENT ASSOCIATION.

At a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association of the United States, held on Wednesday evening, April 16, 1890, the following preamble and resolution were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, By reason of pressure of business, our worthy and esteemed fellow-member, Andrew Geyer, has been impelled to resign the office of Secretary, which he so creditably filled, and with this action, we sincerely regret to learn, his active participation as a fellow-trustee ceases; and whereas, we sensibly realize that by this event we lose not only a good and faithful officer, a genial, courteous, and trustworthy companion, but also a persevering, active, and untiring member, one who by his energy and efficiency has rendered almost incalculable services as Secretary and whose steadfast adherence to the interests of this association since the date of its organization has merited the praise and admiration of his associates, and demands from them a recorded expression of their obligation towards him; therefore be it

Resolved, That we cordially extend our warmest thanks to Andrew Geyer for his untiring zeal and devotion to the interests of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association of the United States, as well as for the able, diligent, and efficient manner in which he has performed his arduous duties as Secretary during the past six years; and further that an engrossed copy of these proceedings, signed by the members of the Board of Trustees, be presented to him, with our best and earnest wishes for his future welfare and happiness.

W. B. KETCHAM, Secretary.

JOHN W. LOVELL ON CHEAP BOOKS.

MR. JOHN W. LOVELL writes to The Critic, under date of April 8: "In the notice of what you are pleased to call 'The Lovell Book Trust,' you state: 'So it seems that the lack of International Copyright is not to mean "cheap books" any longer.' I regret that the trade circular recently issued should have conveyed this impression to you. There is no thought of increasing the retail prices of what have been known as 'cheap books.' The retail prices of the Seaside Library, Lovell Library, and Munro Library will still remain 10 and 20 cents a number, unless the threatened change in the postal regulations, increasing the postage 800 per cent., is made. The only regulation sought is in the direction of trade discounts. In the past, these have operated to the injury of the regular bookseller; the dry-goods houses and other large buyers often retailing books at a lower price than the regular trade could buy them for. It is to the interest of American authors to establish a price consistent with the size, quantity, and quality of material used in all books, whether protected by copyright or not. The American author has been driven to the wall by the economy in the production of English works, and the cheapness necessitated by the competing editions of all popular novels from abroad. Whatever slight advance in price may be made in future will be amply compensated by superiority of manufacture and material. There is no desire to 'run' any one out of business, but the time was ripe to abandon the suicidal discounts which have characterized the last few years. When there is a margin of profit for the publisher, he can make concessions to the trade which were impossible when the cost of manufacture and the wholesale price were the same."

FORTHCOMING BIBLIOGRAPHIES.

THE announcement of the American Catalogue volume of 1889-90, says the Library Journal, "is not the only 'bow of promise' in American bibliography. Much work that is being done is unknown, but enough is already intimated to show that the next decade will do much to systematize and make accessible our books. It will see, at its present rate of publication, the conclusion of Sabin's 'Dictionary of Books Relating to America' which with the promised elaborate index volume will be a work no library can do without. Mr. J. L. Whitney will print this year a list of bibliographies on all subjects. Mr. A. P. C. Griffin has his list and index to the printed volumes of our historical societies almost ready for printing. Mr. C. R. Hildeburn has made such progress in his collection of the titles of N. Y. imprints before 1774, that a volume on that subject, supplementary to his 'Issues of the Philadelphia Press,' 1685-1781, may soon be expected. Dr. B. Weeks has prepared a list of North Carolina imprints before 1800, which will be printed this year. Prof. A. B. Hart and Mr. P. L. Ford have a bibliography of the U. S. Constitution well under way. Mr. W. R. Weeks is preparing a bibliography of New Jersey. Mr. J. H. Hickox has a list of books relating to State constitutions and conventions already completed. The American Historical Association will soon print a list of the historical writings of its members, which will include some 3000 titles, and will be supplemented yearly. The Bureau of Ethnology, under the care of Mr. Pilling, will continue the special brochures on Indian languages. The U. S. Geological Survey has in preparation lists of works on Geology and Mr. Goode has one on Ichthyology. Mr. Blackwell announces a list of Welsh books which is to be most inclusive in its nature. And we know of many smaller though important works now in preparation, such as Mr. Edmands' 'Junius,' Mr. Foster's 'Constitution in the Civil War,' and Mr. Nash's 'Long Island.' In short, the production of these lists is only limited to the ability of the work to obtain a sufficient number of subscribers to pay the cost of manufacture, but unfortunately this is seldom realized."

Commenting on the foregoing announcement the editor of The Bookman with much force and more truth says: "It is a great pity that that much-talked-of person, 'the wealthy amateur,' cannot be interested in this matter. For instance, cannot Mr. Kalbfleisch be induced to guarantee the expense of a Long Island bibliography or Mr. Hoe of some such work as Mr. Hildeburn is compiling? There are few people who take less interest in bibliography than your mere book collectors. Their interest in books is mere vanity, and no doubt if they were approached on that side they might be induced to spend a little of their wealth to a more useful purpose than the amassing of books in languages which they do not understand and binding them in jackets which they are half timorous to touch and wholly afraid to open."

COPYRIGHT IN CANADA.

DESPATCHES from Ottawa report that Sir John Thompson has told a deputation that he is continuing to urge upon the Imperial Government the right of Canada to legislate on the subject of copyright. It is reported that the Dominion Government will, at the request of the imperial authorities, refuse to issue a proclamation putting into force the Copyright act passed a year ago by the Dominion Parliament. The act provided that it should not go into force until a proclamation to that effect was issued by the government, the object being to enable the Canadian Government to ascertain the views of the Imperial Government on the question.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

GEORGE GISSING, the author of that clever book, "The Nether World," is about to bring out another entitled "The Emancipated."

"THE DUCHESS" (Mrs. Hungerford), in a letter to Mr. Craig Lippincott, denies that she is the author of a story entitled "Gamp Tampa's Daughter," which is said to have been recently published in this country. Mrs. Hungerford has been unfortunate in having her pen-name used on work not her own.

MR. GEORGE W. CABLE is to write a life of the late Mr. William Gilmore Simms for the American Men of Letters Series. Fifty or sixty years ago, says Mr. R. H. Stoddard, "Mr. Simms was considered a great man by his brother Carolinians. They believed his novels even equal to those of Cooper (they were certainly in better English), while his poems were superior to any produced in the North. His 'Life of Marion' was as entertaining as a romance, which it partly was, we suspect, particularly the anecdote about the young British officer and the sweet potatoes. Blunt of speech, impulsive in action, generous to a fault, Mr. Simms was ruined by the war. But he was rich in friends everywhere, and the story of his life is well worth telling."

"I CAN state upon very good authority," says E. W. Bok, "that Mrs. General Grant is at work upon a volume of memoirs of her husband, which is promised for publication possibly in the fall. It is a well-known fact among those who are intimate with Mrs. Grant that she has for some time past had in mind such a work, and recently she began a systematic overhauling of her papers for the book. There is one feature which I can state, however—that the work will not contain General Grant's love-letters. If such are in existence, Mrs. Grant will not expose them to the public eye. There will be, of course, a large number of unpublished letters, written by the husband to his wife, and most characteristic of these will be his letters while on the battlefield, giving his impressions of the battles as they proceeded from day to day. During the war General Grant wrote almost daily to his wife, and these letters have been preserved and will be published."

MISS JEAN INGELOW, the poet, writes to her publishers, Messrs. Roberts Brothers, that the applications for autographs from America are so numerous that with her indifferent health the task of executing them is too burdensome, and in future she will be obliged to decline them. But in order to carry out a charity very dear to her heart, she has furnished them with autographic copies of some of her favorite short poems, such as "The Martin Flew to the Finch's Nest," from "Mopsa," "Goldilocks," "The Nightingale Heard by the Unsatisfied Heart," "The Warbling of Blackbirds," "Coo, Dove, to thy Married Mate," from "Brothers and a Sermon," "When Sparrows Build," etc., each bearing her signature with the date, and these the publishers propose to send to any address on receipt of $2 for each poem. The money received from their sale will go toward restoring the old St. Lawrence Church, in Evesham, England, where her sister's husband is rector.

NOTING with surprise that W. Clark Russell, the English sea-novel writer, is American born, the Book-Buyer for April, in a sketch, says: "He was born at the Carlton House Hotel, Broadway, in the city of New York, February 21, 1844. His father was Mr. Henry Russell, the famous composer, who wrote the songs 'Cheer, Boys, Cheer,' 'Far, Far upon the Sea,' 'There's a Good Time Coming, Boys,' and many other compositions of a like kind. Mr. Clark Russell's mother was Miss Lloyd, a connection of the poet Wordsworth, and the associate in her youth of Coleridge, Southey, Lamb, and others of that school. Mr. Clark Russell was educated at Winchester, and in France, and was sent to sea as a midshipman in the merchant service at the age of thirteen and a half. He abandoned the sea after seven or eight years of it, with a taste for literature that entirely dominated his father's desire to interest him in commerce. He wrote his first nautical novel, 'John Holdsworth, Chief Mate,' in 1874. The success of this book was great and immediate. It was followed by 'The Wreck of the Grosvenor,' which appears to have proved the most popular of his stories, though in no sense, in his opinion, is it comparable with his later works. He is now engaged upon a novel entitled 'Helga.'"

BUSINESS NOTES.

NEW YORK CITY.—The firm of Frederick A. Stokes & Brother has been dissolved by mutual consent. Its business will be continued by Frederick A. Stokes Company, a corporation which has been formed under the laws of the State of New York, with largely increased capital, and which assumes all the liabilities of Frederick A. Stokes & Brother. The officers of the new corporation are Frederick A. Stokes, President, and George F. Foster, Secretary and Treasurer. The business will be conducted in the same general manner as heretofore and with the same working force.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—A meeting was held at the offices of Hubbard Brothers, 723 Chestnut Street, on the 18th inst., pursuant to a call of parties who claim to represent half the amount due the unsecured creditors of Hubbard Brothers, to take action to prevent adverse measures by the secured creditors.

SALT LAKE CITY.—H. Pembroke, bookseller and stationer, has been succeeded by Duncan M. McAllister & Co.

TOPEKA, KAN.—Geo. W. Crane & Co. write us that they have not fully recovered from the effects of their fire of February, last year, but are fully reestablished in business; they have concentrated wholly at Topeka again (disposing of all interests held for a time at Kansas City), and regard the future as very promising in relation to their affairs.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

THE Library of Harvard University has published two valuable bibliographies, numbered respectively 34 and 37, in their series of Bibliographical Contributions edited by Justin Winsor. No. 34 contains a list of the Dante collections in the Harvard College and Boston Public Libraries, prepared by Wm. Coolidge Lane, assistant librarian at Harvard. (116 p. 8°.) No. 37 is a bibliography of the works of William Hogarth and of the publications relating to them, prepared by Frank Weitenkampf ("Frank Linstow White"), of the Astor Library. (14 p. 8°.)

DAMASCÈNE MORGAND, 55 Passage des Panoramas, Paris, offers in his April Bulletin a rare treat for the booklover, bookseller, and bookbinder. This issue is remarkable for rare editions, bound by eminent binders, of whose work a number of specimens are given in black and white and in fac-simile. Five hundred and eighty-five books are described and illustrated in the text. This series of catalogues is in many respects a liberal education to a bookseller. M. Morgand has in preparation the catalogue of a unique collection of works printed and published by the Elzevirs and the Dutch printers of the seventeenth century.

Catalogues of New and Second-hand Books.—Jarrold & Sons, Norwich, Eng., The Book-Stall Catalogue. (2d ser., No. 2, 2503 titles, 16°.)—A. Lovell & Co., N. Y., New Publications. (32 p. 16°.)—Miller's Old Bookstore, 2 Arcade Court, Chicago, April list of Scientific books, Federal State Surveys, reports, etc., (6 p. 8°;) also, Theological books, (4 p. 8°.)—West Publishing Co., St. Paul, Minn., Law-books. (106 p. 32°.)

OBITUARY NOTES.

ANDREW CAMPBELL, the well-known inventor and manufacturer of printing presses, died on the 13th inst. He was born near Trenton, June 14, 1821. While receiving a common-school education he became an orphan. He was successively a farmer's boy, apprentice to a carriage-maker, and a brush-maker. When sixteen years old he invented a brush-drawers' vise which is now universally used. In 1844 Mr. Campbell first had his attention called to printing-presses by repairing the presses of the Statesman of Columbia, Mo., one of which was the first press taken west of the Mississippi River. Since that time he obtained fifty patents applying to every branch of press-building. Mr. Campbell retired from an active business life in 1880, and has since lived quietly in Brooklyn enjoying the fruits of his industry.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THOMAS WHITTAKER will publish shortly a new volume of practical sermons by Canon Farrar under the title of "Truths to Live By."

OWING to some misunderstanding as to the style of binding, Macmillan & Co. desire the trade to bear in mind that their "Library Reference Atlas" is bound only in half morocco.

ESTES & LAURIAT have in press, by arrangement with the author, a translation of Camille Flammarion's astronomical romance, "Urania," illustrated with half-tone cuts from drawings by celebrated French artists.

DAVID MCKAY, Philadelphia, has published under the title of "Giordano Bruno: philosopher and martyr," two notable addresses read last January before the Contemporary Club of Philadelphia, by Dr. Daniel G. Brinton and Thomas Davidson.

FORDS, HOWARD & HULBERT have in preparation the series of articles which appeared in the New York Times some months ago under the title "Midnight Talks at the Club." These papers, which contain free and candid discussions of various religious, moral, and social questions, have been revised and somewhat extended by the author.

THE ADVANCE THOUGHT CO., 234 Broadway, N. Y., have published the "Reminiscences and Recollections of 'Brick' Pomeroy." Mark M. Pomeroy will be remembered as the editor of the Lacrosse Democrat, and the author of some charming volumes published under the titles of "Brick Dust," "Gold Dust," "Sense," "Our Saturday Nights," and "Nonsense."

JOHN B. ALDEN, New York, has recently published Oliver Turnbull Crane's translations from the Arabic and his annotation of "The Samaritan Chronicle or Book of Joshua," epitomized by Hottinger in Latin, in the seventeenth century, but never before done into English. The Arabic text of Juynboll has been used, and in addition the manuscript in the British Museum has been consulted.

D. C. HEATH & Co. will shortly issue a manual on the "Reproduction of Geographical Forms," by Jacques W. Redway, author of "The Teacher's Manual of Geography." It is designed for teachers and students who wish to learn the details of sand and clay modelling as applied to geographical forms, and the projection, drawing, and interpretation of maps. The manual will be il-illustrated with the various projections used in map-drawing, including a number of very easily constructed ones that may be used by younger pupils.

MR. FRANCIS E. ABBOT'S "The Way Out of Agnosticism," recently published by Little, Brown & Co., Boston, is a little book which is likely to stir up a good deal of controversy. Mr. Abbot is the ablest opponent of the agnostic philosophy in America. As editor of the Index, the organ of the Free Religious Association, he took occasion again and again to impeach the arguments of Herbert Spencer, declaring the "Unknowable" of the English philosopher false and absurd. "The Way Out," which is condensed to the last degree, summarizes Mr. Abbot's main positions; it is to be followed up by a comprehensive treatise on the philosophy of religion, some chapters of which are already in manuscript.

LONGMANS, GREEN & CO. will shortly publish both in London and New York "The House of the Wolf," a romance by Stanley J. Weyman. It tells the perils and bravery of three young brothers in the fortnight before and after the massacre of St. Bartholomew's Day. They will publish at once "Old Friends," by Andrew Lang, in which he describes the meetings of the characters of one novelist with those of another. For example, Dugald Dalgetty tells of his duel with one of the "Three Musketeers," Barry Lyndon describes his playing cards with Allan Stuart Breck (from "Kidnapped"); and Trollope's Mrs. Proudie sets forth Becky Sharp's assault on the Bishop.

O. DAVIE & CO., Columbus, O., have ready the fourth edition of Davie's "Nests and Eggs of North American Birds," and for the first time offer it to the trade. This is recognized as a standard work, and as almost indispensable to students of ornithology. It contains an introduction by J. P. Norris and thirteen full-page illustrations by Theodore Jasper and W. Otto Emerson. The text gives descriptions of the nests, eggs, and characteristic habits of all known land and water birds of North America. The complete analytical index is in itself a most valuable contribution to the science of ornithology. A new work on "Taxidermy" by the same author, was to have been published in parts by this firm, but Mr. Davie has decided that a completed work within the means of those interested is more certain of the needed support than the larger plan, and has undertaken the entire responsibility of bringing out this work, which has been a long labor of love with him. He has sent out a circular calling for 500 bona fide subscribers and promising to issue the work in September if he can obtain this guarantee of its final success. His eighteen years' experience as a practical taxidermist is backed by that of Dr. Jasper, who has practised the art in France, Germany, and America for upwards of fifty years. The title will be "Methods in the Art of Taxidermy;" the book will be of royal octavo size, with illustrations 7+10 inches printed on plate paper. The work may finally be given to the trade, but ought at once to receive the desired patronage from the required subscribers.

LEE & SHEPARD have just ready a neat volume entitled "Nora's Return," by Ednah D. Cheney, who undertakes to trace the future career of Nora and Helmar, the two leading characters of Ibsen's "Doll's House," and inculcates a moral lesson aiming at the ennobling and advancement of women; "The Camden Mountains—the Norway of America," a handbook of mountain and lake scenery on the coast of Maine, with sixty illustrations by Wm. G. Beal; also a new edition of "A Primer of Darwinism and Organic Evolution," by J. Y. and Fanny D. Bergen. They announce "Edward Burton," a novel, by Henry Wood, author of "Natural Law in the Business World," etc.; "Marion Graham," a novel, by Meta Lander; "Heroes and Martyrs of Invention," by George M. Towle, a series of interesting historical sketches which originally appeared in Harper's Young People, but which have been revised and enlarged; "Pencils and Brushes," by Theodore Serrao, a story of artist life in Rome; "Bird Music," by Simon Pease Cheney, a study of their songs and life; "Practical Decorative Upholstery," by F. A. Morland; "Stories of the Civil War," by Albert F. Blaisdell, fully illustrated; new editions of "The Baby's Kingdom" and "The Guest Book," by Annie F. Cox; and a library edition in five volumes of "The Life and Works of Horace Mann."

GEORGE ALLEN, Ruskin's publisher, Orpington, Eng., has in press a posthumous volume of poems by Charles Mackay, with an introduction by his son, Mr. Eric Mackay.

BERNARD QUARITCH, London, has made a limited edition in fac-simile, at $10 a copy, of the new-found original letter in which Columbus, in Spanish, announced the discovery of America. The original may be had for $8000.

THE new volume of The Book-Lovers' Library, to be issued very shortly, will be "Newspaper Reporting in Olden Time and To-day," written by Mr. John Pendleton, author of "The History of Derbyshire."

SWAN SONNENSCHNEIN & Co. are adding to their Social Science Series volumes on "Crime and the Prison System," by Mr. W. Douglas Morrison, of the Wandsworth jail; and "Charity Organization," by Mr. C. S. Lock, Secretary of the Charity Organization Society.

CHAPMAN & HALL will publish in the course of the present month Dr. Juncker's "Travels in Africa," translated from the German by Prof. A. H. Keane. The volume will be illustrated with thirty eight full-page plates and numerous woodcuts in the text, as well as with maps.

FRANZ THIMM & Co., Brook St., London, Eng., have in preparation a bibliography of the art of fence, comprising that of the sword and of the bayonet, duelling, etc., as practised by all European nations, from the earliest period to the present day, with a classified index by Carl A. Thimm—late Captain 2d London Rifles, and perhaps better known as librarian to the International Health Exhibition of 1884.

METHUEN & Co., London, will shortly commence the issue of a series of copyright novels—each published in a single volume and at a low price—under the title of Methuen's Novel Stories. The first will be a new work by Mr. Baring-Gould, entitled "Zael," and this will be followed by Mrs. Leith Adams' "My Land of Beulah." Novels by Edna Lyall, Miss F. Mabel Robinson, Mr. G. Manville Fenn, L. T. Meade, and other well-known writers will appear in due course.

PERSONAL NOTES.

MR. N. BANGS WILLIAMS, who was for the past year with White & Allen, has taken a position with Lee & Shepard, with whom he was associated for many years previous to 1889, representing them on the road.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

LOVE IN THE TROPICS.

A Romance of the South Seas. By CAROLINE EARLE WHITE. 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

This story will doubtless be a welcome surprise to the many friends of the author, who is so widely known through her activity in charitable and humanitarian efforts. Mrs. White is gifted with fine imaginative powers, and possesses literary taste and ability of a superior order, as is abundantly shown in this lifelike romance of the South Seas. The luxuriance of tropical life and the strange habits and manners of the people described add much freshness, originality, and interest to the story.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS' NEW BOOKS.

The Wife of the First Consul.

Translated from the French of Imbert de Saint-Amand by T. S. PERRY. With portrait, 12mo, $1.25.

From the French of the same author.

The Happy Days of the Empress Marie Louise. With portrait, 12mo. In press.

The strong interest attaching to the great figures of an era like that following the French Revolution and preceding the Empire is reflected in this volume, relating to Josephine, the Wife of the First Consul. The author has drawn upon contemporary memoirs and correspondence for the materials for his lively, gossip account of the life and manners of the period, for his pen portraits of the famous personages, for countless anecdotes, and for his vivid descriptions of important incidents.

Bright Skies and Dark Shadows.

By HENRY M. FIELD, D.D. 12mo, $1.50.

Dr. Field's new book of travels includes a discussion of the all-important Race Problem in the South—the scene of his journeyings in search of rest and health—and combines with this search for light upon an all-important subject many graphic and entertaining pictures of the land, and suggestive studies of its people. War reminiscences give variety to this timely and interesting book.

Fourth Edition; Sixth Thousand.

"The most successful book in American ornithological literature."

Davie's "Nests and Eggs of North American Birds."*THE FOURTH EDITION

Contains an Introduction by J. PARKER NORRIS, and thirteen full-page illustrations by THEODORE JASPER, A.M., M.D., and W. OTTO EMERSON. This has now become the standard work on the subject of which it treats, and is indispensable to those engaged in the studies of ornithology and oölogy. The text is a concise description of the nests and eggs and characteristic habits of the Land and Water Birds of North America. It includes the species that occur or are indigenous north of the Southern United States boundary, including Greenland and the peninsula of Lower California.

The arrangement of the work is according to the nomenclature of the A. O. U. Code and Check List, and the old number (Ridgway's) as used in former editions is placed to the right of each species. The common and scientific names are given; concise outline habitats of each species and their breeding ranges are designated. The time of nesting, the composition of the nests, exact number of eggs laid by each species and their sizes by actual measurements are given.

All curious freaks in the nesting habits of birds are noted in this octavo volume of 475 pages, making the biographies of intense interest and at the same time absolutely correct. If a bird is known by more than one common name, these are to be found in the text of each species, and a complete analytical Index is given at the close of the work.

COMMENDATIONS.

"In my opinion it is by far the most complete and accurate work on North American birds' eggs and nests that has yet appeared. . . . It is a great relief to find a work that one feels can be trusted."—WILLIAM BREWSTER, Cambridge, Mass.

"On looking over its pages I find not only a description of the nests and eggs of the birds, as full and complete as it can be made up to date, but it gives the distribution of the species with many original notes on their life history which are most valuable and interesting. It is the best work for the money that I know of on the subject, and one which will be hard to supersede for many years to come."—THOMAS MCILWRAITH, author of "The Birds of Ontario."

"You have done a splendid work for ornithology."—DR. EDGAR A. MEARNS, Captain Medical Corps, U. S. A.

"Though the bird literature of Ohio is not extensive, it is most excellent. Notwithstanding the average of ornithological writers in New York, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and elsewhere in the Union, no State or Territory can boast so good a local brochure as Wheaton's 'Birds of Ohio.' And too much cannot be said in praise of the admirable 'Nests and Eggs of Birds of Ohio' by the Joneses of Circleville. And now from Ohio emanates a work of greater scope, appealing to a much wider circle of readers and patrons. 'Davie's Nests and Eggs of North American Birds,' made up of authentic notes and authentic records, is comprehensive enough and sufficiently up to date to serve as a handbook of reference for many a day. . . . When I need a description of eggs of any species now, I look at the types in my cabinet, take a peep into Davie, and save looking up a lot of authorities. In fact, Davie has grown to be as indispensable as Ridgway, and side by side upon my writing-desk, always ready for use, are the two handy manuals."—J. M. W., Norwich, Conn [Noted Ornithological Writer.]

"I consider it a valuable contribution to ornithological literature. It should be in the hands of every collector."—THOMAS G. GENTRY, author of "Nests and Eggs of Birds of the United States," "Life Histories of the Birds of Eastern Pennsylvania," etc.

"It is indispensable to those who are not favored with an extensive library of ornithological literature."—CHAS. R. KEYS, Des Moines, Iowa, author of "Annotated Catalogue of the Birds of Iowa."

"It will certainly take a permanent place in the ornithological literature of the United States. Fifteen years ago what would I not have given for such a volume, and to-day I welcome it heartily. I wish it great success, which it will surely have, unless I misjudge the sense of all working oölogists."—DR. HOWARD JONES, author of "Illustrations of the Nests and Eggs of the Birds of Ohio."

"It is a most interesting and valuable book, and one that cannot fail to be of great use to all those into whose hands it will fall."—C. F. BATCHELDER, Cambridge, Mass.

"I can assure you that I value the work very highly indeed; it is just what I want now that I have so little time to hunt up those subjects. It contains a great deal of information in a little space and is always handy. It certainly is a wonderful book."—JOS. M. WADE, formerly editor of The Ornithologist and Oölogist.

"It is by far the best thing of the kind I have seen."—CAPT. B. F. GOSS, Pewaukee, Wis.

" . . . to the encomiums bestowed on your work by others . . . I can only add that I have no book to whose pages I oftener refer than yours."—G. FREAN MORCOM, Chicago, Ill.

"I think it is the most practical and valuable thing of the kind for the working naturalist I have ever seen. . . . You certainly have given a more complete and fuller description of many of the species than I thought possible."—CHAS. DURY, Cuvier Club, Cincinnati, Ohio.

"A thorough and reliable work, the new edition of which has been looked for during several months by those interested in birds. In some respects it is a unique work. The investigations to procure the necessary scientific facts have been pursued with great persistency and fidelity. The author seems to have brought under contribution every one who could give the data wanted from original sources. . . . The illustrations are a great help, especially to youthful students or collectors. They add much to the attractiveness of the book for the general reader. . . . One feature which should popularize this work for collectors, students, and the general reader is the care in giving prominence to the common names. In this respect great care and good sense is shown in the type and the general style of printing and arrangement of paragraphs. The scope of the work seems to be to cover the land and water birds of North America and to give a description of the nests and eggs. It includes all the species that are indigenous north of the Southern United States boundary, including Greenland and the peninsula of Lower California. The breeding range of each species is given, the time of nesting, the exact number of eggs laid, their color and size, together with the chief characteristics of the birds. Often the measurements of eggs are of those in the cabinet of the author. . . . Nothing could be better to encourage thoroughness in students and aid all collectors to identify specimens. To facilitate practical use a full alphabetical index is added, not only of the leading name by which the bird is commonly known, but with all the common names mentioned in the text. A page or two of directions for collecting and preserving birds' nests and eggs will be found very useful to many beginners in this delightful occupation of a collector. We might quote from any page and interest our readers in the facts so clearly and succinctly stated. Many curious and interesting facts are noted concerning birds more or less familiar, but to whom the general reader had never applied the scientific methods of observation and investigation illustrated in this book. No section of our country has been neglected. . . . Where on every page there is so much of value it is difficult to select. Among the more elaborate and interesting articles we may cite the following: Brown Thrasher, the common Bluebird, American Magpie, American Bared Grebe, Great Auk, Great Horned Owl, Burrowing Owl, Red-headed Woodpecker, Parula Warbler, Oven-bird, Bryant's Marsh Sparrow, Cowbird, Chimney Swift, Swallow-tailed Kite, Turkey Vulture, Cooper's Hawk, Red-tailed Hawk, Red-shouldered Hawk, Swainson's Hawk, Duck Hawk, etc., etc. . . . The print is large and clear. The work is generous and full in whatever aspect it is viewed. There are 475 pages of large size. We would suggest that every school library in the land should possess a bound copy of this work, and that every boy or girl who has a taste for ornithology be provided with at least a paper edition if not that in cloth."—GEN. CHAS. H. HOWARD, in Farm, Field, and Stockman.

Paper edition, $1.25; extra cloth, gilt top, $1.75.

A NOVEL.
BY WILLIAM O'BRIEN, M.P.

Crown 8vo, cloth extra, 556 pages, $1.50.

*.* The volume contains the following letter from Mr. O'Brien, reproduced in fac-simile.

"I desire respectfully to acquaint the American public that Messrs. Longmans, Green & Company are the only authorized publishers of this novel in America, and that editions issued by them are the only ones from which I derive any profits.
WILLIAM O'BRIEN.
"DUBLIN, April 12, 1890."

With the exception of four chapters, only, "When We Were Boys" was written by Mr. O'Brien while confined in Galway jail under the Coercion Act. It is a tale of the Ireland of a recent period, dealing with the movement of 1867 and illustrating forcibly every phase of the social as bearing upon the political condition of the country. As a story it is interesting, varied in incident, and enlivened with easy humor, while the author's individuality gives it an unusual value.

NOTES IN SEASON.

RAND, McNALLY & Co. have just issued in their Rialto Series "A Strange Infatuation," by Lewis Harrison, an illustrated story founded upon the theory of hypnotism in crime, narrating absolute occurrences.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS will publish early in June O. B. Frothingham's work on "Boston Unitarianism—a study in its life and work, 1820-1850." The volume presents a sketch of the type of Unitarianism which Mr. Frothingham's father represented, besides sketches of some of his associates, including John Pierpont, Francis Parkman, and Alexander Young.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. will publish on the 28th inst., William O'Brien's novel, "When We Were Boys." With the exception of a few chapters only this story was written by Mr. O'Brien while confined in Galway jail under the Coercion Act. It is a story of the Ireland of a recent period, dealing with the movement of 1867 and illustrating every phase of the social, as bearing upon the political, condition of the country.

GINN & Co. have in press a work on "Political Science and Comparative Constitutional Law," by Prof. J. W. Burgess, of Columbia College. It will be in two volumes, the first of which treats of the Nation and the State as concepts of political science. The formation of the Constitution, also, is regarded and treated as a political, not a legal process. Under the head of Constitutional Law, the author describes the organization of liberty and of government. The latter topic occupies the entire second volume. The typical constitutions selected for comparison are those of France, Germany, England, and the United States.

BANGS & Co. announce the Regular Spring Parcel Sale to take place on Tuesday, May 6, and following days. The consignments are of unusual interest, including contributions from J. W. Bouton, S. C. Griggs & Co., Jones Bros. Publishing Co., Macmillan & Co., Oldach & Co., Orange Judd Co., G. P. Putnam's Sons, and Worthington Co. among the American publishers; and from John Grant, Edinburgh, Reeves & Turner and Vizetelly & Co., London. A special offer from John Grant covers 14,000 volumes of remainders of valuable and desirable books, for which the terms and particulars are stated in the catalogue now ready for mailing.

THE CASSELL PUBLISHING COMPANY will publish at once Camille Flammarion's astronomical romance, "Urania." It is described as being such a story as one might imagine that Jules Verne and Richard A. Proctor could have written had one put his imagination and the other his science into the same pot and got R. L. Stevenson to stir them up. There is just enough science to hold the attention of the student and enough plot and love-story to interest the general reader. Mrs. Mary J. Serrano, translator of "Marie Bashkirtseff," has put M. Flammarion's delightful French into charming English. A portrait of the author will be given in the volume.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish this year the writings of James Russell Lowell in a new complete and handsome large-paper edition. They will make ten volumes, classified as follows: "Literary Essays," in four volumes; "Political Essays," in one volume; "Literary and Political Addresses," in one volume; "Poems," in four volumes. They will include all of Lowell's writings that he cares to preserve. For the "Biglow Papers" he has written full explanatory notes. Only 300 copies will be issued for America, the form being that of the large-paper edition of Longfellow. It is expected that the first volume will be ready shortly and that the ten will all have been issued early in the fall. They will also publish Dr. Holmes' "Over the Teacups" in book-form when the series is completed in the Atlantic.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; in the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederic; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

The hero is a peasant boy, who saves the life of the Czar, Peter the Great. His rise to greatness and wealth through the kindness of the Czar, and his rapid loss of honesty and honor as his years and fame increase, is the theme of the story. Scene, Russia in the 17th century.

Bancroft, Hubert Howe. History of the Pacific States of North America. V. 26: Washington, Idaho, and Montana, 1845-1889. San Francisco, Cal., The History Co., 1890. c. 26+836 p. maps, O. cl., $4.50; leath., $5.50; hf. cf., hf., rus., or hf. mor., $8; rus., mor., or tree cf., $10.

The history of these three important divisions follows directly the "History of Oregon" in this series, which in turn follows the "History of the Northwest Coast." First, the whole country, including British Columbia, was treated of under the last-named title. Then, after the fur companies retired, all the vast area between the 42d and 49th parallels was called the Oregon territory. Washington was then set off from Oregon, and Idaho and Montana were part of Washington, until finally Idaho was set off from Washington, and Montana from Idaho. So that this volume may properly be considered part of the three volumes that have preceded it. List of authorities consulted and full index.

A love-story, with the scene laid upon a desert isle in the tropics. The hero is an American and a young newspaper man, who finds himself, through a trick played upon him by a rival, stranded in London with but a few dollars in his pocket. Chance places in his way an opportunity to go out to one of the West India Islands in the employ of an English company. From here his love-story and perilous adventures begin.

Field, H. M., D.D. Bright skies and dark shadows. N. Y., C. Scribner's Sons, 1890. c. 316 p. map, O. cl., $1.50.

A visit of a few months made to Florida in search of health, was the occasion of the writing of this book. The journey down and the surroundings of St. Augustine furnish several chapters, but the bulk of the book is taken up with a discussion of the negro question. Mr. Field writes from what he saw, and writes dispassionately, presenting both sides with equal fairness. There are chapters also on the battle of Franklin, the Hermitage—the home and burial-place of Andrew Jackson, Stonewall Jackson and the valley campaign, and the last days of General Lee.

Flannery, Jerome, comp. The American cricket annual for 1890. N. Y., C. J. Sabiston, 1271 Ninth Ave., 1890. 3-116 p. S. pap., 50 c.

Hutchinson, Horace G. Golf: with contributions by Lord Wellwood, Sir Walter Simpson, Rt. Hon. A. J. Balfour, Andrew Lang, H. S. C. Everard, and others; il., by T. Hodge and Harry Furniss. Bost., Little, Brown & Co., 1890. 4-463 p. D. (The Badminton lib.) cl., $3.50; hf. mor., $5.

Contents: The history of golf, by Andrew Lang; General remarks on the game, by Lord Wellwood; Out of form—a chapter for adepts, by Sir Walter Simpson; Some celebrated golfers, by H. S. C. Everard; The humors of golf, by A. J. Balfour. The remaining chapters are by H. G. Hutchinson; they are On clubs and balls; Elementary instruction; On style—various styles; Hints to cricketers who are taking up golf; On nerve and training; Hints on match and medal play; Etiquette and behavior; On giving odds and handicapping; Some celebrated links, etc.

*Jephet Ibu Ali, the Karaite. Anecdota Oxoniensia; a commentary on the Book of Daniel; ed. and tr. by D. S. Margoliouth. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1890. 13+87 p. 4°, cl., $5.25.

Jerome, Jerome K. Stage-land; curious habits and customs of its inhabitants; il., by J. Bernard Partridge. N. Y., H. Holt & Co., 1890. 5-158 p. il. D. cl., $1.

The same quaint, fresh humor that characterized "Three men in a boat," is found here. The writer's subjects are the hero, the villain, the heroine, the comic man, the adventuress, the comic lovers, the peasants, and other characters of the modern drama. Their unreality and unintentional comicality are admirably and most amusingly described. The pictures are as clever as the text, and as humorous.

*Kansas. General statutes, 1889. Being a compilation of all the laws of a general nature, including the session laws of 1889, based upon the general statutes of 1868, and Dassler's compiled laws of 1885; thoroughly annot. to and incl. This volume completes the series of expository discourses following the line of International lessons for this year. The writer never designed it to be an exhaustive presentation of the Gospel of Luke. These chapters do not pretend to be a commentary or a biography; they are only a compilation of studies of specific passages, none of which were chosen by himself.

*St. Alphonsus de Liguori. Complete ascetical works: from the Italian; ed. by Rev. Eugene Grimm. Centenary ed. In 18 v. V. 16, Abridged sermons for all the Sundays of the year. N. Y., Benziger Bros., 1890. 16°, cl., net, $1.25.

"An historical novel of unusual merit and vividness of coloring. It purports to be founded on the annals and tales written by the monks of the Monastery of St. Gall, in the Swiss canton of that name, and notably by one Ekkehard, an unconscious poet, whose narratives are marked by invention and a charming freshness and simplicity of style. It was an age pregnant with great things to come, which witnessed the beginning of that revival of literature and the arts which culminated a few centuries later in the Renaissance."—New York Sun.

Swedenborg, Emanuel. Angelic wisdom concerning the divine love and the divine wisdom. N. Y., American Swedenborg Printing and Pub. Soc., 20 Cooper Union, 1890. 7+375 p. T. pap., 15 c.

This work, which was originally published in 1763, treats of the operation of the divine love and the divine wisdom in the creation of the universe, including man as the chief end of creation. It explains the trinal distinction that exists in all created things from the trinity in God, and shows how this trinity is manifested in men and angels, who are images of the Divine. It also explains the origin of evil uses, and the origin, design, and tendency of good uses.

The versatile author of "The Marquis of Pefialta" and "Maximina" in this charming story contrasts the widely different characters of northern and southern Spain. The hero, who narrates his experience with much humor, is a native of Galicia, and a poet. The heroine is a nun, who, owing to unpleasant family relations, has taken temporal vows. She is quite unsuited to the religious vocation—is jealous, passionate, and quick-witted, and also exceedingly pretty. The hero and heroine meet at a watering-place on the Guadalquivir. The love-making begins at once, but is interrupted by a rival. The story to the end is full of interest and possesses some delightful scenes from life in Seville, etc. Opens with an excellent paper on the modern novel and realism.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

APRIL 26, 1890.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE NEW SCHOOL-BOOK COMBINATION.

WE print elsewhere an account of the organization of the American Book Company—that is, the coalition of the school-book publishing firms of Ivison, Blakeman & Co., D. Appleton & Co., Van Antwerp, Bragg & Co., and A. S. Barnes & Co., which has long been contemplated—so far as its organization is completed. At the present writing nothing further can be stated than is given in our report. The main object of the new corporation is stated to be to do away with undue and costly competition. As every one in the book trade is aware, while improvement in production has advanced with giant strides, the expenses of doing business, through the competition and strife for trade, have been threatening to increase beyond all proportion. The remedy for this state of affairs has engaged the serious attention of the leading houses for years, until now the way out of the difficulty to four of these firms seems to be in the centralization of their property under one ownership and management.

By doing away with ruinous competition, by simplifying its machinery and enhancing its power to purchase its material in bulk at the lowest possible prices, it is claimed that the new concern can afford to put its books into the market at even lower prices, and be able to serve the public more efficiently in every direction than was possible under the old order. At any rate, there is no reason to believe that the American Book Company will forfeit in any way the confidence reposed in the several firms comprising it for nearly half a century.

As to the danger of this corporation monopolizing the school-book business, we have had occasion to point out again and again that such a thing as a monopoly in the book business would be impossible. The danger is not in this direction. Any house, or any new publisher, can make a new book, and it is certain that with progress in education new and better books will be made. The combination includes the four leading firms of the school-book trade, doing probably more than half the business; there are between one and two hundred other concerns in the trade, some of them of large individual importance. The enormous aggregation of capital and of business in the combination gives it an enormous advantage over competitors in the cost of doing business, and the other houses will be put on their mettle to hold their own. If the new concern seeks to "run them out" by the ways common to "trusts," it will be bad all around; if it stimulates the other concerns to a competition of quality in a fair field, it will do good. The policy of the new company as it develops will decide whether the combination is for or against the interest of the public, the schools, and the trade.

A GREAT lament has gone up here and there in the public press since the realization of the Lovell combination, and many a Sir Toby is standing about querulously asking, "Shall there be no more cakes and ale, now that these rapacious publishers have become virtuous?" and others ask whether they are to be "held down by the mob rule of unrestricted book trusts"! The combination does not yet "own the world," nor is it likely that it ever will. While it has undoubtedly control of the plates of many sets and lines of books, there are still in the field as competitors such doughty fighters as The American News Co., Porter & Coates, Rand, McNally & Co., J. S. Ogilvie, T. B. Peterson & Bros., G. W. Dillingham, Street & Smith, Robert Bonner's Sons, and Ivers & Co., who are all more or less engaged in the publication of "cheap" books. Besides these there is the bulk of the publishing business, which as yet has taken no hand in the movement, except in so far as it has affected the regulation of discounts, but which also must more or less come into competition with the Lovell Company. The state of affairs, so far as the public is concerned, will therefore remain as before, except that in consideration of a slight advance in some lines of books it will receive a better-made article. So far as the trade is concerned, we hope the regulation of discounts will work definite good. Beyond that, let the "best man win."

THE AMERICAN BOOK COMPANY.

THE one topic of conversation in the book trade at present is the formation of The American Book Company—a combination of the four school-book publishing firms of Ivison, Blakeman & Co., Van Antwerp, Bragg & Co., D. Appleton & Co., and A. S. Barnes & Co. The corporation expects to be on a working basis in about three weeks, and until then the trade must rest content with the few general facts given below concerning its organization, etc.

The American Book Company is a stock corporation formed under corporate law, and will own absolutely all of the school-book plants belonging to the different firms mentioned above, including stock on hand, book plates, copyright, and good-will. The probable exception to this joint ownership will perhaps be the stationery supplies of one or two of the houses, notably the pen-business of Ivison, Blakeman & Co. It is not fully decided, however, that the individual imprints of the houses will be given up. The precise amount of capital stock to be issued has not been definitely determined, but cannot fall far short of $5,000,000. The officers of the company are Birdseye Blakeman, President; Gen. A. C. Barnes, Vice-President; Harry T. Ambrose, Treasurer; and Gilman H. Tucker (who has been Secretary of the School-Book Publishers' Association for a number of years), Secretary. The Board of Directors includes Messrs. William H. Appleton, W. W. Appleton, and Col. Daniel Appleton, of D. Appleton & Co.; Gen. A. C. Barnes, Henry B. Barnes, and Charles J. Barnes, of A. S. Barnes & Co.; Birdseye Blakeman, David B. Ivison, and George R. Cathcart, of Ivison, Blakeman & Co.; and C. S. Bragg, A. H. Hinkle, and Henry H. Vail, of Van Antwerp, Bragg & Co.

The corporation has hired the new building at 806 and 808 Broadway, just above Grace Church, running through to the store under the offices of the Cassell Publishing Company on Fourth Avenue. Ivison Blakeman & Co. are already preparing to move into the new quarters, and later the other houses will no doubt concentrate their forces there also.

What the general policy of the business is to be in connection with the trade, whether there will be any changes in the method of prices and discounts, we have not as yet been able to learn. Some time must necessarily elapse before so huge a business can be fully organized in all its details, and until it is we presume the books heretofore published by the four houses comprising the new corporation will be handled on the old basis.

In reference to the various newspaper reports stigmatizing The American Book Company as a "trust" and a "monopoly," Mr. Cathcart, of Ivison, Blakeman & Co., reiterates what was said in the first public announcement of the movement, given in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, March 15. "As business men, fully aware of the odium which attaches to the name of 'trust' or 'monopoly' in the public estimation," he further said, "we could not afford to do anything that would justify the application of the term to our organization. To do so would be suicidal, and, of course, we are not proposing to do anything suicidal."

To a reporter of the Evening Post Mr. Cathcart said: "The proposed combination will be the result of difficulties and perplexities which have been felt in this department of the business for the last five or six years, and which the publishers have vainly endeavored to remove. School-books have come to be sold exclusively through agents who travel over the country from one school district to another. The great expense of these middlemen and the exceedingly low cost and small profit of school-books threaten to make the business unprofitable. There is no other kind of books of the same mechanical quality so cheaply sold as school-books. And the quality is of a very high order, and is constantly improving. The best paper and the strongest binding are provided; in many cases the type is expressly made according to the directions of eminent oculists, the illustrations are obtained from the leading artists and put on the block by the best-known wood-engravers, and the printing is done in the most careful manner and by the most improved methods. Modern school-books are therefore really artistic—luxurious, as compared with those of former days—and of course it costs a great deal of money to get them out; yet they are sold at positively low prices.

"The natural remedy for the growing unprofitableness of the business appeared to be a union of firms, whereby management might be concentrated in one centre and the expenses attending several managements be saved. It is evident that a material lessening of expenses can be effected in this way. A much smaller number of people will be required at one headquarters than at several; and the army of agents can at least be cut down to a single corps.

"Among the results which we expect would follow from the execution of our enterprise is the still further lowering of the price of school-books. We think that, on this new plan, the profits from the business would be sufficient to enable us to effect this reduction."

In reply to the question whether it is true that the new corporation has obtained options on the Indiana School-Book Company's books and on those of other houses, also whether they are backed or expect aid from English capital, Mr. Cathcart said that they do not hold a single option, and that the statement relating to foreign capital is absolutely without foundation.

As to the prediction that this combination would result in the States providing the books used in their public schools, Mr. Cathcart thinks that "the States would listen to better counsel, or if they attempted to supply themselves, that they would speedily repent it. The State of California has been trying it since 1883, with disastrous results. Up to February, 1887, the Legislature had appropriated $367,500, and the State is still unprovided with geographies, which are the most expensive to manufacture of all school-books—the cost of a modern geography plant to a publisher being not less than $100,000. The State also still lacks supplementary books, such as dictionaries, etc. The report of the Public Printer for 1886 showed that he had expended $57,917.39 to put the printing-office in shape to commence the work of printing school-books. The entire State does not use as many school-books as the city of Brooklyn, but its expenditure of now nearly half a million dollars would supply Brooklyn with books for ten years. The city of Philadelphia, with a population greater than that of the State of California, appropriates only about $90,000 per annum for supplies of all kinds for the public schools, which includes stationery, blank-books, etc., the largest items."

In commenting on the misrepresentations, con-jectures, and prophecies made in relation to the corporation Mr. Cathcart said: "There is no subject upon which there has been so much exaggeration as this. I am sure that it will be considerably over the mark to put the total sum paid for the supply of text-books to the public schools of the United States for last year at $7,000,000, which for 60,000,000 of people would be a little more than eleven cents each, and yet we publishers are pounced upon by a certain lot of ignorant demagogues who charge us with being the greatest robbers of our time."

A PROPHESED INVASION OF BOOKS.

WE extract the following from an interesting article on "Books and the Housing of Them," by the Hon. W. E. Gladstone, in The Nineteenth Century for March:

"In the old age of his intellect (which at this point seemed to taste a little of decrepitude), Strauss declared* that the doctrine of immortality has recently lost the assistance of a passable argument, inasmuch as it has been discovered that the stars are inhabited; for where, he asks, could room now be found for such a multitude of souls? Again, in view of the current estimates of prospective population for this earth, some people have begun to entertain alarm for the probable condition of England (if not Great Britain) when she gets (say) the seventy millions that are allotted to her against six or eight hundred millions for the United States. We have heard in some systems of the pressure of population upon food; but the idea of any pressure from any quarter upon space is hardly yet familiar. Still, I suppose that many a reader must have been struck with the naive simplicity of the hyperbole of St. John,† perhaps a solitary unit of its kind in the New Testament: 'the which if they should be written every one, I suppose that even the world itself could not contain the books that should be written.'

"A book, even Audubon (I believe the biggest known), is smaller than a man; but, in relation to space, I entertain more proximate apprehension of pressure upon available space from the book population than from the numbers of mankind. We ought to recollect, with more of a realized conception than we commonly attain to, that a book, ay, that every book, consists, like man from whom it draws its lineage, of a body and a soul. They are not always proportionate to each other. Nay, even the different members of the book-body do not sing, but clash, when bindings of a profuse costliness are imposed, as too often happens in the case of Bibles and books of devotion, upon letterpress which is respectable journeyman's work and nothing more. The men of the Renaissance had a truer sense of adaptation; the age of jewelled bindings was also the age of illumination and of the beautiful miniatura, which at an earlier stage meant side- or margin-art,‡ and then, on account of the small portraiture included in it, gradually slid into the modern sense of miniature. There is a caution which we ought to carry with us more and more as we get in view of the coming period of open book trade, and of demand practically boundless. Noble works ought not to be printed in mean and worthless forms, and cheapness ought to be limited by an instinctive sense and law of fitness. The binding of a book is the dress with which it walks out into the world. The paper, type, and ink are the body, in which its soul is domiciled. And these three, soul, body, and habiliment, are a triad which ought to be adjusted to one another by the laws of harmony and good sense.

"Already the increase of books is passing into geometrical progression. And this is not a little remarkable when we bear in mind that in Great Britain, of which I speak, while there is a vast supply of cheap works, what are termed 'new publications' issue from the press, for the most part, at prices fabulously high, so that the class of real purchasers has been extirpated, leaving behind as buyers only a few individuals who might almost be counted on the fingers, while the effective circulation depends upon middle-men through the engine of circulating libraries. These are not so much owners as distributors of books, and they mitigate the difficulty of dearness by subdividing the cost, and then selling such copies as are still in decent condition at a large reduction. It is this state of things, due, in my opinion, principally to the present form of the law of copyright, which perhaps may have helped to make way for the satirical (and sometimes untrue) remark that in times of distress or pressure men make their first economies on their charities, and their second on their books.

"The annual arrivals at the Bodleian Library are, I believe, some twenty thousand; at the British Museum, forty thousand, sheets of all kinds included. Supposing three-fourths of these to be volumes, of one size or another, and to require on the average an inch of shelf space, the result will be, that in every two years nearly a mile of new shelving will be required to meet the wants of a single library. But, whatever may be the present rate of growth, it is small in comparison with what it is likely to become. The key of the question lies in the hands of the United Kingdom and the United States jointly. In this matter there rests upon these two Powers no small responsibility. They, with their vast range of inhabited territory, and their unity of tongue, are masters of the world, which will have to do as they do. When the Britains and America are fused into one book-market; when it is recognized that letters, which as to their material and their aim are a high-soaring profession, as to their mere remuneration are a trade; when artificial fetters are relaxed, and printers, publishers, and authors obtain the reward which well-regulated commerce would afford them, then let floors beware lest they crack, and walls lest they bulge and burst, from the weight of books they will have to carry and to confine.

THE BOOKSELLERS' AND STATIONERS' PROVIDENT ASSOCIATION.

THE regular meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association of the United States was held on Wednesday evening, April 16, 1890. The following were unanimously elected to membership: A Dwight Stratton, Samuel Valentine, and George E. Bemir, of New York City; James H. Hammill, of Onondaga, Mich.; and Charles W. Cook, Holyoke, Mass.

The resolutions, printed in our last issue, were then passed, commending the faithful work of the retiring Secretary, Mr. Andrew Geyer, who recently resigned after six years of service. Mr. Geyer carries with him the good wishes and thanks of every member of the Association for the untiring and efficient work done in behalf of the Association. Through his efforts very largely the Association has nearly doubled its membership, while the details of his office were attended to with despatch, discretion, and consideration seldom met with in other societies of a similar kind.

‡ First of all it seems to have referred to the red capital letters placed at the head of chapters or other divisions of works.

Mr. Wilbur B. Ketcham, 13 Cooper Union, N. Y., succeeds Mr. Geyer as Secretary. It is to be hoped that the members will remember that the Secretary's services are rendered gratuitously, and that, in view of the considerable work attached to the office, they ought to do all they can to make his work as light as possible. This they can do by remitting promptly, by advising him of removals, and by attending to all notices without waiting for reminders. The Association is now in a most prosperous condition, and can be kept so if every man in it will do his share of work.

A proposed amendment to the constitution which will be voted on at the annual meeting in June was also submitted. The amendment gives more definitely the time and manner of the payment of assessments.

COPYRIGHT MATTERS.

THE PRESENT STATUS OF THE COPYRIGHT BILL.

THE friends of the Copyright bill ought to be assured that the calling up of the measure Monday, April 21, was an error, and that the bill has suffered no prejudice in consequence of Mr. Symond's action. It was suspension day, but the order had not been plainly announced, and the bill was called up under the impression that the House was doing business under the morning hour order. When the Patents Committee can bring the bill up in morning hours it will be called, and, after discussion, which may be finished in a day or in two days, the bill will come to a vote. It is probable that it will be helped through by the votes of the advocates of cheap rates of postage for serial publications, who have waked up to the fact that the two measures are in some way inclined to pass or fail together.

PHYSICIANS IN FAVOR OF INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT.

THE feeling of the medical profession regarding international copyright is illustrated in the following letter from Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, of Philadelphia, to Mr. Johnson:

"Perhaps few persons, certainly none in the medical profession of this country, could show a record which would better prove the need on our part of a copyright than I. I once pointed out to a member of Congress, in my library, a copy of one of my books translated into French, two translations of the same in German, one in Russian, and another work of mine translated into French. For none of these had I ever received a cent. It is true that two of these translations were authorized by me when my consent was asked, but, of course, it would not have been given without some financial return to me if the law had been otherwise than it is, since any one could at will take the book and translate it without the slightest reference to the wishes of the author. A great many American medical books have been translated into the European languages with or without the assent of the authors, but I have never heard that for any of these did our authors ever receive a penny. My own case is, I fancy, the strongest, and I have no objection to your printing this statement, if it will further the purposes of the League."

GEORGE TICKNOR CURTIS ON INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT.

THE following letter has been received by Mr. R. U. Johnson, Secretary of the American Copyright League, from George Ticknor Curtis, advocating the pending International Copyright bill:

"It seems to me, as an American author and a citizen of the United States, in common with many other American authors and citizens, that our wishes ought to receive careful attention at the hands of Congress. It is no longer possible to deny the justice and expediency of an international copyright law such as is proposed in the pending bill. While it will benefit foreign and especially English authors, to American authors it is certain to operate as a measure that will secure to them fruits of their labors which they are entitled to enjoy. I have myself failed to receive revenue from publications that ought to have yielded me revenue in England as well as in this country, publications of which English publishers have availed themselves without making me the slightest remuneration. This wrong can be corrected by Congress for American authors in regard to future publications, without the slightest disadvantage to readers, publishers, bookmakers, or printers, by passing the pending bill.

"I may not have personal influence with those who are to decide this great measure of right and justice, but I feel that I have reason to do everything I can in its favor."

GEORGE W. CHILDS' RECOLLECTIONS.

A BOOK which will interest the book trade fully as much as their patrons is the handsome little volume of "Recollections" by George W. Childs, just issued by the J. B. Lippincott Co. It is made up of the series of papers published last summer in Lippincott's Magazine, to which has been added an appendix in which are described several of Mr. Childs' public gifts—the memorial fountain at Stratford-on-Avon; the memorial windows to Herbert, Cowper, and Milton; the Andrews and Kennerdoses, etc. A preface to the volume is furnished by Mr. Melville Phillips, and an introductory note to the appended matter by Mr. L. Clarke Davis. Doubtless the parts of greatest interest to the publishing fraternity are those of his own reminiscences which describe Mr. Childs' success in life, beginning with his employment in a bookstore in Philadelphia, his attending the book-auctions in the evenings, his visit to the book trade sales in New York City, finally his going into business for himself at the age of eighteen, and at twenty-one beginning to publish books, in the firm of R. E. Peterson & Co., afterwards Childs & Peterson. Their first great book was Dr. Kane's "Arctic Explorations," and they paid the Doctor a copyright of nearly $70,000 within a year. In 1863 Mr. Childs retired from book publishing, and in December, 1864, he purchased the Ledger. It was then losing (because sold for a cent, in that day of high-priced paper) $3000 a week—say $150,000 a year; and "I bought it," says Mr. Childs, "for a sum slightly in excess of the amount of its annual loss." It was, beyond doubt, the best purchase of newspaper property ever made in Philadelphia—perhaps in any city—and it stamped the purchaser's business judgment as wonderfully clear and sound. We understand that the advance orders for the book are such as to warrant an early printing of a second edition.

LARGER LABELS WANTED ON FOREIGN MAIL.

THE Postmaster-General has requested Postmaster Van Cott to call the attention of New York publishers to a recent complaint made by the German postal authorities. This complaint states that the labels placed on papers mailed in the United States are small and undecipherable, and that they are undeliverable in many cases. The German office suggests that the labels be made of larger size.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

LOUISE CHANDLER MOULTON, Sarah C. Woolsey (Susan Coolidge), and Katharine Prescott Wormeley will spend the summer in Europe.

DR L. BÜCHNER, the author of "Kraft und Stoff," will shortly issue a new work, entitled "Fremdes und Eigenes aus dem Leben der Gegenwart." The book will treat of Spinoza, Diderot, Schopenhauer, etc., and of several great problems of our time, including the utopian "Völkerfrieden." In an appendix the author will describe a visit to Darwin.

A MRS. MARY J. HOLMES, of Ansonia, Ct., has written a novel, and a New York publisher contemplates putting it upon the market, but hesitates to put the author's name on the cover because it is the same as that of a well-known authoress. Mrs. Holmes is now holding consultation with different lawyers to discover whether she has or has not the right to use her name on the cover of her novel.

KOSSUTH has nearly ready for publication three additional volumes of his memoirs. They are said to contain, among other things, his remarks upon the policy of Napoleon III. toward the Vienna Court, and upon the endeavors of the Pope to retain his secular power, in addition to an interesting interview between Prince Bismarck and the French Ambassador, Comte de Saint Vallier. At the close of his preface Kossuth states that the Hungarian Deputy, M. Ignaz Helfy, has revised the work, as he himself was painfully conscious of the fact that during his forty-one years of exile he had not kept up with the advance of the Hungarian tongue.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Republican Magazine is the title of a new monthly magazine devoted to the interests of the "defenders of the Union." All the organizations of veterans of the war, and sons of veterans, including the Grand Army of the Potomac, the Military Order of the Loyal Legion, the Woman's Relief Corps, and other associations, carrying upon their rosters 1,170,000 members, have representation in its pages.

The Better Day is the title of a new periodical, the organ of the "Better Day Reading Circles." It is a journal of temperance education, to extend among all reading and thinking people the work begun by the course of scientific temperance instruction in the public schools; not in the interest of any religious sect, nor of any political party, but to guide all readers in the careful and candid study of the history, science, and literature of the temperance reform. It will be published every two weeks by Funk & Wagnalls.

PERSONAL NOTES.

MR. DAVID GORDON, manager for Walter Scott, publisher, of London, has just reached New York, where he will be for a week or two. Communications addressed to the care of Messrs. Scribner & Welford will find him.

MR. ARTHUR H. SCRIBNER has returned from Cairo, where he went to see Stanley and make arrangements for his new book, "In Darkest Africa, and the Quest, Rescue, and Retreat of Emin, Governor of Equatoria." Nearly all the manuscript has been received here.

MR. JOSEPH ABNER HARPER, one of the oldest members of the firm of Harper & Bros., and who has for years attended to the general business of the firm, has retired from active business life. He is succeeded by his son, Mr. John Harper, who has been connected with the house nearly eighteen years, and who is familiar with its business interests in every detail. The firm, which has entered upon its seventy-fifth year, now consists of Messrs. Philip J. A. Harper, Fletcher Harper, Joseph W. Harper, John W. Harper, J. Henry Harper, and John Harper.

BUSINESS NOTES.

ALBANY, N. Y.—Adolph Picard has bought the book and stationery business of E. T. F. Maher.

BRYAN, TEX.—McCormick & Haswell, booksellers, have dissolved partnership.

FORD, IA.—We learn with regret that J. R. Taylor, bookseller, is dead.

GRAND FORKS, N. D.—Iddings & Graham, booksellers and stationers, have dissolved partnership.

GRAYVILLE, ILL.—J. A. Shelton has succeeded to the book and stationery business of T. J. Matthews.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—We are pleased to hear that the Bowen-Merrill Company has recovered sufficiently from the effects of their disastrous fire to resume business. E. Hardy, of Roberts Brothers, and O. Brewer, of Scribner & Welford, were the first to sell them goods since the fire.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—Frank Dolfinger, executor of the estate of Henry Knoefel, bookseller, advertises the business for sale.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Gill Engraving Co. has removed to 39 and 41 Park Place, formerly the Graphic Building. The O. Judd Co. will remove to 52 Lafayette Place on May 1. The Critic, at the same time, will also move into the same building.

PORTLAND, ORE.—J. L. Thompson, formerly "buyer" for S. A. Maxwell, has formed a co-partnership with Mr. Stewart, of the late firm of Skeen & Stewart, of Chicago, and they have opened a general book and stationery business in this city.

RIVERSIDE, CAL.—Drake & Cundiff, booksellers, Cal., have dissolved partnership.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.—Parsons & Derge, booksellers and stationers, have dissolved partnership.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—The Bancroft Company has had an injunction put upon it by the Bancroft-

Whitney Company to restrain it from publishing law-books. To this there is quite a history attached. H. H. Bancroft is the holder of one-quarter of the shares in the Bancroft-Whitney Company, but he has been entirely closed out from sharing the profits of that corporation through a combination on the part of the other holders of the stock. They, having the majority, elected themselves officers at high and fancy salaries, the payment of which has used up all the profits. The Bancroft Company, of which H. H. Bancroft is President, has therefore resolved to publish law-books of its own accord, and its right to do so will be contested in court at an early date. Mr. Dorland, the Treasurer, states that by the original contract only the plates and good-will of the law publications were turned over to the Bancroft-Whitney Company, and as the Bancroft Company has lost by this time complete track of all the old customers and accounts, and proposes to start an entirely new set of publications, its position is unassailable.—California Correspondent of the American Stationer. 3

SHERMAN, TEX.—Donaldson & Hopson, booksellers and stationers, have dissolved partnership.

TACOMA, WASH.—Charles Herald, bookseller, has gone out of business.

WILLIMANTIC, CONN.—Chas. R. Utley, dealer in books, stationery, and wall-papers, has moved from the store so long occupied by him at 115 Main Street to the new and much more commodious building at 112 Main Street, where he has nearly twice as much room as at the old stand.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

A BOOK by the late Ella Haggard, the mother of the novelist, will soon appear in London under the title of "Life and its Author, an Essay in Verse." Mr. Rider Haggard will contribute to the volume a memoir of his mother.

FUNK & WAGNALLS announce elsewhere that they propose to print the volumes issued in their Standard Library in lots of 100,000, which they will supply to the trade on advance orders at a low price. They also announce that "additions will be made rapidly to this list of the standard books of the world."

LEA BROTHERS & Co., Philadelphia, have in press a volume of essays by Mr. Henry C. Lea, entitled "Chapters from the Religious History of Spain." They are upon subjects connected with the Spanish Inquisition, and merit a more elaborate treatment than could be accorded them in the continuous narrative of the Inquisition which Mr. Lea has in preparation.

AT the last meeting of the trustees of the Stationers' Board of Trade the following named houses were elected to membership: Holyoke Card and Paper Company, Springfield, Mass.; A. G. Spalding & Brothers, Butler & Keely, and Cole & Williams, New York. The committee on rooms reported in favor of remaining in the present quarters, and it was so decided.

THE London Bookseller has published an interesting supplement containing an account of the Booksellers' Trade Dinner, held under the auspices of the Booksellers' Provident Institution, March 8 of this year. Besides a report of the exercises are given the portraits of eighty-five of the leading publishers, booksellers, and authors present. The frontispiece is a portrait of Mr. John Murray, President of the Booksellers' Provident Institution.

THE ORNDALE PRESS, No. 7 Beekman St., N. Y., has been incorporated under the laws of New York State as a publishing house, and is now purchasing copyrights preparatory to the publication of a series of first-class American novels, issuing in this series one story a week. Stories are accepted upon their merits regardless of the literary prominence of the authors. The copyrights are bought outright, and paid for upon acceptance of manuscript. George L. Kilmer is the Secretary of the company.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will publish a series of small volumes of selections from the leading philosophers from Descartes down, prepared under the direction of Dr. E. H. Sneath, lecturer on the History of Philosophy at Yale. The volumes will be so arranged as to present an outline of their systems, each volume containing a biographical sketch of the author, a statement of the historical position of the system, and a bibliography. Those so far arranged for are Descartes, by Prof. Ladd, of Yale; Spinoza, by Prof. Fullerton, of the University of Pennsylvania; Locke, by Prof. Russell, of Williams; Berkeley, by ex-President Porter, of Yale; Hume, by Dr. Sneath, of Yale; and Hegel, by Prof. Royce, of Harvard. Kant, Comte, and Spencer will certainly be added to the series, and others, if encouragement is received.

"WHY the Solid South? or, Reconstruction and its results," is the title of a book now in preparation. It is written by fourteen representative public men of the South, most of them members of Congress, and each speaking for the State with whose history he is most familiar and of whose history he is a part. In order to avoid even the appearance of a campaign document, the various writers have, it is said, been urged by Representative Herbert, of Alabama, who is the general editor, to "take special pains to verify every important piece of testimony, and to bear in mind the power of understatement." Virginia is represented in this book by Mr. Robert Stiles, West Virginia by Mr. O. S. Long and Representative Wilson, North Carolina by Senator Vance, South Carolina by Representative Hemphill, Georgia by Representative Turner, Florida by Senator Pasco, Alabama by Representative Herbert, Mississippi by ex-Representative Barksdale, Louisiana by Mr. B. J. Sage, author of "The Republic of Republics," Tennessee by Mr. Ira P. Jones, Arkansas by Mr. W. M. Fishback, Texas by Representative Stewart, and Missouri by Senator Vest.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. publish to-day in a little volume entitled "Robert Browning Personalia," a reprint of the notable article on Mr. Browning, by Mr. Edmund Gosse, which appeared in the Century magazine a few years ago, with a paper contributed by Mr. Gosse to the New Review after Browning's death. Mr. Gosse has also written for the volume a preface and an epilogue, and has added a poem by Mr. Browning not yet printed in his works. The book contains interesting information respecting Browning's earlier career. They have also just ready "Liberal Living upon Narrow Means," by Christine Terhune Herrick, largely made up of recipes clearly expressed and tested by careful trial, and many suggestions and hints which will be found of great practical value to young housekeepers and to those who wish to make the most of moderate resources. "The Church's Certain Faith," being the Baldwin Lectures read at the University of Michigan, by Dr. George Zabriskie Gray, who sets forth clearly and forcibly those views concerning Christ and the Bible which are held by the best thinkers in Evangelical churches; also, a new edition of "Matthew Calbraith Perry, a typical American naval officer," by Dr. William Elliot Griffis.

DODD, MEAD & Co. will soon issue an inexpensive series to be called the Makers of America, which will include the lives of discoverers, colonizers, statesmen, men of war, men of letters, theologians, and inventors—men who, in their respective walks of life, "have been of sufficient force to stamp their impress on their times and to help shape the affairs of the continent." The biographies, prepared under the advisory editorship of Hamilton W. Mabie, of the Christian Union, are to average about 200 twelvemo pages; and while exact as to facts, each volume will be made thoroughly readable. Publication will be begun in the autumn, and the biographies will follow one another in rapid succession. The co-operation of distinguished writers and historical scholars has been enlisted, and the following are the subjects of volumes that have been arranged for thus far: "Christopher Columbus," by President Charles Kendall Adams, of Cornell; "John Winthrop," by the Rev. Joseph H. Twichell; "Robert Morris," by Prof. William G. Sumner, of Yale; "James Edward Oglethorpe," by Henry J. Bruce; "John Hughes, D.D.," by Henry A. Brann, D.D.; "Robert Fulton," by Prof. R. H. Thurston, of Cornell; "Francis Higginson," by Thos. Wentworth Higginson; "Peter Stuyvesant," by Bayard Tuckerman; "Thomas Hooker," by George L. Walker, D.D.; "Charles Sumner," by Anna L. Dawes; "Thomas Jefferson," by James Schouler; "William White," by the Rev. Julius H. Ward, with an introduction by Bishop Potter; "Jean Baptiste Lemoine, Sieur de Bienville," by Grace King; "Alexander Hamilton," by Prof. Wm. G. Sumner; "Father Juniper Serra," by John Gilmary Shea, LL.D.; "Cotton Mather," by Prof. Barrett Wendell, of Harvard; "Robert Cavelier, Sieur de La Salle," by Edward G. Mason, President of the Historical Society of Chicago; "Thomas Nelson," by Thomas Nelson Page; and "George and Cecilius Calvert, Barons Baltimore of Baltimore."

NEW BOOKS.

THE NATURE AND METHOD OF REVELATION.

By Prof. GEORGE P. FISHER, D.D. 12mo, $1.25.

Prof. Fisher sets forth the relation of the Scriptures to the historical process of Divine Revelation, explaining the groundwork of historical reality which forms the basis of the Scriptures, and dealing also with important topics in New Testament criticism. A few of the subjects are, "The Gradualness of Revelation," "Revelation and Faith," "The Authorship and Date of the Gospels," "The Theological Ideas of Matthew Arnold," and "Huxley's Comments on the Gospels."

The Philosophy of Preaching

By A. J. F. BEHREND, D.D. 12mo, $1.00.

Dr. Behrends' book consists of eight lectures delivered at Yale University last February. The volume aims to expound the spirit, rather than the mechanism, of all effective pulpit discourse, and to set forth the qualities, personal, ethical, Biblical, spiritual, and practical, which give preaching its power and influence.

The Broughton House.

By BLISS PERRY. 12mo, $1.25.

In this story Mr. Perry has presented an artistic and extraordinarily vivid picture of a New England town in summer, with close, shrewd, sympathetic, and wonderfully observant studies of its typical personages—the quartette of persons at the hotel, "The Broughton House," with whom the story is chiefly occupied, and the villagers.

LITTLE SAINT ELIZABETH,

AND OTHER STORIES. By FRANCES HODGSON BURNETT. With 12 new full-page drawings by Reginald B. Birch. Handsomely bound, uniform in size with "Little Lord Fauntleroy." Square 8vo, $1.50.

"Delightful juvenile fiction, as full of charm for the older people as for the youngest. Mrs. Burnett is always peculiarly felicitous in her portrayal of child character, and in this volume her gifts in that direction are developed in their affluence."—Boston Saturday Evening Gazette.

"Beautiful stories in Mrs. Burnett's best vein, and all of them beautifully illustrated."—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

The Lawton Girl.

By HAROLD FREDERIC. 12mo, cloth, $1.25; paper, 50 cents.

"A highly realistic and instructive study of life in a modern American manufacturing town. It is a discerning and impressive book that will enhance Mr. Frederic's fame as a writer of sound and serviceable fiction."—Boston Beacon.

The Wife of the First Consul.

Translated from the French of IMBERT DE SAINT-AMAND. By THOMAS SERGEANT PERRY. With portrait. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

"A charming and valuable book. It gives a gossiping and entertaining picture of life at the French capital in what the author regards as Napoleon's best days. It is a social sketch and deals with the hidden springs of action."—Brooklyn Times.

Expiation.

By OCTAVE THANET. Illustrated by A. B. Frost. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

"A masterly sketch of life in Arkansas during the war of the rebellion, when the rural population were plundered in turn by Confederate or Union troops, and by bands of marauders. The interest never flags. It is one of the strongest stories of the season."—N. Y. Sun.

Bright Skies and Dark Shadows.

By Rev. HENRY M. FIELD, D.D. 8vo, $1.50.

"Whatever he puts his hand to Dr. Field is sure to render interesting, and this volume of observation, descriptions, and reflections, based upon a trip to and through the South to Florida, is characterized by his best literary qualities.

Charles Scribner's Sons, 743-745 Broadway, New York.

TO THE BOOK TRADE.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT OF CHEAP BOOKS.

We have nearly 150 books in our Standard Library Series. These are books of solid merit, and yet of a popular character. Among their authors are such men as Spurgeon, Farrar, Geo. T. Lathrop, Julian Hawthorne, Joaquin Miller, John Habberton, Bulwer, Proctor, Edwin Arnold, Tennyson (Idyls of the King), Oliver Goldsmith, Haweis, Paxton Hood, Jean Paul Richter, Froude, Edward Everett Hale, Max Muller, Ernest Daudet, Disraeli, Lamartine, Ruskin, Turgenieff, Hughes, Carlyle, and Kingsley.

We propose to print these books in lots of 100,000 each, and supply them to the trade on ADVANCE ORDERS at exceedingly low prices. All these books will be bound also in cloth, and sold to the trade in large lots at exceedingly low prices. Send for lists of books and for terms. Additions will be made rapidly to this list of the standard books of the world.

HEROES OF THE NATIONS.

NOW READY. VOLUME I.

NELSON, AND THE NAVAL SUPREMACY OF ENGLAND. By W. CLARK RUSSELL, author of "The Wreck of the Grosvenor," etc. With the collaboration of Wm. H. Jaques, late U. S. N. A series of biographical studies of the lives and work of certain representative historical characters, about whom have gathered the great traditions of the nations to which they belonged, and who have been accepted as types of the several national ideals. The narratives are the work of writers who are recognized authorities on their several subjects, and, while thoroughly trustworthy as history, will present picturesque and dramatic "stories" of the men, and of the events connected with them. The series is under the editorial supervision of EVELYN ABBOTT, M.A., of Balliol College, Oxford, and the volumes will be issued by Messrs. Putnam simultaneously in New York and London. The volumes will be beautifully printed in large twelvemo, and will be fully illustrated, selling, in different styles, for $1.50, $1.75, and $3.50 per volume. A full prospectus sent upon application.

THE "NELSON" WILL SHORTLY BE FOLLOWED BY:

PERICLES, AND THE GOLDEN AGE OF ATHENS. By EVELYN ABBOTT, M.A., Fellow of Balliol College, Oxford.

GUSTAVUS ADOLPHUS, AND THE STRUGGLE OF PROTESTANTISM FOR EXISTENCE. By C. R. L. FLETCHER, late Fellow All Souls College, Oxford.

STORY OF THE NATIONS.

XXVIII.—THE STORY OF RUSSIA. By W. R. MORFILL, of Oriel College, Oxford. Very fully illustrated. 12mo, $1.50.

This volume is particularly pertinent at the present time, when the attention of the civilized world is directed to the mighty Empire of the East and its Eastern Questions. The narrative covers the history of the development of the country from the little Grand Duchy of Muscovy, in the fifteenth century, to the present empire with its hundred million inhabitants.

XXVII.—THE STORY OF THE BARBARY CORSAIRS. By STANLEY LANE-POOL, author of "The Story of Turkey," "The Moors in Spain," etc. With the collaboration of Lieut. J. D. Jerrold Kelley, U. S. Navy. 12mo, illustrated, $1.50.

"It is scholarly, accurate, finished in style, abounding in graphic description, and is, in short, a thrillingly interesting history."—Boston Traveller.

XXVI.—THE STORY OF EARLY BRITAIN. By ALFRED J. CHURCH, author of "The Story of Carthage," etc. $1.50.

"A better volume than 'Early Britain' will scarcely be found, and when we say that about it, we mean to praise it very much indeed, for the series is a most admirable one. Prof. Church has succeeded not only in gathering an enormous amount of information into little compass, but he has also succeeded in making it read like a story-book."—Civil Service Gazette.

KNICKERBOCKER NUGGETS.

XXVIII.—THE SAYINGS OF POOR RICHARD. Being the Prefaces, Proverbs, and Poems of Benjamin Franklin, originally printed in Poor Richard's Almanacs for 1733-1758. Collected and edited by PAUL LEICESTER FORD. $1.00. [Ready May 15.]

XXVII.—THE BOYHOOD AND YOUTH OF GOETHE. Comprising the first eleven books of his Autobiography, "Truth and Poetry from My Own Life." 2 vols., $2.00. "It is well that a book so indispensable to every lover of literature should be made accessible in so delightful a form."—The Beacon, Boston.

XXVI.—THE GARDEN, as considered in literature by certain polite writers. With a critical essay by Walter Howe. With portrait of William Kent. $1.00.

"A book that will especially delight all who are fond of gardens and gardening, and who take a certain pleasure in enjoying nature when treated by man as a work of art."—Boston Home Journal.

THE POETRY OF THE ANTI-JACOBIN. Comprising the celebrated Political and Satirical Poems, Parodies, and Jeux d'Esprit of Canning, Frere, Wellesley, Ellis, Gifford, Pitt, and others. With explanatory notes, biographical and historical notices, complete list of the authors, and an index. Edited by CHARLES EDMONDS. Illustrated from the original plates by Gillray. To the poetry has been added a number of the prose selections, including the papers on American Affairs, the personal and abusive indexes, etc. Limited edition. Crown 8vo, $2.50.

MODERN HORSEMANSHIP. A New Method of Teaching Riding and Training, by Means of Pictures from Life. By EDWARD L. ANDERSON. Fourth edition, revised and enlarged, with 40 photographic plates. $5.50.

"The rules and directions are so plainly stated and are so admirably illustrated by photographs from life that an intelligent reader will have no difficulty in putting them into practice."—N. Y. Tribune.

ENGLISH WAYFARING LIFE IN THE MIDDLE AGES (Fourteenth Century). By J. J. JUSSELAND. Translated from the French by Lucy Toulmin Smith. New and cheaper edition. 8vo, pp. 451, fully illustrated, $3.50.

"We can heartily recommend this book as one of the pleasantest and most carefully executed pictures of a side of English mediæval life that we have met with for a long time."—Saturday Review.

THE INDUSTRIAL PROGRESS OF THE NATION; Consumption Limited, Production Unlimited. By EDWARD ATKINSON, author of "The Distribution of Products," etc. 8vo, cloth, $2.50.

"The problems presented are treated with skill and force, and will interest even those who do not agree with the conclusions reached by the author."—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

AMERICAN FARMS, Their Condition and Future. By J. R. ELLIOTT. (No. LXII. in the Questions of the Day Series.) 8vo, cloth, $1.25.

MRS. KENDAL'S DRAMATIC OPINIONS.

16mo, paper, 50 cents; cloth gilt, with portrait of Mrs. Kendal, $1.00.

"The extraordinary professional and personal success which the author has met with in this country will undoubtedly create an extensive demand for her views upon theatrical subjects; and every one who examines her book will discover in her writing the same sound sense, genuine feeling, and unaffected expression which have been witnessed in her performances upon the stage."—N. Y. Sun.

WITH FIRE AND SWORD.

An Historical Novel of Poland and Russia. By HENRYK SIENKIEWICZ. Translated from the original Polish work by JEREMIAH CURTIN. 12mo, cloth, 780 pp., $2.00.

"The first of Polish novelists, past or present, and second to none now living in England, France, or Germany. He has Dumas' facility for conceiving and carrying out a complicated historical romance; he has much of Bret Harte's dry humor and laconic pathos, and a good deal of Turgénieff's melancholy suggestiveness, with some of his delicacy of touch."—Blackwood's Magazine.

THE INFLUENCE OF SEA POWER UPON HISTORY.

By Capt. A. T. MAHAN, U. S. Navy. With 25 charts illustrative of great naval battles. 8vo, cloth, $4.00.

The period embraced is from 1660, "when the sailing ship era, with its distinctive features, had fairly begun," to the end of the American Revolution. The use of technical language has been avoided in order to bring the work within the comprehension of the unprofessional reader.

FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS, AND OTHER STORIES OF NEW ENGLAND LIFE.

As You Like It.

Volume 8. of the Variorum Edition of Shakespeare. Edited by HORACE HOWARD FURNESS, Ph.D., LL.D., L.H.D. Royal 8vo, extra cloth, gilt top, $4.00.

The publication of a new volume of the Variorum Edition of Shakespeare, which is now recognized among scholars as a veritable mine of information, will be a welcome event to those who have studied the former plays. Each volume is a Shakespearian library in itself, and contains the best criticisms that have ever been written. Those already issued are "Romeo and Juliet," "Hamlet" (two vols.), "Macbeth," "King Lear," "Othello," and "The Merchant of Venice."

Recollections by George W. Childs.

Containing reminiscences of noted persons with whom Mr. Childs has been intimately acquainted, together with interesting incidents in his own life. With portrait of the author. 12mo, cloth, gilt top, $1.00.

"No book of the year has received a more cordial welcome."—Balto. American.

Love in the Tropics.

A romance of the South Seas. By CAROLINE EARLE WHITE. 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

"The work is written in a fresh, pleasant style, the incidents are new and strange, and much valuable information in regard to this peculiar dusky people is interwoven with the romance."—Norristown Herald.

Syrlin; or, Position.

By "OUIDA," author of "Guilderoy," "Chandos," "In Maremma," "Moths," etc. No. 108 of Lippincott's Series of Select Novels. 12mo vol. of 500 pages, paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00.

"Ouida's" stories are abundant in world-knowledge and world-wisdom, strong and interesting in plot. Her characters are conceived and elaborated with a skill little short of masterly, and the reflective portions of her stories are marked by fine thought and a deep insight into the workings of human nature."

Absaraka; or, Wyoming Opened.

NOTES IN SEASON.

MACMILLAN & Co. will publish at once a new edition of Trelawny's "Adventures of a Younger Son," which will form the first volume of The Adventure Series. They also announce a cheap edition, limited to 100,000 copies, of "Tom Brown's School-Days," uniform in style with their paper-covered editions of Charles Kingsley's novels, of which something over a million copies have been sold in the past six months.

THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT Co. have just ready Prof. Simon N. Patten's "Economic Basis of Protection," "How to Remember History," a method for memorizing dates, by Virginia C. Shaffer; Prescott's "Charles V.," in two volumes, in their new library edition of Prescott's works; and two new novels—"For a Mess of Pottage," by Sidney Lyon, and "The Rajah's Heir." They will publish on the 13th inst. the fifth volume of the new edition of "Chambers's Encyclopædia."

THE OUR RACE PUBLISHING COMPANY, a new firm recently established at New Haven, Ct., for the express purpose of spreading the truth of the identity of the Anglo-Saxon race with the ten lost tribes of Israel, has just issued the first of a series of volumes in support of this idea. The volume is entitled "Our Race: its origin and destiny," and is written by Prof. C. A. L. Totten, of Yale, whose "Military Lectures," originally published in the New Haven Register, "Strategos," "An Important Question," "The Facts and Fancies, Legends and Lore of Nativity," and "Instructions in Guard Duty," all attracted considerable attention for their originality and thoroughness. Prof. C. Piazzzi Smyth, late of the University of Scotland, has written a short explanatory introduction for the work

JOHN W. LOVELL COMPANY have just ready "Los Cerritos," a story of Southern California, by Gertrude Atherton; "In the Valley of Havi-lah," by Frederick Thickstun Clarke; "A Mag-netic Man," by E. S. Van Zile; and "My Sister's Husband," by Patience Stapleton. They have in press "Miss Marston," by L. H. Bickford, a tale of France and the Western United States; "A Modern Marriage," by the Marquise Clara Lanza; and "Betty," a last century love-story, by Anna Vernon Dorsey. They announce for early pub-lication "The Gentle Art of Making Enemies," by J. McNeill Whistler, of which they will also issue an édition de luxe, printed on Holland paper, limited to three hundred copies for the English and American market, which will be numbered and signed by the author; and "The New Evadne," a civil service reform story, by Frank Howard Howe. The author of the latter, who was chief clerk of the Post-Office Department in Washington under the Administration of Presi-dent Arthur, is said to depict in this story the evils of the spoils system.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. have just ready "The Master of the Magicians," a novel written by Elizabeth Stuart Phelps and Herbert D. Ward, of which the scene is laid in Babylon, 600 years before Christ, and which pictures the won-derful city, with its temples, palaces, and hanging gardens, its wealth, vast learning, and low morals, as it appeared to the great Jewish captive, Daniel, the hero of the artistic and striking love-story interwoven with the wealth of his-torical information which testify of the accurate study of Mr. Ward and the old well-known in-sight and imagination of the writer of "The Gates Ajar." This house also issues "Palestine under the Moslems," by Guy le Strange, drawn from contemporaneous records in Arabic and Persian, gathered and translated during four years by the author, giving an unbroken narra-tive from the beginning of the 9th to the end of the 15th century, a book of special interest to biblical students; a volume of "Poems" by John Hay, including the old favorite "Pike County Bal-lads;" and a new edition of his "Castilian Days." "The Second Son," the successful collaboration of Mrs. Oliphant and T. B. Aldrich, is now added to the Riverside Paper Series; and Sarah Orne Jewett's "Tales of New England" is the new volume in the Riverside Aldine Series.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted: in the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A novel and its sequel are included in this volume. "The Danvers jewels" is a thrilling detective story, the leading character being an English officer, who carries a bag of precious stones from India to a young man in England, to whom they had been bequeathed. He is pursued by a thief, and has many adventures. The sequel,

"Sir Charles Danvers," continues the story and unravels a pretty love-tale.

Field, D: Dudley. Some reprehensible practices of American government: an address before the Reform Club of N. Y., Jan. 10, 1890. N. Y., The Reform Club, 1890. 1+35 p. D. (Reform Club ser., no. 8.) pap., 10 c.

Fisher, G: Park, D.D. The nature and method of revelation. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1890. c. 13+291 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Contents: Revelation and the Bible; The gradualness of revelation; The differentiating of Christianity from Judaism; Revelation and faith; Remarks on the authorship and date of the gospels; Illustrations of the character of the gospel histories; The New Testament writings on the time of the second advent; The theological ideas of Matthew Arnold; Professor Huxley's comment on the gospel narratives. The author is professor of ecclesiastical history in Yale University.

Flammarion, Camille. Uranie; from the French by Mary J. Serrano. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., 1890. c. tr. 4+252 p. D. (Cassell's sunshine ser., no. 46.) pap., 50 c.

In a series of highly imaginative episodes mostly of a supernatural character, the author seeks to give definite form to his philosophy regarding the future life. There are a pair of lovers, who after death upon earth are found living in other forms upon the planet Mars. Astronomy plays a large part in the work. To the knowledge science has given us concerning the planets, the author has added his brilliant imagination, peopling space and the other spheres with strange sights and beings. Progress, he believes, is the law of nature, and he has aimed in his book to show the soul's development after leaving earth.

Gosse, Edmund. Robert Browning personalia. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1890. c. 96 p. por. S. cl., 75 c.

The first paper in this little book, "The early career of Robert Browning, 1812-1846," was dictated to Edmund Gosse by Mr. Browning in 1881, to correct the many misstatements that were going the rounds of the press regarding his early life and work. It first appeared in the Century Magazine. The second paper, "Personal impressions," was contributed to The New Review for January, 1890. As Mr. Gosse was Browning's neighbor for ten years and more, it is of extreme interest.

Harrison, Lewis. A strange infatuation. N. Y. and Chic., Rand, McNally & Co., 1890. c. 4-313 p. D. (The Rialto ser., v. 1, no. 22.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The book opens in Germany, with the hero, Dr. Frank Willian, a young New Yorker, who has just finished his medical studies, on his way to Carlsbad. At Carlsbad the heroine appears. She is the daughter of a Russian count, who is devoting an immense fortune to the welfare of the laboring classes. The scene shifts to New York, where all the former characters are again brought together, and a new one introduces a certain Robert Weir, who proves to be the villain of the story. It is upon his occult influences upon the heroine that the tale turns.

Herrick, Christine Terhune. Liberal living upon narrow means. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1890. c. 3+275 p. D. cl., $1.

Gives a bill of fare for a week's meals in each month of the year, with recipes for all the dishes named. The compiler claims that they are extremely simple, and moderate as to cost. There are other chapters on: Christmas week—the Christmas dinner; Cheap mutton and beef; The seamy side of summer; The tea-table—how to make it attractive; Dainty dishes for tea; High tea; Country boarding; Summer desserts; Food for the sick.

Perry, Bliss. The Broughton House. N. Y., C. Scribner's Sons, 1890. c. 2+366 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The interest centres in four persons who board at the Broughton House, the chief hotel of a small New England town. The persons are an artist and his wife, who have discovered their marriage is a failure, the teacher of the boys' academy, and a rich mill-owner, who has come to the town to enjoy a few months' fishing in the neighboring streams. The story is chiefly a study of character, but there is a slight plot, ending in a tragedy.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

MAY 3, 1890.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE DISCOUNT SYSTEM IN ENGLAND.

THE London Bookseller in its April issue notes that up to the date of publication (the first week of the month) it had "received replies from 430 booksellers to the questions put to the trade in Mr. Frederick Macmillan's letter. The very small number of booksellers who have taken the trouble to fill up and return the form sent out last month scarcely suffice to indicate the true feeling of the trade in the matter. We regret that we have not received more replies, whether in favor of the proposal or against it. A vote either way committed the sender to nothing, being merely an expression of opinion."

In this respect the English book trade seems to be as badly off as we are. There seems to be a reluctance on the part of the majority of publishers and booksellers to enter into a discussion of the questions which most directly affect the welfare of the trade. Not that the individual members have no opinion; on the contrary, most of them have most decided ideas as to what is to be done and what is not to be done—ideas which, if they were discussed, might be developed and adopted with great benefit to all concerned. As a matter of fact, however, there is less exchange of opinion in the book trade, through the medium of the trade papers or otherwise, than in any other trade we know of. Were we an ignorant body there might be an excuse, but as we are decidedly not, what apology can be made?

In analyzing the 430 replies the Bookseller reaches this result:

In answer to Mr. Macmillan's first question—Whether a customary trade discount of 2d. in the shilling without odd copies, plus the usual discount at settlement, would allow a fair margin of profit—245 answers were unqualifiedly in the affirmative, and 55 others voted a qualified "Yes;" 96 voted "No," and 25 voted "No," but with reservations. The net result of this shows that 300 booksellers favored the proposal, as against 121 who did not.

The second question was—Were they willing to adopt net prices, if an influential minority of publishers revised their terms on the lines indicated? To this 332 answered "Yes," and 56 answered "Yes" with reservations; whilst only 28 voted "No." As we have already said, however, the voting papers returned were not sufficient in number to furnish materials for a definite estimate of trade opinion. Possibly some booksellers are still undecided whether to vote for or against the proposal, and unless at least 1000 papers are returned, we shall be driven to regard the suggestion for a shorter scrip price and net copies, as not meeting with sufficient favor to justify its adoption. The fact, however, that 300 out of 421 votes should have been registered in its favor is not without significance. Without any general adoption of the plan by publishers as extending to the whole of their list, the issue of special books at net prices will no doubt become more and more common.

We are pleased to see that the London Bookseller still has sufficient reason to hope for a thousand replies to any question that might be put to the book trade in England. As for ourselves, we regret to say that we should have considered 421 quite a representative vote for or against any movement to reform the American book trade.

ARE FREE SCHOOL-BOOKS DESIRABLE?

IN answer to an inquiry for statistics concerning the advantages of supplying school-books by public taxation as against the system of private purchase, we received recently an interesting letter from Messrs. Van Antwerp, Bragg & Co., which we take the liberty of printing, as it contains information not generally accessible nor widely known:

... As publishers of school-books, it does not make any material difference to us who our customers are, whether they are States, counties, cities, towns, or private dealers, but the question of books supplied by public taxation is one that, as citizens, we are interested in, and as persons connected with the publishing business, we are familiar with all the facts surrounding the question.

So far as we know, the law passed the Legislature of Massachusetts without contest or discussion, and since the passage of the act there have been great efforts to justify the law by the showing of cheapness, and the comparing with assertions wholly groundless, regarding the expense of supply under terms of open competition and sales by private dealers. If Massachusetts expends 67 cents per year for the text-books of each child, her expenditures are at least one-sixth greater than ever were proven under the system of private purchase. There are some States and some communities which are supplied with special books in such a manner as to enable publishers to know absolutely the quantity supplied. The statistics from such States show that the average expenditure per pupil is less than 50 cents per annum. Again, the ratio of school-children to the total population is an item of information furnished by the census reports of 1880. The total population is also given. The total school-book production at that time was about $5 000,000. From this data, it is easy to estimate the average expenditure for the United States, which is again found to be less than 50 cents per pupil. We have never seen any figures showing a higher expenditure than these for each pupil, except such as were based merely upon the estimates of those who were wholly unfamiliar with the subject—wild and extravagant guesses of men who had their own ends to serve and who were fostering some scheme for their own private advantage. For example, when the bill was pending in Indiana last winter, assertions were made that millions of dollars' worth of school-books were sold in that State each year, and it was claimed that we sold the majority of them. By an examination of our books, we were able to take oath that our sales for the entire year to the dealers in the State of Indiana for the year preceding the date of this assertion were less than $98,000. Under their new law, which was passed by the reckless use of such assertions both in the newspapers and in the legislative chambers, the expense thus far to the people directly has been two or three times this amount, and the expenses for the officials' fees and salaries for carrying on the business have been fully as much as the total expenses for books in the previous years.

We do not know where authority was obtained for the statement that the average expense in Massachusetts was 67 cents. The city of Springfield, last year, according to the reports of city expenditures given in the Springfield Republican, spent an average of 80 cents for each pupil in the common schools. Other towns in the western part of Massachusetts make equally as bad showing.

Now if, under the free book system, the average expenditure for school books extends from less than 50 cents per pupil to 67 cents or 80 cents per pupil, and the school attendance is, as is claimed, largely increased, it is manifestly to the interest of school-book publishers to have laws passed for free books, but we honestly believe that such laws would be injurious to the best interests of the people.

It is not possible that children shall be taught to take as good care of public property as they will of their own private property. It is not possible that the same habits of cleanliness and neatness can be enforced if dirty, half-worn, disease-infested books are placed in the hands of children. The report of the Health Officer of the city of Boston, for last year, certified to the increase of contagious diseases from the use of free school-books. It is entirely proper that the State or community shall pay all such expenses as are necessary, and as are common to all the children in school. Such expenditures include the cost of the building, its furniture, apparatus, and material used in connection therewith, such as fuel, chalk, maps, charts, globes, books of reference, and other material, but when it comes to the purchase of such articles as are intended for the particular use of each child, we do not see wherein a line can be drawn between all the articles that are essential for the child's attendance at school. He must have clothes and shoes as well as books. He must have food as well as books. These are equally essential to the child's attendance, and the books are the smallest item on the list. Why should one be procured at the expense of the State, rather than the others? It seems to us, indeed, that the commencement of this public support of children will lead step by step to the complete support of all who shall desire it. If the parent is entitled to receive school-books for his children for their use in school, why not other articles that are equally necessary?

PROPOSED HIGHER RATES OF POSTAGE FOR PERIODICAL BOOKS.

From the Commercial Advertiser.

A POSTAGE bill is now pending in the House of Representatives which promises, if it becomes a law, to serve as a wholesome check on the publication of poor literature. It provides that all publications purporting to be issued periodically and to subscribers, but which are merely books, or reprints of books, issued complete or in parts, bound or unbound, sold by subscription or otherwise, shall be subject to postage at the rate prescribed by law for third-class matter, and not as at present by the rates of newspaper postage. If passed, this bill will increase the postage bill of certain firms, which are not in the habit of paying copyright, 800 per cent. It is naturally arousing organized opposition. There are no financial interests to give it organized support.

Fortunately the examination of the working of the present law furnishes proof enough of the wisdom of changing it. To gain the advantage of newspaper rates the publishers of cheap literature issue their novels with all the regularity of a newspaper office. One of these publishers, if no more, turns out six new novels a week during the fifty-two weeks of the year. Under such a system, if a good story is not forthcoming, a bad one takes its place; if a salable one is not to be had, an unsalable one is sent through the post-office. It is better to sink a few hundred dollars in an unmarketable book than forfeit the postal privileges. In this way many a volume finds its way into print, not from any merit of its own nor to satisfy any demand of either good taste or bad taste. When once published it finds some buyers, and when once bought finds some readers. Thus the present postal rates have aggravated our over-production of bad books while displacing good books.

The taste of the reading public is much better than the bloated book-market of to-day would indicate. The mass and character of our present cheap literature is due in large measure to the accidents of trade. Paper has been a drug on the market. Our "popular libraries" have therefore been a beneficial junk shop to paper manufacturers. But for cheap paper, cheap works must be found, and in the present condition of our copyright laws the most vapid English production is better from a mercantile point of view than most American writing.

There is no possible danger that our books will be above the tastes and beyond the means of the reading public. We shall always have light literature for the mentally tired, sensational literature for those whose tastes demand it, and, let us hope, cheap literature for us all. But let it be literature, not surplus paper hurried through the presses; let it be such literature as we want, not such as the publishers can get for the least money; and may every book be published to sell and not one published as a device for saving postage. This last change is in itself worth having and the bill which promises it worth fighting for

ROBERT CARTER & BROTHERS TO GO OUT OF BUSINESS.

THE trade will note with regret that the estate of Robert Carter finds itself constrained to close up the business with which the name of Carter has been so long and honorably associated. For over half a century Robert Carter and his brothers devoted themselves to their profession with a dignity and unfaltering and uncompromising integrity that gave encouragement to many a younger and weaker brother in the trade.

It was hoped, therefore, upon the death of Mr. Robert Carter, that arrangements would be made by which the business could be carried on by his family, aided by his brother, Mr. Peter Carter, who for forty years has been intimately connected with the management of the business. But, owing to the failure of the founder to make provision for the continuance of the business, and his brother being loath, at his time of life, to assume the financial responsibilities of organizing a new firm, the executors have decided to offer at private sale the entire list of plates, stock, etc. The list, which is said to have cost to produce more than three hundred thousand dollars, is offered for sixty-five thousand dollars. All offers must be made before the 20th inst. Catalogues are now ready. Until a sale is effected the business will be continued as usual.

PERSONAL NOTES.

MR. HENRY CAREY BAIRD, of Philadelphia, who is as widely known throughout the country for his patriotism and public spirit, as he is in the book trade for his sterling qualities as a publisher and bookseller, has generously caused a portrait of General Meade to be painted for presentation to the Military Academy at West Point. The portrait, which will be shortly ready for exhibition, has been painted by Mr. T. Henry Smith, who has painted a number of successful portraits and whose work was marked for a medal at our Centennial Exhibition. It is nearly a full-face picture, painted under the difficulties that attend the making of a portrait other than from life, but which, in this case, have been so far overcome that the result must be satisfactory to those persons who remember General Meade's personal appearance. The uniform and the sword, on the hilt of which the hands rest, are faithful copies of the originals. The handsome frame bears the inscription, "Major-General George Gordon Meade. Born 1815. Died 1872," and in smaller letters, "Presented by Henry Carey Baird, 1890." Mr. Baird's gift is made peculiarly appropriate by the fact that it is made by a fellow-citizen of General Meade and by one whose father was a graduate of the West Point Academy, and whose brother, now dead, served upon General Meade's staff during the war.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

A BIOLOGICAL journal, Zoe, has been started by the Zoe Publishing Co., San Francisco, as a medium for amateurs and working naturalists on the Pacific Coast. Its existence for a year has been guaranteed.

Lippincott's Magazine for May contains, besides the complete story by Bret Harte, "A Sappho of Green Springs" and Lafcadio Hearn's "Karma," several articles that make it a number of unusual interest. The trade will be glad to notice among the contributors the familiar name of Arthur D. F. Randolph, who steadily proves that his father's literary talent is his by inheritance. The sonnet entitled "Father Damien" is full of noble aspiration, and shows skill in workmanship; and the "Leaves from the Journal of Frederick S. Cozzens" is edited with nice discrimination, and gives a characteristic picture of the author of the well-known "Sparrowgrass Papers," one of the original members of the Century Club.

BUSINESS NOTES.

AUSTIN, TEX.—H. N. Gammel, bookseller, has been succeeded by Gammel & Co.

BOSTON, MASS.—Charles H. Kilborn, publisher and bookseller, has made an assignment to Henry H. Carter.

CANANDAIGUA, N. Y.—G. A. De Graff, bookseller, has been succeeded by F. A. De Graff & Co.

CEDAR RAPIDS, IA.—Yuill & Hall, booksellers, have dissolved partnership.

CLEVELAND, O.—Larwood, Bartlett & Day, have changed their firm-name to Larwood & Day.

DAVENPORT, IA.—John Berwold, bookseller and stationer, has sold out.

NASHVILLE, TENN.—Marie Lemon, bookseller, has sold out.

NEW YORK CITY.—Charles E. Merrill & Co. have removed to 52 Lafayette Place; David G. Francis has gone to 12 East 15th Street; J. O. Wright to 6 East 42d Street; J. H. Vail & Co., to 135 Eighth Street; and S. Zickel to 129 Duane St., near Church. F. A. Stokes Co. sustained a loss by water incident to a fire in an adjoining building on April 25.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—At the meeting of the creditors of Hubbard Brothers, the liabilities were placed at about \$140,000, with nominal assets, in plates, books, stock, etc., valued at over \$230,000. The largest creditors are F. W. Ayer, of N. W. Ayer & Son, advertising agents, Mrs. A. H. Hubbard, and William Arrott, all of whom hold judgment notes, the first for \$42,000, the second for \$8000, and the third for \$5000. The firm asked for an extension of time, and it is probable that this will be conceded by the creditors. Two schemes of payment were suggested, one providing for the payment of 33 $\frac{1}{3}$  per cent. within thirty days, and the other for the payment of 5 per cent. every four months.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—L. Gregoire & Co. have been succeeded by Tauzy, Carjeval & Co. It is reported that Diepenbrock & Co., booksellers and stationers, have been attached for the sum of $299, and that suit has been brought against them for $792.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE BURROWS BROTHERS COMPANY are preparing a new issue of their handsome edition of "Lorna Doone."

GEORGE F. DUYSTERS, counsel to the Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association, has removed to 59 and 61 Wall Street, New York.

GEORGE KEIL, 1214 Filbert St., Philadelphia, has in preparation a "Medical Register Directory and Intelligencer," edited by Dr. William B. Atkinson.

THE CASSELL PUBLISHING CO. announce that but few copies remain of the autograph edition of Depew's "Orations and After-Dinner Speeches," and that there is a possibility that the price will be advanced.

WRITERS for the young will be interested in T. Y. Crowell & Co.'s announcement of a prize of $600 for the best manuscript of a story "suitable for the Sunday-school and home library." For the second best the offer is $400. Further details may be obtained by addressing the publishers in Boston.

RAND, McNALLY & Co. have in press the following additions to their Globe Library: "Hayne Home," by Anna Oldfield Wiggs; "Odette's Marriage," by Albert Delpit; "Trovato," by M. F. Seymour; "Burritt Durand," by John McGowen; and "Beatrice," by Rider Haggard. They will publish shortly in their Rialto Series Balzac's "Père Goriot," and Daudet's "Numa Roumestan," with illustrations.

AT the regular meeting and dinner of the Twilight Club held at Morello's, New York City, April 24, the subject for the evening's discussion was "International Copyright." Nearly all the speakers talked strongly in favor of international copyright, and, indeed, so few of those present seemed opposed to it that the proceedings scarcely rose to the dignity of a debate; it was simply a discussion of one side of the question. Among the speakers were Joel Benton, E. B. Whitney, Captain John Codman, John B. Leavitt, George Haven Putnam, and James A. Whitney.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have in press for early publication a story by Elbridge S. Brooks, entitled "A Son of Issachar: a tale of the days of Messias." It is a story of life and experiences during the closing days of Christ's ministry, and is, in reality, the romance of the son of the widow of Nain and the daughter of Jairus. As one of the three prize stories published by the Detroit Free Press, it has already created a profound impression in the columns of so thoroughly secular a journal, and its appearance in book-form will arouse an even wider interest in its vivid pictures of the communities which witnessed the career and heard the teachings of Christ. They also announce "The English Novel in the Time of Shakespeare," by J. J. Jusserand, author of "Wayfaring Life in England in the Fourteenth Century," etc., richly illustrated with reproductions of designs of the period; "The Trials of a Country Parson," by the Rev. Augustus Jessopp, D.D., author of "The Coming of the Friars," etc.; "Parsifal: the Finding of Christ through Art. or, Richard Wagner as a theologian," a study by Albert Ross Parsons; "The Othello of Tomaso Salvini," a study by Edward T. Mason; and "Maimonides," an essay, by Rabbi Louis Grossmann.

A. J. HOLMAN & Co., Philadelphia, have recently added a Bible in the Norwegian language to their list of quarto Bibles, which has met with unqualified approval from scholarly Norwegians in this country. A most careful revision of the text has been made and compared with the standard edition of the Bible published by the Norwegian Bible Society of Christiania, and used by both Norwegians and Danes. The letterpress is clear and distinct, the plates being cast from new type; the engravings, aids, and helps of English editions of the Bible have been included, and the Bible has met with a large sale. The success of the Swedish Bible published last year has encouraged the publishers to add a Bible dictionary of 112 pages, fully illustrated. This Swedish edition also contains all the illustrations and helps. The efforts of Messrs. Holman & Co. to place within the reach of the Scandinavians of this country a family Bible in their own tongue have won the personal recognition of His Majesty, King Oscar of Sweden and Norway; and it is certainly to the credit of this house that their Scandinavian editions of the Bible are far above anything brought in that line in the old country. Messrs. Holman & Co. report that there will be greater variety and beauty in their Bible designs this year than ever before. They have their various lines of quarto Bibles in course of preparation, and due notice will be given to the trade when they are in readiness for inspection. Many novel patterns will be shown, a number of them having been secured in London by this house for their exclusive use.

L. PRANG & Co. call the attention of the trade to their sumptuous preparations for Christmas and New Year publications of distinctively American character. Cards, novelties, and booklets in profusion will show the literary and artistic work of old favorites, including the familiar names of Ida Waugh, Rosina Emmet Sherwood, Lizbeth B. Comins, Maud Humphrey, Fidelia Bridges, Celia Thaxter, Louis K. Harlow, F. Schuyler Mathews, Edith M. Thomas, Margaret Deland, Edward Everett Hale, Richard Henry Stoddard, Louis Carroll, and many others who in time past have added pretty things to their publishers' ever-growing store. "The Golden Flower Chrysanthemum" will be the title of a rich collection of poems and pictures devoted to this gorgeous flower; "The Spirit of the Pine," a Christmas masque by Esther B. Tiffany, illustrated in monochrome by William S. Tiffany; and "The Day Dawneth" will be a poem by Albert Watson, a companion to last year's success. "The Night Cometh." Their new shape-books will include "The Story of a Dory," by Edward Everett Hale, illustrated in color and monochrome by F. Schuyler Mathews and garnished with silk cord, silver rings, and anchor; and "A Christmas Plum Pudding with Comments by Jack Horner" will be artistically gotten up by the same artist. In Christmas pictures there will be "The Intruder" (mouse and chickens), by A. F. Tait; "School In" (a basketful of kittens being instructed by a wise old cat); "I'm a Daisy" (A Prize Baby); "Playing School" and "Right or Left" (companions to the inimitable "Prize Babies' Walking Match" which has made Ida Waugh so popular). There will also be a collection of calendars for the pocket, desk, mantel, and wall, and three long mantel panels picturing "Water Lilies," "Roses," and "Chrysanthemums," besides numerous smaller studies of flowers by well-known artists.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

ADVENTURES OF A YOUNGER SON.

By JOHN EDWARD TRELAWNY.

With an Introduction by EDWARD GARNETT. Illustrated, large 12mo, $1.50.

"Trelawny's work is emphatically good literature. . . . It is admirable, full of vigor and variety, spirit and entrain, graphic and picturesque from first to last."—Globe.

"The book is one of the most fascinating of its kind in the language."—Echo.

"The Adventures of a Younger Son" is unique. Trelawny, the friend of Byron and Shelley, founded the exciting adventures and remarkable situations of the book on the incidents in his own wild and strange career, and mingled with them a spirit of lawlessness truly extraordinary. The book once taken up cannot be laid down till the end is reached.

URANIE.

FROM THE FRENCH OF

CAMILLE FLAMMARION.

By MARY J. SERRANO,

Translator of "Marie Bashkirtseff. The Journal of a Young Artist," etc., etc.

Paper, 50 Cents. Extra Cloth, 75 Cents.

This volume, by the leading astronomer of France, has made the sensation of the year in Paris. It is a singular mixture of love and science, and, while it is altogether fantastical, it has such an air of reality about it that there is no disbelieving it. The book is bound to attract the attention of all lovers of the romantic, and will hold its own with the popular imaginings of Jules Verne, though it is more of a novel than is anything written by that author.

REV. J. G. WOOD.

The Life of Rev. J. G. Wood, clergyman, naturalist, and author. By Rev. THEODORE WOOD. 1 vol., 8vo, cloth, $2.50.

His biographer follows him from the day of his birth until his death, and traces the growth of his love of out-of-door pursuits from its earliest inception to the end. Every one who loves nature will be interested in this life of one of her most ardent lovers.

"A Story of Real Life."

PACTOLUS PRIME.

A NOVEL. By ALBION W. TOURGÉE, author of "A Fool's Errand," "Figs and Thistles," "Bricks Without Straw," etc., etc. 1 vol., 12mo, new and unique binding, $1.00.

This is perhaps in all respects the most unique, fascinating, irresistible, and yet scathing and profound, of all Judge Tourgée's works. It cuts across American civilization in a new place, with a new knife, and will make some people smart who never thought of being called to answer such accusation. Hardly anything this author has written is destined to have so wide an audience.

WOULDN'T SHELL PEAS. Poem and illustrations
by LIZBETH B. COMINS.

THE DAY DAWNETH. Poem by ALBERT WATSON.
A companion volume to last year's "The Night Cometh," quite as elegantly illustrated and made up.

THE GOLDEN FLOWER—OHRYSANthemUM.
A most sumptuous volume, worthy in its treatment of the great array of American poets and artists represented therein, and of the gorgeous popular flower, which furnished their theme. 16 full-page illustrations.
18 poems set in. 18 original borders of great artistic novelty and merit by F. Schuyler Mathews. The whole book original in conception and in its make-up.
It will be a gift-book par excellence.

ANNOUNCE FOR EARLY PUBLICATION

The Gentle Art of Making Enemies.

BY J. McNEILL WHISTLER.

Being a Collection of His Writings Edited by Himself.

1 Vol., 12mo, Cloth, $1.00.

They will also Issue an EDITION DE LUXE

For the English and American Market, limited to three hundred copies, printed on Holland hand-made paper, numbered and signed by Mr. Whistler himself. $15.00.

Mr. Whistler scalps every one who comes in his path. Against Oscar Wilde he is particularly bitter, but all in a jocular way.

"What has Oscar in common with art," writes Whistler with lofty scorn, "except that he dines at our table and picks from our platters the plums for the pudding he peddles in the provinces. Oscar—the amiable, irresponsible, esurient Oscar—with no more sense of a picture than of the fit of a coat, has the courage of the opinions of others."

"Alas, this is very sad," writes Oscar to The World in which this letter appeared, "with our James, vulgarity begins at home and should be allowed to stay there."

"Oscar you have been down in the area again I see," is the retort.

At Oscar Wilde's wedding the following telegram was handed in at the church door: "Fear I may not be able to reach you in time for ceremony—don't wait."—WHISTLER.

The collection of stories, old and new, at the end of the volume, bear witness to Whistler's cleverness in repartee.

NEW PUBLICATIONS NOW READY:

LOS CERRITOS. By GERTRUDE FRANKLIN ATHERTON, author of "Hermia Suydam." Cloth, gilt, $1.00.

A delightful story that is redolent with the atmosphere of Southern California. Carmelita, the heroine, with her Mexican impetuosity, affords ample opportunity for dramatic effects, and the idyllic life of the land of the red woods affords a most attractive background. The author's versatility has won for her a well-deserved popularity.

IN THE VALLEY OF HAVILAH. By FREDERICK THICKSTUN CLARK. Cloth, gilt, $1.00; paper covers, 50 cents.

Mr. Clark's style is a new departure in the line of fiction. There is not a lady or a gentleman in the story, in the "society" acceptance of the terms; the surroundings are as rugged as the instincts of the characters, and yet the story reads like a beautiful prose poem. The atmosphere is delightful, and one lays down the book with the sense of having been mentally refreshed and invigorated. It is a charming story.

A MAGNETIC MAN. By E. S. VAN ZILE. Cloth, gilt, $1.00; paper covers, 50 cents.

Mr. Van Zile has won a deserved reputation as a writer of short stories. They are really condensed novels. His style is crisp without being abrupt; his situations are natural and his climaxes are dramatic without being forced.

MY SISTER'S HUSBAND. By PATIENCE STAPLETON. Cloth, gilt, $1.00; paper covers, 50 cents.

The author has made the plot of "My Sister's Husband" more intricate than that of her stories generally. It is one of those books which gains strong friends for the writer, but is so marked in its character that it also makes enemies.

IN PRESS:

MISS MARSTON. By L. H. BICKFORD. Cloth, gilt, $1.00; paper covers, 50 cents.

A delightful story for summer reading; beginning in France in a crisp, French style, and shifting to the West of the United States; its general tone changing with the locality.

A MODERN MARRIAGE. By the MARQUISE CLARA LANZA. Cloth, gilt, $1.00; paper covers, 50 cents.

BETTY: A LAST CENTURY LOVE-STORY. By ANNA VERNON DORSEY. Cloth, gilt, $1.00; paper covers, 50 cents.

"The whole work is worthy of careful study by every man or woman with an ambition to preserve a sound mind in a sound body."—St. Louis Republic.

II.

The Dominant Seventh.

A MUSICAL STORY. By KATE ELIZABETH CLARK. 12mo, half cloth, 50 cents.

A novelette by a young author whose first effort is marked by a charm and grace that commend the story to all readers of taste.

"Its spirit is thoroughly modern, and there are many delightful side-lights on musical life in amateur circles, and also a number of shrewd critical observations, en passant, on modern composers and their peculiarities, which, taken together, would make a clever musical essay."—New York Evening Post.

"The Dominant Seventh' will interest all lovers of music."—New York Sun.

"The Dominant Seventh' is a novelette of more than ordinary interest."—Public Opinion.

III.

The Craze of Christian Engelhart.

By HENRY FAULKNER DARNELL. 12mo, paper, 50 cents.

"A novel of more than ordinary quality and strength is 'The Craze of Christian Engelhart.' It is marked by vigorous action, original types of character, and a mystic atmosphere enveloping some of the most remarkable passages. As an intellectual effort it deserves high praise."—New York Sun.

TAKE PLEASURE IN INFORMING ALL

Dealers in Books, Stationery, and Fancy Goods,

THAT THEY HAVE NEARLY READY THEIR LINE OF

HOLIDAY NOVELTIES

FOR THE COMING SEASON. THE LINE EMBRACES

ELEGANT GIFT-BOOKS IN ELABORATE BINDINGS,

Varying in Price from 10 Cents to $10.00 Each.

These books are all printed in colors at the celebrated factory of E. Nister, Nuremberg, which is a sufficient guaranty of the quality of the work, and will be offered at the same prices as our previous lines, printed in monotype only. The great favor with which our Books and Booklets have been received in the past, both by dealers and the public, has enabled us to produce them in editions sufficiently large to allow of the very finest workmanship, yet at prices as low as asked for inferior work.

CALENDARS FOR 1891.

The growing demand for Calendars, which so many retail dealers found last season to sell better than Christmas Cards, and at handsome profits, has led us into this new line for Christmas Gifts, and we have 36 different Calendars, at prices from 5 cents to $1.75. Nothing in any way approaching such a line has ever before been attempted. Calendars will be supplied at large discount from retail prices, and the attention of the Book and Stationery Trade is called to this, which will prove the money-making line of the year. Sample books will be ready shortly.

RELIGIOUS SOUVENIRS AND BOOKLETS,

In shapes in greater variety than ever before, made especially for use as Christmas Presents to Sunday-school children.

COLOR BOOKS FOR CHILDREN.

Our new books in this line will be fully equal to our very successful books in the past years.

TOY BOOKS,

In shapes most novel and attractive for children. In this line we have a number of entire novelties.

We shall issue a full descriptive list of our whole line early in June, when samples will be ready. Our travellers will show them to dealers in different sections as rapidly as possible, and we shall always be pleased to see the trade in our sample-room in New York.

Our large experience in the retail trade in New York City enables us to use careful judgment in what is pleasing to the public, and we have in the past been most successful in selling to dealers a line of books that retail buyers would take most readily. We have this assurance from very many of our best customers, who have found their experience in retailing these goods like ours in our retail department, that the books sell quicker and at better margin of profit than does any line they can handle.

NOTES IN SEASON.

T. Y. CROWELL & Co. have just ready "The Salt Master of Lüneburg," from the German of Julius Wolff, by Henry and Elizabeth R. Winslow; also, "Philip, or, What may have been," a delightful story of Christian life in the times immediately following the death of Christ, by Mrs. Mary C. Cutler, with an introduction by Rev. Selah Merrill.

ROBERTS BROS. will issue, May 20, "Miss Brooks," a Boston society novel, by Eliza O. White, author of "A Browning Courtship;" "Fame and Sorrow, and Other Stories," by Balzac, which will include besides the title-story,

"Colonel Chabert," "The Atheist's Mass," "La Grande Bretèche," "The Purse," and "La Grenadière;" also, new editions, in paper covers, of "Inside Our Gates," by Mrs. Brush; "A Woodland Wooing," by Eleanor Putnam; "Albrecht," by Arlo Bates; and "Chata and Chinita," by Mrs. L. P. Heaven.

A. L. BURT, 56 Beekman Street, N. Y., issues this week, in his admirable Burt's Library of the World's Best Books: "The Vicar of Wakefield," with a life of Goldsmith, by William Black; "Goethe's Faust," the two parts, translated by Anna Swanwick; "The Discourses of Epictetus," including the Encheiridion and Fragments, translated with a life of Epictetus, by George Long; and Ruskin's "Crown of Wild Olive, and Sesame and Lilies." Each volume contains a fine portrait of the author, and is bound in cloth or half calf. The first four volumes of the series have already met with quite a success.

LEE & SHEPARD have just published "Marion Graham," by Meta Lander, a novel of theological and religious interest; "Brushes and Chisels," by Teodoro Serrao, a story of artist life in Rome; and "Edward Burton," by Henry Wood, of which the scene is laid at Bar Harbor and Boston and which is said to be full of charming characters. George Makepeace Towle's papers, originally published in Harper's Young People, will be brought out under the title "Heroes and Martyrs of Invention;" Albert F. Blaisdell's "Stories of the Civil War" are nearly ready; and there will be a new edition of "A Primer of Darwinism and Organic Evolution," by J. W. and Fannie D. Bergen.

THE WORTHINGTON Co. will publish at once in their International Library "Bella's Blue Book: the story of an ugly woman," by Marie Calm, who originally published this work under her pseudonym, M. Ruhland. The story is remarkably well written and of absorbing interest—the self-analysis of the heroine of the book reminding one somewhat of Marie Bashkirtseff's mental sufferings. It has been translated by Mrs. J. W. Davis. They will issue early in June, in the same series, (by arrangement with George Routledge & Sons,) "The Flirt," a delightful story of the Paris of to-day, by Paul Hervieu, with eighteen photogravure illustrations and numerous vignettes, by Mme. Madeleine Lemaire, illustrator of "The Abbé Constantin." The story is the literary sensation of Paris at this moment, and is having an enormous sale in various editions, ranging in price from 60 to 1200 francs per copy.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. have nearly ready a long line of holiday novelties for the coming season, embracing many beautiful books in elaborate bindings, all printed in colors at the celebrated press of E. Nister, of Nuremburg, whose beautiful work in monotints is so well known to the purchasers of the art-books of this firm. Mr. C. A. Clapp is on his way home from a busy and successful trip to Germany, and the trade may be assured that this year there will be larger invoices of a larger number of art-books than have ever been arranged for in any former season. Calendars were the success of last season, and the house has thirty-six different calendars for this season; religious souvenirs and booklets are ready in every shape; color books for children are as beautiful as ever, and a great number of toy-books in novel shapes are said to be unusually attractive and original.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; in the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price; indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A.: Augustus; B.: Benjamin; C.: Charles; D.: David; E.: Edward; F.: Frederic; G.: George; H.: Henry; I.: Isaac; J.: John; L.: Louis; N.: Nicholas; P.: Peter; R.: Richard; S.: Samuel; T.: Thomas; W.: William.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); (Q. 4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tt. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fo. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

*Anderson, E. L. Modern horsemanship. 4th ed., rev. and enl. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1890. il. 8°, cl., $5.50.

Bazán, Emilia Pardo. Russia, its people and its literature; from the Spanish, by Fanny Hale Gardiner. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1890. c. 2-293 p. S. cl., $1.25.

The translator in her preface gives an account of Madame Bazán, a Spanish lady of well-known literary attainments as well as of wealth and position. The material of this book was first delivered in the form of lectures before the Spanish Athenæum at Madrid. It is here grouped in four parts: The evolution of Russia; Russian nihilism and its literature; Rise of the Russian novel; Modern Russian realism. Under the latter head the following Russian writers are considered: Turguenief, Goutcharof, Dostoiévsky, and Tolstol.

Bernier, Rev. Eugène. Saint Paul's vision; and other sermons; tr. by Marie Stewart. New ed. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1890.] c. tr. '81. 9+283 p. S. cl., 75 c.

Olokey, Jos. Waddell, D.D. Dying at the top; or, the moral and spiritual condition of the young men of America. New ed., rev. and enl. Chic., W. W. Van Arsdale, 1890. 3-124 p. D. cl., 50 c.; pap., 25 c.

The author's argument is, that through the vices of our young men, American society is dying at the top. He offers some startling facts and figures regarding intemperance and the social evil.

Ourrier, C: Warren. Carmel in America: a centennial history of the Discalceated Carmelites in the United States. Balt., J: Murphy & Co., 1890. c. 15+435 p. il. O. cl., net, $3.50.

The principal portion of the work is devoted to a history of the Carmelite monastery in Baltimore. But the history would not be complete without a knowledge of the other monasteries from which the Baltimore community derived its origin. Hence the writer has found it necessary to go back to the very cradle of the order and follow it down to its reformation by St. Teresa.

Douglass, Mrs. R. Dun. A romance at the antipodes. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1890. c. 2+201 p. S. cl., $1.

This romance begins on an English steamer, bound for Australia, and ends in Australia. The narrator is an American lady.

"The object of this volume has been to present the law upon a broad and difficult subject in a clear and concise form; and, at the same time, to bring it so conveniently to hand that it will meet the urgent and immediate wants of the busy practitioner. It is intended neither as a text-book nor a digest, but rather as a series of compact statements of the law, substantiated by very numerous citations of the important English and American decisions relating thereto."

*Geddes, Patrick, and Thomson, J. Arthur. The evolution of sex. N. Y., Scribner & Wellford, 1890. il. 8°, (Contemporary sci. ser.) cl., $1.25.

Gilliam, E. W., M.D. 1791: a tale of San Domingo. Balt., J: Murphy & Co., 1890. c. 6+308 p. D. cl., net, $1.

San Domingo was in the last century one of the colonies of France. The story turns upon the granting to the negroes of the island by France equal civil rights with the whites. A bloody battle was the result, the whites and mulattoes resisting the negroes' claims. A charming white family are the central characters. There are some animated discussions upon the rights and peculiarities of the negro.

Hay, J: Poems. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1890. c. '71, '90. 2-272 p. D. cl., $1.25. With many recent poems grouped under "New and old," Colonel Hay has included in his volume the poems published nearly twenty years ago, under the title of "Pike County ballads."

*In this list, the titles generally are verbatim transcriptions (according to the rule of the American Library Association) from books received. Books not received are indicated by a prefixed asterisk and this office cannot be held responsible for the correctness of their record.

Healy, Mary. [Mme. C. Bigot.] A foreign match. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1890. c. 2-246 p. D. cl., $1.

The story of an American family in Paris. The Sanfords are the owners of a silver mine in Colorado, and are fabulously rich. There are three young girls in the family; two are sisters, and the other, Miriam, a cousin, inherits half the silver mine through her father. It is with her fortunes the story deals. An Italian Prince seeks her for her fortune, but when the mine no longer yields and the Sanfords are reduced to poverty he deserts her. Then Miriam thinks she will go on the stage, and remains alone in Paris, studying art, the other members of the family having gone back to America. The remainder of her story is full of incidents and is quite dramatic.

Higbee, D. In "God's country:" a novel. N. Y., Belford Co., [1890.] c. 2-243 p. D. (The Belford American novel ser., no. 28.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

A romance of Kentucky, telling of a proud woman's love for one she thinks is her inferior; the story is well told and has a dramatic ending. There are but four characters, the heroine, a country girl, her father, her lover, and a tramp.

Hopkins, Rev. J. H. Articles on Romanism: Monsignor Capel; Dr. Littledale. N. Y., T: Whittaker, 1890. c. 5+200 p. D. cl., $1.

Two articles entitled "Monsignor Capel," which appeared in the American Church Review of Oct., 1884, and Jan., 1885; also a review of Dr. Littledale's "Petrine claims," which appeared in the same magazine of July, 1889.

Ibsen, Henrik. Prose dramas, authorised tr., ed. by W: Archer. In 4 v. V. 2, cont. Ghosts; An enemy to the people; The wild duck. N. Y., Scribner & Welford, 1890. 12°, cl., $1.25.

Jackson, Julia Newell. A winter holiday in summer lands. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1890. c. 2+221 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

A short and pleasantly written account of a winter excursion to Cuba, thence to Mexico, returning overland. The writer is a Chicago lady, and she was accompanied by a small party of friends. Her journey was full of interest, and her descriptions of life and society in the places visited, bright and graphic.

*Jacobs, Albert Poole, and Chaney, H: Allen. A digest of the decisions of the supreme court of Michigan from Jan., 1843, to Oct., 1888, also of the court of chancery from 1836 to 1845, and also of the supreme court of the U. This volume is a transcript of the records of Trinity Church, Newport, R. I., from its infancy, at the close of the 17th century, down to Easter Monday, 1821, and covers the most interesting periods in its history. With the text, which is given with fidelity, there are copious explanatory notes, and short sketches of the men who, in their day and generation, were in some way connected with the church.

Morfill, W. R. The story of Russia. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1890. c. 13+394 p. il. D. (The story of the nations ser., no. 28.) cl., $1.50.

An outline of Russian history, with such a grouping of the chief facts as will enable readers to understand the development of the country from the little Grand Duchy of Muscovy, in the fifteenth century, to the present mighty empire, with its hundred million inhabitants. The author has avoided drawing his sketch from an English standpoint only, though he has not concealed intentionally the darker shades of the picture. The work is in no sense political, and is based upon original authorities. A list of the main sources of Russian history is given in a concluding chapter. There is also a chapter on Russian literature.

Mulholland, Clara, Kathleen Mavourneen. Balt., J: Murphy & Co., 1890. c. 143 p. D. cl., $1.

An Irish story of to-day, showing some of the evils under which the Irish peasant labors. The heroine is a pretty, cultivated girl, who loses her home and mother and goes to live in London as governess to her little cousin. Written for Catholic readers, but free from sectarian bias.

*New York. Ct. of appeals. Reports of cases from and incl. decisions of Oct. 15, 1889, to decisions of Jan. 14, 1890, with notes, references, and index; by H. E. Sickels, st. rep. V. 117. Alb., Banks & Bros., 1890. c. 20+753 p. O. shp., $2.50.

*New York. Supreme ct. Reports of cases; Marcus T. Hun, rep. V. 62, 1890; Hun, 55. N. Y. and Alb., Banks & Bros., [1890.] c. 39+691 p. O. shp., $3.

Noll, Rev. Arthur Howard. A short history of Mexico. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1890.

c. 4-294 p. S. cl., $1.

Claims to hold a middle place between books of travel, guide-books, etc., and the elaborate work of Prescott. The descriptions of the Mexico of to-day are sufficiently full for the needs of the average tourist, while the compact presentation of the whole history of the country makes the book invaluable not only to tourists, but to the general reader. It is also well adapted to the needs of libraries as a reference-book, being supplied with a well-made and copious index.

*Northfield Seminary. Handbook of the Northfield Seminary and the Mt. Hermon School. N. Y. and Chic., Fleming H. Revell, 1890. 204 p. 12°, cl., 75 c.

Contents: The way to the kingdom; Naming and leading the sheep; Simplicity and sincerity; Grace for grace; Doubting; Confirming the word; Obedience and abiding; Against self-pleasing; Should it be according to our mind? All things working together for good; Light in the darkness; Who has the best of it? Indwelling of the word of Christ; The angel-face on man; A stranger in the earth.

*Row, C. A. Christian theism: a brief and popular survey of the evidences upon which it rests; and the objections urged against it considered and refuted. N. Y., T. Whittaker, 1890. 318 p. 8°, cl., $1.75.

*Ruskin, J. Ruskin library. V. 3. Crown of wild olive. V. 4. Queen of the air. V. 5-6. True and beautiful. N. Y., J. Wiley & Sons, 1890. ea. 16°, cl., $1.

Russell, W. Clark, and Jaques, W. H. Horatio Nelson and the naval supremacy of England. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1890. c. 12+357 p. il. and por. D. (Heroes of the nations ser., ed. by Evelyn Abbott, no. 1.) cl., $1.50; hf. mor. $1.75; large-pap. ed., $3.50.

The first of a series of biographical studies of the lives and work of certain representative historical characters, about whom have gathered the great traditions of the nations to which they belonged. With the life of each typical character will be presented a picture of the national conditions surrounding him during his career. The narratives are the work of writers who are recognized authorities on their several subjects, and, while thoroughly trustworthy as history, will present picturesque and dramatic "stories" of the men and of the events connected with them.

Ward, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, and Herbert D. The master of the magicians. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1890. c. 3+324 p. D. cl., $1.25.

An archæological novel of which the scene is laid in Babylon, 600 years B.C. The description of ancient monuments, such as the walls of Babylon, the Temple of Bel, the famous hanging gardens, are modelled upon the latest and most authoritative results of oriental research and discovery. The prophet Daniel is the central figure, and his characterization shows profound psychological study. King Nebuchadnezzar, his magicians, soldiers, sports, and insanity are pictured with a wealth of artistic details. The blending of research and imagination is most skilful, testifying of the learning of Herbert D. Ward and the peculiar spiritual insight of the author of "The gates ajar."

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

MAY 10, 1890.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

THE COPYRIGHT DEFEAT.

AFTER fifty years of effort, by the friends of justice, of the rights of property, of national honor, an international copyright bill has for the first time come to a direct vote in our House of Representatives—and has been lost. What was a blot on the good name and fame of this nation has become a stain.

American authors must still compete with unpaid-for foreign books. Foreign authors are still denied the justice their countries grant us. American publishers must still do business without basis of law. American readers must still see American literature handicapped and stunted by our own laws. American printers must still bide their time.

The compromise bill had of course the defects of a compromise. One man voted against it for one reason, another for a reason totally opposite. But it was the best bill that could be devised to reconcile interests, and it should have passed.

The publishers favored the bill, but nothing could be more untrue than that the movement was a publishers' one, using the authors as a cats-paw. For half a century, authors have fought their cause, time and again, we are ashamed to say, with half-hearted support or open opposition from many publishers. The attacks of Harper & Brothers, nearly a generation ago, and Mr. Henry C. Lea's arguments against open copyright, have been used again and again, as in this debate, against the authors' cause. But no business can be stable unless based on justice, on law, on the rights of property. And thus American publishers, almost without exception, have become supporters of international copyright.

It was strange satire by which one opponent of the bill quoted "the great publishing house" of Belford, Clarke & Co., as apostles of "cheap books." Who paid for the "cheapness"? This house paid 25 cents to some creditors, and nothing to others, and pleaded the lack of international copyright in mitigation when it failed.

The bill was neither a protectionist nor a free-trade bill, but both free traders and protectionists did themselves dishonor by voting against it. Both joined in making arguments mutually destructive and equally untrue.

The denial of the right of property in the creation of one's brain is, to that extent, a denial of all right of property—for property right, made by personal labor, by creation of value, is one of the highest of rights. It is a first and long step toward socialism, toward communism.

The author should work only for glory and find his reward in fame! But if incorporeal labor is not to be paid, why should a member of Congress, gentlemen, get more than his dollar-and-a-quarter a day? He has glory, he has fame! But the American system, contrary to English parliamentary precedent, has insisted that the time and labor he gives to the community should be paid for by it.

Protectionists, you who urge that American labor should be "protected" against the cheap labor of Europe, and American manufacturers against foreign competition, why give notice that the highest class of labor shall not have the normal protection of ordinary law, and that he who manufactures from that finest of mechanisms, the brain, shall be subject to the competition of unpaid-for goods? You who talk protection, protect.

Free trade, Messrs. Free-traders, does not mean free booty. A free market, you say, is a fair market, but what can be a more unfair market than one in which the national police, the law (or the absence of it), lays hold of the product of the unoffending stranger, and draws buyers from the dealer who pays for his goods to the stand where confiscated goods are offered broadcast. You, who talk of the world's market, give it to the author!

The position of Mr. Mills as a leader has been shaken among not a few of his supporters by his very crude speech. On the assumption that no right is a right unless it is perpetual, he based an argument without foundation in fact or in law in suggesting that if Sir Isaac Newton had enjoyed copyright at common law, no teacher could teach the law of gravitation, except by permission of his heirs. The slightest investigation into copyright law would show how utterly without basis is this: unlike patents, copyrights never prevent free use of the intellectual discoveries of investigators or authors.

The opposition to the bill was not fair, nor candid. Mr. Payson, after carrying both his amendments, voted against the bill as amended by him.

The figures of the American book trade given by this journal from year to year were quoted to show the growth of American literature, whereas we have repeatedly explained to the opponents of international copyright that these include English importations as well as books of English authorship—witness the abnormal increase under fiction in the years of "cheap quartos," all English; that they include the several editions of reprinted foreign books; and that the increase from year to year is largely an improvement in our machinery of record. The copyright figures, which also show an increase, are more fairly in evidence, but these again need analysis, and are not all they seem.

The quotations of English and American prices were even more misleading. The English prices quoted were usually those of first editions, high-priced because of the English "library" system, and the fact that 6s., 5s., 2s. 6d., or even 1s. editions ($1.44 to 24 c.) of salable books follow a year or more afterward, was entirely ignored. Though copyright still holds on Carlyle, Dickens, Thackeray, except on a few early books but recently out of copyright, and they are still practically in the hands of the original "monopolists," Messrs. Chapman & Hall have for years issued an admirable 2s. (48 c.) "People's Edition" of Carlyle, and several cheap editions of Dickens, at from 5s. to 2s. ($1.20 to 48 c.). Messrs. Smith, Elder & Co. have excellent 5s. and 3s. 6d. ($1.20 and 84 c.) editions of Thackeray. Tennyson is issued by Macmillan & Co. in 2s. 6d. and 1s. volumes (60 and 24 c.); and there is a 7s. 6d. ($1.80) complete one-volume edition. Black's and Blackmore's new novels are issued, after the first "library" three-volume sale, in 6s. or 5s. ($1.44 or $1.20) one-volume editions. Green's "Short History" is published at 8s. 6d. ($2.04). Are not these books worth this little money, and the authors the little profit they get from this sale? Moreover, well-edited editions in cheap series, under copyright protection of either author or editor, have been issued in profusion in England in late years, making a book market vastly superior to our own, as was pointed out in that part of Mr. Bunce's North American article omitted by the opponents who quoted it, and it is perfectly well known that France, with entire copyright protection to foreign as well as native authors, has the cheapest book system in the world.

These are but a few of the many points of weakness in the opposition. The vote was demagogic and disgraceful to the nation. There is yet an opportunity to save our credit. Mr. Breckinridge has moved to reconsider, and we trust an opportunity will be given members to put themselves right on the record.

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT.

THE DEFEAT OF THE CHACE-BRECKINRIDGE BILL IN THE HOUSE.

LATE in the afternoon of May 1, Mr. George E. Adams, of Illinois, called up the International Copyright bill in the House. He described the measure as being substantially the same as the Chace-Breckinridge bill* introduced in the last Congress, and explained in detail its provisions. He was cross-questioned by several members upon various points involved, which served to give the whole body a better understanding of the scope and effect of the proposed legislation. Mr. Adams argued that under the bill the privileges of American authors would be greatly enlarged, while the American people would get the best class of literature at cheaper rates than they now paid. "It is a popular impression," he said, "that books are cheap in the United States and expensive abroad. It is an erroneous impression. In France and Germany all books are much cheaper than we have ever known them in the United States. In Great Britain all books are cheaper than in the United States, except one class of books. That is the class of new books—generally novels—books of a wide interest and capable of an immediate and immense sale, books which can be utilized by the circulating libraries of Great Britain, which have become so important an institution in that country. Their plan is this: When they first publish a book, a considerable part of the edition is subscribed and paid for by the circulating libraries. Sometimes the works are issued in three volumes with this express view; that while A is reading one part of a book, B may be reading another part, and C another. They are printed in expensive editions, whether because it is the English fashion or for some other reason concerns us not to say. But books within the first year of their publication are made expensive solely because of the circulating library system which prevails in Great Britain. When a book has lost the gloss of novelty, when it has served its purpose of increasing the income of the circulating library, then it comes out in the cheap edition. Charles Kingsley's novels have been issued within a year at a shilling a volume—25 cents, and on better paper and in clearer print than we know in this country with regard to cheap editions. Our cheap books are on miserable paper, with miserable print; they are issued only when the publisher can reap an immediate gain within a few weeks or a few months after he gets them out. But these cheap books issued in England a year or two after the first publication are solidly printed on good paper and well bound, differing in all respects from every class of cheap books that we have known in this country. Now, if an English author—and this is the substance of the entire argument—if the British author is obliged by British custom to print his expensive three-volume edition of a new book for the circulating libraries, and if also under this proposed legislation in order to secure an American copyright he is obliged to set up the type for an edition in this country, what sort of an edition will he get out? I say it stands to reason that the edition he will print here will be the edition which will bring him the greatest return in this country—that is, a cheap edition, being at the same time the very edition which after a year or two he can utilize in Great Britain."

Without acting on the bill the House adjourned.

Shortly after noon on May 2 the House resumed the consideration of the copyright bill. After some discussion it was decided to give three hours to the debate, evenly dividing the time between the supporters and opponents. After reading the following verbal amendments proposed by Mr. Adams:

Strike out lines 7 to 16 inclusive, in Section 4, and insert the following:

"1. For recording the title or description of any copyright book or other article, 50 cents.

"2. For every copy under seal of such record actually given to the person claiming the copyright, or his assigns, 50 cents.

"3. For recording and certifying any instrument of writing for the assignment of a copyright, $1.

"4. For every copy of an assignment, $1."

In Section 4, line 30, strike out "Section 2 of."

In Section 5, line 4, strike out the words "two of this act," and insert "4953 of the Revised Statutes."

In Section 7, line 6, strike out the word "chapter," and insert the word "act."

In Section 8, line 5, after the word "chart" insert the words "dramatic or;" and in line 9, strike out the word "chapter," and insert the word "act."

and the following amendments submitted by Mr. L. E. Payson, of Illinois:

In Section 2, page 3, strike out from the word "during," inclusive, in the 26th line, to the word "permitted," inclusive, in the 46th line on page 4.*

In Section 4, page 6, strike out from line 39, inclusive, to line 44, inclusive. After "United States," in line 33, page 4, insert the following:

"And except in the case of newspapers and periodicals, which are hereby exempted from prohibition of importation."

After Section 11 insert the following:

"SEC. 12. That whenever any foreign country shall by its laws, by convention, or by treaty, grant to citizens of the United States rights, properties, and privileges equal to those hereby granted to citizens of foreign countries, the President of the United States shall make public proclamation thereof; and from and after date of such proclamation the citizens of the foreign country or countries therein named shall be entitled to the rights, properties, and privileges hereby granted.

"SEC. 13. That the provisions of this act shall not apply to a citizen of any foreign country which shall not by its laws, by convention, or by treaty have granted to citizens of the United States rights, properties, and privileges equal to those hereby granted to citizens of foreign countries, nor until such foreign country shall have been named in a public proclamation by the President of the United States as provided in Section 12 of this act.

"SEC. 14. That whenever any foreign country shall cease to grant the said rights, properties, and privileges to citizens of the United States, the citizens of such foreign country shall thereafter cease to enjoy the rights, properties, and privileges hereby granted."†

Mr. A. J. Hopkins, of Illinois, took the floor. In a speech of forty minutes, he attacked the bill on every point. He began by saying that the bill is one "ostensibly to extend the rights of American authors under existing copyright laws to all foreign authors. I shall show before I conclude that it means vastly more than this, and that the inevitable results will be, if it is enacted into a law, the creation of a gigantic publishers' monopoly which will raise the price upon every book, pamphlet, and periodical printed and circulated in this country, and will impose a tax upon every reader of books, from the school-boy with his primer to the college professor with the latest scientific publications. It will reach the magazine reader; and even the publishers and readers of rural newspapers will not escape its far-reaching grasp."

"The friends of the bill," Mr. Hopkins continued, "have pressed its consideration with a persistency worthy of a better cause, and a plausibility remarkably clever. The rights of the author have been presented in a most captivating manner, and the questions hurled at the doubter: 'Would you steal the works of an author?' 'Can the Americans longer afford to indulge in literary piracy?' 'Is it not about time to haul down the black flag?' And to such an extent has this been carried, Mr. Speaker, by the friends and advocates of this bill, that the opponent has been made almost to feel by their arguments and innuendoes that his position is but little better than that of the chicken-thief caught in his neighbor's hen-coop.

"This assumption on the part of friends of the bill has led me to more carefully examine this whole copyright question than I perhaps otherwise should. And with the indulgence of the House I will call the members' attention to the constitutional authority upon which all of these claims are based. It is found in Section 8, Article I, of the Constitution, and is as follows:

The Congress shall have power . . . to promote the progress of science and useful arts by securing for limited times to authors and inventors the exclusive right to their respective writings and discoveries.

"You will observe by this two propositions which I wish to emphasize: First, that the object of this exclusive right to the author is not so much for his especial benefit as it is for the people of this country by the promotion of the progress of science and the useful arts. The object of securing this exclusive right to the author was to spread intelligence among the people. The author by this clause in the Constitution was to gain no monopoly for his exclusive benefit or that of his publisher. The interests of the American people were regarded as too sacred by the framers of the Constitution to place such a power in the hands of any man or set of men. Secondly, whatever rights were guaranteed to the author by Congress should be for a 'limited time.'

"At the time of the adoption of the Constitution there was no such thing known as an international copyright. The Constitution, including that part of Section 8 to which I have just referred, was framed and adopted for the citizens of this country, not for foreigners. Its framers were not working for humanity or mankind in general, but were seeking to form an instrument which should bind together the then thirteen separate States in one common Union and to secure to their citizens rights, privileges, and immunities which were then unknown and unrecognized among civilized nations.

"In framing this clause relating to the rights of authors the fathers of the Constitution had no more thought of protecting foreign authors than they did of foreign manufacturers and laborers when they granted Congress the power to lay and collect duties, imposts, etc., under which American manufacturers and laborers have been protected from unfair competition from the foreign manufacturers and laborers since the assembling of the first Congress under this great instrument. I grant the friends of the bill without argument that the language used in the Constitution may be broad and comprehensive enough to include foreign authors, but the burden of proof is upon them to show that by extending the copyright laws which secure certain privileges to the American author to foreign authors the rights and interests of the American people will be better subserved than under existing conditions.

"If this constitutional provision is to be extended to a class not contemplated by the framers of the instrument, the argument which secures that must be one which demonstrates increased benefits to the great mass of American readers rather than protection to a man who owes no allegiance to this country and whose writings may ridicule our people or defame our institutions. No sentiment regarding authors in general ought to influence any member of the House upon this great question. We all recognize without statement or argument our great obligations to this most worthy class. They have been and are the benefactors of mankind; but if this sentiment shall be indulged in by the friends of the bill to secure its passage, my answer to them, in the language of Lord Camden, is: 'Glory is the reward of science, and those who deserve it scorn all meaner views.'"

"But it is contended that this is a gross injustice to the author. Now, let us, Mr. Speaker, strip this question of the sentiment which seems to surround and pervade it and examine the rights of the author as dispassionately and with the same keen analysis that we do the pretensions of any other class of men. The argument that the foreign author is robbed of something that is his just due when his works are republished here without paying him a handsome sum for the privilege, and that the American author is subjected to the same species of piracy abroad is based upon the idea that the author is indebted to the State or the people of his country and the world for nothing and that his works are the creation of his brain unaided by his surroundings and unbenefited by his associations. The most casual observer knows that this is not true.

"The State and the people have done nearly or quite as much for the author as he has for them. Take the United States as an example. The founding of our common-school system, the establishing of academies, the creation of great universities, the collection of large libraries, and the general diffusion of intelligence among our people have created a condition of affairs for our authors that has placed them on a vantage ground as compared with many other callings and vocations. Their surroundings and associations first inspire and then develop their literary ability, and if they possess any originality or real merit they have a reading constituency in this country who are not slow to recognize their claims.

"The American author is (as all foreign authors are in their respective countries) protected in the works of his brain under the copyright law for a period of forty-two years. During this time any work that he may create is controlled absolutely by him. He selects his publisher and fixes his price, and has a constituency of more than sixty millions of countrymen who rejoice in his success, if he deserves it, and pay him liberally and willingly, too, the price he puts upon his work. To any worthy the name of author, I contend that this special privilege secured under the copyright law gives him a full compensation for that which is acquired by the public through his new literary creation." Submitting a table (compiled from THE PUBLISHER'S WEEKLY.) giving the number of books published from 1880 to 1888 and showing an increase of 112 per cent. in the number of publication during that period. Mr. Hopkins argued that "if we allow what is regarded as a fair estimate of 1000 copies to an edition, it makes the enormous number of 4,437,000 volumes—an increase, as you will see, on the estimate of 1000 copies to an edition of 2,361,000 volumes in eight years. These figures show the book market we have in America, and I suspect, sir, that it is to control this market that the foreign authors are so greatly interested in securing the passage of the bill."

We give Mr. Hopkin's speech very nearly in full because it represents the argument of the opposition as brought out by Messrs. Bland, of Missouri, Mr. Anderson, of Kansas, and Mr. Culbertson, of Texas, who all spoke at length against the bill.

Mr. W. E. Simonds, of Connecticut, who followed Mr. Hopkins, said among other things: "The sad truth is that it is a 'relic of barbarism' for us to dispoil the alien author of his copyright simply because he is an alien. Perhaps it is a still sadder truth that this great Republic, boastful of its freedom, of its fairness, and of its love of equal rights, should be substantially the only one of the civilized nations of the earth to play this part of the 'robber baron' of the middle ages. The truth, sir, is that we fail of being wholly civilized by a certain definite interval, so long as this wrong continues; and every American, according to my idea, who is thoroughly patriotic, thoroughly intelligent, and thoroughly honest ought to long for the coming of the day in which this shame shall be wiped off from the national honor. As the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Hopkins) has truly said, our constitution authorizes the grant of copyright in order—I quote its words—'to promote the progress of science and useful arts.' I would like to stop right there and state why that language is in the constitution, but I have not the time. This I do say, however: that our present practice, so far from promoting the progress of science and useful arts, is an actual hindrance to that progress. It thus operates in different ways. One way in which it does so is by the repression of the development of our intellectual life, by the repression of American authorship in its production of literary and scientific works we subject our American authors to a ruinous competition to which we would not permit any other class of our workers to be subjected for a single instant. Those of us who believe in protection for American industries are not willing that our artisans shall be subjected to untrammelled competition even with artisans paid as well as those of England, who receive about half the American rate of wages. But whether or not a man believes in protection for American industries, what shall be said of subjecting a meritorious class of our workers to untrammelled competition with a class of workers abroad who receive absolutely nothing for their labor. This is precisely the present condition of affairs. Things are at such a pass among American publishers that there are those among them who appropriate the labor of foreign authors without remuneration; and so long as there are some American publishers who are willing thus to appropriate the labor of foreign authors without money and without price, there is no American publisher who can afford to pay an American author for his work, save in those exceptional instances where through some fortunate circumstance—usually by the aid of magazines—the American author has already acquired a towering reputation."

Mr. R. Q. Mills, of Texas, contended that the right of property in an idea was not a natural right. "Among the inalienable rights mentioned in the Declaration," he said, "are the right of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. These we can not sell. We can not alienate them. But there are rights which a man can alienate, which are his rights to property and the product of his labor. If, an idea is a natural right which belongs to the man who announces the idea, Congress cannot undertake to limit the possession of that right for seventeen years, as it does the copyright. That right goes with him until he parts with it for a consideration; and if he does not part with it, it descends to his heirs. If that be true, Copernicus or his heirs have a right to the ideas enunciated by him; and if that doctrine be correct, they could enjoin any man from teaching in this country that the earth revolves around the sun, instead of the sun revolving around the earth. This is his property—his natural right. The descendants of Sir Isaac Newton would have the right to enjoin any man from teaching the science of gravitation, which he discovered and enunciated, because it was his by natural right. His heirs can stop any man from talking it or teaching it without buying it from them.

"But it seems to me that this doctrine carries its refutation upon its own face. When a man announces an idea to the public he dedicates it to the public, and it is public property, and he has no right over it except the right that may be given by the favor of the state. Now, it was part of the policy of our fathers when they established this government to encourage learning and invention. They gave a monopoly, not that they would protect any right for a given term of years and then withdraw that protection and permit it to be plundered by robbers and taken from the citizen. They did not say that; but they said to encourage these things they would grant a monopoly for a given time as compensation, and that is all there is to this thing.

"Now, should we do that? Should we give a monopoly to the foreign author? What is to be gained in giving it? For what purpose is it to be given? Of course it is to increase the price of the author's book, and that seems to be to inaugurate a policy to arrest the progress of our civilization, to stop the education of our masses, and to turn back the car of progress, and depart from the policy of the American people, whose Government differs from the government of all the peoples of the earth. Our Government rests on the intelligence and virtue of its people. This is to turn it back and run it the other way. Now, is it wise to do this thing? It is said by the great philosophers and scholars of the world that while Europe has many men who are greater and more learned than those of our country, yet in the diffusion of intelligence among the masses we stand far above all other people in the world, and it is because our common people have cheap literature and are a reading people. Now, in the interest of foreign authors we are asked in this Congress to enable them by a copyright law to double, perhaps treble, the price of this literature and dry it up as a source of education. What is the benefit to be derived by doing so? Simply if we grant this boon to foreign authors, foreign governments will grant it to our authors. The price is too high for us to pay."

Mr. William McAdoo, of New Jersey, made a ringing speech in favor of the bill, beginning with: "Mr. Speaker, the first copyright law was written on the tablets of stone on the blazing mount in the refulgent presence of God by Moses and was contained in these words: 'Thou shalt not steal,' and the first opposition by the first thief to this part of the moral law was contained in the cry of monopoly as against exclusive property in anything. Now, Mr. Speaker, this question ought to be presented on broad and general grounds. If a man in any part of the world takes his skill and his talents and devotes himself with labor and patience to the making of a delicate piece of mechanism, like a watch, that work becomes his property and the whole civilized world within and without the country where it is made at once, when he makes it, stands up and says to every other man, 'Hands off, that is his property, it was made by him, and the work belongs to the maker.' But if that man turns his skill and talents and labor and patience to making a book and implanting in it his ideas and thoughts, the moment it goes beyond the narrow confines of his own country the whole world is at once in chase, and larceny of the book becomes respectable. Mr. Bryce, in his "American Commonwealth," devoted, I suppose, many years—I do not know how long—to the collection of facts and statistics for the most remarkable and interesting analysis of our Government and people that has ever been put in print, a great work of a man of marked ability and scholarship, involving immense labor and thought, in some respects the leading book of our times; to day, gentlemen in the Congress of a free and civilized people cry out because through a technicality of existing law it is beyond the hand of larceny. Under the moral law, and in all honesty, there is not a scintilla of ground upon which any opposition can be made to this bill. Charity, says the gentleman from Kansas, begins at home. Well, charity may begin at home, but charity does not consist in stealing all you can to support your family. We talk of literature as the republic of letters, but under the law as it prevails to-day it is only the domain of pirates in which larceny is legalized and theft made respectable.

"In the brief time that is allotted to me in this discussion I cannot go into the details of this question, but I wish to say a word to gentlemen insisting that we are going to rob the American youth of this country on the farms and in the workshops throughout the land of much mental food. Why, they say the poor boys out on the farms of the West will have the cost of good books and the kind of literature they get increased to them. All the good books and all the English classics, all the works worthy of reproduction up to this time, have long since passed out of the range of copyright, and every publisher in the United States, as gentlemen must know, is at liberty to print any one of them from Shakespeare right on down to the present time, almost without exception, for this law is not intended to be and cannot be retroactive.

"But what are the splendid specimens of foreign literature, mostly English and French, that you are going to rob the young men on the farms of by making them more expensive to them, if this copyright law shall pass? I have in my hand a catalogue of one of the Stealside Libraries, and I desire briefly to call your attention to a few of these productions; 'A Wilful Woman'; 'Ladybird's Penitence'; 'Her Own Deception'; 'We Kissed Again With Tears'; 'The Black Poodle'; 'The Mother's Secret, or, Whose child was she?' We are told that all the poor boys of Kansas cannot get this foreign literature; that they are absolutely going with that enigma unsolved, unless the copyright law can be defeated." [Here Mr. McAdoo submitted a large list of titles similar to the ones quoted above, and continued:] "These are the books, the cheap reprints of which are now scattered all around the country, which under a proper copyright law would be replaced by wholesome American and foreign works. Every vote against this bill is a vote to continue among our young people this kind of foreign literature. With a proper system of copyright we will produce a literature in the United States which will be racy of the soil and in keeping with our institutions.

"Even at the worst to those patriots and everlasting friends of the people who clamor for foreign works of the latest issue the increased cost of their darling publications, I am creditably informed, will only be increased 10 per cent; that is, a 20 cent foreign novel will then cost 22 cents. It is too bad, I am sure, that our youth should be fined two cents for the mental nutriment contained in 'Lord Blast-me-eyes's adventures in American society, or a cruel crisis in the deepest dungeon beneath the castle's moat.' . . .

"Yesterday the gentleman from Illinois asked why we could not go and buy Professor Bryce's book for less than $6. Now, mark you, I do not want to make the charge that every foreign book is a bad book. That would be ridiculous; but you are driving out the American author. Why, you write a book to-day—one our Senators, I understand, is preparing a novel which is to revolutionize the literature of fiction—and you go to an American publishing house and say to the publisher: 'Take this manuscript and read it and give me a price on it.' He will point you to the presses that are standing ready, to the fonts of type, to the compositors at their places, and will say: 'Why, I have not time to look at your manuscript. My messenger is now down at the post-office to get the advance copies of the last English novel. I get that for nothing. I can steal it and get it free, and why should I pay you?'

"So you drive the best class of American writers out of the field, and you get the worst class of literature by American writers willing to prostitute themselves to base and immoral sensationalism, depicting coarse animal passions and physiological dissections, who, in order to get into the market, are out-Zolaing Zola in the foul imaginings they are pouring into our homes. Give us honest literature, moral literature, the literature of truth, patriotic literature, but do not steal any man's property, whether he lives in England, Ireland, Afghanistan, France, or the United States. Why should we not pay $6 for Mr. Bryce's book? In our day of rapid land and sea transit the moment a book comes from the press in any language it has the world for a market. What right, in the name of honesty, religion, or good morals, have you by force of statute law made to repeal those stone tablets, deep indented, indited by God and written by Moses, and observed even among the savages, to steal this man's property?

"Now, Mr. Speaker, in conclusion, a copyright was not needed in the old days. Men lived in narrow provincial confines in the early days. The genius of the human mind was striving 'even unto blood' against rocks, gibbets, and barbarism. Brute force frowned on mind. John Milton wrote his poems, and 'Paradise Lost,' and 'John Milton's Works,' and got but $50 in instalments for it. But we are broadening now. Slowly and painfully, but surely, justice and intelligence are spreading throughout the world.

Gross materialism still sneers or frowns on mind and soul, but victory is for the noble and the good against baseness and selfishness. We have the telegraphs and the ocean steamships, and quick transit by which we can get the books of the world transferred to our shores in a short space of time. The property in ideas contained in a book within a few days from the time that it is taken out of the press in any country, now by quick transit is transmitted around the whole circuit of the world; and the property of a man who writes ought to be respected everywhere."

Mr. Moore, of New Hampshire, said: "There are one or two points in this debate to which I desire to direct the especial attention of the House. It has been charged by the gentleman from Illinois and also by several other gentlemen upon the floor who are opposed to this bill, that it will injuriously affect what is known in typographical parlance as the 'patent inside,' or ready-set newspaper. Now, I am a newspaper publisher from boyhood up. I know all about 'insides,' and I undertake to say that this bill neither directly or indirectly affects the 'patent inside' in any respect whatever. Patent insides are made up first from the American newspaper, of miscellaneous matter, political, literary, and general. They are made up in the second place from stolen English stories, and every story that is stolen simply takes the place of a story that might have been written and reasonably paid for by some American author. I hold in my hand here a letter from a lady of the city of Washington, who is engaged in furnishing short stories for the American press at $15 per column per week. Now, that lady is deprived of the market, and so is every lady like her engaged in American authorship, by every story stolen from the English newspapers or from the English magazines. But, in the second place, the bill does not prohibit the importation and use in this country of English magazines. Any American newspaper is at liberty under this bill to secure and use any English periodical of a magazine character. So that the charge made out by these gentlemen against this bill as affecting 'patent insides,' or ready-set newspapers, has no foundation whatever."

Mr. J. G. Carlisle, of Kentucky, said that "without knowing perfectly the details of the bill, I shall support it, not on account of the particular provisions contained in it, but on account of the general principle involved. I have never been able to see why a man is not just as much entitled to protection in the ownership and control of the product of his genius and intellectual labor as in the product of his manual labor, and, in fact, every literary work involves to a large extent manual labor. There may be, indeed I know there are, one or two provisions in this bill which do not meet my approval, and if amendments are offered to strike them out I shall vote in favor of those amendments; but, on the general principle involved, which is to protect authors for a limited time in the control of their own property, I cannot refrain from giving this bill my support."

Mr. Lodge, of Massachusetts, spoke earnestly for the bill. There was one other appeal he wanted to make, and that was that Congress should furnish to the reading public, to American girls and boys, young men and women, American books that would breathe American ideas and teach them to respect and admire American Government and society and not a system of government and society wholly alien to them.

Messrs. Covert and Farquhar, of New York, and Butterworth, of Ohio, gave their support to the measure in earnest speeches.

The amendments of Mr. Payson were adopted. The vote was then taken on the engrossment and third reading of the bill and was defeated, the result of the vote being yeas, 98; nays, 126; not voting, 103. Before the announcement of the result Mr. Breckinridge, who voted in the affirmative, changed his vote to the negative for the purpose of moving reconsideration.

MOUNTING FOR EXTRA ILLUSTRATIONS.

THE bookseller and the binder are often called upon to insert photographs in books as extra illustrations; but do they ever mount them to their own or their client's satisfaction? It has been said over and over again that a photograph cannot be mounted so that it shall lie quite flat; this "cockling" of the mount, be it of paper or cardboard, has hitherto been a constant bugbear to the binder. Here are a few hints that may guide him, from The Bookbinder, as to the proper means of mounting:

"A silver-print photograph should never be placed on a very white mount, because the high lights of the print are never pure white, and a bright white margin round the print spoils its beauty by killing its delicate half-tones. Lay the print on paper of various tones, and select the tint that harmonizes with it best. Next, pay attention to the mixture you use to fasten it; let us call this the mountant. This cannot be too pure.

"If you use starch, which is employed, we believe, more than any other paste, make it fresh every day, and in this way: take a teaspoonful of best starch in a large cup, add just enough cold water to break it up, but don't put in more than is quite necessary, pour boiling water on it, stirring the while, until it is quite transparent; when cold it may be used.

"Or, if you wish to use paste, take a teaspoonful of corn-flour, beat this well up in a teacupful of water till it is quite smooth and there are no lumps, place this in a porridge saucepan (that is, a double one), and let it boil, stirring it continually; it will turn to a delightfully thin and transparent paste that will be easy to work with and very adhesive. Gelatine dissolved in water—say a half ounce to a teacupful—is also a very good mountant. It must be of the best quality and ought to be used hot.

"Now for the difficult part of mounting. We will give three methods—

"1. After trimming the print all round, moisten it slightly (the object being to have it limp, without stretching it), by placing it between sheets of damp paper over night, and it will be about right next morning. Damp the mount, also slightly, paste your print very carefully all over (using no more paste than is just necessary), lay it carefully on the mount, cover it with a piece of clean paper and rub it down well, and then place it in the standing-press, between pieces of blotting-paper and allow it to dry under pressure. It may be perhaps necessary to take it out of the press and change the blotting-paper. If all this be done properly, the photograph and its mount will lie quite flat.

"2. Another plan is to paste the back of the print all over and allow it to dry; damp the mount, lay the print on the damp mount and pass them through the rolling-machine, or place them in the standing-press, under strong pressure.

"3. Take a piece of lithographic stone or a thick piece of glass; glue this all over with the gelatine, place the photographic print quickly down on the glued stone, rubbing it smartly all over, then pick it up and lay it down on the mount. All these actions must be rapid, and if done properly by this method, a photograph may be easily mounted even on thin paper without cockling.

"There are other methods, but with any one of these a binder may easily, cleanly, and properly mount a print of any size; the chief object being to get the print on to the board or mount before it has any time to stretch. As a final warning, see that the mounts are not boards made from wood pulp."

WHAT CONSTITUTES AN "ARTIST'S PROOF."

A JUDICIAL decision has at last been given against the practice of issuing an unlimited number of so-called artists' proofs of popular etchings or other engravings. The practice is one by which the English and American public have long been imposed upon. One victim finally had the courage to refuse payment for an impression of Sir John Millais' "Bubbles," which he had agreed to take. This engraving was published by Messrs. Tooth & Co., of the Haymarket, in London; 500 artists' proofs at $40 each, and 500 letter proofs at $10 each. When the buyer learned the number printed he refused his artist's proof on the express ground that no such number of proofs could properly be so called, or have any value, artistic or commercial. Mr. Fagan, an expert from the British Museum, and Mr. Stephens, of The Athenaeum, both swore that the practice was dishonest, and the Judge agreed and gave judgment for the defendant. One witness called by the plaintiff testified that Messrs. Agnew sometimes printed 2000 or 3000 impressions and called them all proofs.—London correspondent of the N. Y. Tribune.

THE BOOKSELLERS' AND STATIONERS' PROVIDENT ASSOCIATION.

AT the next annual meeting of this Association, to be held June 4, the following amendment to the Constitution will be duly moved for adoption:

"That Section 3 of Article III. of the Constitution of this Association be amended so as to read as follows, to wit:

"Any member who shall fail to pay any sum due from him within thirty (30) days after deposit by the Secretary in the mail, with the proper postage thereon duly prepaid and directed to such member's place of business or residence (as the same shall appear on the books of the Secretary) of a notice of dues or assessments then due and payable by such member to the Association, shall be judged to have withdrawn from the Association and shall cease to be a member and shall have no further claim of any kind or nature whatsoever upon the Association. On the report by the Secretary of the fact at the next meeting of the Board of Trustees, the name of such delinquent member shall be erased from the rolls, the erasure taking effect on and from the day next ensuing the last of the thirty days aforesaid.

"The notice of dues and assessments to be mailed by the Secretary as aforesaid shall be substantially in the following form, the blank spaces being properly filled out":

THE TIME FOR PAYMENT EXPIRES.....189

OBITUARY.

JOHN CHURCH.

MR. JOHN CHURCH, founder of the great music house now known as The John Church Co., died in Boston, April 19, after a few days' illness, of pneumonia. Mr. Church was born at Providence, R. I., on May 9, 1834, where he also received his education. In 1848, having determined upon a business career, he went to Boston and entered O. Ditson & Co.'s music store to learn the business. He applied himself so closely to his duties that his health became affected so seriously that in 1854 it was thought that he was threatened with quick consumption. He started on a voyage to South America for rest and change, hoping to arrest the dread disease. He returned in six months fully restored to health and resumed his place in Ditson's store, where he remained till April, 1859, when Mr. Ditson induced him to go to Cincinnati to straighten out the affairs of Truax & Baldwin, whose business was in such a snarl that Mr. Ditson took possession in order to save what was due him. Mr. Church bought one-half of the assets from Mr. Ditson, and took possession on April 21, 1859, and changed the firm-name to John Church, Jr.

Mr. Church was married in December, 1864. Three children were born to him, one of whom, Miss Edith Russell Church, is the only surviving member of the family.

On March 1, 1869, Mr. Church bought Ditson & Co.'s half interest in the business, and associating himself with his former book-keeper, Mr. J. B. Trevor (the present manager of the house), changed the firm-name to John Church & Co. February 22, 1872, the new firm bought the book-plates of the late firm of Root & Cady, who had been burnt out in the great Chicago fire of October, 1871. This large purchase, which included, among many others, the new books of Dr. Root and P. P. Bliss, brought the firm at once into prominence as publishers of music books. The firm also, a little later, bought out the Root & Sons Music Co., of Chicago, stock, good-will, and all other interests, including the trade-name; and has continued the business of the former house until the present time. Mr. E. V. Church, a nephew of Mr. John Church, is in charge of the Chicago house. A branch office was also established in New York City to facilitate business with the East. The New York office is at 19 East Sixteenth St.

The firm of John Church & Co. was formed into a joint stock company, under the name of The John Church Co., on March 1, 1885, with Mr. Church President. The interests of the corporation in New York and Boston requiring most of Mr. Church's time, he became a resident of that city in 1886, where he has since resided. Mr. Church died at the home of his sister, Mrs. Edward Russell, Marlborough St., which was always his home when in Boston and where his daughter now lives. He was buried at Little Compton, R. I., where the family homestead has been since 1840. Among the last expressed wishes of Mr. Church one was that the business interests that he was connected with should be carried on without interruption, and being all corporations there will be no change, but all will be carried on just as they have been for years.

MR. EDWARD D. WALKER, associate-editor of the Cosmopolitan Magazine, was found dead in the Roanoke River, near Weldon, N. C., on the 1st inst. He had been missing for several days. It is supposed that he was accidentally drowned while fishing. Mr. Walker, who was about thirty years old, was the author of "Reincarnation," published a few years ago by Houghton, Mifflin & Co., and was in the editorial rooms of Harper's Weekly for a time. Two years ago, in partnership with a son of Gen. Grant, he bought the Cosmopolitan, but sold out his share a year later to the present proprietors.

MRS. KATE HARPER, wife of W. A. Harper, of Harper Bros., died suddenly at her father's house in Yonkers, N. Y., aged twenty-four years. She was a daughter of Col. Beecher and a grandchild of the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MR. RUDYARD KIPLING's novel is, after all, not quite finished, and its publication will probably be preceded by a volume of stories much on the lines of "Plain Tales from the Hills," entitled "The Book of the Forty-five Mornings."—Athenaeum.

THE literary effects of Miss Mary Louise Booth, late editor of Harper's Bazar, including her valuable library of several thousand volumes, have been placed in charge of her nephew, Mr. Herbert Booth King. This was done in accordance with her wish, as no one was brought into closer relationship with her daily life than he, and no one is better qualified to properly dispose of her literary remains. With a view to publication, Mr. King is now examining Miss Booth's correspondence, which was very extensive. He will exercise the most delicate consideration in making use of these letters, so that no one will be injured and no one's confidence will be betrayed by publishing them. On the list of persons who wrote to her is the name of almost every literary man and woman who was her contemporary. Besides those who were devoted to literature, she included, among her correspondents, prominent statesmen, divines, scientific men and lawyers from all parts of the world, which makes this correspondence an exceedingly valuable collection of autographs. It would be of great assistance to Mr. King if he could place beside the letters she received those that she sent in reply. Mr. King's address is No. 45 South Oxford Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., where any communication regarding Miss Booth's letters will be gratefully received and promptly answered, and it is to be hoped that the many friends of the deceased will aid him in giving the public this volume of correspondence. Miss Booth was a woman of broad, vigorous intellect, never out of touch with the time, and her letters would be read with avidity.—The Epoch.

PERSONAL NOTES.

THORVALD SOLBERG, of the Boston Book Company, sailed for England on May 3.

CHAS. A. CLAPP, of E. P. Dutton & Co., sails for home on the 10th inst. from Liverpool.

R. K. SMITH, of A. C. McClurg & Co., has recently been in Philadelphia, Boston, and New York, and reports an exceptionally successful trip.

WE are glad to learn that Mr. George M. Baker, of Lee & Shepard, has gone to Barnstable, Cape Cod. We trust the change and the invigorating air of the Cape will speedily restore him to his usual good health.

OTTO ULBRICH, one of the best-known booksellers in Buffalo, has been in Florida and the West Indies all winter for his health. For years he has been troubled with asthma, and this two or three months' sojourn in hot, dry climates has almost entirely cured him. He will be back towards the middle of May.

DAVID WOLFE BRUCE, for many years the head of one of the oldest type foundries in this country, retires from active business on account of impaired health. His firm was established in 1813 by D. & G. Bruce. George Bruce, one of the founders, being the father of the retiring member of the present firm.

MR. T. IRVING CROWELL, oldest son of Mr. Thomas Y. Crowell, of Boston, was admitted to his father's firm April 1. On May 1 the new member of the firm was married to Miss Helen Leland, of Brookline, Mass. The ceremony took place at the residence of Mr. E. P. Storm, of Brookline, brother-in-law of the bride, and was attended by a small number of the friends of both parties. On the 3d inst. the newly-married pair sailed for Europe on a Cunard steamer for a two months' trip. We add our hearty congratulations to the many that are being tendered to the happy couple.

OLD BOOK CHAT.

THE Hart sale in Boston was a great success, and all parties interested appear to be well satisfied with the result.

THE remaining portion of Baron Seilliere's books are advertised for sale in Paris. Some very fine books are included, among them an example of Caxton's press, a book printed by Wynkyn de Worde, etc., etc.

FROM Sothebys' comes a catalogue of rare books embracing the choicest portion of the collection formed by the late Lord Chancellor of Ireland, Sir Edward Sullivan, a well-known collector of catholic tastes. The catalogue contains no less than seven thousand items, which will take twenty-one days in dispersal! This sale is so far the event of the year in the old-book world. Among the books to be sold are a large number of specimens from the Aldine presses, a copy of the "Golden Legend" from the press of Notary, a second folio Shakespeare, books bound by Roger Payne, etc., etc.

FIVE hundred dollars is the price asked in a recent catalogue for a copy of the second edition of "Holinshed's Chronicles." As a matter of fact this edition, published some ten years after the first, is a book not only comparatively common, but uninteresting. The first edition is adorned with a large number of very quaint and curious old woodcuts, besides maps. These in the second edition are lacking, and in other respects the first is a much more valuable book. As copies of the second edition can be obtained in a ratio of ten to one, and as a good copy of the first edition is not worth more than $500, the present instance is evidently one of those cases of overcharging which has done so much to spoil the confidence of American buyers and drive them to other fields. At the same time it is only fair to suppose that the advertisers of the book are probably unaware of the existence of any other edition than the one they advertise.

THE following item, starting probably from "Weissnichtwo," has been widely copied and will probably go down in history as one of the curiosities of literature:

"A remarkable woman, named Abby Maria Hemenway, born in Burlington, Vt., recently died in Chicago. Her life was devoted to compiling a minute history of Vermont. To obtain material she travelled through the State, visiting everywhere people of information and getting from them family papers and traditions bearing on her subject. During the last years of her life she lived—with her printing-press—in two small upper rooms of an obscure dwelling in Chicago, putting her history in type as fast as she wrote it. Five octavo volumes had been printed at the time of her death. The sixth was to have been the last, and the struggling author had promised herself rest upon its completion."

The work referred to is, no doubt, "The Historical Gazetteer of Vermont," the first four volumes of which were published with the imprint of the Claremont Manufacturing Co., Claremont, N. H. Long before the war, Miss Hemenway, who then lived in Montpelier, Vt., started her work, which was to be issued in monthly numbers. She issued several parts in this way, on her own account, when early in the sixties she made arrangements with the Claremont house to continue the work. Owing to her erratic way of working, however, her publishers one day found that they had actually stereotyped 1200 pages before issuing a single part, and so it was decided to publish the work, not as a magazine, but in volumes of a certain number of pages. The Claremont Mfg. Co. issued three volumes for her. Then one of the firm personally took charge of the work, and with Miss Hemenway issued a fourth volume from Montpelier, Vt. A few years ago Miss Hemenway went to Chicago to complete the work. The fifth volume was written, but not printed nor even in type—and certainly not put in type by the author herself. So the pathetic story of the "struggling author" with her "printing-press in two small upper rooms of an obscure dwelling" will have to be taken cum grano salis.

BIBLIOPHILUS.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

YAN PHOU LEE, a Chinese graduate of Yale, has started a monthly paper called The Chinese Advocate. It is to be printed both in English and Chinese, and will circulate among Chinese Sunday-schools, of which it proposes to be the organ. The first issue contains twelve pages, with a portrait of Li Hung Chang.

ONE of the brightest women in New York, Mrs. Isabel Mallon, has been added to the editorial staff of The Ladies' Home Journal, of Philadelphia. Mrs. Mallon is an experienced editorial writer, and will conduct one of the fullest and strongest fashion departments ever attempted in a general magazine.

THREE cash prizes of fifty, thirty, and twenty dollars respectively are offered by Public Opinion, the eclectic weekly magazine of Washington, D. C., for the best three essays, not exceeding two thousand words, on the subject: "The Study of Current Topics as a feature of School, Academic, and College Education." The papers must reach Public Opinion prior to June 15, and the award will be made by a committee of three well-known educators, to be selected and announced before the close of the competition. The prize essays will be published over the signatures of the writers July 5.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BOSTON, MASS.—T. Irving Crowell, oldest son of Thomas Y. Crowell, has been admitted to the firm of Thomas Y. Crowell & Co. The firm now consists of Thomas Y. Crowell, E. Osborne Crowell, a nephew of the senior partner, and Mr. T. Irving Crowell.

MEADVILLE, PA.—The Chautauqua-Century Press is the firm-name of a new publishing house, of which Mr. Theodore L. Flood, the editor and publisher of The Chautauquan, is President and Business Manager, and Mr. George E. Vincent, literary editor. The firm will not confine itself to the publication of the books of the Chautauquan course, but has begun negotiations with authors in this country and in England for novels, historical and sociological essays, and other forms of writing, all vigorous, timely, and new in character and treatment. Foreign books will be reproduced only by arrangement with authors or publishers.

NEW YORK CITY.—J. W. Bouton has removed from No. 1,152 Broadway to No. 8 West Twenty-eighth St., where he has much more commodious quarters.

NEW YORK CITY.—Fletcher H. Bangs has been appointed assignee of the firm of White & Allen, by an order of the Court of Common Pleas for the City and Country of New York, made April 15, in place of Nathan Bangs Williams, to whom White & Allen made an assignment on or about the 4th day of March last.

NEW YORK CITY.—We regret to learn that the fire in the E. A. Stokes Company's store was more serious than we thought. It completely gutted their store and basement, causing a loss of about $40,000, which, with the insurance and sale of damaged stock, will probably be reduced to a net loss of nearly $5000. Fortunately, most of their new spring goods were still in their binderies, so that their wholesale business can go on without serious interruption. They have taken temporary offices at 26 University Place, corner of Tenth Street, and will at once rebuild their Fifth Avenue store.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—The old and favorably known firm of Armand Hawkins, established in 1868, changed hands recently, and has become Hawkins & Co. Mr. Armand Hawkins, one of the best bibliographers in the South, will act as Manager and General Superintendent. He has settled up his indebtedness at par with all his old correspondents.

TRINIDAD, COL.—Julius H. Clark, bookseller and stationer, has been succeeded by Clark & Littlefield.

WAUKESHA, WIS.—Ira M. White, bookseller and stationer, has been succeeded by White & Nelson.

YORK, NEB.—L. R. Coy & Co., booksellers and stationers, have sold out.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have in preparation a new volume of A. B. Frost's rhymes and pictures, entitled "Dizzy Joe and Other Comics."

GEO. H. ELLIS, Boston, will publish immediately Mr. Edwin D. Mead's addresses on the Roman Catholic Church and the Public Schools.

D. C. HEATH will publish shortly "Harmony in Praise," a new music book for use in school and home, prepared by two masters in the Lawrenceville (N. J.) School.

THE NATIONAL TEMPERANCE SOCIETY will publish May 15 the full text of the recent decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, affirming the right to sell imported liquors in "original packages" in prohibitory States.

GEbbie & Co. have in press a new edition of Charles Lamb's "Adventures of Ulysses," with an introduction, etc., by Andrew Lang. It will be illustrated with full-page and other engravings, and a map of the wanderings of Ulysses.

THE CHAUTAUQUA-CENTURY PRESS, Meadville, Pa., of whose organization notice is given elsewhere in this issue, will publish June 15 "All He Knew," a new story, by John Habberton. They have in preparation a story of Greek life, by Prof. Alfred Church.

BENJ. R. TUCKER, Boston, has just ready Tolstol's latest novel, "The Kreutzer Sonata," translated from the German, the only language in which the book has thus far been printed. Its publication having been forbidden in Russia, it exists there only in manuscript. Remington & Co., London, will publish shortly a translation in English.

CASSELL & Co. will publish, probably early in the fall, "Society as I Have Found It," by Ward McAllister, who will give a description of the manners and customs of good society at home and abroad, in the form of personal reminiscences. While he talks of the people he has met during the course of his life, he will dexterously avoid the mention of names.

F. GUTEKUNST, 712 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa., has fairly surpassed himself in the latest addition to his American portrait gallery—a fine photograph of Walt Whitman. The poet is represent ed sitting, showing a three-quarter length of the figure. The pose is artistic, and the general tone and finish of the photograph is very superior. We can think of nothing more suitable for a study or library than this series of portraits.

MACMILLAN & Co. have just published "The Statesman's Year-Book for 1890." The whole work has been reorganized, greatly extended, thoroughly revised, and entirely reprinted with new type—most of the new type, unhappily, smaller than the old. It is an open question whether an attempt has not been made to include too much in this new revision. The book remains, however, what it has been for twenty-six years, the most useful of all books which aim at supplying current political knowledge.

F. E. BORRICK (The Hahnemann Publishing House), 921 Arch St., Philadelphia, has just issued the third edition, rewritten and enlarged, of Dr. Samuel Lilienthal's important work on "Homœopathic Therapeutics;" also Drs. Boericke and Dewey's valuable text-book on biochemistry, entitled "The Twelve Tissue Remedies of Schüssler," which has been entirely rewritten and somewhat enlarged. He has in preparation "Boenninghausen's Therapeutic Pocket-Book," a complete repertory to the homœopathic materia medica, by Dr. T. F. Allen; a work on "Legal Medicine and Medical Law," by Prof. I. D. Foulon, of St. Louis; a book on "Diseases of the Skin," by Dr. G. M. Gramm, of the Philadelphia Hahnemann College; and a "Text-book on Gynecology."

THE HOWE MEMORIAL PRESS (of the Perkins Institute and Mass. School for the Blind), Boston, have nearly ready the first volume of Miss Alcott's "Little Women," printed for the blind. The work which is reproduced by permission of Mr. John S. Alcott, the holder of the copyright, will be in three volumes of about 9 x 12 inches, each volume to be about four inches thick. All the work of printing and binding is done by inmates of the Institute. The edition is not for sale, but is to be loaned to institutions and libraries for the blind. In the first volume appears the following card: "To every reader of these embossed copies of 'Little Women,' I send tender and loving sympathy.—M. W. M." These are the initials of Mrs. M. W. Manning, of Brooklyn, who has borne the expense of making the work.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish shortly, under the title of "The Genesis of the United States," a narrative of the movement in England, 1605-1616, which resulted in the plantation of North America by Englishmen, compiled by Mr. Alexander Brown, member of the Virginia Historical Society. The story is set forth in a series of historical manuscripts, together with a reissue of rare contemporary tracts, accompanied by bibliographical memoranda, notes, plans, portraits, and a comprehensive biographical index. Of 365 documents used, 294 are now for the first time published. These have been drawn from a variety of sources, both public and private, and include letters from Philip III. of Spain, Zuniga, Newport, Salisbury, Raleigh, Captain John Smith, Velasco, Digby, Gondomar, Molino, etc.; and also passages from the records of the Grocers, Mercers, Merchant Taylors, Fishmongers, and other Companies concerned in the colonizing movement.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

The Following are Some of the Opinions of the Trade and Press:

"For the time that we have devoted to its examination, are well pleased with it."—ROBERT CLARKE & CO., Publishers and Booksellers, Cincinnati.

"You deserve well of the world till you die, and after, but the book trade is just as ungrateful as any republic, and although they may sling an occasional laurel wreath out your way, the silver buzzard and the golden eagle 'flieth not so fast nor so far.' There is but one Directory of the Book and Stationery Trade and that is Caspar's."—P. F. VAN EVEREN, New York.

"It is just splendid. The most complete book of the kind we have seen."—J. H. KURZENKNABE & SONS, Harrisburg, Pa.

"I am greatly pleased with your Directory. It is the best work of the kind ever issued and deserves a large sale."—NATURAL SCIENCE PUBLISHING CO., New York.

"It seems more complete than anything of the kind I have seen before."—J. B. MARTINDALE, Chicago.

"We like it very much, and we don't know but what it is the best thing of the kind we have ever seen."—P. R. McCARGO & CO., Boston.

"Am very grateful to you for the conscientious care and painstaking effort in preparing so valuable and so complete a work. Be kind enough to enter my name, and mail me all addenda sheets in future, and do not fail to notify me of any new project in this line you may engage in."—Geo. H. COLBY, Bookseller, Lancaster, N. H.

"We have looked it over with great interest and appreciate the fact that it will be of great value to us."—W. O. DAVIE & CO., Booksellers, Cincinnati.

"I think your book a most valuable one and believe it will be better appreciated as it becomes better known."—WILL H. LYONS, Newport, Ky.

"Even a cursory examination of this important directory will convince any one of the thorough manner in which it has been put together and of the value of the completed work. Mr. Caspar has produced a work which, if properly kept up from year to year, will be the standard."—The American Stationer, New York City.

"The Appendix to 'Caspar's Directory of the American Book, News, and Stationery Trades' is a most valuable compilation, exhaustive and complete. The information it contains is absolutely unique and not to be procured from any other source. Hence it is of the first importance to every one in the trades. It is admirably arranged; the references are simple, and being grouped under special heads, makes consultation a matter of little or no difficulty. Such a work is really a great trade textbook, from which the initiated can feel the pulse of the whole book-publishing world. It is a monument of careful, painstaking and accurate labor, and is as reliable as it is extensive. . . . The preparation of this useful volume must have been a work of immense labor and patience, and Mr. Caspar must be congratulated on the success which he has achieved. It is a manual for publishers, booksellers, newsdeales, stationers, and libraries, indispensable to them all."—The American Bookseller.

One volume, large 8vo, 1450 pages, bound in half black cowhide, $12 net.

For the convenience of those who send out Travelling Agents, the publisher has had the Geographical Part bound separately in a handy shape, at $13 for the two volumes. These volumes will not be sold separately.

WILL PUBLISH MAY 20:

Miss Brooks.

A STORY OF BOSTON SOCIETY.

By ELIZA O. WHITE, author of "A Browning Courtship." 16mo, cloth, $1.00.

Fame and Sorrow

AND OTHER STORIES.

By HONORÉ DE BALZAC. Translated by Miss K. P. Wormeley. 12mo, half russia, uniform with our edition of Balzac's Works, $1.50.

NOTE.—This was the title (Gloire et Malheur) under which the story was first published in 1830. The name was changed in 1842 to La Maison du Chat-qui-pelote. The awkwardness of the title in English (The House of the Cat-playing-ball) leads the translator to use the original name given by Balzac.

In addition to this remarkable story the volume contains the following, viz.: "Colonel Chabert," "The Atheist's Mass," "La Grande Bretonne," "The Purse," and "La Grenadière."

Four New Volumes of Summer Reading, in Paper Covers, 50 Cents Each.

NEW BOOKS.

Personal Creeds;

OR, HOW TO FORM A WORKING-THEORY OF LIFE. By NEWMAN SMYTH, D.D. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

The aim of Dr. Smyth's book is to point out the value of a personal as distinguished from a doctrinal creed, which shall bring one into closer touch with the spirit of Christ's teaching.

How Shall We Revise?

A Bundle of Papers addressed to the people by Drs. BRIGGS, EVANS, WHITE, VINCENT, PARKHURST, HAMILTON, and THOMPSON, discussing and foreshadowing the action likely to be taken in Creed Revision. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

Day and Night Stories.

By T. R. SULLIVAN. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

Mr. Sullivan's stories have won for him an enviable position, and hosts of admirers, who will hear with interest of this collection of his artistic tales.

The Lawton Girl.

By HAROLD FREDERIC. 12mo, cloth, $1.25; paper, 50 cents.

"The realism is vivid and truthful. It would be difficult to find in fiction a stronger sketch than that of the poor and degraded Lawton family."—Boston Journal.

Expiation.

By OCTAVE THANET. Illustrated by A. B. Frost. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

"An exceedingly spirited, well-told, and interesting Southern story. It is briefly told, but every sentence counts, and it is impressive and absorbing."—N. Y. Tribune.

The Broughton House.

By BLISS PERRY. 12mo, $1.25.

"A bright, well-written story, told with great animation, showing close study of the surface phases of human nature, and full of keen observation on men and manners. It is very attractive in its freshness, buoyant spirit, and graceful realism."—Boston Saturday Evening Gazette.

The Salt Master of Lüneburg.

From the German of JULIUS WOLFF. By
W. HENRY and ELIZABETH R. WINSLOW.
12mo, cloth, $1.50.

In these days, so rife with labor troubles and the strained relations of employer and employed, it is interesting to go back to the time when there was a complete and complicated systems of guilds, embracing nearly all trades, and carrying with it the hierarchy of masters and apprentices. To such a period are we transported by Julius Wolff's great novel Der Salzmeister or "The Salt Master of Lüneburg." Since the death of Victor von Scheffel, Wolff is the most popular of German poets, and this historical novel of his he has invested with all the charm of his fine fancy.

The scene is laid in the famous city of Lüneburg about the middle of the fifteenth century during the reign of Frederick III., and the story of the great struggle between the wealthy burghers and the grasping Lord of the Land is most graphically related. The book overflows with quaint and fascinating descriptions of the manners and customs of the mediæval city of the Coopers and Vintners, and Furriers and Shoemakers Guilds; and through the whole run the silver and golden threads of a double romance. There are many delightfully humorous incidents and here and there occur the lyric gems for which the author is noted.

The book is admirably translated from the 21st German edition by Mr. and Mrs. W. Henry Winslow.

Philip: A Story of the First Century.

By Mrs. MARY C. CUTLER. With an Introduction by Rev. SELAH MERRILL.
12mo, $1.25.

"Mrs. Cutler's little book entitled, "Philip; or, What May Have Been; a Story of the First Century," I have read carefully and feel justified in speaking in the highest terms of its merits. The style is excellent, the purely topographical, archæological, and historical details are correct. The language is everywhere well chosen, and is both clear and forcible. New Testament scenes are introduced with unusual skill and in such a way as to make a vivid impression upon the reader's mind. The book will delight the young, and I am confident that persons of more mature years will find it both entertaining and instructive in its portrayal of Christian life in the times immediately following the death of our Lord."—From the Introduction.

WHOLE No. 955.

A CONTRADICTION.

The following letter appeared in the New York Sunday Tribune, May 11, over the signature of its London correspondent :

"Mr. Lovell's announcement that 'By Order of the Czar' is published in Lovell's International Series by the author's consent is flatly contradicted by the author himself. Mr. Hatton complains that this statement has seriously interfered with his own arrangements for a special American edition, and declares that his consent was neither asked for nor given. He adds, 'With the establishment of piracy as a regular business in the American book trade, there appears to have sprung up a game of bluff, which would be amusing if it were not tragic.'"

The editor of the Tribune has received the following letter :

Editor New York Tribune, New York City.

DEAR SIR: In the London letter of your issue of May 11, I find the statement by your London correspondent that Mr. Joseph Hatton contradicts our published notice to the effect that "By Order of the Czar" is to be published in Lovell's International Series under Mr. Hatton's authorization.

Permit me to quote from a letter written by the American representative of Mr. Hatton's agents, Messrs. Tillotson & Son, to John W. Lovell Co., as follows :

"Our New York books show that Mr. Tillotson sold the United States rights for 'By Order of the Czar' to you during his 1888 visit to this country. The right to publish in Canada was sold on April 11, 1890. I am unable to give any key to the bother about Mr. Hatton's story. It is a matter which must be settled between our head office and the author."

The almost invariable rule in the publication of English novels in our International Series is for the English agent of the John W. Lovell Co. to arrange directly with the authors, either on a royalty basis or by outright purchase. In this case, however, the arrangement was made by me with Mr. Hatton's agents. I had purchased the book before it was completed, and before the name had been decided upon. The book was simply known as a novel by Joseph Hatton, which was to begin in September, and to run serially in twenty-six weekly instalments. Of course, you will understand how seriously the statement by your London correspondent can effect our standing with those authors who, not knowing the policy of the John W. Lovell Co., might be approached by our London agents.

I certainly trust that you will make the correction due, and I shall write a letter to Mr. Hatton explaining the matter, and requesting that he also give to the public a correct statement in regard to the arrangement, admitting the error of his contradiction to your London correspondent.

Yours very truly,

JOHN W. LOVELL.

The novel in question, "By Order of the Czar," will be issued at an early date in Lovell's International Series, in which the following titles appear as recent issues : "Blindfold," by Florence Marryat ; "Kestell of Greystone," by Esmé Stuart ; "A Born Coquette," by The Duchess ; "The Talking Image of Urur," by Franz Hartmann, M.D. ; "A Girl of the People," by L. T. Meade ; "The Firm of Girdlestone," by A. Conan Doyle ; "The Haunted Fountain," by Katherine S. Macquoid ; "Hauntings," by Vernon Lee ; "Syrlin," by Ouida.

The American Book Company is a Stock Company incorporated under the laws of the State of New Jersey for the purpose of carrying on the manufacture and sale of books.

Its places of business are at Nos. 806 and 808 Broadway, New York, 137 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, Ohio, and Nos. 258 and 260 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

The American Book Company has purchased the school-book publications hitherto issued by D. Appleton & Co., A. S. Barnes & Co., and Ivison, Blakeman & Co., of New York; and of Van Antwerp, Bragg & Co., of Cincinnati. The Company will faithfully carry out all contracts entered into by these respective firms for the publication and supply of these books. The Text-books which have thus been acquired by The American Book Company have been intimately associated with the history of educational progress of this country for over half a century, and the Company will devote its best efforts to sustain the great reputation these lists have achieved. To this end it will seek the aid and coöperation of educators and authors in maintaining the quality and accuracy of its publications, and in the preparation of such new and original books as the progressive demands of the schools shall warrant.

The Company is organized in the interest of a reasonable economy in the production and sale of school-books and it will employ its capital, its combined labor and experience to produce books of the highest quality at the least cost and will offer them at the lowest price at which similar books can be sold in any country. It will pursue an open, direct, business policy towards competitors, customers, authors, and patrons. It seeks no monopoly and invites an open and honorable competition, with respect both to quality and to price of books for use in schools.

The publications assumed by the Company have hitherto received a large share of public patronage. The Company hopes to merit a continuance of the same.

NOTES IN SEASON.

A. D. F. RANDOLPH & Co. will publish shortly "Leah of Jerusalem: a story of the time of Paul," by Edward Payson Berry. The author's purpose is to present a realistic glimpse of life in Jerusalem and Rome in the first century of our era.

A. C. ARMSTRONG & SON have just published a new work by President John A. Broadus entitled "Jesus of Nazareth." The little volume is "the fruit of lifetime studies and is prepared with a great desire to promote the knowledge of Jesus, His personal character, ethical teachings, and supernatural works."

JOHN WILEY & SONS announce a work on "Elliptic Functions," by Prof. A. L. Baker, of the Illinois Institute. They have now ready six volumes of a new edition of Ruskin's works. These are dainty sixteenmo volumes, printed on excellent paper from new plates. Uniform with this edition they are issuing a series of "Selections from the Works of John Ruskin," edited by Mrs. Tuthill and others.

A. LOVELL & Co., 3 E. 14th St., N. Y., will hereafter be sole agents in the United States for Walter Scott's Great Writers' Series, the Camelot Series, and The Canterbury Poets. They will have ready on the 27th inst. in the first series a life of Robert Browning by William Sharpe; in the second, "English Folk and Fairy Tales," edited with an introduction by E. Sidney Hartland; and in the last-named series Lytton's "The Lady of Lyons" and other plays. A. Lovell & Co. will themselves shortly publish "Clio, a child of fate," a story of ante-bellum days in the South, by Miss Ella M. Powell, a native of the country she describes.

MACMILLAN & Co. have just ready, a folio volume on "Scottish National Memorials," with three hundred illustrations, including thirty full-page plates. The following subjects are treated: Scottish Archæology, Historical and Personal Relics, Scottish Literature and Literary Relics, Burghal Memorials of Edinburgh and other cities, etc. They have in preparation a series of small books under the general title "Science in Plain Language." The first volume, to be published immediately, includes the following subjects: Evolution, Antiquity of Man, Bacteria, etc.; the object of the author being to give the general results of scientific investigation in plain, everyday language for the general reader.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. have just ready an interesting volume of reminiscences entitled "Harvard Graduates whom I have known," by Dr. Andrew P. Peabody, who was for years Preacher to the University and was acquainted with a large number of Harvard men who in after life became famous; "John Jay," by George Pellew, in the series of American Statesmen; "Java, the pearl of the East," by Mrs. J. S. Higginson, and "Girls and Women," by E. Chester, forming respectively volumes 7 and 8 of the Riverside Library for Young People; a new edition of Mrs. Elizabeth Karr's "The American Horsewoman;" and new issues of M. F. Sweetser's guide-books to New England, the White Mountains, and the Maritime Provinces.

GINN & Co. will publish in June "The Leading Facts of American History," by D. H. Montgomery. The work will be divided into seven sections, treating of: 1. The discovery of the country, and its partial exploration and settlement by the Spaniards. 2. The attempts of the French and the English to get a foothold on the continent. 3. The planting of permanent English and French colonies on the Atlantic coast, the exploration and military occupation of the West by the French, the struggle for the possession of the country, and the final victory of the English. 4. The Revolution, and the adoption of the Constitution. 5. The development of the Nation down to the outbreak of the Civil War. 6. The Civil War and its results. 7. Reconstruction, and the New Nation.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; in the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. (4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tl. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl. nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Bergen, J. Y., jr., and Fanny D. A primer of Darwinism and organic evolution. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1890. c. '84, '90. 6+261 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

The present title has been substituted for the former one, "The development theory," in the belief "that the incorporation of the term Darwinism in the name of the book will best indicate to the class of readers whom it is designed to reach, the nature of its subject-matter." Its general scope remains the same as in the first edition, but many changes have been made in its details.

Bigham, R. W. Joe: a boy in the war-times. Nashville, Tenn., Pub. House of the M. E. Church, South, 1890. c. '89. 2-226 p. S. cl., 60 c.

A story for boys, showing the Southern side of the late war. It opens in Tennessee in the year 1863.

Boynton, H. The world's greatest conflict: review of France and America, 1788 to 1800, and history of America and Europe, 1800 to 1804. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1890.] c. 325 p. D. cl., $1.25.

In this work Mr. Boynton has epitomized the vital political events which for twenty-five years made French and American history. To exemplify his statement that "the world's greatest conflict is the struggle for and against good government," he has taken that period which witnessed our country's earliest struggles for national life, from 1775 to 1800, and which also saw in France, in the bloody revolution of 1793, the downfall of kingly oppression and the dawn of popular freedom.

A bundle of papers by seven eminent divines of the Presbyterian Church, discussing the essential features of the revision movement. They are arranged in an organic method, so that there is unity of theme and development in the order of discussion.

Carrie's letters to her Emil. San Francisco, Cal., Published for the author by The Bancroft Co., 1890. c. 2+128 p. S. pap., 50 c.

A number of silly letters apparently written by a young girl to a man who afterward becomes her husband.

Outler, Mary C. Philip; or, what may have been: a story of the first century. N. Y., T: Y. Crowell & Co., [1890.] c. 3-237 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The Rev. Selah Merrill says in an introductory note of this story: "The style is excellent, the purely topographical, archaeological, and historical details are correct. The language is everywhere well chosen, and is both clear and forcible. New Testament scenes are introduced with unusual skill and in such a way as to make a vivid impression upon the reader's mind. The book will delight the young, and I am confident that persons of more mature years will find it both entertaining and instructive in its portrayal of Christian life in the times immediately following the death of our Lord."

- Hearn, Lafcadio. Youma: a story of a West Indian slave. N. Y., Harper, 1890. c. 3+193 p. 1 il. D. cl., $1.
"Youma" is a beautiful and thrilling dramatic story of a creole negress—a capresse—of St. Pierre, and of her young creole mistress. The story is laid in the time of the negro insurrection, just after the proclamation of the French Republic, and it gives a graphic picture of this great uprising. The story culminates in the heroism of the creole slave confronting a tempest of negro fury.

Pt. 1 is devoted to the traditional and historic period. Pt. 2 to the great national park—the Adirondacks. Pt. 3 describes Lake Champlain and the facilities it offers to yachtsmen, with sailing directions. Pt. 4 contains historical reminiscences and facts connected with the shores of Lake Champlain; the game fish and fishing of Lake Champlain. The volume opens with an interesting paper on "Outdoor life."

*New York supplement, v. 7; cont. the decisions of the intermediate and lower courts of record of N. Y. state. Permanent ed., Oct. 3, 1889-Jan. 23, 1890; with tables of N. Y. supp. cases in v. 52 and 53, Hun's reports; 17. N. Y. civil procedure reports; 23 and 24, N. Y. state reports; 56 N. Y. superior court reports. St. Paul, West Pub. Co., 1890. c. 24+1074 p. O. (National reporter ser.) shp., $4.

O'Brien, W: When we were boys: a novel. Author's ed. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1890. 6+550 p. por. D. cl., $1.50.

The greater part of the story was written while Mr. O'Brien was imprisoned recently in Ireland under the Coercion Act. Begun at first merely to beguile the enforced idleness of solitary confinement, it grew, so the author tells us, "insensibly into something like a picture of the transformation which the progress of American democratic ideas has brought about in Irish society." The book presents a picture of Irish life, or rather a series of most characteristic pictures, prepared by one who has been familiar from boyhood with every phase of Irish character. It is not merely interesting as a story—it is full of humor and varied incidents.

*Peep (The) of day; or, a series of the earliest religious instruction the infant mind is capable of receiving; with verses illustrative of the subject. N. Y., Ward, Lock & Co., 1890. 230 p. 12°, cl. flex., 20 c.; cl. gilt, 40 c.

*Peters, E. D., jr. Modern American methods of copper smelting. N. Y., Scientific Publishing Co., 1890. il. 8°, cl., $5.

Pierce, Emmons S. Poems of the turf, and other ballads. Buffalo, N. Y., The Wenborne-Sumner Co., 1890. c. 135 p. por. O. cl., $2.

Rajah's heir (The): a novel. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1890. 4+454 p. D. (Lippincott's series of select novels, no. 109.) pap., 50 c.

The author has a wide knowledge of the life, scenery, manners, history, etc., of India. The story is fresh and dramatic, and has for its central motive the mutiny of the Sepoys, some thirty-four years ago, with all its accompanying horrors. The rajah's heir, "Tom Gregory," is a young Englishman fresh from college. His journey to India to take possession of his inheritance is rich in romance. A slight supernatural element adds to the interest of the story.

*Ruskin, J: Crown of wild olive; [also,] Sesame and lilies. N. Y., A. L. Burt, 1890. por. 12°, (Burt's lib. of the world's best books.) cl., $1; hf. cl., $2.

Ruskin, J: The true and the beautiful in nature, art, morals, and religion; selected from the works of J: Ruskin, with a notice of the author by Mrs. L. C. Tuthill. N. Y., J: Wiley & Sons, 1890. c. '58, '86. 2 v., 7-345; 30-293 p. S. cl., $2.

Scriber, Ja. Some account of Mr. Mark Beatty and his family. Nashville, Tenn., Pub. House of the M. E. Church, South, 1890. c. 4-79 p. S. cl., 50 c.

This is not a story, but a simple recital of the everyday life of a Christian household. It is designed to be suggestive and illustrative of principles and methods.

*Shields, G. O., ["Coquina," pseud.] Camping and camp outfits: a manual of instruction for young and old sportsmen. N. Y. and Chic., Rand, McNally & Co., 1890. 200 p. il. 12°, cl., $1.25.

Sienkiewicz, Henryk. With fire and sword: an historical novel; from the Polish by Jeremiah Curtin. Bost., Little, Brown & Co., 1890. c. tr. 16+779 p. O. cl., $2.

The time is about the middle of the 17th century; the story is one of many characters and innumerable episodes; the plot is too long and too complicated to attempt to epitomize it. It chiefly describes the Cossack war under King John Kazimir, and deals also with the political, intellectual, and social aspect of the Polish people of the 17th century. Though there is a love-story it is subordinate to the historical element. The construction reminds one of Tolstol's "War and Peace"—its length also, as this volume is followed by two sequels. The author is considered the greatest of Polish novelists.

Smyth, Newman. Personal creeds; or, how to form a working-theory of life. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1890. c. 4+210 p. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The aim is to point out the value of a personal as distinguished from a doctrinal creed, which shall bring one into closer touch with the spirit of Christ's teachings.

Sprague, H: H. City government in Boston: its rise and development. Bost., W: B. Clarke & Co., 1890. 3-53 p. O. pap., 50 c.

*Stetefeldt, C. A. The lixiviation of silver ores. N. Y., Scientific Publishing Co., 1890. il. 8°, cl., $5.

Stephen Vane's trust; by the author of "Frontier and city." N. Y., American Tract Soc., [1890.] c. 393 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

The comfortable home of a farmer of New Hampshire is the scene of this instructive story. Stephen Vane has a family of boys whose fortunes are traced through the book. "Millie," a little Southern girl, who has lost father and mother, is his "trust" and the heroine of the story.

Sullivan, T. R. Day and night stories. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1890. c. 4+253 p. D. hf. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

Seven short stories: The lost Rembrandt; Out of New England granite; "Cordon!" The tincture of success; The rock of Béranger; Maestro Ambrogio; Through the gate of dreams.

Tasma, (pseud.) In her earliest youth: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1890. 2+301 p. D. (Harper's Franklin sq. lib., new ser., no. 670.) pap., 45 c.

The same novel as published by the Lovells as "Her earliest youth." See notice P. W., March 29, 1891.

Tolstol, Count Leo. The Kreutzer sonata; tr. by B: R. Tucker. Bost., B: R. Tucker, 1890. c. 143 p. S. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The story is simply a medium for the expression of some of Tolstol's peculiar views on love and marriage, etc. The story in itself is brief, and relates to a murder committed by a husband through jealousy. Beethoven's "Kreutzer sonata," from which the book takes its name, marks one of the turning-points in the story, the manner in which the lover plays it first exciting the husband's jealousy.

Trelawny, E: J: Adventures of a younger son. New ed. with an introd. by E: Garnett. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1890. 521 p. por. and il. O. (The adventure ser.) cl., $1.50.
This exciting romance was first published in 1831. It is largely based upon Trelawny's own life. Trelawny was the friend of Byron and Shelley and is the author of "Recollections of Shelley and Byron."

*Weldner, Revere Franklin. Studies in the book: first series; cont. studies on the New Testament historical books, the general epistles, and the apocalypse, interleaved. N. Y. and Cnic., Fleming H. Revell, 1890. 120 p. 12°, cl., $1.

Wilson, Mrs. A. W. Letters from the Orient to her daughters at home. Nashville, Tenn., Pub. House of the M. E. Church, South, 1890. c. 2-253 p. il. D. cl., $1.
These letters give a most satisfactory view of oriental life, of the needs of the heathen world, and of the character of missionary service.

Wolff, Julius. The saltmaster of Lüneburg; from the 21st German ed., by W: H: and Elizabeth R. Winslow. N. Y., T: Y. Crowell & Co., [1890.] c. 2+395 p. D. cl., $1.50.
The scene is laid in the famous city of Lüneburg about the middle of the fifteenth century during the reign of Frederick III., and the story of the great struggle between the wealthy burghers and the grasping Lord of the Land is most graphically related. The book overflows with quaint and fascinating descriptions of the manners and customs of the mediæval city of the Coopers and Vintners and Furriers and Shoemakers Guilds; and through the whole run the silver and golden threads of a double romance. There are many humorous incidents and here and there occur the lyric gems for which the author is noted.

Wood, H: Edward Burton. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1890. c. 4-299 p. D. cl., 75 c.; pap., 30 c.
The scene is Bar Harbor. Many of the characters introduced argue for different systems of theology. Socialism also plays a part. Edward Burton belongs to the preachers of the love of God. He is hopeful and satisfied that the world is a good place to live in if we live rightly and according to orthodox lines of thought. Author of the "Natural law in the business world."

anywhere in the United States. Word must reach us before Wednesday evening, to be in time for issue of same week.]

MAY 19.—Rare English books.—Ezekiel & Bernheim.

MAY 19-JUNE 13.—Library of Sir Edward Sullivan, books, engravings, autograph letters, twenty-one days' sale.—
Sotheby, Wilkinson & Hodge, Wellington Street, Strand London, England.

MAY 19-23, 2:30 P.M.—Library of the late Henry B. Dawson, of Morrisania, N. Y. Pt. 1-24. (54 lots.)—Bangs.

The library of the late Mr. Henry B. Dawson was gathered by him for his own studies and use. It was formed with especial reference to American history in all departments—general, civil, military, ecclesiastical, legal, genealogical, and, to a certain extent, scientific. Entirely historical and almost exclusively American, it is the collection of one eminent for his thorough mastery of the subject, and wonderful knowledge of all books and pamphlets bearing upon it. It is probably the largest and best general working library in New York outside of corporate institutions. Its distinguishing feature is usefulness. In local histories and in genealogies, and all United States and State histories, in military reports and documents, relating to the Revolution, War of 1812-14, and the late Civil War, it is extremely rich. And the same may be said of the ecclesiastical official papers and documents of all the prominent religious denominations as well as of its biographies and memorial publications.
There is a good collection of ancient Bibles, and many general English works and periodicals bearing upon America, as well as selected and reserved copies of nearly all of Mr. Dawson's own works. The library is so extensive that it has been deemed best to divide it, and have more than one sale, at short intervals, this season. The first sale includes the sections of the Colonies, Canada, etc., the different New England States, New York, and New Jersey; each section arranged alphabetically by itself, thus enabling parties to attend when the subjects they may be interested in are offered without having to wait through the whole catalogue. The next sale will embrace the sections of Pennsylvania, the Southern States, Ohio, the Western States, and the United States. The continuation of the catalogue is now in preparation and will be issued as soon as completed.

MAY 20-21, 3 P.M.—Murray Hill circulating library. (424 lots.)—Leavitt.

MAY 26.—Old and new books.—Ezekiel & Bernheim.

JUNE 5, 10:30 A.M.—Postponed sale of the electrotypes of Charles Dickens' works (formerly published by Pollard & Moss) at the storage warehouses of David Lewi, 192 Chambers St., N. Y.—Leavitt.

LIST BOY.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

MAY 17, 1890.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE COPYRIGHT CAMPAIGN.

THE friends of international copyright, that is, of national honor, should now show their mettle. They have fought their first pitched battle in open field, and have been beaten. Let this be their Bull Run; now let them fight for Gettysburg.

This very defeat may indeed be the opportunity of victory. They have felt the enemy; they know at least which Congressmen vote against them, and which stay away. The vote was fairly close: 98 for and 126 against, with 103 absent or not voting, gives a fair outlook for a change of vote next time. Let the next time be this Congress and this session.

The real opposition to the bill is, to be sure, not yet disclosed; the mysterious clients of Arnoux, Rich & Woodford are still mysterious. Their secrecy, in response to all inquiries, is unwonted and suspicious. It should be put to the credit of Hon. W. C. Wallace, that though associated with this firm, and its active representative against international copyright last year, he divorced the Congressman from the advocate, and voted as his Brooklyn constituency would doubtless vote, if it could be fairly polled on the question.

The fear that the editors of the thousands of journals throughout the country who depend in a measure upon foreign material for "filling-up" were opposed to any measure that seemed to curtail their privileges in this direction seems to have influenced some Congressmen to vote against the bill. This fear is scarcely justified. Each newspaper association that has been polled, after actual consideration of the provisions of the bill, has given its assent. The bill was modified to meet this criticism, and possibly other modifications could be made, if any objections were fairly and frankly put. Moreover, there is a large latitude, within copyright restrictions, for abundant use of extracts; the country papers get much of their best material from copyright magazines, and are indeed usually invited to do so by the "extract sheets" issued for their convenience by Harper's and other magazines. The real opposition from this quarter seems to be from one or two "patent outside" and "boiler plate" houses, who magnify the dangers such a bill would threaten.

It was rumored in Washington that the American News Co. or its manager Mr. Farrelly was in or behind the active opposition, though nominally associated with the organizations supporting the bill. We trust this is not so, and shall be glad to have the point settled by offering our columns for any disclaimer.

The third suggestion of the possible clients of the law firm in question was that they were the foreign publishers or printers who are known to dislike the bill.

Why this secrecy?

Our counsel to the friends of justice is to fight hard for the bill. It is pending in the Senate; it is in position for reconsideration in the House.

At last, Congressmen are talking and thinking about international copyright. Strike while the iron is hot! Bombard the foes with the facts of the issue until they see the dishonor the Fifty-first Congress will put upon the country and its own record if the present vote stands. The arguments of the opposition are now specifically and officially on record. They can all be met, and open-minded Congressmen convinced. That is the work to be done.

There may be amendments to the bill which will make it less objectionable, for instance, to those claiming to represent the country press. Very well—better concessions than abandonment! Let us know what these opponents want.

But, above all, push the fight!

"A NECESSARY REPLY TO AN UN-NECESSARY QUESTION."

APROPOS of the reprint of "Webster's original dictionary," we have received, evidently from an interested party, a newspaper published in the Old Bay State in which is printed in one column a catch-penny advertisement of the "reprint" inserted by a leading bazaar, and in another the cautionary announcement of the Merriam's, with this query written across the paper in blue pencil: "Which is the fairest?" We are inclined to the opinion that the advertisement of the "reprint" is by no means the fairer of the two. Indeed, it is in many respects worthy of the apostle of the pharisaical style which was first developed in the cause of the "Good Merchant," and which has since wriggled itself into favor with bazaars and the so-called "syndicate stores" all over the country.

It is no doubt, like the late Mr. Pecksniff, "highly moral." Its whole appearance—smooth face, white tie, cat-like tread, unctuous voice and all—seems to breathe: "There is no deception, ladies and gentlemen, all is peace; a holy calm pervades me!" It is insinuating and confidence-inspiring, when, for instance, it starts off with the announcement that it offers a "Webster's big dictionary, free from copyright tax, at $2.25. A thousand of 'em, $2.25." All perfectly true that, is it not? Then, with a winning smile, it hastens to explain that "of course the binding isn't of the best, nor the paper, but it's a sure-enough Webster—such as years ago would have sold for several times $2.25." Yet there are men still alive who years ago sold the first issues of Webster, printed in the best style, on excellent paper, and bound in durable full sheep, for $4.50—true, "several times $2.25."

Finally, patronizingly patting the back of its monstrosity—a combination of the cheapest kind of wood-pulp paper and boards, printed from indifferently reproduced plates—the advertisement delivers itself of this noble sentiment:

"A large share of the new words not found in this edition are technical scientific words, which few people ever have any occasion to use. The owners of the latest edition, seeking to perpetuate their monopoly, perhaps, endeavor to make as much as possible out of these charges in a circular letter just issued. But as everybody knows it is absurd to claim that such changes have occurred in the English language as would lessen the value of this noble work, which was held to be perfect a comparatively few years ago.

"Are you glad to learn that the 'Toll Gate' which has so long stood across the highway of education is now dismantled, and the great work can be purchased free from copyright tax?"

So payment to authors and collaborators in an undertaking involving so great an expense as the production of this dictionary is regarded by these Knights of the Bargain Counter as a "Toll Gate" standing "across the highway of education." However, the comparison is not an unfair one, when it is remembered how great a value the "toll" roads added to this country years ago. Our reprint friends would perhaps have travellers go back to the old roads that wasted ten times the money the tolls cost.

To every man who is aware of the important development of and the changes that have taken place in lexicography during the last forty years, the language of the advertisement quoted above will sound, to put it mildly, like humbug. But those who are ignorant of the facts in the case, and who know only in a general way that a

"Webster's big dictionary" is a desirable book, will likely be "taken in" and invest their money in a thing that has present value chiefly as a literary curiosity. Did this bazaar honestly have the interests of its public at heart, it would call attention to a line of excellent, well-made, and readable dictionaries that sell at retail from fifteen cents to two dollars.

COPYRIGHT MATTERS.

WALTER BESANT ON AMERICAN COPYRIGHT.

BESANT is particularly bitter upon the subject of American copyright and American publishers. In an article upon "The Securing of American Rights" he says: "There seems to be but one way for the English author to hold at bay the piratical publishers of the United States. It is to enter into collaboration with American writers. By this arrangement a perfect copyright is obtainable, one which will defy the devil, the printer's devil, and all his works. The American members of the Incorporated Society of Authors have written to offer honorable partnership of this kind with British authors who desire to protect their literary property," and he bids all authors desirous of thus protecting themselves to write to "Washington," in care of the Secretary of the Incorporated Society of Authors in London.—London Correspondence of the N. Y. Sun, May 11.

[The above gives evidence of express veness rather than precision. Mr. Besant has been noted for his bitterness towards publishers in general, including those of his own country. It is unfair to judge a class by a few disreputable specimens such as may be found in every trade or profession. American publishers as a rule, and recently almost to a man, are in favor of a liberal copyright law. If there was any feeling at all in the minds of American publishers against the measure recently defeated in the House, it was that the bill was hedged in with too many restrictions. And they are thus in favor quite as much from sentiment as from interest.—ED. P. W.]

CANADIAN COPYRIGHT.

News reached Ottawa on May 8 that the Imperial Government had disallowed, or was about to disallow, the Canadian Copyright act of last session.

THE AMERICAN BOOK COMPANY.

OFFICIAL announcement is made elsewhere that the American Book Company has been at last incorporated under the laws of the State of New Jersey with a capital of $4,500,000. Its offices are at 806 and 808 Broadway, New York, 137 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, O., and 258 and 260 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill. The Company has purchased the text-books hitherto published by D. Appleton & Co., A. S. Barnes & Co., Ivison, Blakeman & Co., and Van Antwerp, Bragg & Co., and will carry out all contracts entered into by these respective firms for the publication and supply of their books.

The Company, according to this announcement, claims to be "organized in the interest of a reasonable economy in the production and sale of school-books, and it will employ its capital, its combined labor and experience to produce books of the highest quality at the least cost, and will offer them at the lowest price at which similar books can be sold in any country. It will pursue an open, direct business policy towards competitors, customers, authors, and patrons. It seeks no monopoly, and invites an open and honorable competition, with respect both to quality and price of books for use in schools."

Further than this the representatives of the Company are not ready to make any statement as regards prices, discounts, etc., which will remain for the present at least as they have been. The immediate effect will in all probability be a closer adherence to prices. Ivison, Blakeman & Co. will keep control of their pen business, though supplies of these and the stationery stock of others of the combination will be handled by the American Book Company. The officers and directors of the Company are the same as given in our issue of April 26.

Ivison, Blakeman & Co., in making announcement of the change to their friends and customers, conclude their letter with the following paragraph: "In making this announcement we are deeply mindful of that sentiment which comes from the breaking up of old and friendly relationships which have existed for so many years. We shall, however, hope to renew these through the American Book Company, in which we shall be actively interested."

THE CENSUS AND THE PERIODICAL PRESS.

It is announced by the Census Bureau that the special schedule for that portion of the statistics of manufactures which embraces "Printing, Publishing, and the Periodical Press" has just been formulated and approved by Secretary Noble and Superintendent Porter, and that the schedules will be sent out to the enumerators at once, and placed in the hands of special agents during June and July, or so soon as they are appointed. The period to be covered is the census year beginning June 1, 1889, and ending May 31, 1890. If, however, the fiscal year of any establishment shall cover a different period, the return will be made for the fiscal year which conforms most nearly to the census year. At the Tenth Census there was obtained by Special Agent North a unique collection of over 11,000 newspapers and periodicals published in the United States during the census year, which collection was arranged, bound, and deposited for preservation at the Congressional Library. In view of the great historical value of such a collection, Superintendent Porter has decided to form a collection of all the newspapers, magazines, and periodical publications of every character and description printed in the United States during the present census year, to serve as a permanent memorial of the development of this important branch of American enterprise. This collection will be made in duplicate, one set for preservation at the Library of Congress and the other for deposit in the National Museum. The National Museum was not established as an adjunct of the Smithsonian Institution of the period of the Tenth Census, and hence only one newspaper collection was made at that time. The National Museum, however, has now attained importance, and Superintendent Porter has deemed it proper to make, and Professors Langley and Goode, the director and assistant director, have consented to accept a duplicate of the collection secured for the Library of Congress. By this means, should one of the collections suffer destruction, its duplicate will be preserved.

A. R. Spofford, the Librarian of Congress, has already made arrangements to give—when the new library building now in course of erection shall be completed—the large collection of newspapers and periodicals held by the library such space and superior accommodation as will make them readily accessible to the public. In addition to the bound files of certain metropolitan journals, which by law are required to be annually deposited at the Congressional Library by the Secretary of the Senate and Clerk of the House of Representatives, Mr. Spofford has custody of the collection made by George P. Rowell at the Philadelphia Centennial Exhibition of 1876, and the collection of the late Ben Perley Poore, whose newspaper possessions were bequeathed to the library. The crowded condition of the library, however, does not permit these collections to be freely utilized at the present time, but when they shall be supplemented by the census collection, and proper accommodation is afforded at the library building now in course of construction, the nucleus of a great branch of historical literature will have been successfully formed.

NATIONAL TEMPERANCE SOCIETY'S JUBILEE.

THE Twenty-fifth Anniversary of the National Temperance Society and Publication House was held in the Broadway Tabernacle, New York City, May 13. The report was presented by J. N. Stearns, Corresponding Secretary, showing the receipts for publications for the year to be $40,769.71, and from donations, legacies, etc., $8073.55, making a total of receipts of $48,843.26; expenses, $49,512.09. Ninety-seven new publications have been issued, and 28,880,072 pages printed the last twelve months. The review of twenty-five years showed 1853 different publications issued, and 798,389,019 pages printed. These publications have been written by over 350 different persons. The total receipts for publications for twenty-five years have been $1,049,746; from donations, etc., $260,493.09—making a total of receipts of $1,312,239.09.

There had been paid for copyright, literary labor, engraving, and stereotyping $134,514.43; 457,131 copies of Sunday-school books have been published, which are in circulation in ten thousand Sunday-schools of the land. Over $20,000 have been paid to women for writing Sunday-school books. 36,469,843 copies of the Youth's Temperance Banner have been published; 400,000 Catechisms on Alcohol; 743,000 lesson leaves; 253,000 responsive exercises; 116,000 copies of Ripples of Song; 7,719,000 copies of four-page illustrated children's tracts have also been issued. The combined circulation of the three papers published by the Society is over 150,000 monthly. Dr. T. L. Cuyler was elected President; J. N. Stearns was re-elected Corresponding and Recording Secretary; and W. D. Porter was elected Treasurer. Besides these there were elected 119 Vice-Presidents, representing the principal cities in the Union and ten managers.

HENRY B. DAWSON: AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY.

MANY to whom Henry B. Dawson was well known by reputation and some to whom his was a familiar appearance had not realized that he had died on May 23, 1889, until made aware of the fact by the announcement of the sale of his valuable and dearly-loved library. But few even of those who met this modest, unassuming man constantly during many years, knew that they had the privilege of knowing a learned scholar, whose quiet, conscientious, unremitting work was to be of lasting value, especially to students of American history.

Through the kindness of the family of Mr. Dawson we are enabled to give the following sketch of his life and work, which, being autobiographical, gives not only an authentic account of his great work in chronological sequence, but unconsciously shows the quick temper, prejudices, and idiosyncrasies combined with a simple, earnest, and lovable nature, as well as the mental calibre of a very remarkable man.

HENRY BARTON DAWSON was born at Gosberton, near Boston, in the county of Lincoln, England, June 8, 1821, and emigrated thence, with his parents, in the spring of 1834, to the city of New York, where, in the villages of Manhattanville and Bloomingdale, he continued to reside with his parents until the autumn of 1837, when the family removed to Ithaca, in Tompkins County, N. Y.

He enjoyed good educational advantages in his native village and in the neighboring town of Donington; and after his removal to New York, except during the summer of 1835, he attended Public School No. 12, in West Seventeenth Street, and the village school at Manhattanville, until March, 1836, at which time he was withdrawn from school, to assist his father, in the business of the latter, a gardener, although a free scholarship in either of four colleges was offered to him, by the Trustees of the Public School Society, because of his superior scholarship, an offer which his father did not permit him to accept.

He continued to assist his father in the gardens at Manhattanville, Bloomingdale, and Ithaca, until 1838, when he spent a short term of service, as an apprentice, with a wheelwright in Ithaca, and one as a clerk in a large publishing and book-selling house in the same village, the latter exactly meeting his tastes. Very much against his own inclinations and quite as much against the earnest attempts of his employers to keep him, in April, 1839, he was returned to the city of New York, in the employment of an aged and prominent resident of Ithaca, who was removing to this city, as his confidential clerk and book-keeper; and, in those capacities, sometimes in very extended businesses, he served different employers in the city of New York until the summer of 1847, when he was withdrawn from mercantile employment to take the editorial and business control of The Crystal Fount and Reckabite Recorder, a temperance and literary weekly, published in New York, which he had been compelled to accept in payment of a loan made to its former proprietor, and from which he himself was obliged to withdraw, a few months afterwards, with the loss, not only of the original loan, but of all the remainder of his entire savings. Subsequently he was employed by the International and the American Art Unions, in each instance as its New York City agent, continuing with each, successively, to the close of its existence; after which he was employed as their Secretary, by the builders and first proprietors of the Wall Street Ferry to Brooklyn; and, successively, by the Beekman and the Mechanics' Fire Insurance Companies, in each as its Secretary. With the failure of the last-named of these, early in 1856, his business career, as an employé of others, in purely business occupations, was ended.

During all the years of his childhood, youth, and early manhood, he had spent all the time which he could control, including much which he stole from the hours of his needed rest, in reading and study, especially of theology, of the science of government, and of the history of our own country; and, as early as the spring of 1841, his occasional articles, generally on the political questions of the day, and always anonymous, which were published in the daily newspapers in this city, attracted much attention—a series of three papers, based on the three sentences of President Harrison's dying words, and sent, anonymously, to one of the popular dailies of that time, had been used for the leading editorial articles on as many days, and had been much noticed. In the last-named instance, three editorial requests for the name and address of the writer of the articles, and for a personal interview, remained unanswered.

Notwithstanding the closeness of his application to his business engagements, his studies in theology, the science of government, and American history, already referred to, were diligently continued, generally into the small hours of the night; and it became known among his personal acquaintances, that his knowledge of each of those subjects was more than ordinarily complete. This led the venerable Clerk of the City, Deacon David T. Valentine, to invite him to write an historical paper for the widely known "Manual of the Corporation of the City of New York," of which the honored Deacon was the official editor. The result of that invitation was the first production, in American history, from his pen—a paper entitled, "The Park and its Vicinity," occupying fifty-three pages of the "Manual" for 1855. The importance of the claims which, in that paper, he presented in behalf of the city of New York, against the pretensions of Boston, for priority in the revolutionary movements of the Colonists, the boldness with which those claims were asserted and maintained, and the unquestionable authorities, largely from the contemporary Boston and New York newspapers, which he presented in support of those claims, commanded the immediate attention of historical students throughout the country; and the author of the paper, greatly to his own surprise, was honored with Corresponding Memberships in two leading Historical Societies, besides having been favored with the congratulations of many of those whose names and writings to-day are the property of the world.

That paper was subsequently reprinted, as the leading article, in a small volume of "Reminiscences of the Park and its Vicinity," printed exclusively for private circulation (New York:

Henry B. Sanford

1855); again, as the leading paper in two volumes of "Reminiscences of the City of New York and its Vicinity," which were also printed for private circulation, by those who were blessed with more of means than he possessed (New York: 1855, 1857); and, again, with very slight amendments, in a sumptuous octavo, the first of its author's series of "Gleanings," with its original title of "The Park and its Vicinity, in the City of New York." (Morrisania: 1867.)

The reputation which was made for its author, by the publications of "The Park and its Vicinity" led to invitations from various bodies, for other historical papers, to be read before them; but his constant occupation in business prevented the production of any, except an elaborate one, the work of all the time which he could command during two entire years, on "The Military Retreats through Westchester County in 1776," written for the New York Historical Society; and another, quite as elaborate, entitled "The Life and Times of Anne Hutchinson," written for the Baptist Historical Society, and subsequently published in successive numbers of the New York Chronicle, a weekly Baptist newspaper, published in New York by Rev. Pharellus Church, D.D., and his two sons.* Each of these papers broke up new ground in historical literature, which has continued to produce abundant fruit to this day; and both of them largely increased the reputation of their author as a painstaking and faithful writer of American history, and largely extended the circle of his literary friends and acquaintances.

In the spring of 1858, during one of his unemployed periods, he was invited by Johnson, Fry & Co., publishers of a number of serials, to write for them a work descriptive of the battles of the United States; and, with many misgivings as to his own ability to write such an extended work, with credit to himself or usefulness to those who employed him, he was induced to accept the invitation; and henceforth, he abandoned all other business than that which was incidental to his own works, as author or editor.

The title which he adopted for his proposed work was "Battles of the United States, by Sea and Land;" and his plan was as peculiar as it was attractive and useful—the operations in each battle, from that of Lexington to that before the city of Mexico, which ended in the surrender of that city, were given in detail, fortified by copious references to the best authorities; and to each of these separate narratives he appended all the principal documents relating to that particular battle, and, very frequently, biographical sketches of the respective commanding officers. He was encouraged, as he proceeded with this trying work, with the encouragement and approval of President Sparks, of Harvard College, William Gillmore Simms, General J. Spencer Smith, of Baltimore, Colonel Henry B. Armstrong, of Red Hook, Washington Irving, Commodore Paulding, Captain Farragut, General Winfield Scott, General John E. Wool, the family of General Worth, and others, the greater number of whom also furnished him with unpublished material, for his use in preparing his several narratives; and his recollections of the testimony which was borne to the superior character of his work, especially by President Sparks, Mr. Irving, Mr. Simms, Colonel Armstrong, General Smith, and General Wool, each of them peculiar and most emphatic, are among the most valued of his possessions. This work was published in two large quarto volumes (New York: 1858), beautifully printed and elaborately illustrated with forty highly finished steel-engravings by Smilie, Hall, Hinshelwood, Halpin, and others of equal reputation; and it obtained a circulation of upwards of thirty-five thousand copies, and established its author as one of the leading writers of military history in the United States. The work itself at once took its place among the standard authorities on that subject; and it continues to occupy that place in the literature of the country.

While he was engaged in writing this work, his remarks on the misconduct of General Israel Putnam in the battles of Bunker's Hill and Long Island were controverted by Hon. Henry Deming and A. Clifford Griswold, Esq., two well-known residents of Hartford. Over the signature of "Selah," these two gentlemen addressed three elaborate letters to the editor of the Hartford Daily Post, a leading daily newspaper in that city, in which they jointly endeavored to overthrow the grave accusations against General Putnam which had been published in "The Battles," at the same time attempting to belittle the professional character of the young author of that work. To each of these three letters the latter promptly replied, through the same newspaper, which was generously opened to him for that purpose; and he not only sustained what he had originally written concerning General Putnam, but added and sustained additional charges against that officer—in one of these he was assisted by Mr. Bancroft with the use of previously unpublished material of the highest possible authority; and in his last letter he openly accused General Putnam of disloyalty to his country while he was in her military service, and challenged his two opponents to contradict the statement. As they wisely refrained from joining issue with him on that subject, that extraordinary charge remains open, notwithstanding he held himself in readiness during the entire intervening period to meet any opponent for the examination of it. The correspondence published in the Hartford Daily Post extended from January 27 to July 29, 1859; and so great was the difficulty in procuring complete files of the papers containing it, that a number of private gentlemen in New York employed him to collect and edit all of the letters with an appropriate introduction, at their joint expense, the result of which was the elegant octavo volume, entitled "Major-General Israel Putnam: A correspondence on this subject with the editor of the Hartford Daily Post, by 'Selah,' of that city, and Henry B. Dawson, of White Plains, New York." (Morrisania: 1860.) That volume forms No. VI. of the author's series of "Gleanings," and the historical importance of the work and its rareness are such that copies generally command prices as high as from forty to fifty dollars each.

In May, 1859, on the invitation of the New York Historical Society, he prepared and read before that body a paper concerning the rise and progress of the opposition, in the colony of New York, to the Home Government, in the preparation of which he expended great labor and care; and that paper was subsequently printed, at the expense of General J. Watts de Peyster, of Tivoli, for private circulation, in an octavo volume, entitled, "The Sons of Liberty in New York. A paper read before the New York Historical Soclety, May 3, 1859, by Henry B. Dawson. Printed as Manuscript for private circulation. 1859."

The unexpected success of "The Battles" led him, in 1860, to collect material for and to make preparations for writing a complete military history of the United States, his former work including only the battles, besides having been abridged by the publishers, without his approval. About the same time, the children of Daniel D. Tompkins placed the large body of their father's papers in his hands, with a joint request that he should write a memoir of that distinguished New Yorker. He had commenced the writing of both of these, "The Military History of the United States" and "The Life and Times of Daniel D. Tompkins, Governor of New York and Vice-President of the United States," when the disaffection in the South and the subsequent war stopped his progress in each instance.

About the same time, while he was confined in a sick-room and unable to sit, except in a chair, supported with quilts and pillows, he was employed to write a tract, for general circulation, on the general subject of State Sovereignty; and it is said that immense numbers of it were circulated, gratuitously, in the Western and South-western States of the Union. It did not bear the name of its author; and, in the absence of a copy of it—a printed copy was not sent to him—its title cannot be given, in this place.

Early in 1861, he was employed by the Mercantile Library Association of New York to edit a volume which that body proposed to print for private circulation among its friends and patrons. It was composed of a collection of previously unpublished manuscripts, of the era of the American Revolution, which had been purchased and presented to the Association by a number of gentlemen in the city of New York; and he made voluminous annotations to each of these, and preceded the whole with an elaborate Introduction, in which, with great labor and research, he presented a minute description of the city and of its principal inhabitants, as they were in 1765. The volume was beautifully printed, in a small quarto volume, illustrated with a map of the ancient city, the whole bearing the title: "New York City during the American Revolution, being a Collection of original Papers (now first published), from the Manuscripts in the possession of the Mercantile Library Association of New York City. Privately printed for the Association. 1861."

In July of the same year, 1861, while he was yet propped up with pillows, in a sick-room, he wrote a very extended reply to the celebrated letter which John Lothrop Motley had written to The Times, in London, for the purpose of informing the British press and people concerning his (Motley's) views of the political troubles in the United States. The letter to The Times became very celebrated; and the reply to it, by reason of an assault which was subsequently made on its author by his old-time friend and associate, John Jay, became almost as famous in New York as the other, although that reply had not been printed nor seen by any one except by its author and a single friend and the counsel who were engaged in the action which was taken against John Jay. That notable reply to Motley was published, with the addition of very elaborate foot-notes, in March, 1871, with the title: "The Motley Letter. By Henry B. Dawson."

During the same year, 1862, while he was pursuing his studies of the political history of the American Revolution, the peculiar silence of Massachusetts concerning independence, early in 1776, led him to make a personal examination of the archives of that State, in her Secretary's office, in Boston, which resulted in the discovery of an act of the General Court, previously barely mentioned, without comment, by any historian and entirely unnoticed by nearly all of them, in which that Colony had declared and practically established her own independence, on the first of May, 1776. That very important historical information, illustrated with a fac-simile of a Commission from which the King's name had been erased and the King's seal destroyed, and new authority given to the holder of it, instead of by the King, by the Council of the Colony, in the name of "The Government and People of the Massachusetts Bay in New England," in accordance with the provisions of that Act, was published by him, in a letter addressed to Hon. Luther Bradish, President of the New York Historical Society, which was printed with the title, "New York Historical Society, Declaration of Independence, by the Colony of Massachusetts Bay, May 1, 1776."

During the same year, 1862, while he was searching for other information, he found what, subsequently, led him to discover the entire series of accounts between the City of New York and those who had controlled her revenues while that city had been occupied by the King's troops and governed by martial law, administered by the Commander-in-chief of the Royal Army, 1776-1783. As the original of all these accounts had been carried away when the Royal Army evacuated the city, in November, 1783, the Finance Department of the city had none of them, and, at the instance of Hon. George Opdyke, then Mayor of the city, he made a complete transcript of those accounts; added copies of all the certificates of those who had been appointed, from time to time, to audit them; illustrated the whole with elaborate notes, embodying the several military orders on which the several collections and disbursements had been made; and addressed them, in a communication, to the Mayor. His business education and experience in the counting-room enabled him to adjust these various accounts in a thoroughly complete and business-like form; and the Mayor, himself one of the leading merchants in the city, was so entirely satisfied with it, that he transmitted it, with a Special Message, to the Common Council. That body, not less satisfied with the result of that research than the Mayor had been, ordered the very extended communication, with its long series of accounts and certificates, and illustrative notes, to be printed, entire, in the "Minutes of the Board of Aldermen;" and, subsequently, in addition to a handsome recompense in money, he received from the corporation of the city its official thanks, an elegantly engrossed copy of which, appropriately framed, was forwarded to him by the City Clerk. As that is the only instance on record where the official thanks of the venerable city has been voted for a purely literary work, he always regarded it as the highest recognition of his historical labors which he received; and the magnificent copy of that vote of thanks, elegantly framed, which was officially sent to him, hung on the wall of his dining-room, bearing testimony to all who saw it of the high estimate which had been placed on his historical labors by the great city in which he lived. The entire series of papers, including the Special Message of the Mayor, the entire series of accounts, and all the illustrated documents and notes, was printed, in a neat pamphlet, at the expense of the city; but, in the absence of a copy of that pamphlet, the exact title of it cannot be given in this paper.

About the same time, the venerable Joseph J. Lewis, of Westchester, Pennsylvania, the executor of the Wayne estate, an entire stranger, and guided solely by the evidence of capability which the "Battles" had presented to him, tendered to him the extraordinary compliment of an appointment, under the provisions of the original will, to write a memoir of the distinguished revolutionary soldier, General Anthony Wayne, from the family papers. This compliment was the more extraordinary, from the fact that the venerable and learned executor had carefully preserved the great body of the General's papers, during the long period of thirty years, because he had found no one who had reached his high standard of capability, until the publication of the "Battles," especially the chapter of that work which describes the battle of Brandywine, had indicated to him that the young author of that work was the person for whom he had been looking, for so long a period an entire stranger, and of whom he had never previously heard. The outcome of that singular selection was the placing of the entire collection of General Wayne's papers in the hands of the author of the "Battles," and an agreement that the latter should prepare such a Memoir of General Wayne as he should consider proper, the executor reserving to himself the right to prepare that portion of the Memoir which related to Anthony Wayne's early life, before his entrance into the army. Subsequently, at the request of the executor, because of the want of interest in the subject which the General's descendants had shown to him, the work on the proposed Memoir was suspended, and was not resumed.

There was one outcome from that Wayne business, however, which needs be referred to. The Executive Committee of the New York Historical Society, when the fact that "the Wayne Papers" had passed into his hands had become known, invited him to prepare and to read before that distinguished body a paper on the capture of Stoney Point by General Wayne, in July, 1779. He accepted that invitation, and, in April, 1862, he read before the Society the paper which has become so widely known, in Europe as well as in America. For the purpose of saving time in the writing of the paper, he adopted the extraordinary expedient of taking those of the original manuscripts of the documents which he proposed to introduce into his paper, to the reading-desk, and reading them, instead of copies of them, to the large and intelligent audience who were assembled to listen to him. He very little thought what the effect of that direct use of original papers in the handwriting of Washington and La Fayette and Wayne and others little less distinguished, before such an audience, would be; as he read his narrative, from time to time unfolding and reading the time-worn manuscripts, for the further illustration of the subject of his paper, the great audience was intensely interested, and the distinguished President of the Society, Hon. Luther Bradish, at the close of the meeting, told the anxious wife of the speaker that during his (Governor Bradish's) more than twenty years' connection with the Society, no such paper as that had been read before the Society, and that no such effect had been produced on an audience. The effect of that extraordinary proceeding was a general call for the publication of the paper which was done in 1863. The volume, which is one of the handsomest specimens of American typography, contains the paper, as read before the Society, elaborately annotated, and with an "Appendix" which contains all known historical material of that period which bears on the subject of the work; and it is also illustrated with fac-similes of all the principal manuscripts on which the paper was based, and a copy of the official military map of the assault on the fort, which was published by the Geographer to the King, in 1784. The title of that beautiful volume is "The Assault on Stoney Point, by General Anthony Wayne, July 16, 1779. Prepared for the New York Historical Society, and read at its regular Monthly Meeting, April 1, 1862, with Map, Fac-similes, and illustrative Notes, by Henry B. Dawson, Morrisania, 1863."

During 1862 and 1863, he was closely engaged in preparing for the press a new and corrected edition of "The Fæderalist." That great standard authority in Constitutional law, since its original appearance in the newspapers in the city of New York, between October 27, 1787, and August 16, 1788, had become very much corrupted in its text, and he not only undertook to publish a text which should be exactly as the distinguished authors had left it, for which purpose every word and every point of punctuation of his "copy" were compared, critically, with the original publications, of which the several authors had undoubtedly read the "proofs," but he also preceded that text with a very elaborate historical and bibliographical "Introduction," in which the political history of New York, at that time, and the personal characters and qualifications for writing such a work, of her leading politicians, were carefully presented; the occasion which had made the "The Fæderalist" necessary, and the preparation and publication of it, were carefully and minutely described; a minute bibliographical description of each of the many editions of the work, as far as they had been found, was made, closing with a "Synoptical Table of Contents," occupying forty-nine pages, and "A Comparative Exhibit of the Claims to the Authorship of The Fæderalist," the latter based, in each of the eighty-five numbers of the work, on "the Benson Manuscript," written by General Hamilton himself; on General Hamilton's previously-made statement to James Kent, written by the latter in his own copy of "The Fæderalist;" on James Madison's statements, written by himself, in his own copy of the work, and in that of Benjamin Rush's; on the manuscript notes, written in their respective copies of the work by Fisher Ames, James Kent, and Thomas Jefferson; and on John Jay's recollections, obtained from his family, from Chancellor Kent's manuscript notes thereof, and from his (Jay's) biographer, in Delaplaine's "Repository." The first volume of this work, thus laboriously constructed and containing the entire text of "The Fæderalist," cleansed from the omissions and alterations which had been made in the current editions of the work, was published, in 1863, with this title: "The Fæderalist: a Collection of Essays, written in favor of the new Constitution, as agreed upon by the Federal Convention, September 17, 1787. Reprinted from the original text, with an historical Introduction and Notes, by Henry B. Dawson. In two volumes. Volume I. New York: 1863." It was intended to include in Volume II. all the material, concerning

"The Fæderalist," from the pens of Hamilton, Madison, Jay, Kent, and others, to which reference has been made, and all of history and judicial decisions bearing on the several subjects discussed in the several Numbers of the work which were accessible; closing the whole with the most complete "Index," personal and topical, which could possibly be made; and he not only gathered the material, but he had completed large portions of the volume, when, as will be noticed hereafter, his work on "The Fæderalist" and all which were connected with it, was definitely abandoned, because of its too evident unprofitableness.

Early in 1864 an elegantly printed edition of the only published volume of "The Fæderalist," bearing the same general title as the other (Morrisania: 1864), was published on large paper; other impressions of the ordinary library edition were also printed in rapid succession, and, during the same year, at the request of distinguished educators, in different parts of the country, in order that the work might be employed for a text-book in colleges and schools, he abridged the "Introduction" of the library edition, and published an edition particularly adapted for educational purposes, with the title of "University Edition. The Fæderalist: a Collection of Essays, written in favor of the new Constitution, as agreed upon by the Federal Convention, September 17, 1787. Reprinted from the original text, under the editorial supervision of Henry B. Dawson. New York: 1864." Of this abridged edition, several impressions were printed; and it was adopted for a text-book by Harvard University and several colleges, by the Board of Education of the City of New York, and by a large number of teachers in different parts of the country.

Notwithstanding "The Fæderalist" was well received by educators and by those in other professions who were interested in works of that class, notably so by the venerable President Quincy, whose memory of the past included the original publication of the work, in successive numbers of the newspapers in New York and elsewhere; and notwithstanding it was adopted by the Secretary of State and by the Attorney-General of the United States as the version of the work which should thenceforth be employed officially in those offices respectively, it was not sufficiently remunerative, and presented too little of promise of future sales to induce its editor to complete it, by the addition of another volume to that already published; and the great and exceedingly valuable collection of unpublished material which, as has been already stated, he had commenced to use in the preparation for the press of volume 2 of the work, was laid aside; and "The Fæderalist" and all which related to it were abandoned.

As his plan had included, besides "The Fæderalist," which was to occupy two volumes, the publication, also, in size and style uniform with those of that work, of all those other papers, not less able in their opposition to the proposed Constitution than those of "The Fæderalist" were in support of it, which were written by Richard Henry Lee, Vice-President George Bryan, of Pennsylvania, De Witt Clinton, and others, over the signatures of "Brutus," "Cato," "An Orange County Farmer," etc., these also in two large octavo volumes, with the general title of "The Anti-Fæderalist: a Collection of Essays, written in opposition to the new Constitution, as agreed upon by the Fæderal Convention, September 17, 1787. Reprinted from the original texts, with an historical Introduction and Notes, by Henry B. Dawson, in two volumes;" and as he proposed to complete the series with a "History of the Constitution for the United States, by Henry B. Dawson, in three volumes," in which the entire subject would be carefully examined and faithfully presented, his abandonment of "The Fæderalist" was an abandonment of the whole. The great and valuable collection of material concerning the Constitution and its real character, and the characters and purposes of its authors and supporters, as well as those of its opponents, which he had gathered from every portion of the country, with great labor and expense, and the years of earnest study of that material which he had expended, went for nothing, and, very largely, wasted almost entirely.

The publication of the first volume of "The Fæderalist" was immediately followed by an attack on both the volume and its editor, from the pen of his old-time friend and associate, John Jay, a grandson of one of the authors of the original work, and, subsequently, the Minister Plenipotentiary of the United States to Austria-Hungary; and by a similar attack from the pen of the venerable James A. Hamilton, a son of another of its authors. These articles were printed in The Evening Post, then edited by William Cullen Bryant; and they created much excitement among the literati of New York, because of the high social character of the two accusers, of the gravity of the charges presented, and of the ability with which those charges had been presented and maintained. Notwithstanding, at that time, the accused was temporarily occupying the office of Secretary of the Harlem Bridge, Morrisania, and Fordham Railroad Company, which occupied his entire time from early in the morning until late at night, he answered each of his distinguished assailants successively, also through The Evening Post, in which he successfully defended both his work and himself, in an array of facts which commanded the respect of nearly every one, and in the quaint but expressive words of one of his biographers, "satisfied his friends, if not his opponents." Congratulations were sent to him from many of the most distinguished gentlemen in the country; and soon afterwards a number of the principal residents of Westchester County, within which county all the disputants then resided, united and caused to be printed, at their joint expense, a thousand copies of the four letters which had been published in The Evening Post, for gratuitous circulation, especially throughout that county. It is very probable the circulation of that correspondence in Westchester County was a principal cause of the very general and unusual confidence in him, as an author and an historian, which was seen to so remarkable an extent when, early in 1884, the subscription-books for Scharf's proposed "History of Westchester County" were first circulated—only a small number of the residents of the county would give their subscriptions for the proposed history until "Mr. Dawson should have approved the work, and have said it was 'all right.'" The title of the pamphlet which was thus printed and circulated was "Correspondence between John Jay and Henry B. Dawson, and between James A. Hamilton and Henry B. Dawson, concerning 'The Fæderalist.' New York: 1864." Subsequently, those who sympathized with the accused editor, in their joy that he had so completely overcome his powerful opponents, caused another and much more elegant edition of the pamphlet to be printed at the Bradstreet Press, on large paper, with rubricated titles, and bearing the same general title; and, still later, a very small edition was printed, yet more sumptuously, on Whatman's drawing-paper, at the expense of one of the gentlemen who had been concerned in the publication of the two earlier editions. Both the editions last referred to were, of course, for private circulation only.

He was led to regard the pamphlet last described as the first of a series of tracts, similar in their character and purposes, which he proposed to publish, and to which he gave the general title of "Current Fictions Tested by Uncurrent Facts;" and, in the prosecution of that purpose, for the second tract of that series, he prepared, with great care and labor, a defence of what he had published concerning James Duane, Robert R. Livingston, John Jay, and Alexander Hamilton, in his "Introduction to The Fæderalist." In doing so he took up, successively, each paragraph of his statements concerning these four distinguished New Yorkers; and, sentence by sentence, sometimes the sentences were divided, all of them were separately and minutely examined and presented to the reader, with the multitude of authorities, all of them of the highest character, on which each distinct statement rested. A large portion of this proposed tract, the second of his proposed series of "Current Fictions Tested by Uncurrent Facts," was actually put in type; but it was unfinished at the time when he abandoned his work on "The Fæderalist," and it was not completed—the printers' "revises," as far as it had been put in type, and the remainder of the manuscript alone remained to show of many a day and night of earnest and intelligent thought and labor thrown away.

Early in 1865, the death of his friend, William J. Davis, the well known antiquary, led him to prepare a catalogue of that gentleman's valuable historical library, to superintend the sale of it, for the benefit of the orphan children of the latter, and to prepare a suitable memoir of the deceased for publication. The catalogue was published in two forms, one of them in the ordinary form of sales catalogues, the other in an elegant quarto, on tinted laid paper, with rubricated title-page. Each of these bore the title, "Catalogue of the Entire Private Library of the late William J. Davis. To be sold at auction by order of the Administrator, on Monday evening, April 17, 1865, and the following evenings, until all is sold, by Bangs, Merwin & Co." The memorial of the deceased was also printed at the Bradstreet Press, on tinted laid paper, in exact uniformity of size and general style with the large-paper "Catalogues of the Library." It bore the simple title, "William Jackson Davis. In Memoriam, 1866." Having saved to the estate of the deceased the heavy expenses of cataloguing the books, besides overseeing the sale of them and protecting them from sacrifice, he had the pleasure of securing for the children of his friend a very handsome sum, far exceeding their appraised value; and he caused the memorial and the large-paper catalogue to be printed from the commission allowed by the printer, without diminishing the property of the children therefor to the extent of a single cent.

OBITUARY.

OLIVER BELL BUNCE.

It is with deep regret that we write "the end" to the life of Oliver Bell Bunce, who died at about three o'clock in the morning of May 15, at the age of sixty-two years.

MR. BUNCE was born in the city of New York, February 8, 1828, and came of good old English stock on both sides of his family. His early education was confined to a private school, but his literary aptitudes showed themselves in his passion for books and contributions to the newspapers. Compelled by family circumstances to enter business when very young, he became a clerk with the well-known stationery firm of Jansen & Bell, the latter of the two partners being his uncle. Here he remained till past his twentieth year; but in the meantime his passion for writing, which had taken the form of dramatic composition, bore fruit in two plays, which found acceptance on the stage. "Fate or the Prophecy," a tragedy in blank verse, was produced and played by James W. Wallack; and a comedy, "Love in '76," was staged by Laura Keane, with herself in the principal woman part. Another play, an heroic tragedy, entitled "Marco Botzarris," was shortly afterward accepted and played by Mr. James Wallack. All of these pieces were successes of esteem, but, as was the fashion of that time, none of them had a long run. Mr. Bunce's first essay in book-form was "Romance of the Revolution," sketches of dramatic episodes in our first great struggle. He formed the book publishing firm of Bunce & Brother at the age of twenty-five, and became editor as well as publisher of Mrs. Ann S. Stephens' Monthly. After several years of hard struggle, owing to insufficient capital, the business failed, and Mr. Bunce became manager of the publishing firm of James C. Gregory, which he conducted for the estate with signal success for several years after the death of the principal. It was mainly through his instigation that the splendid edition of Cooper's novels, illustrated in steel and wood by F. O. C. Darley, was planned and published. It may also be noted in passing that it was at this time that Mr. Bunce became the pioneer in that kind of fine art publication since so common—superbly illustrated poems for holiday sale. The work referred to was "In the Woods with Bryant, Longfellow, and Halleck," illustrated by John A. Hows. In 1860 Mr. Bunce wrote two novels, "A Bachelor's Story" and "Life Before Him," which were published by W. A. Townsend & Company, and in 1863 his novel "Bensley" was issued by James C. Gregory. After the dissolution of the latter house, Mr. Bunce was for a short time associated with the business of Harper & Brothers; and in 1867 he formed the connection with D. Appleton & Company, with which firm his life has since been identified. When Appletons' Journal was started in 1870 he was made associate editor, and a year afterward was placed in sole charge. Out of the earlier numbers of this weekly magazine grew "Picturesque America," one of the colossal publishers' successes of the age. The illustrations furnished by the noted "black and white" artist, Harry Fenn, to several descriptive papers, notably those on Florida and Mount Desert, were so striking as to suggest further work in the same line, but in a different form. Discussions with members of the firm on the part of Mr. Bunce finally shaped the enterprise of reproducing all the more strikingly picturesque features of the United States through the medium of pen and pencil. The work was issued in numbers, and probably no publication ever planned in this country has attained such financial results, the reported figures of which seem almost fabulous. Though the poet Bryant was the nominal editor, Mr. Bunce had sole control of the literary and art execution of the work, and the ability with which he discharged the difficult task had much to do with the success of the enterprise. "Picturesque Europe" and "Picturesque Palestine" also owed largely to his intelligent supervision. In addition to his editorial charge of Appletons' Journal and "Picturesque America," he was also the editor of the Art Journal, during the time it was carried on by the Appletons, and was in other ways a trusted adviser of the firm.

In spite of the business pressure involved in the duties of editing and publishing, the literary energy and ambition of Mr. Bunce were insatiable. He wrote successively, in his latter days, "The Opinions and Disputations of Bachelor Bluff," a volume of racy reflections on art, literature, and society; "Timias Terrystone," a novel; the famous "Don't," in a small way as great a success as "Picturesque America;" "My House, an Ideal," a charming study of a country home; and "The Story of Happinoland," a collection of sketches and essays. He was also an occasional contributor to the magazines and reviews, mostly on economic subjects, a field of thought to which he had given the closest attention. The little book "Don't," which Mr. Bunce put together in the haphazard moments of leisure, and probably at the time with hardly a second thought, has been translated into several foreign languages, has passed through scores of editions abroad, and has been honored with a flood of imitations.

For more than twenty years Mr. Bunce was the victim of the terrible disease to which he has just succumbed. His life was one long heroic battle with illness. So frail in person that a breath seemed likely to blow him away, hampered by pain and weakness, no physical suffering could daunt his courage or quench his energy. To the toils of office business by day, he added the willingly assumed burden of literary labor by night. His mental endurance and vigor seemed untiring, even when his body was worn out. It was always his determination to die in harness. Mr. Bunce was one whose varied responsibilities brought him more than others in contact with strangers having business with the great publishing house which he represented. To inconsequent visitors an irritability growing out of physical pain was sometimes evident; to those offering legitimate claims on his attention, he was a model of patience and courtesy. For many years thrown into intimate relations with authors and artists, and himself an author, he had the keenest sympathies with the literary and art classes. But he knew how to blend this sympathy happily with the strictest sense of right and justice as a publisher. Many struggling aspirants, who have since been successful, owe much to his words of advice or criticism; and to still more substantial aid in commissions for work. He had a quick perception of nascent talent, and it always filled him with the keenest pleasure to give it aid and inspiration.

Perhaps chief in the rich endowment of moral qualities stamping the character of Mr. Bunce was his extreme conscientiousness. His sense of duty to those who had any claims on him was almost quixotic, and the sentiment of personal honor was a fanaticism, so strictly did the law of noblesse oblige actuate every thought and motive of his life. A large portion of his career was spent under the employment of others. Of few can it be said, as of him, that he was more jealous and exacting in furthering the interests of his employers than he ever was in pushing his own. It was this splendid and single-minded devotion to duty that made the life of Mr. Bunce a model and inspiration to others, even more than the intellectual influence which in other ways made his work most helpful.

He was one of the founders of the Authors' Club, an institution in which he always took the deepest interest, and also a member of the St. Nicholas Society. A wife, three daughters, and one son constitute his surviving family, of whom the son and the eldest daughter are married.

FRANKLIN H. TINKER, of Root & Tinker, died at his home in Short Hills, N. J., May 14, at the age of thirty-six years. Mr. Tinker began business at Racine, Wis. He afterward went to Chicago, where he became associated with Charles T. Root, and with him came to New York in 1876. They have since come to be among the largest publishers of trade journals in the United States. Among their journals are The Clothier and Furnisher, The Hatter and Furrier, and The Oil, Paint and Drug Reporter. Mr. Tinker was a member of the Grolier Club and other organizations here and New Jersey, and was quite popular, being a man of refined tastes and noble character. He leaves a wife and one child. His father, Henry F. Tinker, who by the way was not a member of the firm, died in November last year.

WILLIAM BLADES one of the most scholarly and enthusiastic bibliographers and printers of the Victorian era died April 27, at his residence, Suffolk House, Sutton, Surrey, Eng. Mr. Blades was born in London in 1824, and was educated at Clapham Grammar School under the Rev. C. Pritchard, F.R.S., afterwards Savilian Professor at Oxford. In due course Mr. Blades succeeded his father as a printer and threw his whole energy into his allotted duties in life. His knowledge of early printed books was almost unrivalled, and he was a frequent contributor to current literature on matters connected with the history of the art of printing and kindred themes. He edited a reprint of the "Gouvernaye of Helthe" and other quaint old books, but he will probably be chiefly remembered by his standard "Life of William Caxton," published in two volumes in 1861-3; and by that magnificent work, "Numismata Typographica," which appeared in 1883, and has since been translated both into French and German. Readers of the London Athenæum and Notes and Queries are sure to miss for many a day the characteristic and genial bibliographical notes with which Mr. Blades was accustomed to enrich both journals.

AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY'S ANNUAL MEETING.

AT the annual meeting of the American Tract Society, held in New York on the 7th inst., Dr. Rand, of the publishing department, reported that during the year past ninety-four new permanent publications had been added to the society's list. Of these, sixty-two were in English, eighteen in German, two in Spanish, three in Italian, one in Swedish, and eight in Bohemian. Thirty-seven were volumes and fifty-seven booklets and tracts in various styles. In addition to the new publications, many books and tracts were reissued during the year. The periodicals of the society were six in number, two of which were in German and four in English. "Four of these," continued Dr. Rand, "are illustrated; two are weekly and four monthly; three are for adults and families and three for children of various ages. The aggregate circulation of the periodicals is 2,413,600." The following officers were elected: President, William L. Strong, of Washington; Vice-President, General O. O. Howard; Publishing Committee, the Rev. Drs. W. M. Taylor and W. H. P. Faunce; Distributing Committee, Dr. W. N. Blakeman and John Noble Stearns; Finance Committee, Caleb B. Knevals and William A. Wheelock; other members of the Executive Committee: the Rev. William H. Rice, Dr. Alex. Mackay-Smith, and John D. Cutter.

OLD BOOK CHAT.

HENRY STEVENS said that no Englishman or American should view the copies of Coverdale's Bible in the Caxton Exhibition without first raising his hat. It is but right that the sight of the first Bible in our language should awaken feelings of profound veneration and indeed thankfulness, for no other work has had such an influence upon the character and destinies of the English-speaking races. Greatly to the inspiration of the Scriptures may be laid the proud positions of America and Great Britain to-day. Although the history of Coverdale's Bible was made the study of hundreds of enthusiastic students, although copies or even fragments were eagerly searched for, over a long period of time, and in many countries, its true history was until lately involved in contradiction and vexation. The collation of the book was in doubt, no perfect copy being known; its place of printing was variously debated as being Zurich, Frankfort, Cologne, or Lubec, and in fact beyond that the book existed and that several more or less imperfect fragments had been sold for sums varying from £365 to £30, no definite knowledge upon the subject existed. A great deal of this uncertainty has been swept away by later researches, and notably by the labors of the late Mr. Henry Stevens, of Vermont. It is fairly settled now that to Antwerp belongs the honor of producing our first complete Bible, the model of every later version and upon which our own authorized edition is based. The actual translation was probably done by Jacob van Meteren, who employed Miles Coverdale to put the work into good English. As Mr. Stevens said, "All honor to Miles Coverdale, the learned scholar, the modest, self-sacrificing student, the earnest, simple-minded Christian, who was unquestionably the best proof-reader and corrector of his age; to whom perhaps more than any other one man of his time, William Tyndall himself not excepted, the English language owes a debt of gratitude for its clearness, pointedness, and simplicity. That he left in this our first complete English Bible some few foreignisms (sic) and some inverted English is not surprising when we find that the dozen corps of revisers since have not seen fit or been able to exclude them." The translation was made, by the way, from Dutch and Latin. The death of van Meteren and his wife by drowning, while on a voyage to England by invitation of Edward VI., and flight of Coverdale during the reign of Queen Mary and his subsequent return to peace and security under Elizabeth, his honors and death at the ripe old age of eighty-one, are matters of history too well known to need dwelling upon.

BALLADE OF THE "PROVENANCE."

THEY stand in shameless loud array
And glowing colors bright,
In sadly tones they seem to say,
"We are not right—not right.
O buy us not or sad regrets
Upon thy soul will fall,
We are not cheap, he ne'er forgets
Who buyeth, one or all."

Here is the faked up "provenance"
Done by a hand of shame,
Which yet beneath the bookman's glance
Unwitting will proclaim,
"Here lies the bogus Pompadour,
Here the false Clovis Eve
With royal arms, and all galore
The tricks, Prince, to deceive."

"See, too, an ornate Grolier
The master never saw,
And me, bound by Trautz Bauzonnet
(Jones is his brother-in-law)."
Ah, in shameless loud array
And glowing colors bright,
They seem in sadly tones to say,
"We are not right, not right."

L'ENVOI.

Stay, Prince, awhile thy anger rash,
Do not with sorrow weep;
If you'd be free from all such trash
Seek not to buy too cheap!

ELLIOT STOCK, London, has just issued the third volume of Book-Prices Current, covering the period from December, 1888, to November 1889. It is pleasant to believe that compiler and publisher have received encouragement to continue their enterprise, which must become more and more valuable as years roll on. The sales recorded were not of a very exceptional character. The most notable was that of the Perkins Library, famous for its quartos, which realized altogether £8222 for 2086 lots. It was here that Mr. Quaritch paid £415 for the first folio of Shakespeare, £225 for the quarto of "Henry IV., Part ii.," £164 for the quarto of "Romeo and Juliet," and £130 for the quarto of "Othello." The same buyer gave £2000 for the Mentz Bible in Lord Hoptoun's sale, and £650, £470, £365, and £195 for four Caxtons belonging to the Duke of Buccleuch. The highest average or prices seems to have been reached by the second portion of the Earl of Crawford's library—£7734 for 1105 lots; but the sale which most clearly attested the modern phase of bibliomania was that of Mr. J. M. Mackenzie, of Edinburgh, who had had his first editions of Dickens so carefully illustrated and bound that "Sketches by Boz" fetched £30, and "Pickwick" £22, while choice Cruikshanks realized even more.

BIBLIOPHILUS.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

"NYM CRINKLE" (A. C. Wheeler) has completed his "Romance of New York," as he calls it.

BENJAMIN R. TUCKER writes us that his translation of Tolstol's "Kreutzer Sonata" was not made from the German.

ARTHUR T. QUILLER COUCH, connected with Cassell & Co., is the author of "The Splendid Spur," first issued by Cassell & Co. under the pseudonym of "Q."

DR. CARL LUMHOLZ, the author of that exceedingly interesting book, "Among Cannibals," is making ready to visit a "remnant of the Aztecs believed to be surviving in the mountains of Northern Mexico."

SIR EDWIN ARNOLD is occupying his leisure in Japan with the composition of a new epic poem entitled "The Light of the World," the subject being the founder of Christianity and His doctrines. It is understood that the treatment of these topics and the method of the work, will be distinctly original.

THE Pall Mall Budget says that the author of "Mark Rutherford" and "The Revolution in Tanner's Lane," two books that have attracted unusual attention from serious-minded novel-readers, is Mr. W. Hale White, a native of Bedford, England. He graduated in 1850 at New College, Edinburgh, and until recently held a prominent position in the Admiralty.

MRS. HUMPHRY WARD, according to a friend of E. W. Bok, has put aside her new novel, owing to her labors with the new University hall movement in London. It is therefore doubtful whether the book will see print this year. The hero of the novel is not a mechanic, as has been reported, but a book-clerk; and the social questions of the day do not begin to come forth as prominently in the story as the paragraphers have made it appear.

It is announced in the Southern local papers that ex-Gov. Robert Lowry and Col. William H. McCardle are engaged in the preparation of "A History of Mississippi, from the earliest period of its settlement by the French to the death of Jefferson Davis." Col. McCardle has long been engaged in collecting material for such a history, and Gov. Lowry since his retirement from the position of Chief Magistrate of Mississippi has had a similar work in contemplation.

GUSTAV KOBBE, whose "Wagner's Ring of the Nibelung" passed through a fifth edition last winter, will publish early in the fall, through G. Schirmer, 35 Union Square, N. Y., three more volumes on Wagner. The title of the series, which includes the book mentioned above, will be "Wagner's Life and Works," the first volume being devoted to biography; the second to Wagner's literary productions, operas, and miscellaneous musical works; and the third and fourth to the music-dramas. The new volumes will, like that which has been so successful, contain numerous musical examples and be illustrated.

SOON after the death of Victor Hugo a project was started to erect a grand monument in his honor in Paris, but thus far only $20,000 have been subscribed and the promoters of the scheme are said to be not very sanguine about collecting the rest of the sum necessary. The London

World remarks that the French public "seem to think that it did its whole duty in spending a million to worthily conduct the poet's dead body to the Panthéon." It is announced that this month Hugo's literary executors will publish a posthumous volume of travels, which they believe will have great success, and with the proceeds of this work and the four or five other volumes to appear they hope eventually to get together the $40,000 or $50,000 desired for the statue.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

Good News is the title of a new weekly paper especially for the young, just begun by Street & Smith. Among the contributors we notice the names of Oliver Optic, Horatio Alger, Jr., Harry Castlemon, Edward S. Ellis, and William M. Thomas. Mr. W. B. Lawson is the editor.

A NUMBER of young ladies, graduated from Vassar, Wellesley, and other similar institutions, have recently founded in New York what is known as "The College Settlement in Rivington Street," for the purpose of teaching the people of that neighborhood "how to live." Frances J. Dyer describes the humane enterprise in the number of Harper's Bazar for May 16.

The Transatlantic for May 1 contains a translation from Le Figaro of an interview between Henri Bryois and Zola, in which the great novelist defined his plan for completing the Rougemacquet series for which he still proposes to write three volumes, one on "Money," one on "War," and one entitled "Dr. Pascal." He is deeply engaged in studies for the settings and details of the former two; the last, he says, will be the record of the life of the illustrious savant Claude Bernard, whose scientific methods have been employed by Zola in all his novels. This man was, as he says, "one of the unfortunates of existence whose conjugal life was a martyrdom."

The Author is the title of a new English magazine to be issued at once under the editorial management of Walter Besant. In the leading editorial, according to a correspondent of the New York Sun, Mr. Besant explains that the new magazine is "founded to be the organ of literary men and women of all kinds—the one paper which will fully review, discuss, and ventilate all questions connected with the profession of literature in all its branches. It will be the medium by which the Society of Authors will inform its members generally of their doings, and it will become the public record of transactions conducted in the interests of literature, which have hitherto been secret and hidden for want of such an organ. The chief aims of the society, which have been advanced again and again, are: First, to promote the recognition of the fact, hitherto most imperfectly understood, that literary property is as real a thing as property in every other kind of business; that it should be safeguarded in the same manner and regarded with the same jealousy."

BUSINESS NOTES.

BOULDER, COLO.—F. J. Whitney has opened a new stationery store, and will also carry a large stock of books.

BRIGHTON, COLO.—D. F. Carmichael has purchased Mayor McKean's stock of books, stationery, etc.

FRESNO, CAL.—South & Fentem's stock of books, etc., has been burned out.

GRAYVILLE, ILL.—T. J. Matthews, bookseller, has sold out to J. A. Shelton.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.—Edwards & Mercer, booksellers, have dissolved partnership.

NASHVILLE, TENN.—Marie Lemon, bookseller and stationer, has sold out.

NEW ALBANY, IND.—The stock of books recently owned by L. Russell (deceased) is for sale.

PORTLAND, ORE.—Singletary & Casey, booksellers and stationers, are making extensive alterations in their store to accommodate their increasing stock.

ST. PAUL, MINN.—W. L. Beekman has removed to 55 E. Fifth Street. He has opened this new store with over two thousand picked volumes in every branch of literature, besides a large and varied stock of stationery, etc. He intends making a specialty of second-hand books.

SHERMAN, TEXAS.—Donaldson & Hopson, booksellers and stationers, have gone out of business.

SPRINGFIELD, MO.—A. B. Fairbanks & Co., booksellers and stationers, have dissolved partnership.

TACOMA, WASH.—Kingston Book and Stationery Company is the name of a new book and stationery store, located at 913 Pacific Ave. They have purchased the stock of Chas. H. Herald and will keep a first-class assortment of books, cards, fine stationery, etc.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE DE WITT PUBLISHING HOUSE, N. Y., has just ready "Lessons in Love," by Lady Blessington, including the whole art of courtship, one hundred valuable receipts for the young lady of to-day, and how to become beautiful.

THE Salem (Mass.) Press Publishing and Printing Co. will, if the requisite support be obtained, issue in parts by subscription a "History of the Putnam Family in England and America," by Eben Putnam, of Boston. The work will be illustrated.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish this fall the work on the "Economic and Social History of New England," from 1620 to 1789, with an appendix of prices, written by William B. Weedon, a well-known Providence manufacturer, which promises to be of remarkable interest.

ESTES & LAURIAT have in press an édition de luxe, limited to 500 numbered copies, of one of the best of Victor Hugo's early writings, "Hans of Iceland." It will be uniform with their édition de luxe edition of "Nôtre-Dame," but will appear in one volume. The illustrations will be etchings, photo-etchings, half-tone engravings, and fine woodcuts.

GUSTAV KOBÉ, 251 Broadway, N. Y., has published a series of excellent road maps, clearly and neatly printed, which will be found reliable and especially useful for cyclists and pedestrians.

The series so far includes the Jersey Coast, Central and Northern New Jersey, Long Island, Staten Island, and Westchester Co., N. Y., and part of Fairfield Co., Conn.

ISAAC PITMAN & SONS announce that they have opened an office at 3 East Fourteenth Street, New York, under the management of Mr. Clarence A. Pitman. Mr. Isaac Pitman, the inventor of phonography, still presides over the Phonetic Institute at Bath, Eng., where he has resided uninterruptedly for more than half a century. He is in his seventy-eighth year, yet he supervises a correspondence of 30,000 letters a year, besides editing the Phonetic Journal and compiling the numerous books which he annually publishes.

JOHN LOVELL, the veteran Canadian publisher, and father of the well-known New York publishers, J. W. and F. F. Lovell, proposes to print a "Gazetteer and History of Every County, District, Parish, Township, City, Town, and Village in the Eight Provinces, with descriptions of more than 3000 Islands, Lakes, and Rivers in the Dominion of Canada." As the expense necessitates a subscription in advance of $150,000, and as thus far only a sixth of this sum has been pledged, it is not likely to see print very soon.

THE MAISON QUANTIN, Paris, will issue shortly a work of great value to artists and decorators, entitled "Les Tapisseries Coptes," by M. Gerspach, Manager of the National Factory for Gobelin Tapestry. Recent discoveries have brought to light many of the patterns of the textile fabrics manufactured by the Coptic race, the most skilful decorators of Egypt during the first ten centuries of the Christian era. The text will be illumined by upwards of 150 designs, reproduced from the originals and printed in monotint and colors, which in themselves will make the book a treasure to practical decorators.

THE CASSELL PUBLISHING Co. have in press two interesting additions to their Sunshine Series—the one entitled "An Artist's Honor," by Octave Feuillet, translated by E. P. Robins; the other "Not of Her Father's Race," by Wm. T. Meredith. Another good novel in preparation is "Vengeance is Mine," by E. C. Hansen. They will publish at once "Stolen America," a novel by Mrs. Isabel Henderson Floyd, calling attention to the defenceless condition of the seacoast of the United States, giving a graphic and picturesque description of Bermuda, which she claims was stolen from our country by the English; "Vivier, of Vivier, Longman & Co.," a novel by Barclay North; also a new edition of their excellent Cassell's Pocket Guide to Europe.

THE next issue of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, dated May 24, will be the Summer Number. This has proven itself an excellent medium both for the home and summer-resort bookseller for making the most of summer trade. This is the season of the year when more than at any other time trade needs "nursing." That it pays to do so through such a medium as "Summer Reading" has been attested by all who have made use of it. We ask publishers to be prompt in supplying their advertising, and booksellers in sending their imprint orders for this issue.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

THE BEST KEY TO EDUCATIONAL BOOKS.

Imprint edition—without publishers' advertisements.

THE
American Educational Catalogue
For 1890 [Twenty-first Year].

THE AMERICAN EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE, whose value to the trade is proved by the fact that it is now in its twenty-first year, claims to be the best practical aid to the dealer in or buyer of school-books.

With its alphabetical arrangement by authors, its separate class-index, carefully sub-classified to an extent not followed by any other catalogue, its completeness and accuracy, it is presented as the best finding-list, the most convenient order-list, and the most satisfactory class-catalogue for school use.

The catalogue has recently been remade, to omit books which have dropped out of use and to include all live books, and it adds all new books (ready or to be ready for the fall) in their proper alphabetical place.

The page giving the key to publishers will not be given in imprint editions unless specially ordered. The Telegraphic Code will not be continued, as the code plan is reported to us to give more trouble than it saves.

This Catalogue is specially planned to be of service for circulation by retailers among schools and private buyers. The imprint edition possesses not only temporary value, but will serve its purpose during the whole year. No imprint edition of less than 100 copies can be supplied. Orders for editions should be sent to us at once.

CASH TERMS.

*With sole imprint of ordering firm, and stitched, per 100 copies, $5.00 ;
per 1000, $40.00.*

There is no extra charge for printing name, business card, etc., on the imprint page ; the last page is left blank at the disposal of the dealer, but any copy for that page, advertising special lines or general business, will be set up and printed thereon for $5.00, or $1.00 if plate is sent.

\ * Copy for imprint and shipping directions should accompany the order.*

The regular Educational Number of "THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY" will be supplied at 25 cents per copy, or five for $1.00, postpaid.

WEBSTER

ANCIENT AND MODERN. DON'T BE DUPED.

A so-called "Webster's Unabridged Dictionary" is being offered to the public at a very low price. The body of the book, from A to Z, is a cheap reprint, page for page, of the edition of 1847, which was in its day a valuable book, but, in the progress of language for over forty years, has been completely superseded. It is now reproduced, broken type, errors and all, by a photographic process, is printed on cheap paper and flimsily bound. It is advertised to be the substantial equivalent of "an eight to twelve dollar book," while in fact it is a literal copy of a book which in its day was retailed for about $5.00, and that book was much superior in paper, print, and binding to this imitation, and was then the best Dictionary of the time instead of an antiquated one. A brief comparison, page by page, between the reprint, and the latest and enlarged edition will show the great superiority of the latter. No honorable dealer will allow the buyer of such to suppose that he is getting the Webster which to-day is accepted, as the Standard and The Best.

There are several of these reprints, differing in minor particulars, but, don't be duped, the body of each is a literal copy of the 1847 edition.

WHAT THE PAPERS SAY.

The New York Times says:

"Only those who are ignorant of the great advances that have been made in dictionaries are likely to buy this reprint at any price."

The American Bookseller, of New York, says:

"The etymologies are utterly misleading, and naturally so; for when the Webster of 1847 was issued Comparative Philology was in its cradle. The definitions are imperfect, requiring condensation, rearrangement and additions. The vocabulary is defective, some of the commonest words of to-day, especially scientific terms, for which a dictionary is most often consulted, being entirely absent. In not one of these three prime requisites of a dictionary is the Webster reprint a trustworthy guide, or, rather, it is a misleading one. . . . This 'reprint' is not intended for intelligent men. It is made expressly to be foisted by all the arts of the book canvasser on those who have been precluded from a knowledge of what developments lexicography has undergone during the last forty-two years. This is the cruellest feature of this money-making enterprise."

The Buffalo Christian Advocate says:

"DON'T BE DUPED. Thousands are, or are likely to be, by the flashy, fraudulent advertisements of 'The Original Webster's Unabridged Dictionary,' which is offered for three or four dollars. . . . If any of our readers wish to invest in a purchase which they will be likely afterward to regret, they will do so after being duly notified."

The Journal of Education, Boston, says:

"Teachers cannot be too careful not to be imposed on, since the very things which make a dictionary valuable in school are wanting in this old-time reprint. Any high-school dictionary which can be purchased for a dollar and fifty cents is worth more for school use than this."

Many other prominent journals speak in similar terms, and legitimate publishers write us in strong condemnation of this attempt to foist an obsolete book on the public.

The latest and the best, which bears our imprint on the title-page, has over 2000 pages with illustrations on almost every page.

WILL PUBLISH MAY 20:

Miss Brooks.

A STORY OF BOSTON SOCIETY.

By ELIZA O. WHITE, author of "A Browning Courtship." 16mo, cloth, $1.00.

Fame and Sorrow

AND OTHER STORIES.

By HONORÉ DE BALZAC. Translated by Miss K. P. Wormeley. 12mo, half russia, uniform with our edition of Balzac's Works, $1.50.

NOTE.—This was the title (Gloire et Malheur) under which the story was first published in 1830. The name was changed in 1842 to La Maison du Chat-qui-pelote. The awkwardness of the title in English (The House of the Cat-playing-ball) leads the translator to use the original name given by Balzac.

In addition to this remarkable story the volume contains the following, viz.: "Colonel Chabert," "The Atheist's Mass," "La Grande Bretonne," "The Purse," and "La Grenadière."

SCOUTING FOR STANLEY IN EAST AFRICA.

BY THOMAS STEVENS,

Author of "A Tour Around the World on a Bicycle." 1 vol., 12mo, extra cloth, gilt top, with portrait and illustrations, $2.00.

Mr. Stevens was sent into Africa by the New York World to find Stanley, and he accomplished his mission. In this volume, giving an account of his adventures, the reader will find all the charm of the journalist's style. It is a simple, unaffected style—just as one would expect in a brave, manly man—and the adventures recorded are as thrilling as any that ever fell to the lot of the explorer.

WITH FIRE AND SWORD.

An Historical Novel of Poland and Russia. By HENRYK SIENKIEWICZ. Translated from the original Polish work by JEREMIAH CURTIN. 12mo, cloth, 795 pp., $2.00.

"The first of Polish novelists, past or present, and second to none now living in England, France, or Germany. He has Dumas' facility for conceiving and carrying out a complicated historical romance; he has much of Bret Harte's dry humor and laconic pathos, and a good deal of Turgénieff's melancholy suggestiveness, with some of his delicacy of touch."—Blackwood's Magazine.

"The strength of the new novelist is said to lie in the wide and varied range of his imagination, his characteristically Slavonic impetuosity and strength of style, and his wonderful ability to think and talk in the terms of the period of which he writes."—Boston Traveller.

"The best volume of New England stories ever written."—Col. T. W. HIGGINSON.

MRS. KENDAL'S DRAMATIC OPINIONS.

16mo, paper, 50 cents; cloth gilt, with portrait of Mrs. Kendal, $1.00.

"It is written in a chatty, agreeable style, with an autobiographical flavor, and contains entertaining anecdotes of noted actors and actresses. Mrs. Kendal's long experience on the stage gives weight to her judgment of theatrical matters, and she disarms criticism by the modest way in which this is expressed."—The Critic.

WORTHINGTON'S NEW BOOKS.

Worthington's International Library.

A series of contemporaneous works of fiction by great writers of America, France, Germany, and Great Britain, forming a standard collection of pure, wholesome, entertaining reading, illustrated with exquisite photogravures, faultlessly printed on beautiful paper, and bound in either cloth at $1.25, or in illuminated paper covers at 75 cents.

1. GERTRUDE'S MARRIAGE. By W. HEIMBURG. Translated by Mrs. J. W. DAVIS.

"A charming novel, telling an interesting story with spirit, grace, and cleverness. Nothing could be better in its way than the force and vividness with which the heroine is outlined."—Boston Evening Gazette.

3. TWO DAUGHTERS OF ONE RACE. By W. HEIMBURG. Translated by Mrs. D. M. LOWREY.

"The author has brought into fresh and fascinating form the story of the woman fair in face in comparison with that of the woman fair in heart. By intimate analysis of typical character, the writer reaches with remarkable power the heart of the reader."—Boston Globe.

4. LORA, the Major's Daughter. By W. HEIMBURG. Translated by Mrs. J. W. DAVIS.

"The story is based upon the self-sacrifice on the part of the heroine to preserve her brother from disgrace. The plot is worked out cleverly, the characters are drawn and contrasted with genuine artistic skill, but it is in the details in which lies the charm of the story—the manner in which the narrative is told, the life-likeness of the characters."—Springfield Republican.

5. WIVES OF MEN OF GENIUS. By ALPHONSE DAUDET. Translated by EDWARD WAKEFIELD.

An exceptionally successful rendering of a wonderfully clever French book of short stories into easy and attractive English. In translation it loses nothing of the esprit, the indescribable mixture of humor and pathos and satire, which is the essence of Alphonse Daudet's style. In this curious book the wittiest of French novelists shows, from actual instances in real life, that, in the case of men of genius, marriage is a lottery in which the odds against happiness are overwhelming.

6. HENRIETTE; or, A Corsican Mother. By FRANÇOIS COPPÉE. Trans. by EDWARD WAKEFIELD.

"It is a charming little novel, almost perfect, as a work of art, in style and composition, and a good illustration of the works of the school which it represents."—Journal of Commerce.

7. MAGDALEN'S FORTUNES. By W. HEIMBURG. Translated by Mrs. J. W. DAVIS.

"A tale of singular pathos and sweetness. There is a naturalness and unaffected simplicity which shows the accomplished novelist, and though not sensational has enough of the elements of love, coquetry, woman's wiles and man's fickleness, to render it very interesting."—Daily Report.

8. THE PASTOR'S DAUGHTER. By W. HEIMBURG. Translated by Mrs. J. W. DAVIS.

With portrait of the author.

"A novel of vivid interest, quick movement, and picturesque description. It is an old maid's story of the bitter wrong and sorrow and loss that come into millions of lives everywhere. It is a sad story but not acutely so, for when it is told the bitterness has long softened into the pensiveness in which countless sensitive spirits closed their days."—Cambridge Tribune.

9. THE FEET OF LOVE. By ANNE REEVE ALDRICH.

"The intensity of this story is sufficient to hold the reader almost breathless. It is a spiritual drama, vivid, full of color and electric interest. Such a story as has seldom if ever before flashed upon the readers of fiction."—Boston Traveller.

10. BELLA'S BLUE-BOOK. The Story of an Ugly Woman. By MARIE CALM. Translated by Mrs. J. W. DAVIS.

A story showing great originality and freshness. The book professes to be the contents of a diary kept by a lady from her school-days till beyond her marriage. The plot rests upon this marriage supposed to be made on the husband's side on account of a wager. The story is of absorbing interest throughout, the descriptive passages are most excellent, and the self-analysis of the girl who thinks herself ugly, peculiarly fascinating.

11. LUCIE'S MISTAKE. By W. HEIMBURG. Translated by Mrs. J. W. DAVIS.

A love-tale full of tender sentiment with many exquisite passages very pleasing and picturesque. The personages clear, strong, and natural, drawn by a master hand that knows human nature and human passions well.

CENTENNIAL EDITION OF

OUR PRESIDENTS; or, The Lives of the Twenty-three Presidents of the United States.

By VIRGINIA E. TOWNSEND. Illustrated with twenty-three finely engraved steel portraits. 1 vol., 8vo, cloth, $3.00.

This volume is now looked upon by the foremost literary critics of our country as a sterling piece of literature, and destined to remain the standard work on the subject.

FOR SALE BY ALL BOOKSELLERS.

Lee & Shepard's New Books.

MARION GRAHAM.

By META LANDER, author of "Light on the Dark River." 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

This is a novel of great interest and power, the peer of "Robert Elsmere" and of "John Ward, Preacher." The author, by inheritance, education, and life-long associations, is exceptionally well prepared, both for theological criticism and for unfolding the beauty and power of Christian virtues and graces, and with rare ability and intensity of feeling she makes attractive Christian love and self-sacrifice in the struggle with the affections and desires that centre in self. Not less successfully, also, does she exhibit the entire incongruity of some of the dogmas with the humane and Christian sentiments of our day.

EDWARD BURTON.

By HENRY WOOD, author of "Natural Law in the Business World," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

"Edward Burton" is a powerful story, fascinating from beginning to end, in which is woven a vigorous and instructive narrative of the influence exerted by the various systems of theology, ethics, sociology, charmingly expressed in character delineations. The work aims toward high ideals, portraying vividly the brightest side of human nature, carrying along a mere shading of the reverse as a suitable background for the structure. A realistic love affair, in which prosperity, misfortune, and final victory, worldly and spiritual, play an important part, gives a romantic interest to the volume. The scene is laid in Bar Harbor and Boston, and the tone of the work is wholesome and inspiring.

A PRIMER OF DARWINISM AND ORGANIC EVOLUTION.

By J. Y. BERGEN, Jr., and FANNY D. BERGEN. Being a new edition of the author's former work, giving a narrative summary of the principles of the Development Theory. Illustrated. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

No one can to-day be said to be really well educated without a knowledge of at least the cardinal principles of organic evolution, that master-key to the significance of the entire animated world, and such a knowledge can be most readily gained from the perusal of this compendious little book. While it is not beyond the comprehension of the average high school pupil, it contains much that will be new to most cultivated people who are not thoroughly familiar with the voluminous works of Darwin, Wallace, Huxley, Haeckel, and the host of other European and American investigators and writers who have contributed to the enormous mass of evidence which has at last quite established the truth of the doctrine of organic evolution.

HEROES AND MARTYRS OF INVENTION.

By GEORGE MAKEPEACE TOWLE, author of "Heroes of History," "Young People's History of England," "Young People's History of Ireland," "The Nation in a Nutshell," etc. Illustrated. Cloth, $1.00.

The young people will be interested to know that these papers, which originally appeared in Harper's Young People, have been revised and enlarged, and are to be issued in a permanent form. The subject is one that is always interesting to the young, and the author is one of their favorites, and he tells the stories of the struggles, disappointments, and successes of distinguished inventors, of all ages, in his fascinating style.

STORIES OF THE CIVIL WAR.

By ALBERT F. BLAISDELL, A.M. Illustrated. Uniform with Lee & Shepard's "Stories of American History," "Noble Deeds of Our Forefathers," "Boston Tea-Party," etc. [Nearly ready.]

The author has taken great pains to make this a popular book. It embraces the period of the Civil War, as "Stories of American History" covers the Revolution, but is made on a slightly different plan. The best literature on the subject has been drawn upon, and a careful adoption made for school purposes. It is also fully illustrated.

DECISIVE EVENTS IN AMERICAN HISTORY.

By SAMUEL ADAMS DRAKE. Cloth, 50 cents each volume. Burgoyne's Invasion of 1777. Now ready. The Taking of Louisburg. Nearly ready. The Landing of the Pilgrims. In press. Gold in California. " The Battle of Gettysburg. "

Others in Preparation.

THE SWEDISH SYSTEM OF EDUCATIONAL GYMNASTICS.

By BARON NILS POSSE, M.G., Graduate of the Royal Gymnastic Central Institute of Stockholm; formerly instructor in the Stockholm Gymnastic and Fencing Club. 4to, cloth, 241 illustrations, $2.00 net; by mail, $2.20.

"With the author, the word gymnastics does not signify merely recreation, grace, and the strengthening of a few muscles; but educational gymnastics signify all that can be included in the development of a healthy body at once graceful, vigorous, and elastic, through physical exercise. Swedish gymnastics suggest the best development of healthy boys and girls."—Journal of Education, Boston.

THE VOICE

How to Train It—How to Care for It. For Ministers, Lecturers, Readers, Actors, Singers, Teachers, and Public Speakers. By PROF. E. B. WARMAN, A.M., with illustrations by MARIAN MORGAN REYNOLDS. 4to, cloth, $2.00.

Prof. Warman's book teaches how to so cultivate the voice as to achieve the best results by those who speak or sing.

NORA'S RETURN.

A Sequel to "The Doll's House" of HENRY IBSEN by EDNA D. CHENEY. Palatine covers, 50 cents.

The wonderful Drama of Henry Ibsen called "The Doll's House" has awakened such a deep interest in most of its readers that they have all become like children, who, unsatisfied with its truly dramatic ending, have asked eagerly, "Did she ever come back?" Mrs. Cheney has undertaken to portray the future careers of Nora and Helmar, making no attempt to preserve the national character of the play, but following out the thought on one line by which the separated pair might come together again with justice to both. The fact that an American author so widely known as Mrs. Cheney has done this will certainly cause wide-spread interest in the work. The profits on this book will be given to the Book-Table at the Fair in aid of the New England Hospital for Women and Children.

THE ELEMENTS OF PSYCHOLOGY.

By GABRIEL COMPAYRE, a former pupil of the École Normale Supérieure, Bachelor of Philosophy, Doctor of Letters, Professor in the University. Translated by WILLIAM H. PAYNE, Ph.D., LL.D., Chancellor of the University of Nashville, and President of the Peabody Normal College, etc. [In press.]

PRACTICAL DECORATIVE UPHOLSTERY.

Containing full instructions for cutting, making, and hanging all kinds of interior upholstery decorations. Illustrated with numerous working diagrams and designs, alike valuable to the upholsterer and housekeeper. By F. A. MORELAND. 8vo, cloth, $3.00 net; by mail, $3.50. This work is subject to a special discount to the trade.

BRUSHES AND CHISELS.

By TEODORO SERRAO. 16mo, cloth, $1.00.

An interesting story of artist life in Rome, as told by one who lives among the artists and sculptors of the "Eternal City." The descriptions are very artistic, the tragic love-story finely told, and the dialogue is good.

The Cult of the Body—And Its Literature.

PHYSICULTURE is the popular fad of the moment. Whether it has grown out of the esoteric novel, or the esoteric novel is the result of it—is a question. But physical culture within bounds is an excellent thing. It is the abuse of it only that is to be guarded against. Asceticism in extremes is as harmful as materialism. The old Puritan mortification of the body produced as many moral monstrosities as did the worship of the beautiful in pagan Greece and Rome. So let us be moderate in our new pleasures, and seek for that happy medium of which we read in our first copy-books.

June roses and summer holidays have a close affinity. And the thought of summer holidays naturally excites the desire to know how to make the best of the time, be it long or short, that kind fortune gives to each one of us, to recruit our wasted energies.

The summer holiday has ceased to be a hibernating period, or a time to lounge in hammocks, or to nestle in the sweet clover under sturdy oaks, or to do any of the many lazy things to which depraved humanity naturally inclines. To men and women both it has become the training period of the year. Obesity, which promises to be numbered among the sins of the decalogue, seeks through all the latest athletics to reduce its proportions to the symmetry of the Greek gods, whilst the "lean and hungry Cassius" is in search of more flesh and more muscle in emulation of the physical roundness that is his ideal.

The "Daisy Miller" type of womankind is extinct. Flirtation under the demoralizing light of the moon is counted among the lost arts. Long walks and cold baths have taken the place of dancing and the morning nap, and the "divided" skirt and the semi-masculine pedestrian costume have been substituted for the frivolous laces and ruffles and long trains of the dark ages. The American girl no longer wastes the golden hours in the depths of a rocking-chair on the piazza of a summer resort; nor endeavors to kill time and herself with useless fancy work. No—she communes now with nature, and longs to be an Amazon. She drives, rides, runs, walks, bowls, fences, plays tennis, manages a boat, and even essays cricket, in appropriate costumes modelled upon her brother's "get-up." She is a happy and hopeful woman. Through the proper study of books she has learned that the most homely woman may become beautiful, and the least intellectual the peer of her rival—man. Optimists tell her that bodily culture is followed by a corresponding brain development, and she climbs onward and upward towards equality. Compensation may be found—if this point is not reached—in the fact that she is on the highway to health and physical perfection.

The American young man devotes all his leisure moments to becoming an athlete. He is a boxer, a wrestler, a base-ball player, or a cyclist; he fishes, hunts, shoots, resorts to the haunts of the wild birds or goes in search of the big game of the prairie, spends a fortune on a yacht, or modestly investigates the beauties of his native rivers in a simple canoe. He is anything, in fact, in his playtime, but a scholar—his reading material consisting of the latest novels and the best manuals of the sport or exercise with which he is particularly infatuated.

The literature of physical culture and of outdoor sports and exercises is a steadily growing one. The subjects have interested our best writers, and received their cordial approval and appreciation. In this movement towards a more general physical development lies, it is believed, the future greatness of the American nation. To offer our readers the best and latest books on athletics and kindred topics is our especial desire, with some guiding words as to their scope and tendency. In regard to athletics proper, or the old gymnastics, there has been a great change of opinion. The cumbersome apparatus and wearing exercises of the gymnasium, are looked upon as "straining" rather than "training" the body.

They have given place almost entirely to simple natural exercises, which require no unnecessary strain upon the strength or pocket, or to some form of out-door sport which combines exercise and amusement—the latter being considered an important point. The whole subject is treated from a medical and high scientific standpoint in Dr. Fernand Legrange's "Physiology of Bodily Exercises." He goes minutely into the effects of different exercises and sports upon the body and brain, and dilates learnedly upon overwork and its remedies. Even the celebrated scientist Richard A. Proctor gave the subject his consideration, and advised his fellow-men in a series of chapters entitled "Strength, How to get strong and keep strong," about corpulency, old age, and excessive girth of waist. Prof. Archibald MacLaren's "Training in Theory and Practice," although but a little book, is practical and strongly indicates the errors and risks of the old style of training. Edwin Checkley's "Natural Method of Physical Training" is in line with the preceding works and is extremely readable, its style being popular and attractive. Prof. J. S. Dowd's "Health and Strength in Physical Culture" is from the pen of a specialist. "The Swedish System of Educational Gymnastics," by Baron Nils Posse, consists of easy graceful exercises, which ladies and children will find especially adapted to their needs. Dean's "How to Be Beautiful" is also for the ladies, and is rich in good advice. A new edition of O'Reilly's "Ethics of Boxing" has been issued recently, under the name of "Athletics and Manly Sports." The work has an unusual literary quality, and bears unmistakable evidence of the author's enthusiasm. Janssen's "History of American Amateur Athletics" and Hurd's "History of Yale Athletics" are excellent reference-books, being full of facts and figures. The Badminton Library, which is devoted entirely to works on field sports and athletics, furnishes two volumes to this group, viz.: "Athletics and Foot-Ball," by Montague Shearman, and "Fencing, Boxing, and Wrestling," by Walter H. Pollock and others. Several little manuals may also be mentioned here; they are Dick's "Dumb-Bells and Indian Club Exercises," Dick's "Art of Wrestling," Billy Edwards' "Art of Boxing," the "Bowler's Handbook," and McCleery's "Billiard Playing." They all describe healthful exercises and amusements. The Badminton Library deserves special mention. The volumes have been written by English sporting-men, each taking up a subject with which he was perfectly familiar, and upon which he was an enthusiast. The result has been a perfect encyclopædia of information, given in an unusually attractive shape.

The charm of shooting or gunning as a pastime, and also as an exercise, needs no special pleading. Its devotees are numerous. For the amateurs many books have been written. Seneca's "Hints and Points for Sportsmen," Greener's "Modern Shot-Guns," and G. Putnam Smith's "Law of Field Sports," are all works of practical usefulness. "Shooting," in the Badminton Library, embraces the experiences of a number of veteran sportsmen. William Bruce Leffingwell has written two works on this subject, "Wild-Fowl Shooting" and "Shooting on Upland, Marsh and Stream." The first tells all about guns, decoys, "blinds," boats, etc., the second records the actual experiences of an ardent lover of the fields and prairie. Gordon Trumbull's "Names and Portraits of Birds which Interest Gunners" embraces information about upwards of sixty birds found in different localities of the United States. It is a work no true sportsman should be without.

The followers of Isaac Walton derive an exquisite pleasure from their special sport. Aside from the excitement of the chase, it carries with it abundance of pure air and physical activity. Among recent books on this topic H. C. Pennell's "Fishing," 2 v. (Badminton Lib.), is among the more important. Goode's "American Fishes" describes the fishes, their haunts and habits. Henshall's "More About the Black Bass" tells its own story. H. P. Wells' "American Salmon Fisherman" and J. H. Keene's "Fly Fishing" give ample information on two special fields. Black's latest novel, "Prince Fortunatus," contains many delightful chapters on the delights of salmon fishing in the north of Scotland. Brown's "American Angler's Guide" is a standard work on the fishes and waters of the United States.

Of recent years boating, canoeing, and yachting have gained greatly in popularity. The two former methods of riding the waters are so much less expensive than yachting that they are more generally indulged in. Jerome's "Three Men in a Boat" is a delightfully humorous recital of the experience of three overworked young Englishmen, who made a boating trip, during their summer vacation, on the Thames, from Kingston to Oxford. Black's "Strange Adventures of a House-Boat" is also a history of a more ambitious trip up the Thames and other picturesque rivers of England. Robert L. Stevenson's "An Inland Voyage" and Hamerton's "The Saône" are well-known ac-written of the charms of a tour on "wheels" in numerous volumes. The Pennells' "Sentimental Journey Through France and Italy," "Canterbury Pilgrimage," and "Two Pilgrims' Progress" are not only charming reading, but are full of suggestions and excellent advice. The same may be said of Stevens' "Around the World on a Bicycle" and Karl Kron's "Ten Thousand Miles on a Bicycle." "Cycling," by Viscount Bury and G. Lacy Hillier (Badminton Library), is designed not only to interest the general reader, but to form a useful handbook for all who are interested in any of the various ramifications of counts of river tours in France and Belgium. R. G. Thwaites tells of his investigations in a small boat of some of our western rivers in "Historic Waterways," and Saint George Rathborne wrote a volume on "Paddling in Florida." Boating," by W. B. Woodgate, takes up the subject from every point of view. It is one of the later volumes of the Badminton Library. The following books are more strictly practical: Field's "Canvas Canoes," Hick's "Yachts, Boats, and Canoes," Summer's "Who Won," and Cozzens' "Yachts and Yachting."

Mr. and Mrs. Pennell and Mr. Thomas Stevens have probably done more to popularize cycling and bicycling than any other writers. They have cycling. "Tips for Tricyclists," by Prof. Hoffmann, is a little dictionary of facts. Horseback-riding is recommended as one of the most healthful exercises for ladies. Mead's "Horsemanship for Women" and Mrs. O'Donoghue's "Riding for Ladies" will give them many valuable points. Anderson's "Modern Horsemanship," of which a new edition has recently been published, and Mrs. Karr's "The American Horsewoman," have long been accepted as excellent authorities. The Badminton Library contains several comprehensive volumes on nearly related subjects, as: "Racing and Steeple Chasing," by the Earl of Suffolk and Berkshire, "Driving," by the Duke of Beaufort, and "Hunting," by Mowbray the summer months we suggest as rich in experiences, Barrows' "Shaybacks in Camp," Pool's "Tenting at Stony Beach," and Shields' "Camping and Camp Outfits." Some of the more recent ones we have l in our lists of new books, such as Bam- Up and Down the Brooks;" Abbott's Out of Doors;" Sylvester's "Homestead ys;" Knight's "By Leafy Ways" and of the Field;" Torrey's "A Rambler's and Merriam's "Birds Through an Glass," etc. Any of the books of Tor-rey, Olive Thorne Miller, Burroughs, or Thoreau, are most restful midsummer reading. The student of nature reaps the same reward in health and strength as does the seeker after mere physical enjoyment. He will find many congenial com-

THE EXODUS of the Base-Ball
From "Three Men in a Boat." (Holt.) Field," by Harry Palmer, is chiefly amusing, although it gives a few valuable points. "Lawn-Tennis in America," by Valentine G. Hall, gives a record of the tennis tournaments since 1884.

"Cricket" and "Golf," two naturalized games, have volumes devoted to them in the Badminton Library. These are both ball games, which recommend themselves to all ages and both sexes. In England the ladies boast of several cricket clubs, and their right to play golf is no longer denied. These games, so popular and so enthusiastically pursued in the British Isles in all seasons, and at all times excepting when the snow is on the ground, promise to obtain a similar popularity with us. The volume on "Golf" is largely the work of Horace G. Hutchinson, ably assisted by contributions from Lord Wellwood and other English experts at the game. Mr. Andrew Lang's interesting history of golf, with which the book opens, proves that the English golf is not the same game, as many have asserted, as the old Dutch game called "kolf," but rather something more nearly akin to what the boys call "hockey," or what becomes polo when pursued on horseback. "Cricket" comes from the pen of A. G. Steel and R. H. Lyttelton. "Croquet" is taking a new lease of life in a somewhat more difficult form than when first introduced. It is a kindred game, on a small scale, to cricket and golf, and a most delightful inducement to ladies and children to keep out-doors. Flannery's "American Cricket Annual" may be consulted for facts and figures. For those who enjoy living under canvas during

THE REEF AND HARBOR OF PERNAMBUCO.

From "Around and About South America." (Copyright, 1890, by L. Appleton & Co.)

Harbor of Pernambuco.

From Vincent's "Around and About South America" (Appleton.)

PERNAMBUCO is very different from Bahia and the Argentine Republic in respect to a long, narrow reef of rock which, at about five hundred feet from the shore, stretches along the whole front of the city and for several miles beyond, thus making within it a commodious harbor and safe anchorage for all ships and steamers, save those of the very deepest draught. Vessels of twenty-five hundred tons may readily enter, larger ones, of which I saw a few, lie in the offing, about two miles from land. Pernambuco itself stands upon comparatively level ground, but its suburb to the north, Olinda, covers several prettily sloping and extremely verdant hills. All along the shore are great groves of cocoa-palms, and where the vessels enter the reef-protected harbor, at the northern end, are two large forts, not more than half a mile apart, the tops of their brick walls showing many though small cannon. At the extremity of the reef is a low lighthouse, and just beyond it are a round tower and a small building connected with the revenue department. From here the reef proper, which at high tide is barely above water-level, has been topped with a brick wall about five feet in height and ten in width. The great ocean-swells, as they roll majestically in, break against this barrier, and dash aloft in vast clouds of fleecy foam. The reef near the surface of the water is about fifty feet in width. At regular intervals in it have been sunk large cannon to which ships may moor. The sea-front of the city is a cemented, cut-stone wall. Vessels lie three and four abreast, just within the reef, and also next the jetty, leaving the central space between them clear for traffic. I noticed two or three men-of-war, three or four steamers, and about fifty sailing-vessels, mostly barks of light tonnage. Pernambuco is a very bustling place, and steamers are coming or going almost every day. As at Bahia, there is a street with "Belgian" pavement adjoining the harbor; and here also at one point is a very small sort of plaza, in which are a dozen great trees, around whose bases circle iron settees, filled all day and evening by loiterers and curiosity-mongers. The houses are narrow, but deep, and four or five stories in height. Here, also, you find the leading banks, sugar and cotton firms, the hotels, and the fine building of the Commercial Association. From my room in the hotel I look into the reef-enclosed harbor, with its always interesting stir of ships and sailors, of steamers and passengers, of stevedores and longshoremen, and away beyond, the view is closed by the remote commingling of sky and water.

Upon a closer inspection I find that Pernambuco lies upon two long, narrow peninsulas and the mainland, the peninsulas being formed by two small rivers and the ocean. The several parts are connected by handsome iron and stone bridges. The country beyond is mostly low, filled with little streams and lakes, and sparsely settled. Everywhere you see palms, bananas, and bamboos. The rich merchants possess country-houses west of the city, at distances varying from one to eight miles, and reached by two or three lines of railroad. The oldest part of the town is called Recife, the Reef, either from the fact of its lying next the reef, or because it is itself upon a sort of reef. Here the streets are very narrow and crooked; but, upon crossing the first bridge to the other and larger peninsula, you notice a great improvement; the blocks of houses become much larger, the streets wider, tram-cars are running in every direction, and the best retail stores display their wares. In the river Beberibe, which divides the district of Recife from that called San Antonio, are several lines of small ships, mostly engaged in bringing dried beef from the Argentine Republic, and dried fish from Newfoundland. Upon the Recife side is the custom-house, a great, square, yellow building, with high and broad towers at the corners. On the opposite side is the Arsenal of War. The extreme point of the peninsula of San Antonio is reserved for the President's house and gardens.

The Nest of the White Heron.

From Jewett's "Tales of New England." (Houghton, Mifflin & Co.)

THE birds sang louder and louder. At last the sun came up bewilderingly bright. Sylvia could see the white sails of ships out at sea, and the clouds that were purple and rose-colored and yellow at first began to fade away. Where was the white heron's nest in the sea of green branches, and was this wonderful sight and pageant of the world the only reward for having climbed to such a giddy height? Now look down again, Sylvia, where the green marsh is set among the shining birches and dark hemlocks; there where you saw the white heron once you will see him again; look, look! a white spot of him like a single floating feather comes up from the dead hemlock and grows larger, and rises, and comes close at last, and goes by the landmark pine with steady sweep of wing and outstretched slender neck and crested head. And wait! wait! do not move a foot or a finger, little girl, do not send an arrow of light and consciousness from your two eager eyes, for the heron has perched on a pine bough not far beyond yours, and cries back to his mate on the nest, and plumes his feathers for the new day!

The child gives a long sigh a minute later when a company of shouting cat-birds comes also to the tree, and vexed by their fluttering and lawlessness the solemn heron goes away. She knows his secret now, the wild, light, slender bird that floats and wavers, and goes back like an arrow presently to his home in the green world beneath. Then Sylvia, well satisfied, makes her perilous way down again, not daring to look far below the branch she stands on, ready to cry sometimes because her fingers ache and her lamed feet slip. Wondering over and over again what the stranger would say to her, and what he would think when she told him how to find his way straight to the heron's nest.

"Sylvy, Sylvy!" called the busy old grandmother again and again, but nobody answered, and the small husk bed was empty, and Sylvia had disappeared.

The guest waked from a dream, and remembering his day's pleasure hurried to dress himself that it might sooner begin. He was sure from the way the shy little girl looked once or twice yesterday that she had at least seen the white heron, and now she must really be persuaded to tell. Here she comes now, paler than ever, and her worn old frock is torn and tattered, and smeared with pine pitch. The grandmother and the sportsman stand in the door together and question her, and the splendid moment has come to speak of the dead hemlock-tree by the green marsh.

But Sylvia does not speak after all, though the old grandmother fretfully rebukes her, and the young man's kind appealing eyes are looking straight in her own. He can make them rich with money; he has promised it, and they are poor now. He is so well worth making happy, and he waits to hear the story she can tell.

No, she must keep silence! What is it that suddenly forbids her and makes her dumb? Has she been nine years growing, and now, when the great world for the first time puts out a hand to her, must she thrust it aside for a bird's sake? The murmur of the pine's green branches is in her ears, she remembers how the white heron came flying through the golden air and how they watched the sea and the morning together, and Sylvia cannot speak; she cannot tell the heron's secret and give its life away.

Dear loyalty, that suffered a sharp pang as the guest went away disappointed later in the day, that could have served and followed him and loved him as a dog loves! Many a night Sylvia heard the echo of his whistle haunting the pasture path as she came home with the loitering cow. She forgot even her sorrow at the sharp report of his gun and the piteous sight of thrushes and sparrows dropping silent to the ground, their songs bushed and their pretty feathers stained and wet with blood. Were the birds better friends than their hunter might have been—who can tell? Whatever treasures were lost to her, woodlands and summer-time, remember! Bring your gifts and graces and tell your secrets to this lonely country child!

Inland Yachting.

From Murray's "Lake Champlain and Its Shores." (De Wolfe, Fiske & Co.)

To an American yachtsman, especially, inland yachting has a peculiar charm, and yields to him a singular enjoyment. His is the only country inhabited by civilized nations which, in its size and facilities of water communication, is continental. To say that a yacht of eight or ten tons can be sailed by a party of tourists four or five thousand miles without passing out of inland waters, and never over the same course twice, is a statement calculated to astound a European, and even an American, we fancy, would have to look up his geography a little to credit it. But, if he will take his map, he will see at a glance how easily the thing can be done, and that the five thousand miles can easily be made ten thousand, if the party can extend its vacation time a month or so. Burlington, or rather this lake lying in front of Burlington, is the natural centre and starting-point for such magnificent touring. It is large enough to supply facilities for aquatic training requisite for such as, not having it, must prepare themselves for these splendid voyages. It is the only lake in all this east country of ours that can serve as a school in which practical knowledge of yachts and yachting can be taught. It is, moreover, so placed as to be easily accessible from the great seaboard cities, from which the majority of our true tourists and sportsmen come. It is surrounded by natural scenery of the highest order. Its shores and bays are alive with historic memories, which quicken patriotism and ennoble the character of whosoe'er receives their inspiration.

Danger Ahead.

From Anna Reeve Aldrich's "Feet of Love." (Worthington.)

WOLFE trudged on ahead in the narrow path, leaving the two girls to follow, as they walked down to the small dock where the Vesta was moored.

It was a tiny boat, but it was a little gem in its way. There were few people around the water's edge this morning, and the bathing beach, half a mile farther on, was rather deserted too. The little breeze ruffled the water pleasantly.

"There, I knew it would be cool down here," Wolfe called out, boyishly triumphant, as he helped Josephine into the boat. Alice was very quiet, she had hardly spoken as they walked over. She sat down, silent, her soft eyes wandering out over the water, on and on to where the great white sails passed and repassed each other, on the blue horizon line. The clouds and sunlight chased each other, the waves were now gray and dark, now azure and sparkling, the ripples kissed the side of the Vesta tenderly.

Wolfe was struggling rather unsuccessfully with the ropes, and smothering impatient exclamations as he got entangled. Josephine sat looking on with interest, volunteering advice that is peculiarly aggravating under trying circumstances as she leisurely pulled on her gloves.

"Why, Paul, do not you remember? That goes there. I've seen papa do it a dozen times. Oh look. There's Guja! Now isn't it too bad? Here he comes, and no one to take him back. What shall I do?"

Paul looked up, red, and perspiring, and irate, and more than ordinarily peremptory. The fat little beast was waddling down the path, sure enough, its small black nose snuffing the salt air. It usually required the united efforts of Josephine and Marie to induce Guja to take any exercise and Paul regarded this unaccustomed vagary on the pug's part as sheer fiendishness.

"Let him alone, Josephine. He will go back," he said, glaring at the whining Guja, who was walking sadly around the dock on his tottering legs, and beseeching with many prolonged wails to be taken in.

Josephine looked up at Paul pleadingly. She would have liked trotting back to the house with Guja, but she knew Paul's present mood would not bear trifling with, so she merely said, with a patient sigh, "Well, I know he will get lost. I am perfectly sure of it, and it will break my heart if he does."

"It will not break mine, nasty little beast," thought Paul, but mollified by Josephine's obedience, he replied carelessly: "He knows the way as well as we do. There, we're off at last."

The sail caught the wind, and the little Vesta went swimming out of the inlet into the open waters.

A couple of old fishermen who were swabbing out a boat at another dock, looked up at the sky and shook their heads. One of them straightened himself for a bit, and drew a long breath as he said to his comrade, "Mebbe we oughter 'a' told 'em not to go too far out, Jim, hey?"

The other sent a stream of tobacco juice derisively into the water, as he replied gruffly: "What's the use o' talking to fools? I guess I'm done a-warnin' Yorkers!"

Out farther and farther into the blue, sunny water went the little boat, its white sail flashing in the light. The wind rose and Paul's attention was entirely engrossed, for he was not over-sure of his capabilities as a sailor.

They were now far out on the bay, and the waves beat heavily against the Vesta's sides. The waters turned sullen and dull in color; the light too was a strange grayish-yellow, in which their faces looked pallid and wan. The sea-gulls flew wildly above, uttering their discordant cry of warning.

Liverpool.

From L. T. Meade's "A Girl of the People." (Lovell)

IN Liverpool there are, perhaps more than in any town in the world, all sorts and conditions of men. The very wealthy and the very poor are to be found within its precincts—also the very good and the very bad. Its slums are black and awful; but it also contains some of the finest public buildings, some of the most massive and comfortable houses, and without any exception the largest and greatest docks, in the world. All nationalities come to Liverpool. It sees life from beyond the seas, it has a population of people always coming and going—Americans who go to the theatre in London and arrive in Liverpool about three in the morning, on their return to their own country; Irishmen, Scotchmen, dwellers in Africa; in fact, people from all parts of the civilized world find their way to Liverpool, to return from thence by way of the sea to their native lands. On certain days in the week the hotels and lodging-houses are packed to overflowing; the different piers present scenes of activity and bustle; the great ships come and go and the people come and go with them—Liverpool is passed through and forgotten.

That is the case with those fleeting crowds who so largely contribute to its trade and prosperity; but the habitué of Liverpool, the man who spends his days there, is a totally different order of being. The stranger sees the great city most generally through mist and fog; he regards the pavements as rough and slippery; he thinks the public buildings large, but ugly. Liverpool to him is another London, but without London's attractions. But the true Liverpool man looks at his native town from a very different point of view. He is part and parcel of the place, and he loves it for its size and ugliness, its great commerce, its thriving, active business life. Liverpool to its citizens means home; they are proud of their laws and their customs; they like to dispense charity in their own way; they like to support and help their own poor; they have, to an extent absolutely unknown in London, the true spirit of neighborliness. This spirit is shared by all alike, the rich and the poor feel it, and it binds them together; they regard their town as the world, and look askance at inventions and ideas imported from other places. There are bad slums in Liverpool, and wicked deeds committed, and cruel rough men to be found in multitudes; but the evil there compared to London seems at least to be conquerable—the slums can be got at; nobody who chooses to apply in the right quarter need die of famine or distress.

Hunting Blackcock.

From Knight's "By Leafy Ways." (Roberts.)

THE rain has ceased. The clouds clear off as swiftly as they formed; the sky is blue and fair. On the sky-line a quaint figure on a rough pony beckons us up the slope. It is Bill Mann, best known of Dartmoor worthies. A flash of lightning, that thirty years ago set his little house ablaze, has left him lame; but he is a true son of the chase for all his lameness, and knows every fox and badger hole in the country side, and every likely pool on the river. Between his toothless gums is his inch of black clay. Round his battered hat are coiled carefully his favorite flies. It is not a bad morning, he says. He has marked down a pack of "black'ock" on that rise in front.

He loosens the dog. After a bound of recognition the setter goes off across the moor at the top of his speed, as if there were no such thing as a blackcock within forty miles.

All at once, he stops short, stiffened in every limb; to use old Bill's favorite expression, "as stiff's a gig." We advance with firm and eager tread, our minds intent upon the dog.

There is a rustle among the grass of a little hollow, right under his nose. Up they get, with a great rush, two noble cocks. They are down, right and left.

The dog just glances at them. His work is not done. There are more yet. Slowly he advances some twenty yards further, his eyes riveted on a great patch of ling in front of him. There they go, a cock and two hens. The hens go by; we give them law. Except by accident, they are never shot. But the cock has met his fate. He is down. He flutters a moment and is still.

Is there any man who never knew the pang that follows swiftly on the first keen flush of triumph, when, with a flutter of failing wings, the noble bird falls, struck down in mid-career; when the wanderer of the air is dashed a helpless heap of feathers on the ground?

Is there any one who never felt a touch of remorse as the beautiful eyes, fast fading in death, gazed up at him, bold and fearless to the last?

The day wears on. After an hour's camp in a sunny hollow Bill finds us another pack. We do well. Ten fine cocks in all are slung on the saddle of the little pony, and there is an "accident" or two hidden away somewhere among the baggage.

It is a good day's work. Ten birds, and five-and-twenty miles of moor.

As we strike across the heath and gain the old miners' path, and plod cheerily homeward down the hilly road, we wonder which is the greater happiness, which the nobler sport—five brace of birds earned by honest toil among these noble wilds, or five hundred shot down with the aid of a battery of guns, an army of beaters, and all the machinery of a sanguinary battue?

We have reached the edge of the moor. The dusk is settling down over the lonely hills. Long since the sun went down behind the low horizon. The mist of evening rising faint and gray is reddening in the afterglow. Purple shadows gather on the darkening hills.

"Silence and twilight, unbeloved of men, Creep hand in hand from yon obscurest glen."

A Youthful Adventurer.

From Herbert Ward's "Five Years with the Congo Cannibals." (Bonner.)

WHEN I acknowledge that the only prize I ever gained at school was a pocket telescope awarded me by the committee of athletic sports for my acrobatic performance upon the horizontal bar; when I state that my literary taste was confined to records of travel and adventure, and that I eagerly read every book upon these subjects from Herodotus to Robinson Crusoe—in whom, by the way, I took a deep personal interest—further comment upon my boyhood is needless.

When I made known my determination to set out into the world, my parents emphatically shook their heads.

One wintry morning, shortly after this, in a typical London fog, amid the gruff voices of half-drunken sailors, busy hauling ropes and heaving capstan-bars, the English bark James Wishart was extricated from the maze of docks, and I, with my hands deep down in my otherwise empty pockets, formed one of the little group of poor immigrants who were huddled together on the main deck.

We were bound for Auckland, New Zealand.

It was a rough but wholesome apprenticeship that I served. If I lacked the advantages of friends and influence, I, at least, learned early in life to depend on my own resources, and was able to prevent myself being trodden under foot in this hurrying, selfish, overcrowded world.

It happened that one day while at my solitary station, news was brought to me by a Malay that a white man had accidentally shot himself at some distance from where I then was. It was my poor friend, Frank Hatton, from whom I had parted but a few days before, whose life of much achievement and more promise was ended in this tragic manner.

Mr. Joseph Hatton was then in America with Mr. Henry Irving, and, hearing that some one had arrived from Borneo who could supplement

HERBERT WARD.

From "Five Years with the Congo Cannibals." (Copyright, 1890, by Robert Benner's Sons.)

Four years of rough life and hard work, with alternations of small successes and many reverses, passed, and I determined, as an opportunity offered, to return to my own home.

A brief stay in England, and I was away again, this time bound for Borneo, as a cadet in the service of the British North Borneo Company, which had recently received its royal charter. On arrival in Borneo, I was appointed to a station in the far interior of that wild and almost unknown country.

the meagre details of the catastrophe he was then in possession of, he hastened his return to England, and, immediately on his arrival home, sought me out, to hear all that I could tell him of the cruel circumstances that deprived him of an only and dearly loved son.

It was through Mr. Hatton that I procured an interview with Mr. Henry M. Stanley; and thus, by a chain of circumstances, an event happening in a far-away Eastern island was the means of sending me to the heart of Central Africa.

Dogs for Hunting Ruffed Grouse.

From "Shooting on Upland, Marsh, and Stream." (Rand, McNally.)

EXCEPT in a few districts in the far North or Northwest, the ruffed grouse has learned to fear man to such an extent that it is next to impossible to make a satisfactory score without the aid of a well-broken dog, to divert the bird's attention while one gains the proper shot-gun range.

Even in those outlying districts where pot-shooting is the rule, the bag may be increased with the help of an experienced setter, pointer, or spaniel.

The setter is best, because of his thick coat, which enables him the more easily to enter briar-patches and thorny thickets, and to withstand cold; for the ruffed grouse is nearly always hunted in cold or temperate weather.

The following experience in support of his superiority comes to mind:

I was among the blackberry-patches of Saginaw County, Mich., for a week's shooting, and had as companions two dogs; one a well-broken pointer (not a blue-blood), the other a thick-coated Irish setter, who had so far forgotten his early training, by serving as "town dog," as to chase a bird until it took refuge in a tree, and then proclaim the fact with an indefatigable vehemence that was very amusing to every one save his owner.

On the second morning, the pointer refused to enter the thorny coverts. I therefore sent in the ambitious red-coat, who hurriedly dispersed the congregations. At the end of the first hour, I caught and thrashed him. This was repeated at irregular intervals until night-fall, when I had a thoroughly subjugated dog, and all of my shells intact.

Next morning, much to my surprise, this dog pointed like a veteran, while the pointer again refused to face the briars. The setter was therefore used during the remainder of my stay.

By the third night he had worn off what we term the "wire edge," and a large portion of his coat; but, undaunted as before, he resolutely obeyed every motion, pointed with excellent judgment, and without breaking, and worked as industriously and unflinchingly on the last day as on the third. It was a wonderful performance, but one that shall never be repeated by one of my dogs, for after our return home the poor fellow lay by the fire three days, nearly blind, and so foot-sore he could not walk.

A dog broken on ruffed grouse is better for that particular game bird, and an old dog better than a young one. If the sportsman can own but one dog, whose time afield will be equally divided between ruffed grouse and quail, I would suggest his being broken on the former bird, unless the hunting be done on horseback, or the puppy be a descendant of potterers.

It being the fashion at present to raise fast, wide-ranging dogs, it will be found easier to restrain this instinct in the puppy than after it has been sanctioned a season or two upon the quail field. The disposition of the high-strung dog to range just behind the border of his limit is never quite eliminated by early work on ruffed grouse, and is only checked by frequent practice under a master-hand. The time given to the dog's education is an investment that will eventually bring us many happy hours, and a companion capable of sympathizing with us in our sorrowful moments, and worthy of sharing the joy of our happiest day in the woods.

How to Excel as a Golfer.

From "Golf" in The Badminton Library. (Little, Brown & Co.)

AND now we have finished, immensely, probably, to the student's relief, our didactic treatise upon the normal driving swing. We will now relate, for his recreation, a little golfing fable, a true story, not without its moral: A certain Anglo-American, a true and zealous golfer, commencing the game at the time of life when autumn tints are seen among the hairs of the head, engaged for his instruction a well-known professional player, one Lloyd, surnamed "The General." After six weeks of hard study on the part of the pupil, and of painstaking tutorship on the part of the instructor, the former was mortified to discover that he played worse than on the very first day of his apprenticeship. Remarking on this singular fact to his tutor, the latter, for the first time, lost his much-tried patience, and exclaimed in accents of despair, "Eh then, just tak' and throw yer club at the ba'." This advice the would-be golfer put into immediate practice, if not in the letter, at least in the spirit, by striking at his ball almost without aim at all. What was his astonishment and delight at feeling the club strike the ball with perfect accuracy, and seeing the globe fly through the air to a greater distance than he ever, save in his dreams, had struck it in his life. And so it continued: by letting himself go, and playing with careless freedom, he found himself able to accomplish feats of which in his days of "taking thought" he had almost come to despair.

Now what is the moral to be learnt from this true story? That all the intervening weeks of tuition had been wasted?—by no means. Without them he would never have been able to "throw the club at the ball" and strike it as he did. We may be very sure that he swung no differently, on this his first occasion of free-striking, than in all those carefully studied failures which had preceded it. But he swung without thinking, without consciousness of the mechanical adjustments—just as a well-ordered stomach does its work of digestion—with all his eye, thought, and energy concentrated on the ball. But the tuition was necessary in order to give effect to the intuition. And this is the moral which we wish to point. It is necessary, in order to become as good a golfer as your natural gifts permit, to go through all this laborious and careful training while your style is in course of forming; but when once your style is formed, when you are engaged in a match, and not occupied with the painful eradication of some darling fault, then you should let your style take care of itself. You must concentrate yourself then upon hitting the ball. If you get thinking of how you are going to do it, you will not do it well. But, until your style is formed, you will do far better to go conscientiously through this hard course of training, for it will well repay you in the end. Not only so, but after you consider that your style is really fairly formed, you should still practise—at balls at off moments, at daisies as you walk between the strokes, at imaginary golf balls in your front hall—in studious observation of all the rules of correct driving. Then, when the match comes, think about the ball and the hole; and the laboriously acquired series of adjustments will reproduce itself spontaneously. Keep it—the good gift that fortune has sent—until you have made it your own and can keep it even in fortune's despite.

Washington Irving's Summer Home.

From Kobbé's "Central Railroad of New Jersey."
(Kobbé.)

THE three most interesting historical buildings in Newark are the "Old First" and Trinity churches and the old Gouverneur mansion, famous as Washington Irving's "Cockloft Hall," because of his frequent sojourns there and his references to it in "Salmagundi." At that time it was owned by Gouverneur Kemble, one of Irving's intimates. Pierre Irving, in his "Life and Letters of Washington Irving," says:

"Among Irving's associates at this time were Peter and Gouverneur Kemble, Henry Brevoort, Henry Ogden, and James K. Paulding, who, with himself, his brother Peter and a few others, made up a small circle of intimates, designated by Peter as the 'Nine Worthies,' though Washington described them as 'The Lads of Kilkenny.' One of their resorts was an 'old family mansion' . . . which was on the banks of the Passaic, lections of early days, and of social meetings at an old mansion on the banks of the Passaic."

The summer-house was demolished when Passaic Street was extended. The mansion still stands on Mount Pleasant Avenue, corner of Gouverneur Street, but it is much altered, and has no relics of the days when Irving and his companions had their frolics there.

ROAD MAPS.—Mr. Gustav Kobbé has conferred a boon on those who travel, or who drive or walk in pursuit of summer pleasure, by editing and issuing an excellent series of guide-books and road-maps, very clearly and neatly executed. This publisher has already given travellers the best guide-book to the New Jersey coast. He now takes up the belt of the same State traversed by the Central Railroad, and makes a neat hand-book, entitled "The Central Railroad of New Jersey." It is in every respect fitted for the tourist, giving abundant information respecting local history, scenery, and hotels. The historical matter has been carefully collected, and the most about a mile above Newark. . . . It was full of antique furniture, and the walls were adorned with old family portraits.

On the place was a summer-house and a fish-pond, of which Irving says:

"An odd notion of the old gentleman was to blow up a large bed of rocks for the purpose of having a fish-pond, although the river ran at a distance of about a hundred yards from the house and was well stored with fish; but there was nothing, he said, like having things to one's self. And he would have a summer-house built; he would have it surrounded by elms and willows, and he would have a cellar dug under it for some incomprehensible purpose, which remains a secret to this day."

This summer-house as it was in 1859 was sketched by William A. Whitehead, who presented the drawing to the New Jersey Historical Society. Writing to this society not many years before his death, Irving says: "With Newark are associated in my mind many pleasant recol-striking incidents have been incorporated in the work, in order that the book may have romantic as well as descriptive and statistical interest. The illustrations are from drawings by Marie Olga Kobbé and F. A. Ferand, from aquarelles by Hugh Smythe, direct from photographs, and from views of Lake Hopatcong, kindly furnished by the Hotel Breslin. Convenient map sections also accompany the text. Among the suburban road-maps are "Jersey Coast," "Westchester Co. and part of Fairfield Co., Conn.," "Staten Island," "Central and Northern New Jersey," "Long Island," etc. Publishers or booksellers in various parts of the country might profitably follow Mr. Kobbé's lead and get up maps of the immediate neighborhood of many popular resorts that would be almost certain of very wide sale. Nothing appeals more quickly to a traveller's eye than a practical and accurate map and text and pictures of the notable things to be seen in the vicinity of the place where friends' recommendations have sent him.

Father, Mother, and Child.

From Goock's "Miss Mordeck's Father"
(Dodd, Mead & Co.)

THAT there was something of mystery about Thomas Mordeck no one, from his oldest friend to his most recent acquaintance, felt the least doubt. His past was an unread book; but whether it was so from being forbidden or merely because no one had ever had the temerity to ask for a perusal, was problematic. He indulged in no reminiscences, claimed relationship with none of the world's inhabitants save his wife and children, and acknowledged no existence previous to the hour he fell in love with Ethel Browne twenty-five years before. As to nationality, he might have been an Anglicized Italian, or an Italianized Englishman, or merely an American with mixed ancestry. In appearance he was tall, well built, with a massive head gracefully poised on a neck that joined, with a muscular, curving expansion, broad, square shoulders. His hair and mustache were iron-gray, white predominating in the former, black in the latter; his eyes were black, large, deep-set and shadowed, not circled, and his lashes curved upward toward a lined forehead over which his hair fell in negligent abundance. His dress was always neat, loose-fitting, tending toward angularity in effect, and of dark, usually black cloth. A silk hat, immaculate linen, and a severe simplicity in the minor details of his dress, made up his unvarying costume.

The resemblance between father and daughter was very striking as he held Browné on his knee and let his large white hand wander caressingly over the soft fur of her dainty tea-gown, and occasionally let his head drop to one side to rub his cheek against the arm encircling his neck.

"Papa, why did you not come to meet me, as you promised?" pouted Browné with a childishness she indulged in only when on her father's knee.

His habitual pallor deepened perceptibly at her question, but his face was moving with gentle friction against the fur-bordered sleeve in apparent enjoyment of the titillation, and his voice was free from emotion as he replied:

"I was called away unexpectedly, or I should have kept my promise."

"Yes, I know, of course! but who or what is this troublesome person or business that is always calling you away at such inconvenient times?"

Browné was a little frightened at her own perpetual temerity, and she avoided the eyes she felt instinctively there would be no smile in; but she was not prepared for the gentle, decisive repulse her curiosity met with. Mr. Mordeck pushed her from his knee, and arose and crossed the room to where his wife stood with the top of a potpourri jar suspended literally, as was her breath figuratively, while she awaited the answer to the question she had not dared to ask in more than a score of unenlightened years.

"I am sure, my systematic little wife, it is too late for any more callers this evening, and you will have ample time in the morning to remove all traces of to-night's invasion of your realm of perfection."

The forced smile had died away from his lips ere he ceased speaking, for his wife's blue eyes were uplifted to his face with a look in them he had never seen there before. It was not doubt nor mistrust, but mute, pathetic entreaty. He bowed his head till his cheek rested against hers, and his voice was a prayer as he murmured scarcely above a whisper:

"Ethel, for God's sake trust me! I cannot tell you my secret."

Ethel Mordeck was not a woman to whom would be attributed any special strength of character, grandeur of soul, or any of those transcendental qualities that impel women to immortalizing deeds; she was simply an adoring wife and a devoted mother, and her life was consecrated to the happiness of husband and children, by whom she was regarded as a household fairy to be petted, caressed, protected and worshipped for the brightness that followed in her wake; yet at this supreme moment her love was a stronger defence to her husband than would have been the moral courage of a Volumnia or the physical courage of a Grace Darling. The confirmed suspicion of an unsharable secret would have weakened many a stronger character, but in this instance it served a dependent nature; and though her lips trembled beneath her husband's imploring kiss, her eyes smiled reassuringly into his, and he realized that the jewel he had placed on his breast as an ornament had become a shield to him in the hour of danger.

First Triumphs as Empress.

From St. Imard's "The Happy Days of the Empress Marie Louise." (Scribner.)

THE whole month of June was filled with a succession of brilliant festivities. Under the Empire things were not done by halves; battles or balls, everything was on a vast scale. "Never," says Alfred de Musset, "were there so many sleepless nights as during this man's lifetime; never was there such a silence when any one spoke of death: and yet, never was there so much joy, so much life, so much warlike feeling in every heart; never had there been a brighter sun than that which dried so much blood. It was said that God had created it for this man, and it was called the sun of Austerlitz; but he made it himself with his ever-roaring cannon, that dispelled the clouds on the morrow of his victories."

The entertainment given to the Emperor and Empress by the city of Paris, June 10, was magnificent. There were great rejoicings in the capital on that day. In the afternoon there were public sports in the Champs Élysées, and dancing in the open places and the long walks. With nightfall the illuminations began. A troop of mountebanks performed on a huge stage a ballet in pantomime, called the "Union of Mars and Flora." There were as many as five hundred performers. There were bands playing in every direction, and food was distributed to the contented multitude. From the Arc to the Tuilleries, from the Tuilleries to the Louvre, from the Louvre to the Hôtel de Ville, the spectacle was really fairy-like. Napoleon and Marie Louise, starting from Saint Cloud at eight in the evening, made their way, in torchlight, through a countless multitude. Their approach was announced to the people by the sudden ascent of a balloon, from which fireworks were discharged. At half-past nine they reached the Hôtel de Ville. Nearly a thousand persons had gathered in the concert hall, almost three thousand in the record room, the Hall of Saint John, and in the semicircular place in front, opposite the spot, on the left bank of the Seine, where the fireworks were to be set off at a signal of Napoleon and Marie Louise. These fireworks were divided into three parts, representing a military scene, the Temple of Peace, and the Temple of Hymen. In the first there were two forts which soldiers were assaulting, firing their guns amid the sound of trumpets and the rattle of drums. The forts were discharging shells and bullets, which burst into flame, and were reflected in the water before they fell into the river. When the two forts were captured, they disappeared in a great blaze. Then the ship, the symbol of the city of Paris appeared and took its station between two columns of light. The decoration changed, and first the Temple of Peace was seen, then that of Hymen—a real pyrotechnic masterpiece. After the fireworks the Emperor and Empress went first into the record room, then into the concert hall, where was sung a cantata, with words by Arnault and music by Méhul, which began with this apostrophe to the Empress :

"From the throne where our homage rises to you,
From the throne where beauty reigns by the side of courage,
And Minerva by the side of Mars,"

On these shores of which love has made you sovereign,
On these happy shores adorned by the Seine,
Louise, cast thy glance."

After the cantata a ball began. Napoleon did not dance, but Marie Louise did. At two o'clock supper was served at this fifteen hundred ladies were present, and the ball went on till day-break.

The portrait of the Empress which the Baron de Méneval has drawn, is as follows: "Marie Louise had all the charm of youth; her figure was perfectly regular; the waist of her dress was rather longer than was generally worn at that time, and this added to her natural dignity and contrasted favorably with the short waists of our ladies; her coloring was deepened by her journey and her timidity; her fine and thick hair, of a light chestnut, set off a fresh, full face, to which her gentle eyes lent a very attractive expression; her lips, which were a little thick, recalled the type of the Austrian Imperial line, just as a slightly aquiline nose distinguishes the Bourbon princes; her whole appearance expressed candor and innocence."

On the Way to Windsor.

From "England as She Seems, by an Arab Sheik."
(Warne.)

ON that auspicious day we travelled down through a green and fertile part of England to where Her Majesty was. This journey was not terrible, because it took place in daylight, and our other one had somewhat accustomed us to trains.

Nor was it adventurous, for they who travel in this country leave as much to their friends and chance as a princess in her sealed litter journeying from one place to another. There was indeed one interruption which was more curious than aught else. We "changed" at a fair-sized station, and this gave me cause to be more acquainted with the management of railways than I might otherwise have been.

We had halted, and a shahr-âshûb, a very loud voiced official, proclaimed the fact that we must descend.

"But why," I asked, "when everything appears so propitious—when we are led by expectation and attended by comfort—should we stop in this way?"

Whereupon he pointed out to me that the train was going the wrong way.

"Why not," I argued, "in that case, turn it round?"

But this would not mollify the official who demanded our descent, and, aided by the persuasion of our friend, he attained his object, and left us with our luggage while the train went on.

Seeing I was dejected they sought to cheer me, and said it was "all right," which expression, and a pipe, comforts an Englishman for everything; and my guide—may the grass of prosperity be thick in the pastures where he herds his wishes—produced a magic book written by a philosopher called Bradshaw, by which, and some abstruse calculations, made with the help of the clock and a hermit who lived in the thickness of the station wall (called Clerk), and had only one small hole to breathe through and look out of, he was able to find when the next train would start.

Allah akbar! but Bradshaw is too much for me. My father could tell what the weather would be in ten days' time by watching his favorite star, and I have harvested my millet or betook me to journeys on the omens of the sky, but this little prophet in the shabby yellow shawl is more wonderful than anything! Outside never did fakir wear a meaner look, inside he is dusted thicker with unimpeachable facts, all put out in narrow rows, than is your beard with gray sand when you first take your head from under the camel bags after a khamseen has gone by.

"It is all right, hadji," said my friend, "there is one in a few minutes which will do capitally for us—drop us right into the imperial Presence with no more changes, so come down off that pile of boxes and let us have some coffee!"

A very wonderful man indeed is Bradshaw. How he must have travelled and observed! Not even the slave Said Ben Thabet could have been a much greater writer. Surely his book is an eighth Mu'allikat, and ought to be hung up at Mecca!

The Muse of Heaven.

From Flammarion's "Uranie." (Cassell.)

URANIE stretched forth her arm toward a lake that was to be seen upon the planet, and pointed out to me with her finger a group of winged creatures hovering above its blue waters.

They had not the human form of our earth. They were beings evidently organized to live in air. They seemed made of light. Seen from afar, I had taken them at first for dragon-flies; they had the same slender and graceful form as these, the same large wings, the same vivacity and lightness. But on observing them more nearly, I took note of their size, which was not inferior to ours, and I saw from the expression of their eyes that they were not animals. They resembled dragon-flies in their heads as much as their other members, and like those aerial beings, they had no legs. The enchanting music I had heard was only the sound produced by their wings in flight. There was a very large number of them—several thousands, perhaps.

On the summits of the mountains were to be seen plants, which were neither trees nor flowers, whose fragile stems rose to an enormous height, spreading out at the top into branches that looked like extended arms bearing large tulip-shaped cups. These plants were endowed with life—at least as much as, if not more so than, our sensitive plant. Like the Desmodie, with its mobile leaves, they revealed their inward impressions by their movements. These groves were veritable plant cities. The inhabitants of this world had no other dwellings than these thickets, and it was among these fragrant sensitive plants that they reposed when they were not floating in the air.

"This world seems fantastic to you," said Uranie, "and you ask yourself what can be the thoughts of these beings, what can be their manners, what their history, what species of art, of literature, of science, can they possess? It would take a long time to answer all the questions you might ask. Let it suffice you to know that their eyes are more far-seeing than our most perfect telescopes; that their nervous systems vibrate at the passage of a comet, and that from the impressions transmitted to them through electric currents they discover facts which you upon the earth will never know. The organs you see under their wings take the place of hands more skilful than yours. Instead of printing, events are with them recorded by direct photographic impressions, and their very words phonetically fixed. For the rest, they occupy themselves only in scientific researches—that is to say, in the study of nature. The three passions which fill up the largest part of life on the earth, the eager desire for wealth, political ambition, and love, are unknown to them, because they need nothing to sustain life, have no political divisions nor any other government than a council of administration, and because they are androgynes."

"Androgynes!" I returned. Then I ventured to add, "Is that better?"

"It is different," she answered. "It spares the race many serious troubles."

"It is necessary to detach one's self entirely," she continued, "from the sensations and the thoughts of earth, to be able to comprehend the infinite diversity manifested by the different forms of creation. Just as on your planet species have changed from age to age, from the strange beings of the earliest geological periods to the time of the appearance of man; so that now, even the animal and vegetable species of the earth are composed of the most diverse forms; from man to the coral, from the bird to the fish, from the elephant to the butterfly; thus, but over an extent incomparably more vast, the forces of nature have given birth in the innumerable abodes of the sky to an infinite diversity of beings and substances. The forms of the beings of each world are the result of the elements peculiar to it, such as the substance of which it entered the house in their calthood and never been outside since. The part of the floor devoted to them was littered with fresh-cut grass, which is brought to them daily. The lady's half of the hut was floored with packed red clay. The furniture consisted of a few jars, a rude bed, like an Indian charpoy, and a low stool. Fire was built on the floor, and as there was no outlet for the smoke the whole interior was as black as a chimney. The atmosphere was suffocating. We were both strong young men, but we couldn't is composed, its heat, light, electricity, density and gravity. The forms, the organs, the number of the senses—of which you have but five, and those not very perfect ones—depend upon the conditions of life peculiar to each sphere. Life is terrestrial on the earth, martial on Mars, saturnian on Saturn, Neptunian on Neptune—that is to say, adapted to its surroundings, or rather, to be more correct, produced and developed by each world, according to its organic state and in consonance with a primordial law which all nature must obey: the law of Progress."

Milliali's Favorite Home.

From Stevens' "Scouting for Stanley in East Africa." (Cassell)

We were shown the residence of the favorite spouse. The interior of the house was interesting as showing us the way in which the most favored lady in all Marangu is lodged. Her quarters were anything but elegant. The circular room was about ten feet in diameter and in shape suggested, as from without, a huge beehive. One-half the space was occupied by three fat cows that had either been built in or had stand the air of this Princess's fairy boudoir, and we were glad when we could retire. Whew! and Kilimanjaro so cold and pure close by.

We found here in Marangu ornaments that we saw nowhere else. Instead of the broad belts or big folds of beads peculiar to other tribes, the ladies of Marangu encircle their waists with prettily beaded rolls of leather. A length of dressed kidskin is rolled up the size of a small rope, strings of seed beads of many colors are then neatly coiled around it. The result is a very pretty and substantial-looking ornament, smaller editions of which are worn about the neck and arms. About the waist is worn any number, from one to eight, according to the wealth of the lady. Huge collars of hammered brass, obtained in barter from Ugweno, are also worn. A brass collar and a coil or two of beads about the waist, with a beaded apron three inches wide and six long, used to form the sum total of a Marangu lady's costume a few years ago. What with traders and white visitors, however, cloth has become more plentiful with them nowadays, and only girls of twelve and under are now to be seen in its truly simple and effective garb.

On the Bluff.

From "John Hay's Poems." (Houghton, Mifflin & Co.)

O GRANDLY-flowing River!
O silver-gliding River!
Thy springing willows shiver
In the sunset as of old;
They shiver in the silence
Of the willow-whitened islands,
While the sun-bars and the sand-bars
Fill air and wave with gold.

O gay, oblivious River!
O sunset-kindled River!
Do you remember ever
The eyes and skies so blue
On a summer day that shone here,
When we were all alone here,
And the blue eyes were too wise
To speak the love they knew?

O stern impassive River!
O still unanswering River!
The shivering willows quiver
As the night-winds moan and rave.
From the past a voice is calling,
From heaven a star is falling,
And dew swells in the blue-bells

Becalmed in Pleasant Company.

From Stockton's "The Merry Chanter." (Century Co.)

At last the Merry Chanter was got around, the wind filled her sails, the boats cast off, and, pulling to a little distance, their occupants waved their hands and cheered; there was a slight inclination of the deck to leeward, and our ship was under way.

It is seldom, I think, that a ship goes to sea with a crew composed entirely of captains, but the consideration of the fact gave us great comfort. Here were men with long lives of experience. Whatever might happen they would know exactly what to do. These noble seamen had been from pole to pole; they had known the desolation of the icy north; they had sailed through the furious typhoons of the tropics; and with sound ships, or ships with battered sides, they had dashed in safety through maddened waves from port to port. And not only the best of good seamanship, but the best of good luck, we carried with us. In all his life Captain Cyrus had never had anything serious happen to his ships; and why should he begin now? It was especially consoling to me, as I looked at my lovely wife, to think of these things at the outset of our wedding trip.

Not only seamen of vast experience, but able and lively seamen, were our captains. No one could imagine that years hung heavy upon them. Captain Timon stood at the helm with the bold, bright eye of an old sea-king. Captain Garnish, acting as mate, strode tall and strong along the deck, looking up at the sails and rigging with the air of a man who knew exactly what each inch of canvas, each stick of timber, and each piece of cordage should at that moment be doing, and ready, if he saw the least thing amiss, to roar out condemnation.

Captain Teel had assumed the duties of cook, and was now shut up in the galley; but Captain Cyrus, as lively as a squirrel, and still wearing his embroidered velvet slippers, was here, there, and everywhere, stowing away this, coiling up that, and making things generally ship shape, and always with a pleasant grin upon his face as if it were all an old story to him and he liked it.

Doris ran forward to see how the Merry Chanter himself was getting on, and I followed. We leaned over the bulwarks of the bow and looked at him. There he stood, part of his right arm still extended, his head thrown back, and his long hair appearing ready to float in the breeze, while his open mouth seemed drinking in the fresh salt air.

We had fine sea appetites for our meal, but Doris ate hurriedly. "I am so afraid we'll pass around the point while I am down here," she said. "I wouldn't for the world miss our actual passage out on the bosom of Mother Ocean!"

When we ran on deck we looked about and beheld the point still ahead of us.

"Why, Captain Timon," cried Doris, "have we sailed a bit?"

"Oh, yes," he said cheerily; "we're gettin' on, we're gettin' on. We haven't lost no headway so fur. This wind'll freshen before long, and then you'll see." And, leaving the helm in care of Captain Garnish, he went below.

Whether the wind fell off instead of freshening, or whether, as Doris surmised, we had become accidentally anchored, we certainly made but little progress, and there were times when it seemed as if the distant point were actually becoming more distant.

As there was no probability of an immediate rush out upon Mother Ocean, we went below to look over our little stock of literature; and while so engaged we heard a great sound of flapping and banging upon deck. Hurrying up, we found that the sails were loosely swinging and hanging, and that the crew, assisted by Captain Timon, were engaged in pulling them down.

"What is the matter?" we cried.

"Nothin' is the matter," replied Captain Cyrus, cheerily. "We're goin' to fish."

Doris sat down on something. "Fish!" she gasped.

Captain Timon now came towards us. "You see," said he, "it ain't no use tryin' to make headway against this flood tide; and so we thought we'd a great sight better anchor and fish. The fish'll be comin' in lively with the flood. The tide will turn about six o'clock, and then we can go out on the ebb and pass the p'int in just the prettiest time of the evenin'. And if you want to fish, there's lines enough on board for everybody."

For some minutes we were disgusted to the point of not being able to say how disgusted we were. Then Doris, seeing the captains gathered at the stern all busy in preparing their lines, sprung to her feet and declared that she might as well make the best of it, and that she was going to fish.

Captain Cyrus took charge of her, baiting her hook, and cheerily giving her all needful help and advice. As for me, I did not care to fish; and as for the butcher, he did not care to fish; and, together, we walked forward.

"It's my opinion," said he, confidentially, "that this is a stone ship. I'll lay two to one there's barnacles on her like the foundation walls of a church, and inside they've loaded her up with stone enough for a monument. If she ever sticks fast on a bar she'll be solid enough to build a lighthouse on."

"You don't seem to have faith in the sailing qualities of our ship," said I. "You must be sorry you took passage with us."

"Oh, no," said he. "I've come on board with all my belongin's, and I intend to stick to her as long as anybody else does. Stone ship, or wooden ship, I don't go back on my bargain."

Genius Is Infinite Patience.

*From Towle's "Heroes and Martyrs of Invention."
(Lee & Shepard.)*

At the age of twenty-one Watt opened a shop of his own in Glasgow, and put out his sign as a mathematical-instrument maker. But he did many other things besides making instruments. He constructed organs, fiddles, guitars, and flutes. At the same time he pursued other studies with the greatest ardor, and soon knew a great deal about engineering, natural history, languages, and literature.

One day an old steam-engine, made by a man named Newcomen, was brought to him to repair. This engine was the best that had ever been invented; but it was a clumsy affair at best, and could not do better or quicker work than horses.

This was the most important of all Watt's discoveries. He worked away on his engine now with redoubled zeal; but years were to pass before his great object was fully achieved. It was ten years after his walk on Glasgow common before his idea had taken shape in an actual working steam-engine. His health more than once failed him, and on one occasion, so discouraged had he become, he bitterly exclaimed, "Of all things in the world, there is nothing so foolish as inventing!"

But the triumph of his life, bringing with it world-wide renown and ample wealth, came at last. About a hundred years ago Watt set up his first complete steam-engine in London. It saved labor, and in many industries at once took the place of man and horse power. All the world

WATT EXPERIMENTING.

From "Heroes and Martyrs of Invention." (Copyright, 1890, by Lee & Shepard.)

As soon as Watt's keen eye examined it, he saw that the Newcomen engine was not good for much. Yet it showed him that an engine might be made which, with the use of steam, would perform wonders.

From that time he gave himself up to an absorbing study as to how to make a really useful and powerful steam-engine. There was something wanting—what was it?

One day, as with knitted brow he was sauntering across the Glasgow common, all of a sudden an idea struck him which solved the difficulty which had so long worried him. It occurred to him that, since steam was elastic, it would rush into any space or vessel the air in which had been exhausted. He hurried home in a fever of impatience. He constructed a vessel separate from the cylinder, and made a connection between them, and the vessel being exhausted of air, he found that the steam rushed into it.

saw after a while what a wonderful machine it was; but no one then could have foretold to what vast uses the idea of Watt's engine was to be put. We, who live in the days of steamships, railways, great mills, elevators, and a thousand other results of Watt's invention, can more clearly see of what enormous benefit it has been to mankind.

James Watt lived to a happy and prosperous old age, crowned with honors and revered by all his countrymen. He pursued his labors and researches to the end, and many were the ingenious devices which he invented. A fine statue of Watt stands in the Museum at Glasgow, near which the little model of his steam-engine, made by himself, was long kept for every one to see. The visitor to Westminster Abbey may observe among the memorials of poets, statesmen, and the most famous of Britain's sons, a statue of Watt, in a sitting posture, with an eloquent inscription by Lord Brougham.

 half russia. Uniform with Balzac's other works. $1.50.

IDYLS OF THE FIELD. By F. A. KNIGHT, author of "By Leafy Ways." With illustrations by E. T. Compton.

A series of sketches containing exquisite pictures of country life and scenes, characterized by that charm of style which has rendered Mr. Knight's writings so popular.

BY LEAFY WAYS. Brief Studies in the Book of Nature. By F. A. KNIGHT. With illustrations by E. T. Compton. 12mo, cloth.

"Mr. Knight seems to be quite as attentive and sympathetic an observer as the late Mr. Jefferies, and there is much in his essays which is both instructive and eloquent."—The Globe.

THE BAGPIPERS. By GEORGE SAND. Translated by Miss K. P. WORMELEY. 12mo, half russia, uniform with "Balzac's Novels." $1.50.

"Never before translated into English. When it is added that the translator is Miss Katharine Prescott Wormeley, whose translations of Balzac have given her such a high reputation, enough is said to indicate the excellence of the work. George Sand has never been translated by a writer so capable of rendering her spirit and the graces of her style as Miss Wormeley, and a new interest will be awakened in the author of 'Consuelo' by this undertaking."—ALEXANDER YOUNG, in Critic.

By T. R. SULLIVAN. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

"Mr. Sullivan is pleasantly original, varied, and animated. His stories are carefully finished, dainty in adjective, and quick in movement."—Brooklyn Times.

The Lawton Girl.

By HAROLD FREDERIC. 12mo, cloth, $1.25; paper, 50 cents.

"It has abundantly the essential quality of human interest. You read the tale with eagerness because you are interested intensely in the group of people who move through its pages. It leaves behind it the conviction of serious purpose, patient work, and abundant knowledge of motive and character."—Life.

With the Best Intentions.

A Midsummer Episode. By MARION HARLAND. 12mo, cloth, $1.25; paper, 50 cents.

"Whatever subject our authoress touches she writes upon it con amore, in such a manner that her narrative seems like tales told around a fireside."—Boston Courier.

LITTLE SAINT ELIZABETH,

And Other Stories. By FRANCES HODGSON BURNETT. With 12 new full-page drawings by Reginald B. Birch. Square 8vo, uniform with "Little Lord Fauntleroy," $1.50.

"Delightful juvenile fiction, as full of charm for the older people as for the youngest. Mrs. Burnett is always peculiarly felicitous in her portrayal of child character, and in this volume her gifts in that direction are developed in their affluence."—Boston Saturday Evening Gazette.

"Four charming stories, all of the same delightful quality that made 'Fauntleroy' such fascinating reading."—BOSTON TRANSCRIPT.

"There is, in these sketches, the same mingling of sweetness and humor which characterizes 'Fauntleroy'."—HARTFORD POST.

UNIFORM WITH THE ABOVE.

FOR SUMMER READING.

NOW READY:

LOS GERRITOS. By GERTRUDE FRANKLIN ATHERTON, author of "Hermia Suydam." Cloth, gilt, $1.00.

A delightful story that is redolent with the atmosphere of Southern California. Carmelita, the heroine, with her Mexican impetuosity, affords ample opportunity for dramatic effects, and the idyllic life of the land of the redwoods offers a most attractive background. The author's versatility has won for her a well-deserved popularity.

IN THE VALLEY OF HAVILAH. By FREDERICK THICKSTUN CLARK. Cloth, gilt, $1; paper covers, 50 cts.

Mr. Clark's style is a new departure in the line of fiction. There is not a lady or a gentlemen in the story, in the "society" acceptance of the terms; the surroundings are as rugged as the instincts of the characters, and yet the story reads like a beautiful prose poem. The atmosphere is delightful, and one lays down the book with the sense of having been mentally refreshed and invigorated. It is a charming story.

A MAGNETIC MAN. By E. S. VAN ZILE. Cloth, gilt, $1.00; paper covers, 50 cents.

Mr. Van Zile has won a deserved reputation as a writer of short stories. They are really condensed novels. His style is crisp without being abrupt; his situations are natural, and his climaxes are dramatic without being forced.

MY SISTER'S HUSBAND. By PATIENCE STAPLETON. Cloth, gilt, $1.00; paper covers, 50 cents.

The author has made the plot of "My Sister's Husband" more intricate than that of her stories generally. It is one of those books which gain strong friends for the writer, but is so marked in its character that it also makes enemies.

A MODERN MARRIAGE. By the Marquise CLARA LANZA. Cloth, gilt, $1.00; paper covers, 50 cents.

BETTY: A LAST CENTURY LOVE-STORY. By ANNA VERNON DORSEY. Cloth, gilt, $1.00; paper covers, 50 cents.

ANNOUNCEMENT FOR EARLY PUBLICATION:

THE GENTLE ART OF MAKING ENEMIES. By J. McNEILL WHISTLER. Being a collection of his writings edited by himself. 12mo, cloth, gilt, $1.50.

Whistler is recognized as the leading etcher of the world, and while his methods have aroused much controversy he is thoroughly recognized and widely welcomed in the artistic circles of London.

During the preparation of this book, he has been somewhat handicapped by a necessity for the vigorous pursuit of an American journalist, who had collected his various writings with a view to the publication under his own editorship. Twice the plates have been made, and twice the publication has been enjoined by the author. The matter even went so far as the sending of advance copies to the American Press for review before a final arrangement had been completed with an American publisher.

This edition, as it will be brought out by the John W. Lovell Co., will be superior in all its details, heavy English coated paper being used in the manufacture, and a new and novel binding. A small édition de luxe will be brought out on Holland hand-made paper. These Mr. Whistler will sign and number. Price, $15.00.

The book will make about three hundred (300) pages, and will bear a design of Whistler's on the cover. The work is replete with Whistlerian wit and humor.

Whistler's literary gift was scarcely suspected until 1862, when his "White Girl" was the target of ridicule for the critics of Paris and London. His literary work at that time was as mild as the wagging of a dead lamb's tail, but he soon learned his power after being made the butt of ridicule, and gradually grew strong in his style, and finally fought his first pitched battle against Mr. Ruskin, who had assailed him in his "Fors Clavigera."

Since that time he has been a prolific letter-writer, delighting the public, which loves nothing better than to see a good "set-to" between artists or literary men.

MISS MARSTON. By L. H. BICKFORD. Cloth, gilt, $1.00; paper covers, 50 cents.

A delightful story for summer reading, beginning in France in a crisp, French style, and shifting to the West of the United States, its general tone changing with the locality.

SUNSET PASS. By CAPTAIN CHARLES KING. Cloth, gilt, $1.00; paper covers, 50 cents.

Captain King's stories of military life bear the stamp of an originality which has the brisk, crisp atmosphere of the spring and autumn mornings in our own great West. Captain King is distinctively a military novelist.

* The above publications are for sale at the bookstores, or will be sent postpaid on receipt of price.

The book trade is respectfully requested not to place their orders for illustrated editions of

until they have seen PORTER & COATES' edition of that world-renowned work, for the following reasons:

- 1st. It is printed from entirely new stereotype plates.
- 2d. The photographs are from the famous houses of Allinari and Broge, of Florence, and some of them were taken expressly for us.
- 3d. The photogravures are made by Messrs. A. W. Elson & Co., of Boston, who made all those in Houghton, Mifflin & Co.'s edition of the "Marble Faun," and they say that they are the finest reproductions of the kind ever published in America.
- 4th. It is printed in the best manner and on the best paper made expressly for us, and in every way the work will be a superb specimen of American book manufacture.

NOTES IN SEASON.

T. Y. CROWELL & Co. have made arrangements to follow up their edition of Julius Wolff's great story, "The Saltmaster of Lüneburg" (Der Sülfmeister) by the other prose novels of this popular writer. The next to be published will be "The Robber Count" (Der Raubgraf), which has been called for in Germany to the extent of upwards of 21,000 copies. W. Henry and Elizabeth R. Window are the translators.

FLEMING H. REVELL announces for immediate publication the first volume of the Sermons of Rev. John McNeill, the "Scottish Spurgeon," who is now moving such great masses in the very heart of London. Mr. Revell will also have ready during June "Hints on Bible Study," a symposium by Dr. Clifford, Professors Drummond and Elmslie, and Revs. Horton, Meyer, Waller, Moule, Berry, and Dawson; "The Gospel and Modern Substitutes," by Rev. A. Scott Mattheson; and "Christian Living," a devotional volume, by Rev. F. B. Meyer.

SCRIBNER & WELFORD have just ready "From Handel to Hallé," by Dr. Louis Engel, who has had the good fortune to obtain for his interesting book of musical biographies, autobiographies by Prof. Huxley and Mr. Hubert Herkomer. The volume contains carefully executed engravings of Handel, Gluck, Beethoven, Sir Arthur Sullivan, Mme. Albani, Adelina Patti, Prof. Huxley, the juvenile prodigies, Hofmann and Hegner, and others. They have also just ready a new edition of Arthur Young's "Tour in Ireland," which formed two volumes in Bohn's Standard Library; a third volume of Ibsen's "Prose Dramas," containing "Lady Inger of Ostrat," "The Vikings at Helgeland," and "The Pretender," and, an illustrated volume of "Egyptian Sketches," by Jeremiah Lynch, State Senator of California.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish June 7 Henry James' new novel, "The Tragic Muse," which is said to have "in a marked degree those qualities of thought, characterization, and style which have won for Mr. James a foremost place among living novelists;" "Cities of Our Faith," selections from the writings and sermons of Rev. Dr. Samuel Lunt Caldwell, late President of Vassar College, with a biographical sketch by Oakman S. Stearns, D.D.; "Responsive Readings," taken from "The American Book of Church Services," by Rev. Edward Hungerford; "Heat as a Form of Energy," by R. H. Thurston, the third volume of The Riverside Science Series; "Girls and Women," by E. Chester in the Riverside Library for Young People; Ellen Olney Kirk's "A Daughter of Eve" and Sarah Orne Jewett's "A Marsh Island" in the Riverside Paper Series.

HARPER & BROS. will publish immediately a volume by the indomitable explorer, Du Chaillu, entitled "Adventures in the Great Forest of Equatorial Africa and the Country of the Dwarfs." Du Chaillu claims to be the first white man who penetrated the vast and unbroken African forest extending two or three degrees on each side of the equator, inhabited sparsely by man and the characteristic animals of Africa, but densely by great numbers of venomous serpents, formidable species of ants, and strange varieties of apes, of which the gorilla, which Du Chaillu calls the King of the African forest, is chief. Thirty-five years ago, in 1855, Du Chaillu left New York upon his first voyage, returning in 1859. He travelled alone, making friends with the tribes, and passing peacefully from one to the other. He discovered the gorillas, the cannibals, the dwarfs, and the mountains. Upon his return his story was assailed with bitter incredulity; but Sir Richard Owen and Sir Robert Murchison, with other men of the highest authority in science, befriended him, and now Mr. Stanley and other travellers confirm his narrative. This volume is a condensed and popular narrative of that expedition, abundantly illustrated and accompanied by a number of maps.

This novel has been running the past year in the Atlantic Monthly. It is in a large measure historical, dealing with a most interesting and picturesque epoch—the old Knickerbocker life in New York, when the present great metropolis was a little Dutch town, surrounded by palisades. Names well known in New York history appear, and a vivid presentation is made of the political conflicts of the period. The Begum is an East Indian married to a prominent New Yorker of the time. She and her daughter are strong factors in the story.

Havilah is used by the author to designate a part of the hilly country of California, where gold is found. The characters of his story are mostly illiterate people, but each with some redeeming trait. The hero is a diamond in the rough.

Fish, Eldridge Eugene. The blessed birds; or, highways and byways. Buffalo, N. Y., Otto Ulbrich, 395 Main St., [1890.] 253 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Papers on birds and related subjects by one of the best authorities on birds in western New York. They are entitled; Spring arrival of the birds; A day's outing in search of the arbutus; Ventriloquial and imitative power of birds; Wrens; Trees and trees; Intelligence in birds; A day in an old orchard; Autumn visitors; Nesting habits of birds; Maple sugar making; Danger on an early extinction of song birds; A search for a Whippoorwill's nest; A summer drive in the Lake country; Ornithological nomenclature.

Fiske, Amos K. Midnight talks at the club. N. Y., Fords, Howard & Hulbert, 1890. c. 6+297 p. S. cl., $1.

These conversations take place between four typical characters who meet Saturday nights in a quiet corner of the Asphodel Club. Opposite views are presented of various topics. The party discourse on temperance and prohibition; they find the churchly shepherds neglecting their true sheep; they talk about Sunday observance, and then at large about religion. They branch off to political immorality, to superstition and worship, with objections to making a fetish of the Sacred Scriptures, and then take up the question of the Irish-Americans and their diverse elements of good and evil as citizens, etc., etc.

Fleming, Geraldine. Slaves of the ring: a story of circus life. N. Y., J: W. Lovell Co., [1890.] c. '85. 2+233 p. D. (American novelists' ser., no. 4.) pap., 25 c.

Stolen America is the island of Bermuda, which the author describes with artistic pen, pointing out the defenceless condition of much of the eastern sea-coast of the United States. Two pairs of lovers, a French villain of polished manners, and numberless interesting people work out a plot of some complication. Any one contemplating a visit to Bermuda will find this a rare guide to its beauties.

*Forbes, Archibald. Havelock. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1890. 223 p. 12°, (English men of action.) cl., 75 c.; cl. limp, 60 c.

For the guidance and use of recruiting officers who are not physicians, in the examination of applicants for enlistment into the United States army. Tripler's "Manual," written for the use of medical officers, contains much that is useless or incomprehensible to the non-professional man.

Gréville, Henry, [pseud. for Mme. Alice Durand.] Aline; from the French, by W: G. Temple. N. Y., Appleton, 1890. c. 230 p. D. (Appleton's town and country lib., no. 52.) cl., 75 c.; pap., 50 c.

Aline is just twelve, when her father, an unsuccessful poet and painter, dies, leaving her mother quite destitute in the city of Paris. An old friend hears of a position as governess in a rich Russian family, which the widow accepts after placing her daughter with an old school friend. The descriptions of French and Russian systems of education are interesting. Aline first loves unwisely, but after many French matrimonial schemes all ends for the best.

- Lyon, Sidney, (pseud.) For a mess of pottage. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1890. c. 2-414 p. D. cl., $1.25.
- Said to be written by a Southern lady of prominence. The heroine is a strange mixture of good and evil and of coquetry and folly. The evil she works in several men's lives, and her final folly, in casting away her birth-right "for a mess of pottage," is the theme. The scenes and characters are taken from American life. The dialogue throughout is quite bright.

Patten, Simon N. The economic basis of protection. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1890. c. 2-144 p. D. cl., $1.

The leading purpose of the essay is to present "an ideal of a society in a dynamic condition as counterpart to the ideal of a static state." "I shall feel satisfied," the author says, "if I succeed in showing that such an ideal corresponds to the leading features of American industrial conditions and is in complete harmony with the best development of our industrial resources. Whether we shall have a static or dynamic society is really the centre of the discussion about the tariff."

*Pausanias. Mythology and monuments of ancient Athens; being a translation of a portion of the "Attica" of Pausanias, by Margaret de G. Verrall; with an introductory essay and archæological commentary, by Jane E. Harrison. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1890. 156-635 p. il. 12°, $4.50.

Designed as a sequel to the author's "Harvard reminiscences." The men whom it commemorates were either benefactors of the college or members of one or more of its boards of government or instruction. The sketches are not offered as complete biographies, but rather as the writer's own personal recollections. An appendix contains sketches of the first two presidents of the college, Henry Dunster and Charles Chauncy.

Pellew, G: John Jay. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1890. c. 8+374 p. D. (American Statesmen ser.) cl., $1.25.

"The present monograph presents a pleasant picture of one of the purest, most single-minded, sincerest, and most sagacious and Christian statesmen the annals of the Republic can show. In his long career—as member of the Continental Congress, President of Congress, member of the Constitutional Convention, Foreign Secretary, Chief Justice of the United States, Governor of New York, Minister to Spain, Special Envoy to England—no breath of suspicion or doubt attached to his fame. . . . Mr. Pellew has profited considerably by the Stevens mss. and the work of M. Doniol, which deals elaborately with the relations between Paris and Madrid during the years 1778 and 1779. The 'Jay mss.' also have been carefully examined."—New York Tribune.

Philips, F. C. Social vicissitudes. N. Y., J: W. Lovell Co., [1890.] 3-179 p. D. (Lovell's lib., no. 1490.) pap., 20 c.

Smith, Mrs. L. T., [formerly L. T. Meade.] A girl of the people: a novel. N. Y., Frank F. Lovell & Co., [1890.] c. 222 p. D. (Lovell's international ser., no. 52.) pap., 30 c.

The poor district of the city of Liverpool is the home of the handsome nineteen year old "girl of the people." She sells newspapers. Upon the death of her Calvinistic mother she takes her twin brothers of seven under her protection and openly opposes her drunken father in his plans for marrying her to a low companion of his revels. A well-told story brightened by glimpses of the best to be found in human nature.

Smith, Ronald. Stanley in tropical Africa: his travels, heroism, and discoveries, and gallant relief of Emin Pasha, incl., the narrative of the Livingstone search expedition, and the founding of the Congo Free State. N. Y., Ward, Lock & Co., 1890. 196 p. por., maps, and il. 12°, cl., $1.

"The Fairhaven fourteen" were classes "Nine" and "Ten"—boys and girls—in the Fairhaven Sunday-school. They conceived the idea of forming a society whose objects should be "to teach and help them to be good, and do kind things for other people, and to try to help the church and Sunday-school along."

*Tavernier, Jean Baptiste. Travels in India; from the original French ed. of 1676, with a biographical sketch of the author, notes, appendices, etc., by V. Ball. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1890. 2 v. il. and map, 8°, cl., $12.

Thayer, W. Roscoe, ed. The best Elizabethan plays. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1890. c. 1+611 p. D. cl., $1.40.

The selection comprises "The Jew of Malta," by Marlowe; "The alchemist," by Ben Jonson; "Philaster," by Beaumont and Fletcher; "The two noble kinsmen," by Fletcher and Shakespeare; and "The Duchess of Malfy," by Webster. It thus furnishes not only the best specimen of the dramatic works of each of the five Elizabethan poets who rank next to Shakespeare, but also a general view of the development of the English drama from its rise in Marlowe to its last strong expression in Webster.

*Weyman, Stanley J. The house of the wolf: a romance. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1890. 8+278 p. 12°, cl., $1.25.

White, Eliza Orne. Miss Brooks: a story. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1890. c. 2-283 p. D. cl., $1.

Miss White is the author of "A Browning courtship." She offers in the present work a charming character novel of a typical Boston girl. "Miss Brooks" has her limitations, but within them she is a most admirable character, and certainly most admirably drawn. Her love for Boston and her own family, her belief that life is not worth living outside of Boston, all play a prominent part in her engagement to a man of brains and wealth, who does not share her prejudices. The story is unusually fresh and clever.

Willoughby, W: F. Child labor. [Also] Child labor, by Miss Clare de Graffenried. N. Y., American Economic Assoc., [John Murphy & Co.,] 1890. 3-149 p. O. (Publications of the American Economic Assoc., v. 5, no. 2.) pap., 75 c.

The two papers contained in this monograph were written in competition for a prize offered by Mrs. John Armstrong Chanler (Amélie Rives), for the best essay on the subject of child labor.

Winter, J: Strange, [pseud. for Mrs. H. E. V. Stannard.] Dinna forget. N. Y., Frank F. Lovell & Co., [1890.] 6-214 p. D. (Lovell's international ser., no. 60.) pap., 30 c.

The usual love-story of English fashionable life, with a soldier hero.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

OTTO HARRASSOWITZ, the scholarly antiquarian bookseller of Leipzig, has recently issued two catalogues of permanent interest and value to the book trade. No. 164 contains the titles of 1616 works on literary history, library economy, and bibliography in every language; No. 165 contains a list of 2956 works on German and foreign literature, from the sixteenth century to the present. In nearly every case the original price is given besides Mr. Harrassowitz's selling price, as well as important bibliographical points. These catalogues, which deserve a permanent place in the bookseller's library, may be obtained gratis upon application to Mr. Harrassowitz, Queerstrasse, 14, Leipzig.

Catalogues of New and Second-hand Books.—Cassino Book Co., 1374 Broadway, N. Y., Miscellaneous books. (No. 1, 565 titles, 8°.)—S. H. # The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

MAY 31, 1890.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE STATE AND THE PUBLISHING BUSINESS AGAIN.

WE print elsewhere the text of two measures for regulating the manufacture and supply of text-books for the public schools of New York, which have been recently presented to the New York Legislature (more for the purpose of putting on record everything that may even distantly relate to the book trade, than because we attach any particular importance to them). Mr. Coons' bill we had already referred to editorially in our issue for March 1. The principal object of this measure seems to provide a berth for three officers with a salary of from two to three thousand dollars per year, and possible "perquisites." It is on the face of it a thinly disguised "job" which the honest representatives of taxpayers will no doubt squash when it comes up for a vote.

As to the second bill presented to the Senate by Mr. McNaughton and in the Assembly by Mr. Courtney, this is in the line of measures that have been adopted in other States to the disgust and heavy cost of the taxpayer. This journal has time and again given expression to its opinion on this question, and to this day no developments have been made to convince an unprejudiced observer that a corporation can serve its constituents as well or as economically in the matter of manufacturing text-books as it is now being done by individual enterprise. The proof can easily be gotten at. Indiana, the latest victim to this utopian idea, finds itself spending almost as much again on school-books under its paternal system as it did under the old régime. California, which has been its own school-book publisher for seven years with disastrous results, is contemplating legislation to rid itself of its incubus.

The McNaughton-Courtney bill instead of being as has been stated "a corrupt job, the sole object of which is the financial profit of the 'School-book Trust'" is one of the measures designed to break up the practices that have prevailed for a generation in the city of Rochester, by which frequent changes were made, series lengthened out, and the books and supplies furnished, limited without regard to price or merit of competing houses, to those controlled by the local agent of one school-book publishing firm. To break down this influence, to defeat particularly obnoxious commissioners with determined efforts, several laws affecting educational matters were proposed by a number of leading citizens of Rochester, headed by the honored philanthropist Henry Lamb. Among the measures presented only the uniform text-book bill received general approbation and was finally ordered to be introduced as a law by a public meeting to which the work of the committee was submitted. So much for the motive which is responsible for the presentation of the bill at Albany. We hardly think that the taxpayers of the State of New York will be willing to saddle themselves with an experiment involving so many risks as the manufacture of any article carries with it, in order that one city may rid itself of political corruption. That might prove too heroic a remedy and in the end might prove worse than the disease.

WE are pleased to note that The Christian Advocate in its issue for May 22 admits the "impropriety and immorality" of an advertisement printed in its issue of May 8. The advertisement was made up by some one (presumably the cat) in the subscription department of Hunt & Eaton from a catch-penny circular gotten up by the Historical Publishing Co., of Philadelphia, who are pushing a hack-work, entitled "Heroes of the Dark Continent," made up of the writings of African explorers including Stanley's, with the equivocal assertion that it "is equally as authentic and as much Mr. Stanley's 'own book' as the one" Messrs. Charles Scribner's Sons, are about to publish under the title of "In Darkest Africa." The most startling announcement in the advertisement printed over Messrs. Hunt & Eaton's signature, was this:

"Do not be frightened by the unjust and untrue statements which appear in papers, and which are supplied and paid for by rival publishers. Remember that you can arrange with an editor for just as strong notices of your book, if you care to pay for them, because the business of an editor is to make money for his paper, and as long as you pay him for what you desire inserted, he will treat you just as kindly as he will any one else."

Of course, all who made any allowance for the probable state of affairs might have guessed that such a statement was never made with the knowledge of the agents of the Methodist Book Concern or of the editor of the Christian Advocate. Dr. Buckley, in calling attention to the unfortunate occurrence, distinctly states that "at no time in the long history of the house has a dollar ever been offered to any paper to commend its publications except in pay for advertisements displayed as such."

We would suggest that the agents of the Methodist Book Concern point out to that "employé in the Subscription Department" the error of his way, especially as this is not the first time he has gotten his employers into trouble. If it should happen to be the "office cat," they might consult Matt. xviii., 6, for a remedy.

EVERY friend of justice lives in hope that the present Congress will not adjourn until the stain of the defeat of the copyright measure is wiped out. The parliamentary position of the bill is such that the motion to reconsider may at the proper time be called up, and the House may have another opportunity to act upon the measure. When it does come up, we are confident that it will pass. Since the action of the House the public press, without regard to party differences and prejudices, has risen almost as one man to protest—a course that cannot be without effect on the members who voted against the measure. The New York Times, which has been doing excellent work in the fight for international copyright, in its issues for May 19 and 20, printed several columns of extracts from its exchanges voicing the indignation of the press. The expressions of sympathy which have been collected would, if they could all be printed, fill nearly a page of the Times. The House, therefore, cannot do better than to consider and reverse its action.

THE AMERICAN BOOK COMPANY, by some magical means, has succeeded in accomplishing what few would have believed possible three weeks ago—the control of the public school books of Harper & Brothers, and of the plant of The Standard Publishing Co. and D. D. Merrill & Co. The latter two, while not absolutely formidable rivals of the American Book Co., were nevertheless in a position to cause it considerable trouble in the West and Southwest, particularly in Iowa, Minnesota, and Arkansas. For this reason it was expected that they would hold out in the fight they had already begun against the new corporation. Their surrender and the purchase of the Harper books now practically puts all the public school book business into the hands of the American Book Company, and places in it a position of grave responsibility. Whether it will use it for the benefit of the public, the schools, and the trade, time alone can decide.

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT.

JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL ON THE DEFEAT OF THE COPYRIGHT BILL.

From Kate Field's Washington.

"ELMWOOD, CAMBRIDGE, MASS., May 15, 1890.

"DEAR MISS FIELD: You ask me to send you a few lines on the recent defeat of the International Copyright Bill in Congress.

"I have had too long an experience of the providential thickness of the human skull, as well as of the eventual success of all reasonable reforms, to be discouraged by the temporary defeat of any measure which I believe to be sound. I say 'providential' because the world is thereby saved many a rash experiment in specious legislation. Were it otherwise, the Huon's horn of inconsiderate enthusiasm would lead us a pretty dance among the briars. Unfortunately there is, as usual, an exception to this general rule, for the sutures of the political cranium are so loosely knit as to leave a crevice through which considerations of ephemeral expediency find a too easy entrance. Such considerations, it should always be remembered, are most liable to disastrous recoil.

"I grant that our hope has been long-drawn-out, but since material for it (as for every hope that has a moral care) has been constantly supplied, it has never become too attenuated to bear the strain put upon it. It is seventy-one years since Irving wrote, 'You observe that the public complain of the price of my work; this is the disadvantage of coming in competition with republished English works for which the publishers have not to pay anything to the authors. If the American public wish to have a literature of their own, they must consent to pay for the support of authors.'

"(And why not, I may add, if we consent to pay Senator Jones for the support of a silver mine?)

"It is fifty years since Irving wrote: 'How much this growing literature may be retarded by the present state of our Copyright Law, I had recently an instance in the cavalier treatment of a work of merit written by an American who had not yet established a commanding name in the literary market. I undertook as a friend to dispose of it for him, but found it impossible to get an offer from any of our principal publishers. They even declined to publish it at the author's cost, alleging that it was not worth their while to trouble themselves about native works of doubtful success, while they could pick and choose among the successful works daily poured out by the British press, for which they had nothing to pay for copyright.'

"This was in 1840, and in the same year Mr. Clay's bill was defeated. We have been fighting for the same cause with the same weapons ever since, and apparently with the same result.

"But for all that we have made progress. We have secured public discussion, and a righteous cause which has done that has got the weather gauge of its adversary. I am too old to be persuaded by any appearances, however specious, that Truth has lost or can lose a whit of that divine quality which gives her immortal advantage over Error. The adversary has cunningly entrenched himself in the argument that there can be no such thing as property in an idea, and I grant that this is a fallacy of which it is hard to disabuse the minds of otherwise intelligent men. But it is in the form given to an idea by a man of genius, and in this only, that we assert a right of property to have been created. The founders of our republic tacitly admitted this right when they classed the law of copyright with that of patents. I have known very honest men who denied the public expediency of such a right in both cases, but I cannot understand either the logic or the probity of those who admit the one and deny the other. This right is visible and palpable in a machine, invisible and impalpable in a book, and for this very reason the law should be more assiduous to protect it in the latter case, as being the weaker.

"But, after all, every species of property is the artificial creature of law, and the true question is whether, if such property in books did not exist, it would be wise in our own interest to create it. The inventions of Whitney, of Fulton, and of Morse added enormously to the wealth of the nation. Have not those of Edwards and Irving, and Cooper and Emerson, and Hawthorne and Longfellow (to speak only of the dead) added also to that wealth, and in a nobler kind? Or is not moral credit, then, worth something, too? Is it not, indeed, the foundation on which financial credit is built and most securely rests?

"The foreign right to property of this description stands on precisely the same footing with the domestic right, and the moral wrong of stealing either is equally great. But literary property is at a disadvantage because it is not open, gross, and palpable, and, therefore, the wrongful appropriation of it touches the public conscience more faintly. In ordinary cases it is the thief, but in this case the thing stolen that is invisible. To steal is no doubt more immediately profitable than acquisition by the more tedious methods of honesty, but is apt to prove more costly in the long run. How costly our own experiment in larceny has been those only know who have studied the rise and progress of our literature, which has been forced to grow as virtue is said to do—in spite of the weight laid upon it.

"But even though this particular form of dishonesty against which we are contending were to be always and everywhere commercially profitable, I think that the American people are so honest that they may be made to see that a profit allowed to be legitimate by us alone among civilized nations—a profit, too, which goes wholly into the pockets of a few unscrupulous men—must have something queer about it, something which even a country so rich as ours cannot afford.

"I have lived to see more than one successful appeal from the unreason of the people's representatives to the reason of the people themselves. I am, therefore, not to be tired with waiting. It is wearisome to ourselves and to others also to go on repeating the arguments we have been using for these forty years, and which to us seem so self-evident, but I think it is true that no reformer has ever gained his end who had not first made himself an intolerable bore to the vast majority of his kind. I have done my share in my time to help forward such triumphs of tediousness, but you will not thank me for essaying it again in the sprightly columns of your paper. Faithfully yours,

"J. R. LOWELL."

OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES writing to the same journal says: "Dear Miss Field, I have nothing to add to my recorded opinion of the dishonesty of stealing the products of the labor of the soft-handed sons of toil. I cannot see that a callous on the palm confers any better claim to fair treatment than a furrow in the forehead and an aching in the brain."

A WESTERN PUBLISHER ON THE "RIGHT OF COPYRIGHT."

From the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

As a believer in the right of protection, I want to join my thanks with others to Messrs. Butterworth and Caldwell for their votes in favor of a just copyright bill.

It is not a question of cheap books, but a question of right or wrong; it is a question whether the brain shall have protection in its work the world over when used in book-making as well as in machine-making. Edison, in the work of his brain, has, by the protection of our patent laws, the income and use of his patents the world over; but Longfellow, in the work of his brain, can have protection only in this country.

The copyright law claims equality for brain work of all kinds, and piracy, even if it gives us "cheap books," cannot be justified.

Our tariff is an attempt to build up home industries: let us give the same protection to our authors as we do to our machine workers; let us encourage an English literature with the hope of an adequate financial return. Let us say to our authors, "The work of your brains is your property, dispose of it as it is to your interest, but as your property it shall have equal protection under the law the world over."

A. H. HINKLE.

ANOTHER INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT BILL.

THE House Committee on Patents, on May 22, ordered a favorable report on a bill introduced by Mr. Simonds, of Connecticut, which is identical with the International Copyright bill already acted upon adversely by the House, with the addition of a new section, which provides that it shall be of effect only where reciprocal advantages are granted by foreign countries to American authors.

It is rumored, says The Critic, that the following resolution is to be introduced into the House of Representatives:

WHEREAS, It has been decided by the vote on the Copyright Bill that it is just, expedient, and necessary that the people of the United States should have cheap foreign literature without regard to the alleged rights of the foreign or the American author; and,

WHEREAS, Under the present system, foreign text-books may be acquired more cheaply than American; therefore Resolved, That the House of Representatives hereby recommends to the Legislatures of the different States the substitution in the public schools of foreign text-books in place of those by American authors, to the end that American children may early acquire a just disregard for property in general, and a sturdy disrespect for American institutions.

THE OLD SLEUTH CASE.—As we go to press we learn that on a new trial of the suit of George Munro vs. Street & Smith, before Judge O'Brien of the Supreme Court, on May 7, judgment was declared in favor of defendants and complaint dismissed. In another suit bearing upon the "Old Sleuth" case, before Judge Shipman, in the U. S. Circuit Court, May 5, the judgment was: "I do not find any infringement, and the bill should be dismissed."

NEW YORK STATE SCHOOL-BOOK MATTERS.

A BILL TO CREATE A "TEXT-BOOK COMMISSION."

THE following bill [Assembly No. 474] was introduced by Mr. A. B. Coons, of Schoharie, February 11, read once and referred to the Committee on Public Education:

AN ACT to establish a Board of Commissioners to be known as the text-book commission and to define its powers and duties.

SECTION 1. Within thirty days after the passage of this act the Governor shall appoint three commissioners, to be known as "text-book commissioners," who shall hold office for the term of one, two, and three years.

SEC. 2. When first appointed their terms of office to be determined by lot; after appointment and each year thereafter the Governor shall appoint one commissioner to serve for the term of three years or until his successor shall have been appointed and has qualified.

SEC. 3. Said commissioners shall publish or cause to be published, in their discretion, such text-books when so designated, at the expense of the State, and shall furnish the same to the several districts of the State at ten per cent. above the actual cost of printing same.

SEC. 4. Said books shall be delivered to the trustee or trustees of any school district upon the receipt of the county treasurer of his county, showing that an amount sufficient to pay for all books ordered has been deposited with said county treasurer.

SEC. 5. County treasurers receiving funds for text-books under the provisions of this act shall remit the same on the first of each month to the comptroller, to be placed to the credit of the "text-book fund."

SEC. 6. That for the purpose of executing the provisions of this act the sum of three hundred thousand dollars is hereby appropriated, which shall be deposited to the credit of the "text-book fund."

SEC. 7. The commissioners provided for in this act shall each execute and file a bond in the sum of twenty thousand dollars for the faithful performance of his duty, and shall each receive for his services an annual salary of two thousand dollars, and expenses not to exceed five hundred dollars.

SEC. 8. All acts or parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

SEC. 9. This act shall take effect immediately.

TO PROVIDE APPROVED, UNIFORM AND INEXPENSIVE TEXT-BOOKS FOR PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

THE following is the text of a bill presented March 24 into the Senate by Mr. Donald McNaughton, of Rochester, and on March 28 in the Assembly by Mr. Courtney, also of Rochester. The bill was read twice in the Senate, and once in the Assembly, and referred in the former to the Committee on Literature and in the latter to the Committee on Public Education:

AN ACT to secure approved, uniform, and inexpensive text-books for use in public schools, and to repeal certain acts.

SECTION 1. A State Board of School Text-books is hereby constituted and established, which shall be composed of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction; the Secretary of the Regents of the University of the State of New York, the President of the State Society of School Superintendents, the President of the State Association of Teachers, and the Principal of the Albany Normal School.

SEC. 2. The State Superintendent of Public Instruction shall be president of said board, by virtue of his office. The board shall elect annually from among its own members or otherwise, a secretary of the board, who shall hold office at the pleasure of the board. Other officers may be chosen by the board at its discretion.

SEC. 3. The State Board of School Text-books shall establish rules regulating the transaction of its business and such other rules as it may deem necessary to carry into effect the provisions of this act.

SEC. 4. Four members of the board shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business.

SEC. 5. The said board shall hold its first meeting at the capitol within thirty days after the passage of this act, at the call of the president. The board shall meet at least twice in each year. All meetings shall be held at such time and place as the president shall appoint.

SEC. 6. The secretary shall keep a record of the acts and proceedings of the board and perform such other duties as the board may require. He shall receive an annual salary of an amount to be determined by the board, which shall be paid him in the same manner as the salaries of other State officers are paid, and such necessary expenses shall be allowed him as the comptroller shall audit on the presentation of an itemized account having vouchers annexed, together with the certificate of the board.

SEC. 7. The actual travelling and other expenses of the members and officers of the board while engaged in their duties, shall be allowed and paid to them out of the appropriation made for that purpose. In addition thereto, there shall be allowed to each member, while in actual service of the board, the sum of ten dollars per day.

SEC. 8. Said board shall have the power and it shall be its duty to designate the text-books to be used in all the public schools of the State, and on and after the first day of September, eighteen hundred and ninety-one, no text-books shall be used in any public school except such as shall be designated by said board. The board shall have power to designate any book already published or to prepare or cause to be prepared by experts who shall be employed by the board for that purpose, text-books suitable for use in the public schools. The copyright to books so prepared shall belong to the State, and it shall be the duty of the board to protect such copyright from infringement. It shall be the duty of the board to contract with publishers to secure the supply to the public of the State text-books adopted by it, of good material and workmanship, and at the lowest price which can be secured. No book, the copyright to which shall not belong to the State, shall be adopted by the board unless the owner of the copyright shall grant, through contract with the board, to any other publisher, the privilege of competing for its production and supply to the public on payment of a royalty not to exceed ten per centum of the selling price of the book.

SEC. 9. An affirmative vote of at least four members of the board shall be required for either the adoption or change of a text-book, and no change shall be made in the use of any text-book adopted within four years after such adoption, except by a unanimous vote of the full board.

SEC. 10. It shall be the duty of the board on or about the first Monday of December in each year, to make a report in writing to the legislature of the State, containing a statement of the principal transactions of the board, a detailed statement of the comptroller of all money paid out by or on account of the board, and a detailed statement of the manner of its expenditure during the year last past.

SEC. 11. The sum of ten thousand dollars is hereby appropriated from the general fund for the purposes of this act, and the expenditures properly incurred by authority of said board and verified by affidavit, shall be paid by the treasurer upon the warrant of the comptroller.

SEC. 12. Chapter four hundred and twenty-seven of the laws of eighteen hundred and eighty-four and chapter four hundred and thirteen of the laws of eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, together with all acts and parts of acts inconsistent or in conflict with the provisions of this act, are hereby repealed.

SEC. 13. This act shall take effect immediately.

THE C. F. JEWETT PUB. CO. LOSES ITS PRESIDENT.

ON May 22 the discovery was made that Clarence F. Jewett, President of the C. F. Jewett Publishing Co., practically the subscription department of Estes & Lauriat, who had been missing for two weeks, would probably never again return to Boston. Investigation proved that Mr. Jewett had been guilty of overissuing stock, to what extent has not yet been divulged. It was reported at first that the overissue of stock amounted to about $75,000, but it is probably much less.

The capital stock is reported to be $75,000, of which Jewett owned one-half the shares (375) and Mr. Dana Estes, the Treasurer of the company, the remainder. Within a few weeks it has been learned that Mr. Jewett has issued a considerable amount of stock, signing not only his own name, but also—according to report—that of Mr. Estes. When this matter first became known to Mr. Estes he made inquiries, and Mr. Jewett, claiming to be ill, said he would go away for a few days, and he has not been seen since. The day after he left Boston, so it is said by one of his friends, he wrote to his brother stating that he was in financial straits, that he was a defaulter and would probably not return to Boston. The same person was authority for the statement that only a short time ago Mr. Jewett had a paper drawn by his lawyer, transferring his personal effects, furniture, art paintings, etc., to his wife, explaining that he did so to guard against her being left without ample means should anything turn up; but that later, under some pretence, he secured the papers and raised money by mortgaging all of the effects.

The firm of Estes & Lauriat make the following statement concerning the affair:

There is very little to add to the published report about the disappearance and irregularities of C. F. Jewett. The capital stock of the C. F. Jewett Publishing Company was $75,000, all issued when the company was organized, about four years ago. It turns out now that Jewett, who was President, has made large overissues of the stock to various persons, who will be losers. These transactions, we believe, are mostly of very recent date, nearly all of those which have come to our knowledge being within a month. Who these persons are we decline to state. The books of the corporation do not show their names, and those who have come to us for information have requested us to keep their confidence.

The corporation itself is not affected by this affair and is entirely solvent. It is hardly necessary to say that our concern is not financially affected, though we profoundly regret such conduct by a man in whom we had great confidence.

Mr. Jewett went to Boston from Claremont, N. H., where he was born. He was employed by James R. Osgood & Co., and when that firm went out of business two years ago he interested Estes & Lauriat in his publishing company scheme. The C. F. Jewett Publishing Company commenced business on September 1, 1886, in the rooms formerly occupied by Roberts Bros., over the bookstore of Estes & Lauriat on Washington Street in Boston. This new house was composed of Mr. Clarence F. Jewett and the two members of the firm of Estes & Lauriat. It was introduced as a firm commanding ample capital, and to be under the controlling direction of Mr. Jewett, who was known extensively as the proprietor of the coöperative system of writing history. This was first attempted in the "Memorial History of Boston," the plan of which originated with him. It was subsequently applied to the "Centennial History of the American Episcopal Church" and to the "Memorial History of Hartford County, Connecticut," which appeared about that time.

THE PRESBYTERIAN BOARD OF PUBLICATION INVESTIGATION.

AT the meeting of the General Assembly held at Saratoga, N. Y., May 20 to 27, the affairs of the Presbyterian Board of Publication came up for discussion. For some time the Board had been undergoing investigation, but few were prepared for the report presented by the committee appointed to look into the matter. The committee was composed of H. E. Simmons, formerly business manager of the American Tract Society, Thomas Kane, J. S. Crowell, and Wm. G. Johnston, and in its report charged generally an unbusinesslike administration of the affairs of the Board. To sum up the report briefly the committee found that "the Board is paying more than double for some of the work upon periodicals than it can be contracted for in the best offices in Philadelphia and elsewhere," that it paid prices for bound books very much in excess of that paid by regular publishing houses, and that its payments for copyright were "very much higher than are paid by similar Boards and Societies, in many cases more than double." Much in the report seems to be exaggerated.

After several hours' debate it was decided to refer the differences of opinion between the committee of experts appointed by last year's Assembly to investigate the business methods of the Presbyterian Board of Publication in Philadelphia and the Business Committee of that Board to a committee of seven to be appointed by the Moderator, which committee shall report to the next Assembly, but must publish its findings as soon as a decision is reached, and is empowered to immediately enforce such reforms as it may deem best in the Philadelphia offices.

THE AMERICAN BOOK COMPANY'S LATEST ADDITIONS.

THE AMERICAN BOOK COMPANY, although unable to induce Harper & Brothers to join its corporation, has nevertheless succeeded in making arrangements by which it comes into possession of all the books formerly published by Harper & Brothers intended for use in the public schools. This does not include any of the best books of other descriptions—those intended for college and university use—which the Harpers will retain and continue to publish as heretofore.

The American Book Company has also succeeded in obtaining control of the plant of The Standard Publishing Company of St. Louis, and of D. D. Merrill & Co. of St. Paul, which has a seventeen years' contract to supply school-books to the State of Minnesota.

THE AMERICAN BAPTIST PUBLICATION SOCIETY'S JUBILEE.

At the anniversary meeting of the American Baptist Publication Society, held at Chicago, May 21, the report showed the following encouraging results: The receipts in the book department of the Society during the year were $517,883.90. The total number of publications was 33,093,700, a gain of 2,273,850 over the preceding year. The number of copies of periodicals issued was 31,125,200, an increase of 2,147,651. The financial statement shows: Assets, $875,262.72; liabilities, $27,804.14; capital—net assets—$847,458.58. The Society is much more than self-supporting, although 132 colporteurs were supported, and 22,783 Bibles, 39,086 books, and 670,373 pages of tracts were distributed.

THE HATTON-LOVELL CONTROVERSY.

From the London Athenæum.

2, DEAN'S YARD, WESTMINSTER, May 13, 1890.

AN American, in these days following the defeat of the Copyright Bill, must approach any question touching the relations of English authors to America with a decent reluctance; but these days, humiliating as they are to Americans, are perhaps not the best season for recrimination, either. May I speak for Mr. Lovell, therefore, in reply to Mr. Joseph Hatton's singular statement in the last issue of the Athenæum, to the effect that his story "By Order of the Czar," was issued in Mr. Lovell's International Series without his authority or permission? Mr. Hatton has evidently forgotten the important circumstance that he several years since yielded to Messrs. Tillotson, of Bolton—presumably for a consideration—the right to sell for America the authorization which he complains has not been obtained from him. Mr. Lovell, as Mr. Hatton would have found if he had taken the pains to address Messrs. Tillotson before communicating with you, purchased from Messrs. Tillotson so long ago as 1888, for a substantial sum, the sole right to publish "By Order of the Czar" in the United States, as from the author. The obstacle encountered by Mr. Hatton's English publishers in selling this right in America is merely that properly encountered in the attempt to sell the same commodity twice. The unhappy difficulties which beset all dealings with America on the part of English writers are not cleared or bettered, one would say, by the habit of loose statement regarding the doings of American publishers, whose "game"—Mr. Hatton is persuaded to elegance by his theme—is by no means always one of "bluff."

WOLCOTT BALESTIER.

THE NEW YORK POSTAL GUIDE.

THE first number of The New York Postal Guide, officially recognized by the postal authorities, has just made its appearance. It will be issued every three months, and is distributed free of charge to persons who apply at the post-office or any of the postal stations. Most of the information relating to postal matters has been contributed by Assistant-Postmaster Gayler. It includes the preparation of schedules of carriers, deliveries and collections, tables of distances and transit time to the principal cities in the United States and foreign countries, and tables of the time of the departure and expected arrival of mails within and from without the city, and much other important matter. An outline postal map, showing the boundaries of the delivery districts in New York City, is prefixed to the pamphlet. Mr. Gayler's careful work deserves great praise.

BOOKSELLERS' AND STATIONERS' PROVIDENT ASSOCIATION.

At the regular meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association of the United States, held on Wednesday evening, May 21, 1890, the following new members were elected:

Nic. Tengg, San Antonio, Texas; George B. Sherwood, New York City; Hiram Sherwood, Mount Vernon, N. Y.; Millard F. Cook, Brooklyn, N. Y.; William B. Fitts, New York City; Daniel S. Appleton, Jr., New York City; Oliver J. Sadlier, San Francisco, Cal.; Charles L. Bowman, New York City; George M. Angevine, New York City; Lewis H. O. Ryers, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The regular annual meeting of this Association will be held on Wednesday evening, June 4, 1890, in the Book Trade Sale Rooms of Geo. A. Leavitt, Broadway and Tenth St., New York. A large attendance is desired.

WILBUR B. KETCHAM, Secretary.

COMMUNICATIONS.

In re THE RECOLLECTIONS OF F. S. COZZENS: A CORRECTION.

NEW YORK, May 7, 1890.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

SIR: Referring to your notice of the "Recollections of the Late Frederick S. Cozzens," introduced by Mr. Randolph in the May Lippincott, I wish to make a correction of an error made by Mr. Cozzens, who states that Mr. Ivison, of the firm of Ivison & Phinney, married a daughter of J. Fenimore Cooper. Mr. Ivison was married twice, but neither time to Miss Cooper. His partner, the late H. I. Phinney, was the son-in-law of the novelist. I had the good fortune to attend Thackeray's lecture referred to with Irving, Putnam, and Cozzens. Mr. Irving told me that he considered Cozzens the very best of American humorists. I had recently published his "Sparrowgrass Papers," which had a large sale.

Yours respectfully,

J. C. DERBY.

OBITUARY.

FLETCHER HARPER.

FLETCHER HARPER, who had been for over twenty years a member of the firm of Harper & Brothers, died at his house in East Sixtieth Street, New York, May 22, in the sixty-second year of his age. For some years Mr. Harper has been suffering from a complication of disorders which baffled the skill of physicians. Gradually these difficulties developed into marasmus, and death was caused at last by a general consumption or wasting away. Last year Mr. Harper visited Aix-les-Bains, in the hopes of deriving benefit from the waters. He was seized last fall with a painful attack in Paris, the symptoms indicating the formation of a clot of blood in the vein of the left leg. He was immediately brought home, and since that time he has been growing steadily weaker. For forty-eight hours before his death he was unconscious.

Fletcher Harper was born in New York City October 7, 1828, and was the second son of Fletcher Harper, the youngest of the original members of the firm of Harper & Brothers, the first and the only other child being the late Joseph W. Harper, Consul-General of the United States at Munich. The younger Fletcher, who has been best known in New York as Fletcher Harper, "Junior," was born and passed his boyhood in New York, with the exception of a voyage to China before the mast, which he made at the age of sixteen. This was not exactly an escape, but the result of a caprice, of which his father thought he would be more thoroughly cured by gratifying it than by thwarting it. The result approved the paternal wisdom, for the experience sufficed for the son. After finishing his Junior year at Columbia, and before entering upon his practical apprenticeship to the work of the house of which his father was a member, young Fletcher spent a year travelling in Europe with his parents. Soon after the founding of the New York Times his father bought an interest in the paper for him, and in April, 1853, the style of the proprietorship of the Times became "Raymond, Harper & Co." The copartnership lasted only for a year or so, when Mr. Harper's interest was transferred to the other owners. Mr. Fletcher Harper thereupon resumed his place in the house of Harper & Brothers.

He became a member of the firm in 1869, upon the death of Mr. James Harper, and for some time took special charge of the Harper periodicals. He had married, nearly twenty years before (in 1849), Miss Margaret C. Durbin, daughter of the Rev. John P. Durbin, D.D., then a well-known Methodist minister, and the issue of this marriage was one daughter, now Mrs. Hiram W. Sibley. Mrs. Harper, who died about four years ago, was a leader in charitable work, especially among working girls. By them she was almost worshipped for her thoughtful generosity, and long bore among them the title of "The Princess." She was instrumental in furnishing a number of seaside cottages, where poor girls were allowed to enjoy their vacation at a small price or free.

Mr. Harper was a man of great artistic and literary ability. He had also a marked taste for music, and was always a rare and congenial companion. Until of recent years, before the encroachments of the malady which caused his death, he was a man of splendid physique, tall, square-shouldered, and of military bearing. His face was one of striking intelligence, strong of character, and gifted with that peculiar quality of "lighting up" on the moment at the perception of another's thought. His judgment in literary and artistic matters was much sought after and highly valued. He was a member of the Union League Club and of Kane Lodge of Masons. For twenty years or more he had held the Presidency of the Homœopathic Insane Asylum of Middletown, N. Y., to which position he was first appointed by Gov. Dix.

Mr. Harper's connection with the firm of Harper & Brothers as an active member lasted not much more than twelve years, although his membership continued until it was terminated by his death. Soon after 1882 his health became feeble, and for several years he had been forced to abstain from active business, and had spent much of his time abroad.

Before the death of the first Fletcher Harper, in 1877, there was a Fletcher Harper in each of four generations of his branch of the family. Of these the youngest alone is now left, the great-grandson, although the venerable widow of the first Fletcher and the great-grandmother of the last survives in a green old age.

The funeral was held at the Madison Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, May 26, at 11 A.M. The Rev. Dr. McChesney, pastor of the church, officiated. He was assisted by the Rev. Dr. Jacob A. Shipman. The music was by the Mendelssohn Quartet of Brooklyn. The service was short, but impressive. With the exception of Joseph W. Harper, Jr., and W. A. Harper, who are in Europe, all the immediate family were present. These were: Mr. and Mrs. Hiram W. Sibley, of Rochester; Mr. and Mrs. Haight, Mr. Linde, Philip J. A. Harper, James Harper, John W. Harper, Joseph Henry Harper, John Harper, and J. A. Harper. The Kane Lodge of Masons, to which Mr. Harper belonged, attended in a body led by Rollin M. Morgan. Also members of the Union League Club and many employes of Harper & Bros. were present. The burial was at Woodlawn.

FUNERAL OF OLIVER BELL BUNCE.—The funeral services of Oliver Bell Bunce took place from his late residence, 350 West Twentieth Street, at 2 o'clock P. M., May 18, the Rev. Dr. Thomas Richey, of the General Theological Seminary, officiating. The services were according to the ritual of the Episcopal Church, and, at the request of the deceased man, were extremely simple and brief.

There were many lifelong friends of the deceased present. Among them were Mr. William H. Appleton, with most of the principal employes of the firm of D. Appleton & Co., as well as representatives of other publishing houses. There were also present Richard Henry Stoddard, Mrs. Barrow, William A. Townsend, Morris Phillips, Herman G. Carter, William F. Geisse, Dr. P. C. Cole, Anna Randall Diehl, E. C. Stedman, John Elderkin, Rossiter Johnson, Alfred Ayres, Junius Henri Browne, Prof. A. Berg, Mrs. Martha J. Lamb, James Dunn, Joseph B. Gilder, E. R. Pelton, G. W. Dillingham, G. W. Carleton, J. Henry Hagar, and many others.

At the conclusion of the brief service the body was taken to Greenwood, where the interment took place in the family plot.

HENRY B. DAWSON: AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY.

EDITED BY A. GROWOLL.

II.

IN 1865 Mr. Dawson published the "Diary of David How, a Private in Colonel Paul Dudley Sargent's Regiment of the Massachusetts Line, in the Army of the American Revolution. From the original Manuscript. With a Biographical Sketch of the Author, by George Wingate Chase, and Illustrative Notes, by Henry B. Dawson. Morrisania: 1865." This beautiful volume was published uniformly with the "Assault on Stony Point," the "Park and its Vicinity," and "Major-General Israel Putnam," already mentioned.

During the same year, 1865, he published a new edition of the celebrated "Recollections of the Jersey Prison-Ship by Captain Thomas Dring," which was originally published in Providence, Rhode Island, under the editorial supervision of the well-known scholar and poet, Albert G. Green. To that new edition he added a very elaborate appendix, extended notes, an index, two portraits, a map of the Wallabout in 1776-1783, plans of the decks of the old Jersey, and a picture of her as she lay at her moorings. The papers which were included in the appendix which he added to the work included previously unpublished correspondence and other papers of other prisoners on the old Jersey, as well as contemporary papers relating to the prisoners generally; a history of the old prison-ship; biographical sketches of prisons and others connected with the ship; several original papers, odes, etc.; the whole greatly enhancing the value of the original publication, and very largely increasing it in bulk. The title of that volume, a large octavo, elegantly printed by Alvord, was "Recollections of the Jersey Prison-Ship, from the original manuscripts of Captain Thomas Dring, one of the Prisoners. By Albert G. Green. Edited by Henry B. Dawson. Morrisania: 1865." The edition was confined to one hundred and fifty copies, of which fifty were on large paper.

At this time Mr. Dawson also edited and reprinted, in one of the most sumptuous quarto volumes which have ever left the American press, two letters which were written by William Graves, Esq., of the Inner Temple, for the purpose of defending his brother, Rear Admiral Graves, from the serious charges which were brought against him by the British Press, subsequent to the surrender of Lord Cornwallis, at Yorktown. This volume, which possesses unusual value as an historical authority, bears the title, "Two Letters Respecting the Conduct of Rear-Admiral Graves on the Coast of the United States, July to November, 1781. By William Graves, Esq., of the Inner Temple. Morrisania: 1865." The edition was only a hundred copies.

In the spring of 1865 he was invited to take the editorial charge of The Gazette, a Democratic weekly newspaper, published at Yonkers, in Westchester County; and, notwithstanding the great distance between his residence at Morrisania, and the office of The Gazette at Yonkers, he accepted the invitation, and entered upon the duties of his office with an ardor which gave a new character to the publication. The first number which was published under his management was that of May 6, 1865. The succeeding numbers, until very severe sickness compelled him to withdraw from the paper on the thirty-first of the following March, contained a vast mass of important historical material, with which the first page of each number was wholly occupied, many of the ablest historical papers and reviews of historical works which have proceeded from his pen having been originally published in its columns. The Gazette of that period became at once a recognized authority in American history; and it continues to be so among historical writers of the highest class. . . . The numbers of the paper of that period now command prices many times higher than those which they originally bore.

Early in 1866, before his connection with The Gazette was severed, he prepared for the columns of that paper, an elaborate article on the question of which particular flag of the United States was first raised over the Capitol of the Confederate States, after Richmond had been evacuated by the Confederate States' Army and occupied by that of the United States. That very extended article attracted so much attention in the army and among historical students and collectors, that it was reprinted by the Bradstreet Press in a beautiful little octavo volume designed for private circulation and bearing the title, "The Colors of the United States first Raised Over the Capitol of the Confederate States, April 3, 1865. Morrisania: 1866."

After he had retired from the editorial chair of The Gazette, he published four volumes containing as many distinct series of important historical papers, mostly from his own pen, which had been published in its columns, while he had been its editor. These volumes, which, with the running title of "The Gazette Series, edited by Henry B. Dawson, in four volumes, Yonkers, 1866," subsequently so famous among bibliophiles, were very beautifully printed on tinted laid paper with double rubricated titles, by the Bradstreet Press, and were originally intended for personal presents from himself to the several shareholders in the association by whom The Gazette was published and to the personal friends of their editor; but the great historical value of the papers which they contained, the beauty of their typography, and the very small number which were printed, produced so great a pressure to obtain copies by those who were not to receive them that a change was made in the order of distribution, some of the copies were withheld from those who had been designated to receive them, and six copies were offered to purchasers at one hundred dollars per set, at which price they were speedily sold. An order for one of these sets from the British Museum, received after all the six had been sold, Mr. Dawson was obliged to supply from the four copies which he had reserved for members of his own family. Long afterwards another of those reserved sets found a place in the library of a distinguished Western publisher, leaving only two copies in Mr. Dawson's own private library.

The first volume of that series, contains what "is probably the most perfect Andreana in print," entitled, "Papers Concerning the Capture and Detention of Major John André. Collected by Henry B. Dawson. Yonkers: 1866." The second volume of the series contains several of the earlier chapters of a history of the town and village of Yonkers, which he had commenced to write and to publish in The Gazette, but which were discontinued when his connection with that paper was broken. It is entitled, "Papers Concerning the Town and Village of Yonkers, Westchester County. A fragment. By Henry B. Dawson. Yonkers: 1866." The third volume of the series contains the celebrated discussion concerning the Eastern Boundary of New Jersey, which secured to New York, before the Circuit Court of the United States, her ancient and legal right of control over the waters of "the lower bay," below the Narrows, and is entitled, "Papers Concerning the Boundary between the States of New York and New Jersey, written by several hands. Yonkers: 1866"—"the several hands" having been General, John Cochrane, Attorney-General of New York; Hon. J. Romeyn Brodhead, the historian of New York and Secretary of the New York Historical Society, who wrote two papers; Hon. William A. Whitehead, the historian of Perth Amboy, etc., and Secretary of the New Jersey Historical Society; Mr. Dawson himself, who had unwillingly consented to act the part of an umpire between the original disputants; Mr. Whitehead in answer to Mr. Dawson; the latter in reply to Mr. Whitehead; the Attorney-General of New York, closing the argument, in the course of which he unreservedly gave the honor of the success, before the Court, to the papers of Mr. Dawson, and a "Postscript," by Mr. Dawson, concerning some portions of Mr. Whitehead's subsequent treatment of the subject. The fourth, and last, volume of the series contains the earlier chapters of a series of papers descriptive of notable spots within the county of Westchester, which he had commenced to write and publish in The Gazette, while his connection with that paper was continued. It is entitled "Rambles in Westchester County, New York. A fragment. By Henry B. Dawson. Yonkers: 1866."

During the same year, 1866, he reprinted, in fac-simile, an exceedingly rare tract, containing a report of a trial which had been had in August, 1786, in the Mayor's Court, in the city of New York, to test the question of the liability of those who had occupied properties in that city, which had been abandoned by their respective owners when the Royal army had occupied the city, during the War of the Revolution. It was maintained by those owners, after the city had been evacuated by the Royal troops, that those who had occupied those abandoned premises, and who had paid rents therefor to the "Vestry" which had been created by the Commanding General of the Royal Army to receive them, were, nevertheless, liable to the absent owners for rent of those premises for the entire periods of their adverse possession of them; and, to test that very grave question, an action was brought by Elizabeth Rutgers, the owner of a brewery in Maiden Lane, against Joshua Waddington, who had occupied it under the authority of the several Commanders-in-Chief, during her exile, and paid rent therefor, to the "Vestry." The great legal principles which were involved, the great sums which were at hazard, and the great array of distinguished counsel who were engaged, to say nothing of the great ability of the Court, have made that one of the great cases in the judicial history of the country; but in 1866, only one copy of the published report of that trial, the copy which was in his own library, was known to be in existence. A very elaborate historical and genealogical and legal "Introduction" was prepared by Mr. Dawson; and a new edition was printed in the most elegant style of the Bradstreet Press, in both large and small paper, the original pamphlet having been reproduced in perfect fac-simile, under the title of "The Case of Elizabeth Rutgers versus Joshua Waddington, determined in the Mayor's Court, in the City of New York, August 7, 1786, with an historical Introduction, by Henry B. Dawson. Morrisania: 1866."

A few weeks after his connection with The Gazette had been severed, he bought The Historical Magazine, a well-known monthly magazine, devoted to the antiquities, history, and biography of America. That work, which had been commenced in Boston, in January, 1857, under the able editorial control of John Ward Dean, had been removed to New York early in 1856, where it had been edited successively by Evert A. Duyckinck, George Folsom, John Gilmary Shea, and Doctor Henry R. Stiles, had already obtained a respectable standing in the periodical literature of the country; but the Civil War had necessarily withdrawn from it all of its subscribers who resided within the Southern States, including many of its abler contributors and more than one-half of the entire subscription-list; while of those whose names were on the books of the concern, nominally subscribers thereto, one-half, exactly one-half, had been non-paying recipients of the work, year after year, and appeared to regard themselves entitled to remain so.

The first number of The Historical Magazine, which was published by him was that of July, 1866; and in the following January, 1867, he commenced a "new series" of the work, giving double the number of pages in each number, and making two volumes per year, instead of the single volume which had been previously published. Into that work, he threw his entire strength and intellectual power, during several succeeding years; gathering around him, also, an array of distinguished voluntary "contributors" to its pages. The "book notices," sometimes exceeding a hundred in a single month, for which the magazine soon became famous among librarians and bibliophiles, were always written by himself. The effect of that peculiar editorial management was speedily seen in the increased influence of the magazine, as one of the highest historical authorities in the country; but, in the continued limitation of its support to the scholars in New England and New York—in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and the West, there were few who cared for it; and the South had not yet sufficiently recovered her strength to indulge in luxuries—it never paid the expense of its publication; and, after having published what was equal to thirteen complete volumes, the publication was suspended in April, 1876.

While Mr. Dawson was struggling to place The Historical Magazine on a paying basis, he was also employed in other literary ventures, some in connection with and auxiliary to that principal work, and some entirely disconnected from it.

In the autumn of 1866 he published a very valuable and very interesting little octavo volume elegantly printed by the Bradstreet Press, entitled "North American Rock-writing, and other Aboriginal Modes of Recording and Transmitting Thought. By Hon. Thomas Ewbank. Morrisania: 1866." About the same time he edited and published the official record of the "Trial of Joshua Het Smith, before a General Court Martial, for the part which he had taken in promoting the meeting, at his house, of General Benedict Arnold and Major John André, and in assisting the latter to effect his return to New York." As the original manuscript record of that historically important trial had been abstracted from the "Clinton Papers," of which it was a very valuable portion, after Mr. Dawson's copy had been made, some years previous to his use of it in The Historical Magazine and in this volume, that publication of it, carefully annotated, was a very acceptable service to every student of the history of that eventful period. The volume is a very beautiful octavo, printed in the finest style of the Bradstreet Press, and is entitled, "Record of the Trial of Joshua Het Smith, Esq., for alleged complicity in the Treason of Benedict Arnold, 1780. Edited by Henry B. Dawson. Morrisania: 1866."

During 1866 and 1867, he made a selection from the principal historical papers which had appeared in The Historical Magazine since he had become its editor, making five beautiful volumes, with the general title of "The Magazine Miscellany. Edited by Henry B. Dawson. Morrisania: 1866, 1867." An enumeration of the contents of these volumes cannot be attempted in this place; but it may be said that they included highly important historical papers by Lieutenant Colonel Backus, U. S. A.; Henry Laurens, President of the Continental Congress; Hon. Thomas Ewbank, LL.D.; George Henry Moore, LL.D.; Hon. Buckingham Smith; Hon. Charles Lanman; Hon. J. Romeyn Brodhead; Hon. Thomas C. Amory; Hon. William B. Reed; John Ward Dean; Hon. J. Hammond Trumbull, and others equally distinguished in the literature of American history.

In 1867 he received proposals for a revision of his "Battles of the United States, by Sea and Land," to be printed in the highest style of the typographic art in America, and to be sold by subscription. Every copy of the two limited editions, on large and on small paper, respectively, was promptly subscribed for, at very large prices; and premiums were paid for transfers of subscriptions. This was the most promising of all his authorial undertakings, and he entered on it with great hopes and high expectations. But the printers failed to fulfil their contracts with the subscribers and with him, and, after two parts had been published with the double title, "Battles of the United States, by Sea and Land. By Henry B. Dawson. Revised and completed edition. Volume I. Morrisania: 1867," and "Battles of the War of the Revolution, by Henry B. Dawson. Volume I. Morrisania: 1867," the work was necessarily suspended. A different reason for the suspension of the publication of this work was stated by Joseph Sabin, in his "Bibliography;" but there was not the slightest foundation for any portion of what he thus stated.

During the same year, 1867, Mr. Dawson obtained permission from the Common Council of the city of New York, to print the ancient records of the city, in which undertaking he engaged with great spirit. The existing records of the Orders and Proclamations of the Directors-General and Councils of New Netherland, which were the earlier forms of government of the city, from May, 1647, until February, 1653, when the local government by Schouts, Burgomasters, and Schepens was established, were all carefully copied, compared with the original manuscripts, and elaborately annotated, and printed. To these were added all the existing subsequent Orders and Proclamations, by Director-General Stuyvesant and the Colonial Council to October, 1655. The records of the proceedings of the Schouts, Burgomasters, and Schepens, also, from the beginning, in February, 1653, until a later date, preceded by an elaborate introduction (into which he introduced, the first time it was published, the original charter of the city, that on which the existing charter is based), and accompanied by very voluminous and biographical notes. The volume in which all these are printed is entitled "Records of the City of New Amsterdam in New Netherland. Edited by Henry B. Dawson, and published by permission of the Common Council of the City of New York. Volume I. Morrisania: 1867."

Although that very commendable work was done and printed without the slightest expense to the city, and would have been similarly carried on and completed, the politicians of that day saw in the work, differently executed, an opportunity for a feast of plunder. [Dr. E. B. O'Callaghan], was brought from Albany; the assistance of some of the principal members of the New York Historical Society was secured for the promotion of the scheme; the notorious "New York Printing Company" and the equally notorious "Tweed Ring" were made partners in the enterprise. The "historian" was saddled on the city, with a salary of five thousand dollars per year, to edit the proposed work; the "Printing Company" was employed to stereotype it; and, year after year, the salary of the "editor," so called, was paid, and payment of the bills for stereotyping was regularly and abundantly drawn from the city treasury; but neither the city nor the world of historical literature has yet seen a single stereotype plate or a single printed page of that projected and expensively paid for "Records of the City of New York, edited by E. B. O'Callaghan, M.D., LL.D.)*" It was one of those gigantic swindles on the city for which Tweed and his associates suffered. . . . When that new element appeared, in the matter of the publication of the City's Records, all the hopes which the editor and publisher of what had already been printed, that his magazine might secure an enlarged circulation and that the sales of his collected volumes, as they should successively appear, would yield to him a reasonable profit, were entirely blasted; and he suspended his labors thereon, and never resumed them.

During the same year, 1867, Mr. Dawson edited and published three little volumes, on historical subjects, designed for private circulation, although some few copies of each were placed on the market, and sold at high prices. The first of these was entitled "President Joseph Reed, of Pennsylvania, a correspondence between Hon. William B. Reed and John C. Hamilton. Morrisania: 1867"—a peculiarly spicy little book, devoted to the ancient slanders against Joseph

* Mr. W. W. Pasko, in his "Old New York," v. 2, no. 4, p. 252, says of this work: "It is also proper to say that Dr. O'Callaghan prepared for publication, and stereotype plates were actually made of the whole of these annals, but no impressions were taken other than proof. This was during the time that Tweed was governing the city. The printing was not begun, in consequence of the exposure, and the printers could not recover pay for their work. Just at that time a fire broke out in the office of the New York Printing Company, which was another name for Tweed and his associates, and it was reported that the plates were destroyed. Some of our leading antiquaries, however, doubt this story, and say that under cover of this fire the plates were spirited away, and have ever since been held for a ransom. They cost the city in the neighborhood of fifty thousand dollars, including Dr. O'Callaghan's time, and could probably be obtained for five thousand." Mr. Pasko proposes to print a translation of these annals in his valuable magazine, "Old New York," a worthy successor, in a more limited field, of Dawson's Historical Magazine.—A. G.

Reed, now set at rest by the intelligent labors of Adjutant General Stryker, of New Jersey. The second was entitled, "General John Sullivan, a Vindication of His Character as a Soldier and a Man. By Thomas C. Armory. Morrisania: 1867"—an admirable answer to aspersions on the General's character which had been published by Mr. Bancroft in his "History of the United States." The third was entitled "A Sermon Preached at Boston in New England upon a Fast Day, the xvjth of January, 1636. By Mr. John Wheelwright. From manuscripts in the possession of the Massachusetts Historical Society, first published in the Historical Magazine, for April, 1867. Morrisania, N. Y.: 1867"—that remarkable sermon, so celebrated in history, which led to the banishment of Anne Hutchinson, her brother-in-law (the preacher of this sermon), and a great number of others, residents of Boston and its vicinity.

"The Manual of the Common Council of the City of New York," published annually for many years, which had gained a high reputation under the editorial control of David T. Valentine, the popular clerk of that body, passed, in the year 1868, into the editorial care of Joseph Shannon, Mr. Valentine's successor, and his able deputy, Francis J. Twomey. It was proposed that the Manual for that year should be issued in an enlarged and improved form. Mr. Dawson was invited to furnish the historical portion of the work, which he did, adding some new features to that part of it. Besides a large number of other important previously unpublished or forgotten historical papers, ancient and modern, he furnished an elaborate paper on "The Battle of Harlem Heights, and the Death of Colonel Thomas Knolton, September 16, 1776;" also the venerable Charter of New York City, carefully copied and printed, the "proofs" of the printers being subjected to a critical collation with the ancient parchment, and their "revises" subjected to a similarly critical test.

Early in 1868 he published another of those dainty little volumes which had become so well known among scholars and collectors, and of which mention has been made. It was entitled, "The Origin of McFingal. By Hon. J. Hammond Trumbull, President of the Connecticut Historical Society. Morrisania: 1868," one of the cleverest little productions of that distinguished historian's pen.

Like all the members of his mother's family, the Bartons of Sempringham and Bicker, Mr. Dawson was, constitutionally, exceedingly delicate. During his childhood and youth and young manhood, until he left his father's house, to shift for himself, in 1838, his devoted mother watched over him, as such a mother only can watch over an only son. The same cautious and anxious care was continued by himself, after he had left his father's house, so that, notwithstanding his entire devotion to business, during business, and to study, when business did not demand his attention until the short hours of every morning, year after year, he enjoyed reasonably good health, except during three severe attacks of pleuro-pneumonia, until the summer of 1868, when the malaria produced by the opening of several new streets in the vicinity of his home prostrated him, with the ague and fever. In the severest form of that terrible disease, every second day during the entire summer and autumn months, this unwelcome visitor confined him to his house, prostrated in strength and spirits, and compelling him to conduct the magazine, editorially and financially, at the greatest disadvantage. He managed, however, during that eventful summer, besides the other duties of his editorial and business offices, to write and to publish that exceedingly elaborate paper, entitled "Bunker's Hill," which has, since then, become famous among the historical students of the country. It occupies one hundred and twenty-one closely printed small quarto pages, and is acknowledged to be the most elaborate and complete account of that remarkable action which has ever been printed, making it the highest authority on that very important and very much disputed subject.

With the assistance of his untiring and beloved friend, Rev. Doctor Gillett, the distinguished historian of the Presbyterian Church, during the same year, 1868, he also published another of his choice little volumes, the one entitled, "The Speech of Mr. John Checkley, upon His Trial at Boston, in 1724. With an Introduction by Rev. E. H. Gillett, D.D., of Harlem, N. Y. Morrisania: 1868," another of those expositions of the action of the ecclesiastical machine of orthodox New England, which he was always ready to publish to the world of historical and ecclesiastical literature.

In 1869, he wrote and published a very elaborate historical paper, occupying twenty-one closely printed small quarto pages, in which the several pretensions of Lexington, Westminster, the Alamance, and Boston, as the scenes of the first blood shed in the American Revolution, were successively examined and disproved, and the fact established that, as far as is now known, the first collision of the Royal forces with the Colonists, where resistance was made and blood shed in the American revolution, was in John Street, between Gold and Pearl Streets, then known as "Golden Hill," in the city of New York, on the nineteenth and twentieth of January, 1770. The paper entitled, "The First Blood Shed in the American Revolution: the Battle of Golden Hill," has been regarded as an authority of the highest order, by all who have written of the history of the American Revolution.

During the same year, 1869, probably during its earlier months, he published another of his little monographs, entitled "Historical Sketch of Lower Dublin (or Penepah) Baptist Church, Philadelphia, Pa., with Notices of the Pastors, etc. By Horatio Gates Jones, of Philadelphia. Morrisania: 1869."

In January, 1870, he slipped on the ice, and was so severely injured by the fall, that he was confined to his bed for seven weeks, and to his house for a much longer period. By this accident he was made a cripple for life. During that long period his pen was almost wholly unemployed—indeed, the shock produced by that fall, operating on a physical system always delicate, which had been severely taxed by undue study, during so many years, and by business anxieties, was such, that from that day until his death he was an invalid, often entirely withdrawn from literary labors and, as much as possible, from business cares, although the meagreness of his means, so sadly impaired by the publication of the magazine, during that entire period, prevented that entire and absolute rest which was essential to his entire recovery.

During 1870, the Historical Magazine contained an elaborate paper which he had written in 1861, by the invitation of the Vermont Historical Society, on the battle of Bennington. Into that important paper he introduced new and previously unemployed material, largely brought from several archives in Germany. As no portion of that material had been previously employed in American historical literature, the paper attracted great attention among historical students. It was entitled "The Battle of Bennington." Written on the invitation of the Vermont Historical Society, and read before it, at Burlington, January 23, 1861, and, subsequently, at their request, before the New England Historic-Genealogical Society, at Boston, and the New York Historical Society, at New York."

(To be concluded.)

BUSINESS NOTES.

ATLANTA, GA.—H. C. Grubb, formerly H. C. Grubb & Co., and later Thornton & Grubb, is now in the book and stationery business for himself at 38 South Broad Street, near Alabama Street.

BESSEMER, ALA.—A. A. Preston has sold out his stock of books, stationery, etc.

BIG STONE GAP, VA.—A. E. Spalding, for nine years connected with the Independent Company, of Massillon, Ohio, has started in business here as bookseller, stationer, and newsdealer.

EASTON, PA.—J. H. Lindemann's book and stationery store on Northampton Street, above Fourth, was closed last evening by the sheriff, and will be sold by him on Tuesday next. The execution was issued at the instance of Mr. Lindemann's father, Wm. H. Lindemann, who holds a claim for $2976.76.—Easton Argus.

ELLSWORTH, ILL.—C. L. Shinkle, Ellsworth, Ill., has purchased Fisher Bros.' bookstore, and will take possession June 1.

LEAVENWORTH, KANSAS.—E. J. Morgan, bookseller, has sold out.

NORTHAMPTON, MASS.—A. G. Carley, stationer and bookseller, of Northampton, Mass., is reported to have assigned with liabilities of some $14,000, merchandise creditors to the amount of $3000 included.

ORLANDO, FLA.—Curtis, Fletcher & O'Neal, booksellers and stationers, have been succeeded by Curtis & O'Neal.

PITTSBURG, PA.—H. W. Watts & Co., booksellers and stationers, have sold out to J. R. Weldin & Co.

PORTLAND, OREGON.—Wheeler & Raymond, booksellers and stationers, have been succeeded by Stuart & Thompson. The new firm is composed of E. C. Stuart, formerly with "The Skeen & Stuart Stationery Co. of Chicago," and J. L. Thompson, lately with S. A. Maxwell & Co., also of Chicago.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—John C. McConnell has resigned the agency of the American Tract Soc., and has bought out the book and stationery business of Brier & Co., at 757 Montgomery Street.

WAUKESHA, WIS.—Ira M. White, bookseller and stationer, has been succeeded by White & Nelson.

PERSONAL NOTES.

WE regret to learn that Mr. G. E. Brett, who established the agency of Macmillan & Co. in this country, and who has managed it with great success for upwards of twenty years, has resigned his position. This step became necessary on account of the serious illness from which Mr. Brett has been suffering for the past few months, and from which, we are sorry to learn, the doctors do not hold out a hope of speedy recovery. His presence will be missed by all who were permitted to become better acquainted with this genial gentleman, who had always a kind word of encouragement and sympathy for the younger men in the trade. We trust he will recover more speedily than is hoped, and be able for many years to enjoy the rest he has so richly earned. Macmillan & Co. have very properly appointed Mr. G. P. Brett the successor of his father. Mr. Brett, Jr., who has been connected with the house for a number of years, and who has represented it on the road, is personally known to a large portion of the trade as an intelligent and enterprising bookseller. We bespeak for him the confidence and respect his father has enjoyed through all these years as manager of so notable a part of a world-renowned house as the American branch of Macmillan & Co.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

THE report that Idlewild, the home of N. P. Willis, is to be converted into a private asylum for insane, is unfounded.

W. H. ANDERSON, 222 East Broad Street, Richmond, Va., is preparing a book of negro authors, with an account of their lives and writings.

"RIDER HAGGARD," says the London correspondent of the N. Y. Sun, "has just sent his new book to the press. It is called 'Eric,' and is a Scandinavian romance of the bloodiest description, with but few survivors in the last chapters."

W. D. HOWELLS has made arrangements to write a serial for the New York Sun and a syndicate of newspapers in England and Australia. The Sun has also made arrangements for a novel by George Meredith and for Mr. R. L. Stevenson's "South Sea Letters."

WILLIAM WALDORF ASTOR has employed artists at an expense of something like $10,000 to illustrate one copy of each of his novels. These copies form a private édition de luxe, each one being labelled "my personal copy" and occupying a prominent place in his library.

ST. GEORGE MIVART has in press a "Monograph on the Canidæ." It will be issued to a limited number of subscribers, illustrated with woodcuts and nearly fifty colored plates drawn from nature and hand painted by J. G. Keulemans. In the part that relates to dogs, jackals, wolves, and foxes, the domestic dog is not overlooked. The question of his origin is considered.

THE committee who has in charge the erection of a monument to the memory of the late Rev. E. P. Roe is now negotiating with S. B. Young for a desirable site on a high bluff situated on the side of Round Top, which faces the Boulevard and is directly back of the late home of the deceased. Beneath this bluff is situated a tract of three acres, which the committee thinks would make a lovely park, and it is possible Mrs. Roe may donate it for that purpose. A survey and map of the site has been made.

OF the reminiscences of James Berry, the English public executioner, the Pall Mall Gazette, remarks: "The book is now all but finished. There are nine chapters in it, and in three the writer has sketched his wheel of life plainly. The first tells the story of how he became an executioner. The second relates his first practical experience. The next deals with the apparatus and has some pictures in it; this is followed by a terrible chronicle—'Men and Women I Have Executed.' Then Mr. Berry discusses his treatment by the public and tells how murderers die. He then relates some travelling experiences and gives his impression upon capital punishment. The ninth and last chapter in the book is of some interest, for in it Mr. Berry describes 'celebrities I have met.' A large sale is expected for this 'shilling dreadful.' The first edition will consist of 50,000 copies.

MR. R. H. STODDARD OBJECTS.—Mr. R. H. Stoddard, as the following letter to Mr. E. W. Bok would indicate, has run to the end of his patience string in being continually represented as old, feeble, blind, and decrepit:

MY DEAR MR. BOK: I would like to have my little say about a certain man or woman (I know not) who is continually writing me up as if I were at the brink of the grave. Recently this person has become so garrulous that I think it is time somebody else should have something to say. This last report makes me out first as being so blind that I "require the assistance of some one in going from place to place." This is not so. It is true that my sight has not been so good since the removal of a cataract on one of my eyes as before, but this person exaggerates and lies most shamefully. Then I am made out as being thin, with stooping shoulders, and my clothes ill-fitting me, shuffling along the streets like a fool. All this is rubbish, pure and simple. Then, I throw vitriolic eloquence at any literary beginner who writes to me. Bah! I get one hundred such effusions in a week! Don't get ten. My wife and I give Sunday receptions! We don't. I am always seen at the theatres on first nights. Never was or will be a "first-nighter." Books are piled up all over the house from the basement up! Our house has no basement. These books were picked up abroad! Never been abroad; don't want to go.

All this stuff is getting tiresome to me. Whatever interest the public may have in my welfare, I wish they would disbelieve all these stories. They are trying to my family, my friends, and to

Yours sincerely,
RICHARD HENRY STODDARD.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

HENRY HOLT & Co. have just published "A Japanese Boy, by Himself."

THE MINERVA PUBLISHING CO. have recently published a novel called "Married by Proxy," by Frank Dupree, a newspaper man of New York City.

D. C. HEATH & Co. have in press "Selections from Heine's Poems," edited with notes, by Horatio Stevens White, Professor of the German Language and Literature in Cornell University.

THE D. LOTHROP COMPANY have in preparation a list of new holiday books far surpassing those of previous years both in number and attractiveness. Samples of nearly all will be ready shortly.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish at an early date the second volume of H. Morse Stephen's "History of the French Revolution," which continues the story onward from the Legislative Assembly of 1791.

THE employes of Harper & Brothers gave their third annual reception on the evening of May 29 at the Harlem River Park and Casino, N. Y. The occasion was well attended and a pleasant evening provided by the committee.

E. & J. B. YOUNG & Co. have nearly ready a new and cheap edition of "Lux Mundi," a series of studies in the religion of the Incarnation, edited by the Rev. Charles Gore, which has been well received by those having authority in literature and theology.

STREET & SMITH have just ready "Doctor Jack," a highly dramatic modern story of an American's adventures in Spain and Oriental Turkey, by St. George Rathborne; and "At a Girl's Mercy," a romance of the War of the Rebellion, by Jean Kate Ludlum.

CHARLES L. WOODWARD, 78 Nassau St., N. Y., has just ready the first volume of a work by R. S. Guernsey, entitled "New York City and Vicinity during the War of 1812-15." The first volume covers the first two years of the war—from March, 1812, to January, 1814. The edition is limited.

ESTES & LAURIAT have in preparation a holiday edition of George Eliot's "Romola." It will be in two volumes and be illustrated with photo-etchings of Florentine scenes made from photographs selected on the spot. They will also make an édition de luxe of this volume, limited to 250 numbered sets, with plates on imperial Japan paper, and bound in full vellum.

THE CENTURY CO. have just ready in book-form Frank Stockton's latest story, "The Merry Chanter," which tale of early married love on a schooner has been a delightful serial in The Century Magazine from November to March. It is illustrated by Charles Dana Gibson, and makes a handsome volume of a most original piece of fiction.

The Courier des Etats-Unis has published a useful book for French immigrants entitled "Guide Franco-Américain." It has been prepared by M. J. Roussel, of the Courier, and furnishes the traveller and prospective citizen with valuable information of every kind. The book contains a map and a number of illustrations, many of which have been specially made for this work by Aug. Leroy.

"THE FOREST AND STREAM," PUB. CO. will publish at once a timely volume, entitled "With Fly, Rod, and Camera," by Edward A. Samuels, the well-known salmon angler and amateur photographer, of Boston. The book contains 150 full-page reproductions of striking photographs, to the collection of which Mr. Samuels has devoted the vacations of several years on the picturesque salmon rivers of Canada.

THE CASSELL PUBLISHING CO. will publish at once "Scouting for Stanley in East Africa," by Thomas Stevens, of bicycle fame, who was sent to Africa by the New York World, to find Stanley, and who, in spite of many obstacles and great opposition on the part of German Government officials, successfully accomplished his object. The book is to be profusely illustrated, and will contain a portrait of the author.

FLEMING H. REVELL, New York and Chicago, has made arrangements with the Committee of the Religious Tract Society of London to become their sole agent in the United States. Mr. Revell will at once make extensive efforts to bring the long list of the Society's books, magazines, and other publications under the notice of the American trade, and he will be able to offer the same at better terms than they have heretofore been obtainable.

ROBERT BONNER'S SONS have just ready "Five Years with the Congo Cannibals," by Herbert Ward. A record of adventures with primitive savages, full of the most thrilling scenes and dangers. Mr. Ward's travels in Africa commenced in 1884, when he received an appointment in the service of the Congo Free State. He was a member of the Stanley Relief Expedition, and made his memorable canoe journey of eleven hundred miles on the Congo in the service of Stanley. The book is fully illustrated after drawings made on the spot by the author.

PROFESSOR ELY'S "Political Economy," published by Hunt & Eaton, is about to be translated into Japanese by Professor Sato, Director of Sapporo Agricultural College in Japan. This Chautauqua book, which is being used as a textbook in many of our colleges, has already acquired an international fame. It has been discussed extensively by the German press, has been commended in Italy, and Professor Emile de Lavaleye, of Belgium, says of it: "It is, I think, the best elementary, economic treatise which I have read. How clear and simple it all is." It is now in the twenty-ninth thousand.

WELCH, FRACKER COMPANY, 37 Great Jones Street, New York, will soon publish "The Riversons," a novel of Pennsylvania life in the forties, by S. J. Bumstead; "One of 'Berrian's' Novels," by Mrs. C. H. Stone, a story of the twentieth century; "The Bank Tragedy," a novel by Mary R. P. Hatch; "From Yellowstone Park to Alaska" and "From the Land of the Midnight Sun to the Volga," both by Francis C. Sessions, President of the Ohio Historical Society. These latter volumes will be uniform with Mr. Sessions' two lately published books of travel, "On the Wing Through Europe," and "In Western Levant."

HUNT & EATON announce for publication during the summer months "An Outline History of England," by James Richard Jay; "From Chaucer to Tennyson," by H. A. Beers; a revised edition of "Walks and Talks in the Geological Field," by Dr. A. Winchell; "Eschatology, or, the doctrine of the last things," by F. G. Hibbard; "Philosophy of Christian Experience," by Bishop A. S. Foster; "The Law of the Lord," by Bisaop J. P. Newman; "Epworth League Work," by J. Emory Price; "A Little Leaven," a book for deaconesses, by Elizabeth C. Holding; "The Atheist Shoemaker," by Hugh Price Hughes; "One Little Life," by Mrs. Mary L. Dickenson; and a revised edition of "French Literature," by W. C. Wilkinson.

T. Y. CROWELL & Co. have in press a volume by Mrs. William B. Claflin, wife of ex-Governor Claflin, of Massachusetts, entitled "Brampton Sketches," descriptive of New England life over fifty years ago; "Gold Nails to Hang Memories On: a Rhyming Review under their Christian Names of Old Acquaintances in History, Literature, and Friendship," by Elizabeth A. Allen, an ingenious design for memorizing names and principal characteristics of distinguished men; also two new books by the versatile and busy Sarah K. Bolton—both biographical—entitled "European Artists" and "English Authors of the Nineteenth Century." Mrs. Bolton's best-known book, "Girls Who Became Famous," has just been translated in part into the Japanese language.

LEE & SHEPARD have just published "Brushes and Chisels," a story of artist life in Rome, by Theodore Serrao; "Heroes and Martyrs of Invention," an interesting volume for boys, by George Makepeace Towle; "Stories of the Civil War," by Albert F. Blaisdell, admirably adapted for use in schools; "The Elements of Psychology," by Gabriel Compayre, translated by Wm. H. Payne, of the University of Nashville, Tenn.; "The Taking of Louisburg," by Samuel Adams Drake, forming the second volume of the series of Decisive Events in American History. They announce "The Blind Man and the Devil," an allegory, in which some features of the labor question are exemplified; "Luncheon and Tea Breads," by Miss L. G. Sweet, containing choice recipes; also "The Landing of the Pilgrims," "Gold in California," and "The Battle of Gettysburg," in S. A. Drake's series of Decisive Events in American History.

IN the contemplated new uniform edition of the works of Mr. F. C. Burnand, "Very Much Abroad" will be the first volume. It will be amply illustrated.

SWAN SONNENSCHN & Co. announce a new edition of "Samuel Pepys' Diary," in four octavo volumes, printed in the best manner from new founts of type. The text selected is the 1848 (third) edition by Lord Braybrooke, the whole of whose notes and biography will be revised and included in this edition. The first two volumes will be ready almost immediately.

WE learn from the London Athenaeum "that of the last work of the lamented Mr. Blades, his 'Bibliographical Miscellanies,' the remaining essays are almost entirely finished and ready for publishing, especially the one on 'Chained Libraries.' It may be of interest to many if we add that Mr. Blades had a medal struck for his trade jubilee, which would have been celebrated on May 1, but unfortunately he did not live to see that day. It is supposed he intended presenting it to his numerous printing and literary friends."

GEORGE ALLEN, Mr. Ruskin's publisher, has in press a work by Edward T. Cook, editor of the Pall Mall Gazette, entitled "Studies in Ruskin." The first part will expound "the gospel according to Ruskin," applying his principles of art to practical life; the second part will describe some aspects of his work—at Oxford and the drawing school he founded there, at the Working Men's College, in connection with the St. George's Guild, May Queens, and various industrial experiments—with a special chapter on his relations with the booksellers. In an Appendix will be given notes on Mr. Ruskin's Oxford lectures in 1877 and 1884. The volume will contain twelve woodcuts, including Sir J. E. Boehm's portrait-bust. There will also be a large-paper edition, extra illustrated with fifteen autotypes of original drawings by Mr. Ruskin, presented by him to the Drawing School at Oxford, and now reproduced for the first time.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

E. & J. B. YOUNG & CO.,

Cooper Union, Fourth Ave., N. Y.

EVERYBODY, in this world, wants the best of everything. All well and good. Human nature is pretty apt to be right in its tendencies. Only these need direction. This passion for the best is no exception, because the best of many things is not, taken by itself, worth the labor of the getting. Life may be, and often is, frittered away in the quest of it—the best dress, the best dinner, the best carriage, the best furniture, the best reception of the season, the best bank account.

It seems, then, that the all-essential thing is not so much to get the best, as the best of the best.

The gaudiest sunflower is not, by any means, a rose, nor the prize pumpkin a peach, and it makes all the difference in the world with the aroma and savor of life, you may be sure of it, whether it is given up to coveting its choicest peaches and roses or its pumpkins and sunflowers.

Money may do its best to get the best and yet fail to get anything that makes for the best in life. Whatever helps us to love larger loves, to live larger lives, to enjoy larger joys—this is the best of the best.

There are many other things that give this aid, but no one thing perhaps that does more than books, the best books, and this means the records of the best that has been thought and said and done in the world.

For over a score of years the D. Lothrop Company have been bringing out these books, always preferring — other things being equal — American books, on the principle that the best reading for Americans is that which is instinct with the true American spirit.

They are thus doing the very thing that Henry Cabot Lodge, in a recent speech, said Congress ought to do, namely, “furnishing to the reading public, to the boys and girls, to the young men and women of an impressionable age, books which are American books, not foreign books, not the cheap books of France, dedicated as Matthew Arnold has said, ‘to the Goddess of Lubricity,’ not the second class of English novels about dukes and duchesses and lords and ladies, not books which contain ideas hostile to our institutions, but American books that will breathe American ideas and teach them to respect and admire American government and society, and not a system of government and society wholly alien to them.”

This firm have now in preparation the finest line of Holiday Books ever made in any country. Having at last no resource left but to eclipse themselves, they propose to do that, even if they have to make double the usual outlay of labor and money to do it.

In richness and variety and interest, in every quality, in short, that makes books desirable, the issues of 1890 will be nearer perfection than ever before, and that — all book-lovers know it — coming from the D. Lothrop Company, means a great deal.

THE BEST KEY TO EDUCATIONAL BOOKS.

Imprint edition—without publishers' advertisements.

THE
American Educational Catalogue

For 1890 [Twenty-first Year].

THE AMERICAN EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE, whose value to the trade is proved by the fact that it is now in its twenty-first year, claims to be the best practical aid to the dealer in or buyer of school-books.

With its alphabetical arrangement by authors, its separate class-index, carefully sub-classified to an extent not followed by any other catalogue, its completeness and accuracy, it is presented as the best finding-list, the most convenient order-list, and the most satisfactory class-catalogue for school use.

The catalogue has recently been remade, to omit books which have dropped out of use and to include all live books, and it adds all new books (ready or to be ready for the fall) in their proper alphabetical place.

The page giving the key to publishers will not be given in imprint editions unless specially ordered. The Telegraphic Code will not be continued, as the code plan is reported to us to give more trouble than it saves.

This Catalogue is specially planned to be of service for circulation by retailers among schools and private buyers. The imprint edition possesses not only temporary value, but will serve its purpose during the whole year. No imprint edition of less than 100 copies can be supplied. Orders for editions should be sent to us at once.

CASH TERMS.

*With sole imprint of ordering firm, and stitched, per 100 copies, $5.00 ;
per 1000, $40.00.*

There is no extra charge for printing name, business card, etc., on the imprint page ; the last page is left blank at the disposal of the dealer, but any copy for that page, advertising special lines or general business, will be set up and printed thereon for $5.00, or $1.00 if plate is sent.

\.* Copy for imprint and shipping directions should accompany the order.*

The regular Educational Number of "THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY" will be supplied at 25 cents per copy, or five for $1.00, postpaid.

Office of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY,

FRANKLIN SQUARE (330 PEARL STREET),

P. O. Box 943.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT.

---

THE COMMITTEE OF
The Religious Tract Society
(LONDON),

having determined upon opening in the United States a depository for their varied publications, have pleasure in announcing that they have appointed their sole Agent, and solicit from "The Trade" a kindly examination of their catalogue and a share of their patronage.

Mr. Fleming H. Revell
(NEW YORK AND CHICAGO),

Owing to a somewhat conservative policy on the part of this Society in the past, their publications have not been presented to the American public, except to a very limited extent, but in literary worth and attractive manner of production they stand second to none.

THE PUBLICATIONS OF THE SOCIETY INCLUDE:

Elegant Illustrated Gift-Books.

Valuable Works on Science and Travel.

Practical Theological and Devotional Works.

Inspiring Missionary and Biographical Publications.

Standard Biblical and Reference Volumes.

Healthy Fiction.

Popular Juveniles.

Successful Periodicals, comprising

THE BOYS' OWN PAPER. | THE GIRLS' OWN PAPER.

THE SUNDAY AT HOME. | THE LEISURE HOUR, and others.

Our travellers will have pleasure in calling on "The Trade" at an early date, with full sample lines of the above important publications, and offer attractive low prices. We bespeak for them a kindly reception.

ILLUSTRATED HOLIDAY BOOKS

YOUNG PEOPLE.

IN PREPARATION.

The Lion City of Africa. By WILLIS BOYD ALLEN. Illustrated by Bridgman and others. 8vo, cloth, $2.50.

The marvellous adventures of two young men marooned on the coast of Africa. The story combines the imaginative charm of Rider Haggard with the probability of one of Stanley's recitals.

An Adirondack Cabin. A story of life in the Great Wilderness. By MARGARET SIDNEY. 75 illustrations, including over 30 original full-page pictures of scenes in the Adirondacks. 4to, cloth, $2.25; boards, $1.75.

The latest of Margaret Sidney's inimitable stories for young people. A book brimful of frolic and adventure, of camp life in the Adirondack forests. The author has been there, season after season. If the reader has not, still the book holds for him an absorbing interest.

Round the World with the Blue Jackets. By Lieut. H. E. RHODES, U.S.A. Original illustrations by Bridgman and others. 4to, cloth, $2.25; boards, $1.75.

A vivid, varied, undeviating narrative of a voyage taken just after the war by the good ship Iroquois, for the purpose of showing the triumphant "Stars and Stripes" to the world. Instinct with the realism which only personal experience can give. These dashing "Blue Jackets" do have some "jolly good times."

Dollkins and the Miser. By FRANCES EATON, author of "A Queer Little Princess." Illustrated by W. L. Taylor. 4to, cloth, $1.50.

A resolute little maid takes a miser for "her mission." To the surprise of everybody she succeeds in revivifying his shrivelled old heart. A portion of this story appeared originally as a $750 prize serial in the Youth's Companion. It deserves to be one of the most popular juveniles of the coming holiday season.

Little He and She. By GRACE DENIO LITCHFIELD. 4to, cloth, $1.50.

Little hearts that love bring together old hearts that are estranged. A beautiful story of two healthy, charming, thoroughly natural children. Every boy and girl should read it.

How New England Was Made. By FRANCES A. HUMPHREY. Fully illustrated. 4to, cloth, $1.50; boards, $1.25.

A child's history of New England up to the beginning of the Revolution. It differs from most New England histories in that it succeeds in making very real the home-life of our sturdy forefathers.

The Young Folks' Golden Treasury of Poems. New edition. Illustrated with 300 engravings from original designs. Cloth, $2.25.

From three to four hundred selected poems from the best English and American poets. It will make the young people like poetry.

Uniform with the above:

THE YOUNG FOLKS' GOLDEN TREASURY OF HISTORY, and

THE YOUNG FOLKS' GOLDEN TREASURY OF TRAVEL AND ADVENTURE.

The three volumes form a complete library of prose and poetry. 4to, cloth, gilt edge, $2.75; cloth, $2.25, per vol.

Animal Stories. Cover in imitation of white satin from a French design. 4to, $1.

Exciting encounters with wild animals; also instances of the intelligence and fidelity of the pets of the household.

A Tale of Three Lions. By H. RIDER HAGGARD. With other thrilling stories by other authors. 4to, fully illustrated, 50 cents.

Allan Quatermain, the hero of "King Solomon's Mines," re-appears as a gold-miner and buffalo-hunter in the Transvaal, South Africa. The author never did a stronger piece of work than the description of the fight of the two lions, black mane and yellow mane, in this story.

Wonders from Sea and Shore. By FANNIE A. DEANE. 4to, boards, $1.25.

A first book in Natural History. Little talks about plants, insects, birds, and fishes; tiny folks in armor and how they fight; tiny folks in red and black—how they make their toilet, build their houses, keep cows, and carry parasols.

TWO EXQUISITE NEW COLOR BOOKS.

Rhymes for Little Readers. Illustrated with twelve monotints and twelve colored plates from original water-color designs, by A. W. ADAMS. Text in brown ink. Oblong quarto, $1.00.

Little Boy Blue, and Willy Boy, and Tommy Tucker, and Mistress Mary in a new and charming environment.

Nowhere is recent art development more noticeable than in children's books, and few of these have reached so high a pitch of excellence as this.

Ballad of the Lost Hare. By MARGARET SIDNEY. Full page illustrations printed in sepia. Oblong 4to, 50 cents.

A naughty little hare ran away one day and never came back again. His adventures are all interesting, some thrilling, some amusing. The accompanying pictures are a veritable gallery of delights.

Wide Awake DD. Cloth, $2.00; boards, $1.50.

No young photographer can afford to go without Alexander Black's "Confessions" and their highly suggestive illustrations. All the young folks will be delighted with "Bony and Ban," by MARY HARTWELL CATHERWOOD, and that jolliest of boys' stories, "Gid Granger," by WM. O. STODDARD.

The Pansy for 1890. Boards, $1.25; cloth, $1.75.

Besides the usual entertaining miscellaneous matter, this volume contains two complete books by PANSY, and one by MARGARET SIDNEY.

Our Little Men and Women for 1890. Boards, $1.25; cloth, $1.75.

It aims to get the little people interested in the wonders of the world they live in, and it does it. 75 full-page pictures and hundreds of smaller ones.

Babyland for 1890. With colored frontispiece. Cloth, $1.00; boards, 75 cents.

Bright stories, odd conceits, sparkling jingles, to make the baby laugh and learn together. Polly Pry and Toddlkins is a baby serial in twelve chapters.

Baby's Annual for 1891. Colored pictures and illustrations in black and white. Boards, $1.25.

A book of jolly good times for the very little people—quite enough to last them the whole year round.

Shouts and hand clappings will be the accompaniment of every story and rhyme.

Many other new quartos for the children and young people, are also nearly ready, varying in price from 5 cents to $2.50 each. Larger and handsomer for the price than ever before. Dealers should send early orders. An announcement of gift-books for adults in preparation by

D. LOTHROP COMPANY, BOSTON,

The American Book Company is a Stock Company incorporated under the laws of the State of New Jersey for the purpose of carrying on the manufacture and sale of books.

Its places of business are at Nos. 806 and 808 Broadway, New York, 137 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, Ohio, and Nos. 258 and 260 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

The American Book Company has purchased the school-book publications hitherto issued by D. Appleton & Co., A. S. Barnes & Co., and Ivison, Blakeman & Co., of New York; and of Van Antwerp, Bragg & Co., of Cincinnati. The Company will faithfully carry out all contracts entered into by these respective firms for the publication and supply of these books. The Text-books which have thus been acquired by The American Book Company have been intimately associated with the history of educational progress of this country for over half a century, and the Company will devote its best efforts to sustain the great reputation these lists have achieved. To this end it will seek the aid and coöperation of educators and authors in maintaining the quality and accuracy of its publications, and in the preparation of such new and original books as the progressive demands of the schools shall warrant.

The Company is organized in the interest of a reasonable economy in the production and sale of school-books and it will employ its capital, its combined labor and experience to produce books of the highest quality at the least cost and will offer them at the lowest price at which similar books can be sold in any country. It will pursue an open, direct, business policy towards competitors, customers, authors, and patrons. It seeks no monopoly and invites an open and honorable competition, with respect both to quality and to price of books for use in schools.

The publications assumed by the Company have hitherto received a large share of public patronage. The Company hopes to merit a continuance of the same.

* We make known, by this present, that we have given the Publishing Firm for Art and Science, formerly Friedrich Bruckmann, in Munich, the sole right of general sale to Booksellers and Dealers in Art of our Officially Recognized Photographic Reproductions, permitted by the Commune of Oberammergau of the PASSION PLAY IN OBERAMMERGAU IN 1890.

Each copy of these photographic reproductions bears the imprint of the Commune of Oberammergau. Every other imitation of any sort, be it in separate persons or in groups, is from earlier photographs and is quite out of date, as the performers, garments, grouping, etc., have undergone so many changes. All such imitations purporting to represent the Passion Play in 1890 are against the law, and as such will be prosecuted by us.

NEW BOOKS.

THE TRAGIC MUSE.

A Novel by HENRY JAMES, author of "The Portrait of a Lady," etc. With covers of a fresh and artistic design. 2 vols., 16mo, $2.50.

"The Tragic Muse" attracted unusual attention while appearing serially in The Atlantic Monthly, and some of the most competent critics in America have pronounced it the strongest and best novel Mr. James has yet written. It has in a marked degree those qualities of thought, characterization, and style, which have won for Mr. James a foremost place among living novelists.

HEAT AS A FORM OF ENERGY.

Vol. III. of The Riverside Science Series. By R. H. THURSTON, of Cornell University. Illustrated. 16mo, $1.25.

This book is of the same general character as Professor Mendenhall's "Century of Electricity," and Mr. Kimball's "Physical Properties of Gases." It states with careful accuracy, but in popular style, all that is known of the properties of heat.

RIVERSIDE LIBRARY FOR YOUNG PEOPLE.

Vol. VII. JAVA: The Pearl of the East. By Mrs. S. J. HIGGINSON, author of "A Princess of Java." With a map. Cloth, 75 cents.

Vol. VIII. GIRLS AND WOMEN. By E. CHESTER. 16mo, cloth, 75 cents.

These two books add variety and value to the Riverside Library for Young People, which already contains Mr. Fiske's admirable account of "The War of Independence," Mr. Scudder's fresh and engaging "Life of Washington," Miss Merriam's excellent descriptions of "Birds through an Opera-Glass," Miss Bamford's bright book on insects taken in trips "Up and Down the Brooks," Mr. Greene's informing book on "Coal and the Coal Mines," and Miss Larcom's delightful and interesting autobiographical sketch "A New England Girlhood."

Mrs. Higginson writes of Java from long and intimate knowledge of that island; and E. Chester, from full observation and experience as a teacher, has written a book at once thoroughly readable, wise, and judicious. It should be in every household so fortunate as to have any girls.

THE AMERICAN HORSEWOMAN.

By Mrs. ELIZABETH KARR. With Illustrations, Glossary, and an Index.. New edition. 16mo, price reduced to $1.25.

This has been recognized as an admirable book, containing just the instructions all inexperienced and many experienced horsewomen need. The New York Tribune pronounced these instructions "comprehensive, clear, and admirably precise." The book is now issued at a greatly reduced price, and ought to have a wide sale.

NOTES IN SEASON.

D. APPLETON & Co. have in press a new volume of observations in natural history by Charles C. Abbott, M.D., entitled "Outings at Odd Times."

HARPER & BROTHERS have just published the first volume of Justin H. McCarthy's history of "The French Revolution;" also Janvier's "Aztec Treasure House."

F. MARION CRAWFORD's new novel, "A Cigarette-Maker's Romance," is said to be a charming story, of somewhat the same character as his "Marzio's Crucifix," recently published. It will be issued by Macmillan & Co. early in July.

GEORGE ROUTLEDGE & SONS have in preparation a new edition of "Men of the Time," the title of which will be changed to "Men and Women of the Time." Over five hundred new names will be added and other improvements made.

THE BOWEN-MERRILL Co., Indianapolis, will publish shortly a useful work for lawyers interested in highway and railroad cases, entitled "The Law of Roads and Streets," by Byron K. and Wm. F. Elliot. The book will treat of the general principles of the law of roads and streets. It does not deal with statutes, except in an incidental way, but discusses the general rules of law.

T. B. PETERSON & BROTHERS have just ready a fifty-cent edition of the novel entitled "Can Love Sin?" never before published under $1.50. They have recently added to their twenty-five cent series of popular novels "India, the Pearl of Pearl River," by Mrs. Southworth; "Clara Moreland" and "Viola," by Emerson Bennett; "La Bête Humaine," Zola's new work; "The Corsican Brothers," by Alexander Dumas; "Worth the Wooing" and "Handsome Miss Lisle," by Lady Gladys Hamilton.

DE WOLFE, FISKE & Co. have just ready "Mamelons" and "Ungava," two Canadian idyls by W. H. H. Murray, "wild bits of romance told in ornate prose," the descriptive passages being extremely beautiful. They have in preparation "Mystery Evans," an interesting and well-written novel, by Beth Baker; also a library edition of the complete works of Charles Reade in sixteen twelvemo volumes, printed from entirely new type-plates. Each volume will have a fine etched frontispiece. It is designed to make this edition the best and handsomest in the market.

SCRIBNER & WELFORD have made arrangements with Walter Scott, of London, for the sole rights in the United States for the Contemporary Science Series and for the authorized English translation of Ibsen's plays edited by William Archer. The next two volumes in the Contemporary Science Series will be "The Criminal," by Havelock Ellis, and "Sanity and Insanity," by Dr. Charles Mercier. Both volumes will be fully illustrated. The third volume of Ibsen's plays, nearly ready, will contain "Lady Inger of Astrat," "The Vikings at Helgeland," and "The Pretender." Another volume will complete the set.

THE RELIGIOUS TRACT SOCIETY, London, announce for immediate publication, through their American agent, Mr. Fleming H. Revell, of New York and Chicago, the following: "London Pictures," being the last addition to the popular Pen and Pencil Series; a new book by Sir J. William Dawson, entitled "Modern Ideas of Evolution as Related to Revelation and Science;" "Home Handicrafts," by Charles Peters, editor of the "Girls' Own Indoor Book," etc. "Stanley's African Expeditions;" also "Waiting to Be Loved" and the fourth volume of "Books for the People," comprising "Christie's Old Organ" and "Jessica's First Prayer" and other stories.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

ROBERT GRANT has finished a new novel, which is described as "the story of an American family told simply and directly."

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; in the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; m. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Allen, R: Miss Eaton's romance: a story of the New Jersey shore. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., [1890.] c. 300 p. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

A summer boarding-house on the Atlantic coast is the scene. Miss Eaton, who is at the head of the house, is a white-haired lady of middle age with a general atmosphere of romance surrounding her. Her boarders are the chief characters, until a vessel is wrecked on the shore one night, bringing a mysterious person to her house, whose appearance shocks her deeply. Her past story and her future fate are evolved by the same processes by which the mysterious stranger's story is brought forth.

Berry, E: Payson. Leah of Jerusalem: a story of the time of St. Paul. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1890.] c. 7+388 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The teachings and miracles of Jesus in Jerusalem color the opening chapters. His precepts make an indelible impression upon Leah, a young Jewish maiden, who loves Paul. She is the centre of a dramatic story. She is taken prisoner by a band of wandering Arabs and forced to become the wife of one of the chiefs; afterwards is sold as a slave to the Romans. Her gradual acceptance of Christianity, the horrors of the arena that she witnesses in Rome, her meeting again with Paul, are a few of the details of an excellent religious tale.

"No task is more difficult than to exhibit the Old Testament in the light of the New, discovering the permanent in the evanescent, and the spiritual in the form and type which it inhabited and illuminated. This book is, at least the result of a firm belief that such a connection between the two Testaments does exist, and of a patient endeavor to receive the edification offered by each Scripture, rather than to force into it, and then to extort from it, what the expositor desires to find."—Preface.

The writer believes that science has made such great progress in the discovery of the causes of consumption that the responsibility for the suppression of consumption rests with ourselves. The great cities are the centres of this disease. Many statistics and facts prove this. For its cure, advice is given to go far away from them to seek "nature's cure" on the borders of civilization.

Hamer, Sarah Selina. Barbara Leybourne: a story of eighty years ago. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, [1890.] 2-320 p. 1 il. D. cl., $1.

A love-tale in which are involved the fates of two young couples. The scene is laid in an English country town, at the beginning of the century. The book abounds in pleasant home scenes and incidents.

*Harris, W: T. The spiritual sense of Dante's "Divina Commedia." N. Y., Appleton, 1890. sq. 16°, cl., $1.

Holding, Carlisle B. Reuben: a prince in disguise. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, 1890. c. 2-315 p. D. cl., $1.

The dream of Reuben Rickett's life was to obtain an education. His father was an ignorant farmer, who had some means, but could neither read nor write. He refused to give any money to Reuben to pay for a year at the Seminary, telling him he might work it out if he liked. Reuben takes him at his word and shows both pluck and endurance. Finally Reuben's father gets into so many financial difficulties through his ignorance, that he comes to believe money invested in an education is not so poor an investment after all.

*Home guide and cook-book: a book by 500 ladies, embracing about 1000 receipts and hints pertaining to cookery, the household, the sick-room, the toilet, etc., comp. chiefly from the Home Department of the Chicago Daily Tribune. Prof. McGill, of Princeton, condenses in this volume the substance of over forty years' teaching on church government. The special topics are: There is a form given; Ecclesia; The ecclesiastical institute; Constituency of the church; Officers of the church; Prelatical succession; The true doctrine of succession in the ministry; Permanent officers of the church; Parity of ministers; Ruling elders; Deacons; Ordination to office; Constitutional importance of the General Assembly.

Methodist Book Concern. Centennial of the Methodist Book Concern, and dedication of the new publishing and mission building of the Methodist Episcopal Church. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, 1890. 3-78 p. O. cl.,

A brief historical record of the various steps taken in the new building enterprise of the Methodist Book Concern, together with the addresses made at the dedication services and at the mass-meeting following those services.

Moffat, Ja. C., D.D. The story of a dedicated life; with a sketch of the life of H: Ja. Owen. Phil., Presb. Bd. of Pub., [1890.] c. '89. 2-272 p. D. cl., $1.

A biography of Dr. Joseph Owen, the well-known missionary to India, with a sketch of his son's life. The book is also a terse sketch of Indian missions: incidentally it contains an excellent description of the Sepoy mutiny.

Molee, Elias. Pure Saxon English; or, Americans to the front. N. Y. and Chic., Rand, McNally & Co., 1890. c. 2-87 p. D. cl., $1.

A new universal language, to be built up upon English, is described in this volume.

Monsabré, Rev. Père. Marriage: conferences, delivered at Nôtre-Dame, Paris; from the French, by M. Hopper. N. Y., Benziger Bros., 1890. 3-232 p. D. cl., net, $1.

The special subjects of these conferences are: 1. The sanctity of marriage; 2. The conjugal tie; 3. Divorce. 4. Legislation on marriage; 5. Profanation of marriage; 6. Celibacy and virginity. An index to the principal errors contrary to the dogmas set forth in the volume, and an analytical table of contents.

Morehead, Mrs. L. M. Mottoes and recitations for Christmas festivals, with a song of welcome for the New Year. Bost., H. H. Carter & Co., [1890.] 2-23 p. sq. D. pap., 75 c.

A pretty little gilt-edge book, bound in white and gold; the mottoes are ingeniously worked out in a way to interest children.

Morgan, Appleton. The society and the "fad": being an amplification of an address delivered before the Shakespeare Club of New York City, Nov. 1, 1880. N. Y., N. D. C. Hodges, 1890. 2+20 p. D. (Fact and theory pap., no. 2.) flex. cl., 20 c.

Written by the President of the New York Shakespeare Society. His aim is to show that the Shakespeare Society was not organized, like the Browning Society, to worship Shakespeare, or to study the Shakespearian method and form, but to study the matter (the material) in which Shakespeare deals. Also, to study the age and customs in which and among which Shakespeare lived and wrote, etc.

*Muir, T. The theory of determinants in the historical order of its development. Pt. 1, Determinants in general, Liebnitz (1693) to Cayley (1841). N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1890. 11+278 p. 8°, cl., $2.50.

*New York. Ct. of appeals. Reports of cases (second division), from and incl. decisions of Dec. 10, 1889, to decisions of March 18, 1890; with notes, references, and index; by H. E. Sickels, st. rep. V. 118, [Sickels 73.] Alb., Ja. B. Lyon, 1890. c. 25+793 p. O. shp., $1.30.

*O'Brien, Cornelius, D.D. Aminta: a modern life drama. N. Y., Appleton, 1890. 16°, cl., $1.

Oldenberg, H., Jastrow, Jos., and Cornill, C. H. Epitomes of three sciences: comparative philology, psychology, and Old Testament history. Chic., The Open Court Pub. Co., 1890. 5-139 p. D. cl., 75 c.

Gives an account of the recent work done in three different fields of modern knowledge, which have a direct bearing upon the religious views of our time. The essays are: "The study of Sanskrit," by Prof. H. Oldenberg; "Aspects of modern psychology," by Prof. Jos. Jastrow; and "Rise of the people of Israel," by Prof. C. H. Cornill.

*Plutarch. Lives of Galba and Otho; with introduction and explanatory notes by E. G. Hardy. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1890. 124+289 p. 16°, cl., $1.40.

Pottier, Rev. H. The twelve virtues of a good teacher; for mothers, instructors, and a charged with the education of girls; from the 12th French ed., by a Sister of Mercy. N. Y., Benziger Bros., 1890. c. 2+107 p. T. cl., net, 30 c.

Powell, Ella M. Cliq: a child of fate. N. Y., A. Lovell & Co., 1890. 1+122 p. D. pap., 50 c.

A story of love and adventure—the scenes laid in New York and Charleston.

Pratt, Mara L. The fairyland of flowers; a popular illustrated botany for the home and school. Bost., Educational Pub. Co., 1890. c. 2+154 p. O. bds., $1.

The book has first the necessary chapters on the growth of the plant, the kinds of roots, stems, leaves, the parts of the flower, and the arrangements of those parts. Following this is a reference table, from which the student is able easily, and quickly, to trace the plant under consideration from its great classification as an Endogen or an Exogen, through the lesser classifications, directly to the family to which it belongs. The family is then described in a simple way, and still not lacking in the true description of the essential distinguishing features. A feature of the book is the plentiful interspersing of beautiful flower stories and flower poems and flower legends.

*Rathbone, W. Sketch of the history and progress of district nursing, from its commencement in the year 1859 to the present date; including the foundation by the queen of the Queen Victoria Jubilee Institute, for nursing the poor in their own homes. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1890. 22+132 p. 12°, cl., 75 c.

*Re Qua, Harriet Horner. Ziona, the bride of the king, and miscellaneous poems. N. Y. and Chic., Fleming H. Revell, [1890.] 226 p. sq. 12°, cl., $1.25.

Richardson, Anna Martin. Home-made candies and other good things sweet and sour. Cin., O., Rob. Clarke & Co., 1890. c. 6+94 p. D. cl., $1.

The author gives plain and easily understood directions for making, with the ordinary conveniences of the kitchen, many odd and delicious things. Besides the simple candies, cooked and uncooked, the work contains recipes for many novel delicacies, such as raisin roly poly, candy puddings, stuffed figs, home-made drinks, and odd varieties of pickles, creams, ices, etc.

*Robinson, W. Gas and petroleum engines: a practical treatise on the internal combustion engine. N. Y., E. & F. N. Spon, 1890. 596 p. 8°, cl., $5.50.

*Rutherford, W. Gunion. Macmillan's Greek course: First Greek syntax. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1890. 11+183 p. 16°, cl., 50 c.

Senex, (pseud.) The evolution of myth as exemplified in General Grant's history of the plot of President Polk and Secretary Marcy to sacrifice two American armies in the Mexican war of 1846-48. Wash., D. C., W. H. Morrison, 1890. 54 p. D. pap., 50 c.

Sessions, Francis C. In Western Levant; il. by H. W. Hall. N. Y., Welch, Fracker Co., [1890.] 5+252+12 p. D. hf. cl., $1.50.

Studies of life and character as seen in Madrid, Toledo, Cordova, Seville, Granada, Morocco, Algeria, and Tunis. The book is very tastefully gotten up, being embellished in the French style with many graceful vignettes.

Shinkichi Shigemi. A Japanese boy. N. Y., H. Holt & Co., 1890. c.'89. 128 p. D. cl., $1.

Sketches of the life of a Japanese boy in his own country; his school-days, his amusements, his home life, and the lives of his friends and relatives, are most graphically described. The author has written the little book with the hope of securing further means to prosecute the studies he has taken up in America.

Slocum, Joshua. The voyage of the Liberdade. East Bost., Mass., pub. by the author, Capt. Joshua Slocum, 69 Saratoga St., 1890. c. 16°, cl., $1.

Describes the almost miraculous sea voyage of Capt. Joshua Slocum, after losing his vessel, the Aquidneck which was wrecked and went to pieces off the coast of Brazil in Dec., 1887. His crew left him; and assisted only by his wife and two sons, the captain built the Liberdade, a small boat about 35 ft. long, in which he set sail, and after a dangerous voyage of two months succeeded in reaching Washington in safety. The vessel is now in the Smithsonian Institution.

*Stephen, Sir Ja. Fitzjames. A general view of the criminal law of England. 2d ed. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1890. 9+399 p. 8°, cl., $3.50.

Storr, F. Hints on French syntax; with exercises. 5th ed. Bost., D. C. Heath & Co., 1889. 4-48 p. D. cl., 34 c.

Swan, Annie S. Briar and palm: a study of circumstance and influence. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, [1890.] 4-318 p. D. cl., $1.

Denis and Rhoda Holgate were the children of a man of noble birth who had married in his youth his mother's maid. Cast off by his family, he sank deeper and deeper into poverty, dying finally in a little shop in a back street of London that his wife had opened to shield the family from utter starvation. Denis Holgate had been educated by his mother through hard work and much self-denial. When the story opens he has just been told of his father's noble birth, and his mother's resolve to send him from her to claim his heritage. Rhoda, too, makes her first effort towards independence—her story being full of surprises.

*Syllabus of plane geometry (corresponding to Euclid, Book 1-6); revised and brought into correspondence with the text-book prepared by the Association for the Improvement of Geometrical Teaching. New ed. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1890. 4+64 p. 16°, pap., 30 c.

Syracuse Browning Club. Memorial meeting of the Syracuse Browning Club, held at May Memorial Church, Syracuse, N. Y., Jan., 1890. Syracuse, N. Y., C. W. Bardeen, 1890. 3-94 p. D. pap., $1.

Contains addresses on: Browning's use of history, by Prof. C. J. Little; Aid to living from Browning, by Miss Mary E. Bagg; Browning as a theologian, by Rev. E. W. Mundy; Browning as an artist, by Mr. E. H. Merrill; Browning's philosophy, by Miss A. S. Huntington; Browning as a dramatist, by Rev. S. R. Calthrop; Some of Browning's beliefs, by Mr. C. W. Bardeen.

Tyler, B. B. Peculiarities of the Disciples: a series of five sermons. Cin., O., Standard Pub. Co., 1890. c. 2+69 p. D. pap., 25 c.

These sermons answer the following questions: What is the grand aim, what is the prime purpose, what is the distinct mission of the people known as the Disciples of Christ?

Vernon, S. M., D.D. Probation and punishment: a rational and scriptural view of the future state of the wicked, with special reference to the doctrine of a second probation. N. Y., W. B. Ketcham, [1890.] c.'86. 2-300 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The writer supports the doctrine of endless punishment for the wicked, and does not believe the doctrine of a second probation is found in the Bible.

*Warner, Francis, M.D. A course of lectures on the growth and means of training the mental faculty; delivered in the University of Cambridge. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1890. 15+222 p. 16°, cl., 90 c.

*Warner, H. E. Service of papers under the New York code of civil procedure and statutes, with decisions from other states and appendix of forms. N. Y. and Alb., Banks & Bros., 1890. c. 38+325 p. O. shp., $2.50.

Wilbor, Elsie M., ed. Delsarte recitation-book and directory. N. Y., Edgar S. Werner, 1890. c.'89. 15+302 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

Every piece has been chosen for its special fitness for recitation. They consist of 82 recitations in prose and poetry, ranging from simple childish pieces to the more dramatic ones. The book gets its name from several favorite pieces of Delsarte's, from an epigram on every page illustrating or stating some point in the Delsarte system, from a fine medallion portrait of Delsarte embossed on the cover and from illustrations, pantomimes, and analyses according to Delsartean principles.

Worth, Ellis, (pseud. for L. C. Ellsworth.) A little worldling: a novel. N. Y., American News Co., 1890. c. 320 p. D. pap., 50 c.

The "little worldling" is the beautiful and lovable daughter of an unsuccessful actor, who on his death-bed bequeathes her to his strait-laced Puritan mother, half brother and sister, living comfortably in a family mansion in the State of New York. All "Nixie's" ideas appear wrong to her family. Her young aunt falls foolishly in love, and Nixie shields her, bearing unjust suspicion and wrong. After many trials she is finally righted and brings her gloomy family to see that it is right to be happy and cheerful and enjoy pretty clothes and an occasional pleasure.

OBITUARY NOTES.

ALBERT COLBY, once a well-known Boston author, publisher, and bookseller, died May 27 at Fryeburg, Me., aged 63.

WE learn with regret of the death, on May 26, of Mr. William E. Ward, for many years in the employ of the Burrows Brothers Company, Cleveland, O. For the past few years he has been one of the directors of the Burrows Company. He was a thorough bookman and had a host of friends. He leaves a widow and two children.

GEORGE HOOPER, author of the standard work entitled "Waterloo, the Downfall of the First Napoleon," which was recently added to Bohn's Library, and of the volume on Wellington in the English Men of Action Series, died suddenly in England a fortnight ago. Mr. Hooper was for many years connected with the Spectator, and this place he retained until his death.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JUNE 7, 1890.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

THE ENCYCLOPÆDIA BRITANNICA RE-PRINTS.

THERE have been recently put before the American public, from several houses, announcements of editions of the Encyclopædia Britannica and of Webster's Dictionary, which bring into painful prominence the lack of proper legislation which makes such a state of things possible. We hesitate to express ourselves as forcibly as we should wish, because, unfortunately, the publications against which this injury is directed have no case in court; though from a strictly moral point of view the wrong is no less great.

The Encyclopædia Britannica, as all know, is printed and published at Edinburgh by the Messrs. Black. Their edition is handled in this country by Little, Brown & Co., and sells for from $8 to $10 per volume. The edition with Charles Scribner's Sons' imprint was specially made by the Blacks to meet the competition in price, etc., of the J. M. Stoddart & Co. edition—set up and printed in this country—each of which editions sells at from $5 to $7 per volume. For years these three editions supplied the American market—the latter sustaining its legal right to existence after a long struggle in the courts. In 1886 the Henry G. Allen Company began publishing an edition of this Encyclopædia, printed from photographic process plates made in New York by the Lithographoid Engraving and Printing Co. It was fairly well made and sold for $2.50 per volume. It was marketed quietly, chiefly, if not entirely, by canvassers, and had, we understand, a fair success.

Within a couple of weeks four other houses—R. S. Peale & Co. of Chicago, John Wanamaker of Philadelphia, Funk & Wagnalls of New York, and Forbes & Wallace of Springfield, Mass.—have advertised liberally new editions of the Encyclopædia Britannica at $36.50 and $38 the set of twenty-five volumes. The edition of Funk & Wagnalls, we believe, is made from the plates of the Henry G. Allen edition, printed on cheaper paper. The other editions are said to be printed from a new set of process plates made by R. S. Peale & Co., and evidently intended as "bait" for the dry-goods book emporiums.

The offence of reprinting in this country and abroad is a common one, and has been often enough condemned in these columns to call for no further censure. It is an evil which we sincerely believe will be righted before many years. What we regret most in this matter, particularly at this juncture, is that a house of the standing of Funk & Wagnalls, who are also members of the American Copyright League, should have become party to so reprehensible a practice. It certainly should not add to their reputation in the eyes of their large circle of clerical friends. That their conscience is troubled is evident from the following statement, which accompanies their announcement:

"A word as to international copyright: We have long favored such a law; in its absence, it has become well-nigh, if not wholly, impossible to do a successful book business and respect the wishes of the holders of foreign copyrights. Our books, again and again, are reprinted in England without so much as a thank you. If we make a market for a foreign book, it is straightway reprinted against us, at a less price, by some one who pays no royalty. We are forced by self-protection to adopt the following rule as the fairest, all around, that is practicable—to publish what we wish of foreign books and then pay the foreign copyright owners what we think to be a just share of the profits. This we regard as the nearest approach practicable to an equitable working plan until our nation has recovered from its collapse of conscience on the international copyright question. This rule we apply to our handling of the 'Encyclopædia Britannica.'"

While there is much truth in this statement, we regret to say that it furnishes inadequate excuse for such a course. As the Evening Post truly says in a vehement, though rather intemperate article, on the subject: "Why, in the name of common decency, is a man obliged to do a 'successful book business,' if he cannot do it honestly, any more than a successful grocery or stationery business?"

Now and again cases are made public which give the impression that our English brethren are rather careless in their methods of doing business. Within three weeks the John W. Lovell Company have been called upon to defend themselves and to make explanation of matters that were not of their doing. First Mr. Hatton accused them of publishing one of his stories as "authorized," when he had not even been asked for authority, and indulged in some very strong language. And all this because his publishers failed to notify him that such an arrangement had been made.

Next Harper & Bros. discovered that the Lovell Company had published a novel by Justin McCarthy and Mrs. Campbell Praed as an authorized edition, which had been published by the Harpers a year ago under another title. In answer to their statement to this effect the Lovells reply that they purchased the American rights from the agent of the London publishers, being assured that the book had never been issued in this country. They also state that they had nothing to do with the change of title, the running head through the entire book which they had from England being the one used in their issue. The English publisher had evidently forgotten that he had already sold the right to another house.

Still another case has come to our notice, which, however, has not yet been made public. An American house which has had the agency for over a quarter of a century for an English religious magazine learned to their amazement, from one of their subscribers, that another American firm is advertising that it is now the agent of the magazine in question and that it will hereafter supply it at fifty cents a year less than it has been published for heretofore. This, be it understood, in the middle of the subscription year, and after the first house has obtained subscriptions at the higher rate. This transaction is the meanest of which we have yet heard. Our English friends are ever ready to hurl into our teeth "pirate," "Yankee trick," and other like encomiums. We are waiting to hear their vocabulary for these practices!

THE BOOKSELLERS' AND STATIONERS' PROVIDENT ASSOCIATION.

THE eleventh annual meeting of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association of the United States was held on the evening of June 4, at the rooms of George A. Leavitt & Co. It was, in point of numbers and the interest taken in the proceedings, the best meeting for years. The President, Mr. Charles T. Dillingham, called the meeting to order, and with a brief but very happy speech proceeded to business. The reading of the minutes of the previous meeting being dispensed with, the Secretary, Mr. W. B. Ketcham, read the following report:

Mr. President and Members of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Association of the United States:

With no ordinary delight we present to the many friends and enthusiastic members of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association of the United States our eleventh annual report, and give renewed assurances of the prosperity of our Association.

Last year it was our privilege to express our gratification upon the most successful year of its history. It is with added gratification we can report that the year now ending has been still more prosperous and the outlook for the future far more promising than at any period of the past. Such are the principles of our Association, and so faithfully have its conditions been met, that we are assured of the confidence of not only the members but the public in our endeavor to maintain a benevolent society of the highest order of worth.

Commendations are frequently received in respect to the management and operations of our body, and testify to the superior standing we hold among societies in other departments of business with like benevolent designs. In testimony of this, overtures are often suggested from kindred associations for union with us. More and more do the reflective observe the importance of our retaining with undiminished interest our high and honorable record.

The records of the Association indicate as follows:

The entire cost of starting and running the Association for the eleven years of its existence has been $3579.63, or at an average cost of $325.43 per year.

Assessments number 50 and 51, in course of collection, will pay death claims of Edward C. Swayne and O. L. Underhill.

It will be observed by the above statement that our membership now numbers 1090, and the increase has been obtained by the earnest work of a number of our members. It may at once be seen how easy it would be to secure the needful number to fill our ranks if every member would realize the importance of early action to increase the membership to 1500. By thorough and energetic effort of every member, this result could be secured at once. May we not again urge all our fellow-members to do their utmost to secure this end speedily?

As an additional incentive it should be borne in mind that whenever fifteen hundred members are secured, the reserve fund will be so materially strengthened that should at any time an unprecedented mortality occur, we would be prepared to meet all claims without multiplicity of assessments.

The cost of an ordinary life policy for $1000 in any of the large insurance companies for a man thirty-one years old, the average age of our members, is $24 per year, in one payment. Last year the cost to our members, for like amount, was $6.60.

The Law Committee have prepared an amendment to the constitution which will be brought to your attention. It meets with the hearty endorsement of your Board of Trustees, and we trust will be formally approved.

Since your last meeting Mr. Andrew Geyer, who has been our Secretary for the past six years, on account of multiplied business interests has resigned. It is eminently due in this report to note the fidelity and care he has evinced in the laborious and ever-increasing work of the Secretaryship.

We wish to invite special attention of all our members to the fact that at the completion of every assessment, we lose members. This is due chiefly to the failure of members to inform us of change of residence and to keep us posted as to their present address. Your former and present Secretary have found that they are required to trace from fifty to one hundred men every time an assessment is sent out. The amount of work to do this cannot be estimated.

In submitting this report it may not be amiss to again urge you to unwearied toil to secure members and thereby achieve grander results for our Association. Its benefits are unexcelled. Its affairs accurately and carefully managed. Its payments prompt. Its standing is unquestioned. With these sterling features and with the assurance that, with our present membership, one thousand dollars will be paid every claimant, we trust for a future which will commend us to the approval and endorsement of all observers.

Respectfully submitted for the Board of Trustees.
WILBUR B. KETCHAM, Secretary.

The amendment, the text of which was printed in our issue for May 10, then came up for a vote, and after a brief discussion was unanimously adopted. The President next presented to the former Secretary of the Association, Mr. Andrew Geyer, a handsomely engrossed and framed set of resolutions, recognizing Mr. Geyer's services and his untiring zeal and devotion to the interests of the Association. Mr. Geyer, who was quite touched by this token of esteem, made a brief speech, in which he recognized with amiable generosity the assistance given him by Mrs. Geyer, on whom the bulk of the clerical work had devolved. The election of Trustees to serve one year resulted in the choice of F. P. Lennon, John T. Ryan, Robert Morris, C. E. Cunningham, and Andrew Geyer. Resolutions were presented and unanimously adopted thanking Messrs. George A. Leavitt & Co. and C. T. Dillingham for the use of their offices and the trade journals for courtesies extended. The meeting adjourned at about ten o'clock.

THE COPYRIGHT MOVEMENT IN ENGLAND AND CANADA.

From the London Athenæum.

THE sub-committee of the Incorporated Society of Authors appointed to draft a Copyright Bill, and presided over by Sir Frederick Pollock, has finished its labors, and the bill, when approved by the General Committee, will be presented to Parliament as that of the Society. Its main features resemble those of the bill known as Lord John Manners', which was proposed after the Royal Commission on Copyright had reported; but some improvements have been introduced, and the bill, if accepted by Parliament, ought to give satisfaction to authors. Though no legislation concerning it can take place this session, yet an effort will be made to introduce the bill into the House of Commons before Parliament rises, in order that it may be printed and discussed during the recess.

The efforts of the Dominion Parliament to legislate to the detriment of British authors, though frustrated for the present, are not at an end. Sir John Thompson, the Minister of Justice, has intimated to a deputation of Canadian publishers that he intended "to continue urging upon Her Majesty's Government the right of the Canadian Parliament to legislate independently of the Imperial authority in regard to copyright in the Dominion." The right of the Dominion Parliament to legislate for Canadian authors may be indisputable; but why attempt to deprive British authors of the protection accorded to them by the Imperial Parliament? Lord Sherbrook is credited with saying that this country lost America because the American colonists would not permit us to rob them, and that we should lose other colonies because we would not permit them to rob us.

REMINISCENCES OF ROBERT CARTER AND HIS WORK.*

BY PETER CARTER.

THE early youth of Robert Carter was passed in his native Scotland under most trying circumstances. A great longing for knowledge was satisfied only meagrely and at the price of unflagging hard work and daily self-denial. After struggling hard to acquire an education, he passed some years as a teacher, and finally entered the University of Edinburgh; but, unable to indulge himself in a university career, he boldly formed the plan to emigrate to America. He sailed in April, 1831, landing in New York after the month of sea-voyage required in those days. He had a letter of introduction from Prof. Pillans, of the Edinburgh University, to Dr. John Griscom, the head of the High School in New York. On his way up Broadway, he bethought him of this letter, and wondered how he should find the New York High School. So, stepping into a grocery-store near White Street, he asked a man, whom he afterwards found to be the proprietor, Mr. John Duncan, if he could direct him to Dr. Griscom's school.

"Oh, yes," he said; "I know Dr. Griscom well. My son goes to his school." Taking down his hat, he insisted on going with the young Scotchman to Dr. Griscom's school-room, which was in Crosby Street, near Grand, on the third floor. Climbing the stairs, they knocked at the door, and the doctor himself opened it. Dr. Griscom was a member of the Society of Friends. He read the letter of introduction, and with a benignant smile, said:

"So thee is Robert Carter. I am very glad to see thee indeed. We want just such men here. We have a great many producers, and we want men to educate and mould this mass of workers. Thee knowest I have not time to talk with thee here, but if thee will come to my house to tea to-night, I will be very glad to see thee."

The invitation was gladly accepted, and the visitors took their leave.

The tea-drinking passed off very delightfully, and both the professor and the merchant ever thereafter were fast friends of the young Scotchman. An opening soon after this having occurred in the high school, Mr. Carter gladly accepted the place, and Dr. Griscom and he labored on lovingly together until, from some difficulty among the trustees, the school was given up. Mr. Carter then began a school of his own, on the southwest corner of Broadway and Grand Street, where Devlin & Co.'s clothing store stood for many years. The school was successful, and among his pupils were some who afterwards became prominent in church and state. But there were personal reasons for changing his avocation, and soon afterwards he decided to do it.

Passing along Canal Street one day, in the spring of 1834, Mr. Carter saw a store to let, and although he never had sold a book in his life, and had had not the slightest acquaintance with mercantile affairs of any kind, he at once determined to take it and try his fortune as a bookseller. Just at that time the stock of an insolvent bookseller in Cortlandt Street was advertised for sale. It was not the most valuable assortment of books that could be found, but Mr. Carter obtained it at a great bargain, and, with some additions from other sources, he began the selling of books and stationery at the corner of Canal and Laurens Streets, in April, 1834.

While he was in the act of putting the books on the shelves, a young woman came in and asked for a Bible. He showed her one—she asked the price, and he told her at haphazard 75 cents. He subsequently found that it had cost him a dollar, but he had a sort of inward satisfaction in beginning his business by the sale of a Bible. Early in his business career he attended auctions, and bought what was valuable and cheap.

One day he needed some hymn-books, such as were used in the Dutch Reformed churches, and hearing that George Long, then in Fulton Street, had some, went there for them.

"Yes," said Mr. Long, "I have about four dozen, and I will clear them out cheap." The bargain was soon completed, and the money paid.

"Now," said Mr. Long, "I am going out of the miscellaneous book business, and I will sell you all these shelves full at six cents per book."

"But I have not the money to pay for them," Mr. Carter said, after he had carefully examined them and seen how desirable they would be for him.

"I will take your note," was Mr. Long's rejoinder. So the books were counted and the note drawn and signed. It was the first and the only note he ever gave.

The books were brought to the store in Canal Street, and for want of shelf-room were piled upon the floor. A gentleman came in who was interested in Sunday-school libraries and bought a large bill of the books, the amount of which was nearly enough to meet Mr. Long's note. So, without waiting for it to mature, Mr. Carter hurried away with the money, and took up the note, much to his own relief.

Attending an auction sale one day where the stereotype plates of "Horne's Introduction to the Study of the Bible" in two royal octavo volumes were offered, they were struck down to him for $3300. This was, of course, a very large sum for him to spare from his business, in fact he had no such sum on hand, but a relative promised to lend it to him. Telling the story of this purchase to Mr. John Campbell, the paper-dealer in Nassau Street, Mr. Campbell said, "But where will you get the money?" Mr. Carter told him that a relative had kindly agreed to lend it to him. "Oh, it is not a good plan to borrow from relatives. I will lend it to you and ask no note or obligation of any kind. You can return it when it is convenient." In less than six months the money was returned, and no small proportion of it from the earnings of the book itself.

Imported goods that are not called for at the custom-house after the lapse of a year are sold at auction without opening the cases, so that seller and purchaser are alike ignorant of the contents. Mr. Carter was present at such an auction, and bought a number of boxes. When they were opened in the little store, what was his disappointment to find that every box was filled with imperfect sets of Jonathan Edwards' Works, not one perfect set in the lot. At that time the British Government paid a certain drawback or rebate on the exportation of paper, even when it was printed, and these boxes had been shipped to some bogus name in New York to get this rebate.

But this young Scotchman was equal to the emergency. He found that while there was no complete set the great part of the sheets formed complete treatises. So he had these treatises cheaply bound, and sold them at a very low price, actually succeeding in reaping a handsome profit on his purchase.

From the day he opened his store he never had a question of his ultimate success, and no doubt this sanguine spirit helped him much in bringing about the success that attended his work.

Though a ruling elder in the Presbyterian Church, his interest and affection was not confined to his own denomination. His heart was large enough to take in the whole Evangelical Church in all its branches.

One day a wealthy friend called on him with a book which he wanted him to publish and of which he said he would take 100 copies. It was entitled "The Divine Right of Presbyterian Church Government."

Mr. Carter looked at it a moment, and said, "As I read the Acts of the Apostles, I think the Presbyterian form is a little the nearest to that inspired record, but I don't believe that any one form has a divine right," and he would not publish the book.

On another occasion a gentleman brought him a little volume to publish that had had a large sale in a Western city, on "The Difficulties of Armenian Methodism." Mr. Carter said, "No, I cannot publish it. Pulling down may be necessary, but I did not go into business to do that, but to build up Christ's Church as far as in my power."

In 1848 Mr. Carter took into partnership his two brothers, Walter and Peter Carter, thus establishing the firm of Robert Carter & Bros., which has continued unchanged to this date.

Mr. Walter Carter, in addition to his work in the department of the business under his care, has been very active in outside work of various kinds. He was for many years one of the trustees of the public school in the 22d Ward, and an active and interested attendant on the Presbytery, Synod, and General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, of which he has long been an efficient ruling elder.

Mr. Peter Carter has dabbled a little in literature. Three books for children are from his pen, all of which have been reprinted in Great Britain. Also a little volume of travel called "Crumbs from the Land o' Cakes." In 1853 he compiled a selection of the choicest productions of the Scottish poets with brief biographical sketches entitled "Scotia's Bards." Although it is a somewhat costly illustrated volume, several editions have been sold.

In the spring of 1874, Mr. Walter Carter withdrew from the firm, and Mr. Robt. Carter, Jr., the son of the senior partner, took his place. Mr. Robt. Carter, Jr., in addition to attention to his daily business, has managed to do a great deal of visiting among the poor and needy, bringing sunshine into many a humble home. These visitations have been largely among the colored people, to whom he is always a welcome visitor.

This firm has been conspicuous for the long continuance of employes in its service.

Mr. James Riddle was for 40 years in their employ, and many of these years their book-keeper and confidential clerk, a man of singular accuracy and neatness in his work, and like all their other employes a man of the most sterling integrity and uprightness. He died in 1885.

Mr. A. B. Lawson has been with the firm 37 years. For many of these years he has been their traveller, and is far better known to the trade generally than any member of the firm. Skilful, patient, painstaking, and persevering, he has been a universal favorite.

Mr. James C. Russell, a nephew of the brothers, has been with the firm for 33 years. He has charge of the mailing department, and his carefulness, neatness, and despatch in this rather troublesome department have been of very great service.

Mr. A. Ryder was the porter of the establishment for 33 years, and all his duties were discharged in the most faithful and conscientious manner. He died four years ago.

The firm has always pursued a peace policy, and has carefully avoided the entanglements of law. They have never sued any one nor been sued during all these years.

Their relations with the various authors for whom they have published books have been exceedingly pleasant and friendly. The same may be said of their relations with their fellow-publishers, who one and all see the old firm retire from their ranks with genuine regret.

The honest sentiments of the publishing fraternity were expressed in the testimonial sent to Mr. Robert Carter on April 1, 1884, on the completion of his fiftieth year of business life, which is here given:

NEW YORK, April 1, 1884.

MR. ROBERT CARTER.

Dear Sir: Your friends and associates in the book-publishing and bookselling trade of this city desire, on the fiftieth anniversary of your entrance upon the business, to convey to you their best regards and congratulations.

Some of us are the sons and successors of your early contemporaries, others are the representatives of a later generation, but the good-will and kindly feeling which you commanded at the beginning, you have continued to retain through all the succeeding years of an honorable career. In your fifty years of business life you have seen the wonderful growth of the American publishing trade, and have borne a conspicuous part in the development and maintenance of that important branch which you originally chose and to which you have ever adhered. You have survived, with but one or two exceptions, those who were in business when you began, and are still able to take a part in the management of your well-established house.

In all these years of activity, and of many changes, you have made no enemies, and have constantly added to the number of your friends. You have conducted an exacting and difficult business with dignity and success, and in the serene years of later life are permitted to fully enjoy the substantial fruits of your industrious enterprise and unquestioned fidelity.

Be pleased then, on this notable anniversary, to accept our congratulations and hearty good wishes for your continued health and prosperity, and believe us,

Very sincerely yours,

A PLEA FOR THE ABOLITION OF THE TARIFF ON BOOKS BY MAIL.

Charles B. Curtis in the N. Y. Tribune, May 27.

IN a letter published in The Tribune of March 12 I drew attention to our illiberal and harmful tax on knowledge. I showed that this is the only country in the world that imposes a protective duty on books. What I wish to speak of more particularly at this time is books by mail. In other countries these pass free under the International Postal treaties, and they did so here until the United States Customs officials found an excuse for taxing them, when, at our instigation, new treaties had to be negotiated especially to fit our case.

The most remarkable thing about our system of collecting duties on books by mail is that the work was begun not to obtain money for the government, but in order to give employment to some persons for whom at the time no other occupation could be found. I happen to be in possession of a bit of secret history which ought to be made public, not for the credit of the government or of the actors concerned, but because it is a spot on which the sunlight should be turned for sanitary reasons. The statement is so extraordinary that I would not dare to repeat it if I did not have it direct from the person most conversant with the facts.

A few years ago a certain person in New York made a discovery that under the law and practice then in force all books not exceeding $1 in value were imported by mail without payment of duty. Being out of employment at the time, but willing to make himself useful to his country, this person sought an interview with the Collector of this port and proposed that a bureau should be established by means of which tribute might be exacted on every book imported by mail, no matter how small the value. The Collector promptly rejected the suggestion, on the ground that it would be discreditable for the government to engage in so paltry a business, and also for the reason that the receipts would not pay the cost of collection. But the inventor of the scheme was persistent, and he submitted his plan to the Secretary of the Treasury, offering to take charge of the business himself at his own risk, and to receive the duties collected for his sole compensation. The offer was at last accepted and the enterprising promoter was placed at the head of the Bureau, when, as had been anticipated, he found himself out of pocket, but he finally secured a change in the system and the loss now falls on the government. This was the origin of the bureau for the collection of duties on books by mail.

In the year 1889 there was received by foreign mails at the New York Post-Office 127,030 packages, containing 222,120 books. The duties collected amounted to exactly $23,294.29, being 18 cents per package or a trifle over 10 cents for each book. To collect this sum required a force of nineteen men, some of them receiving salaries as high as $2000. Since the average duty was only 10 cents on each book, it is safe to say that on 150,000 of them the duties were less than 8 cents each.

The labor expended in this work is enormous. Each package is opened, examined, appraised, and closed again; two entries at least, and often more, are made; a quarter of a million letters are written and sent, on which the postage alone would be more than $5000; accounts are kept with every post-office in the United States to which packages are addressed; collections are made, examined, and credited; stationery, printed forms, account-books, rent, fuel, lights, and other expenses are paid, and all this to enable the Government to collect $23,294.29 in sums of 18 cents each from 127,030 individuals. The statement seems incredible, but it is true.

That the business is done at a loss cannot be questioned. I have been informed by a person formerly ranking among the highest of the officials in charge of the work that the cost of this bureau, all expenses included, is not less than $60,000; that is to say, it cost 46 cents to collect the 18 cents due on each package. This estimate may appear extravagant, but is given on the best of authority, and when it is considered that the work requires the services of nineteen well-paid men, it is evident that the figures are not overstated. Certainly no commercial house would undertake to collect $23,000 in sums of 18 cents each from 170,000 persons at remote post-offices in every State in the Union for thrice the amount received.

It is doubtless true that if this duty were abolished it would still be necessary to guard against smuggling, but this work could be easily performed by one or two inspectors at moderate pay, and all the expensive machinery of this system could be dispensed with.

Following the example of the most enlightened nations, we should make all books free, but if this is asking too much we may at least add to the free list "books, maps, and engravings especially imported, not more than one copy for the use of any individual and not for sale; and books more than one year old and not republished in the United States."

I can see no possible objection to so reasonable a proposition.

I should not omit to say that the McKinley bill places on the free list "books in any other language than English." This adds another argument for the adoption of the clause above proposed. It will almost annihilate the work of the Post-Office Bureau, since books in German, French, Italian, Spanish, and other foreign languages comprise probably more than two-thirds of the books arriving by mail. The remaining duties will perhaps not exceed $5000, to $8000, but the expense of the establishment will not be materially diminished. Why not abolish the bureau altogether?

THE SALE OF HERBERT SPENCER'S WORKS.

MR. LEWIS G. JAMES, of Brooklyn, writes to the New York Times, in reply to a letter from Prof. H. F. Osborn, of Princeton, that the sale of Herbert Spencer's works both here and in England has been much larger than Prof. Osborn supposes: "At the request of Messrs. Williams & Norgate, Mr. Spencer's English publishers, and from a detailed statement furnished by them, I am able to state that the total sales of Mr. Spencer's works in Great Britain up to the 18th of April, 1890, have amounted to 104,000 copies, exclusive of the 'Descriptive Sociology.' This number includes 33,750 copies of the various volumes of 'The Synthetic Philosophy,' 39,500 copies of 'Education,' and 20,000 copies of 'Man versus the State,' all of which are certainly comprised among Mr. Spencer's 'best-known works.' Eight thousand copies of his 'First Principles' have been sold by Messrs. Williams & Norgate, instead of 6000 as stated by Prof. Osborn. From Messrs. D. Appleton & Co. I also learn that the total sales of the authorized American editions of Mr. Spencer's works to date have amounted to 164,000 copies. If we include the cheap pirated reprints of certain of these works that have had a considerable sale in this country, the difference would be somewhat greater, but not so great as Prof. Osborn's statement would lead your readers to infer, while the aggregate circulation of Mr. Spencer's 'best-known works' in both countries much exceeds the figures given in Prof. Osborn's letter."

MOUNTING OF DRAWINGS.

FOR the proper mounting and straining of drawings, maps, engravings, etc., two things are absolutely essential—(1) good paste, and (2) cleanliness in handling. It is also advisable, says Work, to practise your hand upon some small unimportant work before attacking anything large and serious. A plain wooden frame for straining is now necessary, or, if the drawing is to be framed afterwards, a permanent wooden strainer; in either case the wood should be about 2 inches wide. Obtain some plain, unbleached calico, about 4 inches longer and wider than your strainer, damp the calico with a sponge, then paste 1 inch all round, and, after laying the strainer, or frame, face down on calico, turn the pasted edges over the frame; let this dry. Afterwards moisten with sponge and clean water the paper you intend to mount, sponging evenly all over, so that it is quite damp but not soaking wet; then paste about  $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch all round the border, take your frame with strained calico upon it, and lay it face downward on the paper to be mounted, which it will take up; then with your hands or a clean linen cloth, carefully press the pasted border all round, and leave to dry slowly; then you will find it strained as tight as a drumhead, and you can either frame it in the ornamental frame you intend for it, or, after making a drawing on the strained paper, with a penknife cut it all round and release it from the strainer.

COMMUNICATIONS.

THE BANCROFT-WHITNEY CO. — A CORRECTION.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 23, 1890.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

SIR: Our attention has been called to an article from a California correspondent on the bottom of p. 561 and extending on to p. 562 of your issue of April 26, which does great injury to our company. We wish briefly to correct the misstatements.

H. H. Bancroft is the holder of one-quarter of the stock in the Bancroft-Whitney Company, but he has not been "entirely closed out from sharing the profits of that corporation through a combination on the part of the other holders of the stock."

It is true that in this corporation as in all others the majority of the stockholders control the Company and elect the officers; but the officers serving now were originally elected by and with the consent of Mr. H. H. Bancroft. Afterwards he had a quarrel with the President of the corporation and was dissatisfied with the Executive Committee because they would not oust the President, but all the other stockholders supported the Executive Committee.

The article further states: "The majority elect themselves officers at high and fancy salaries, the payment of which has used up all the profits." This is a deliberate misstatement. During the first year after its organization and while reprinting books that were destroyed in the Bancroft fire no dividend was paid, but the dividends paid since that time would be satisfactory to the stockholders of any corporation in the United States. The salaries paid are neither "high" nor "fancy." There could be no better evidence that the salaries are earned than the fact that those of whom he complains are not paid and under the by-laws of the company cannot be paid until after the payment of dividends to stockholders (Mr. H. H. Bancroft included) netting more than three times the market rates of interest on the money invested by them.

Nor has any injunction been put upon The Bancroft Company to restrain it from publishing law-books generally, nor has the Bancroft-Whitney Company sought to obtain any such injunction, but the latter Company has commenced a suit, asking the Court to restrain The Bancroft Company from interfering with the good-will and property sold by the Bancrofts to the Bancroft-Whitney Company.

Yours truly,

BANCROFT-WHITNEY COMPANY.

OLD BOOK CHAT.

A rara avis in the shape of a large-paper copy of the first edition of Sterne's "Sentimental Journey" is to be sold by auction shortly by Putticks & Simpson, of London. It should bring a good price. By the way, Dibdin in his "Decameron" speaks of a copy of the "Sentimental Journey," illustrated with pencil drawings by the author. They are, Dibdin says, "revolting to common decency." Now, I wonder, is that copy in existence, and if so, where is it? By the way, it is becoming quite too common to sneer at Dibden and his books, the chief cry being that he is inaccurate. That may be so, but yet it is hard to find pleasanter reading than his "Tours," or more charming chapters about old books than are to be found in the "Decameron." By all means let the worthy doctor flourish.

THE sale, at the rooms of Messrs. Sotheby, Wilkinson & Hodge, of a portion of the library of Mr. Thomas Gaisford, affords us a passing glimpse of the state of the second-hand market in England. The splendid collection of Blake's publications (of which there were 10) realized the following prices: "Poetical Sketches," £48; "Book of Thel," £29; "Songs of Innocence," £41; "Songs of Innocence and Experience," £87; "Visions of the Daughters of Albion," £26 10 s.; "America," £61; "Europe," £59; "Urizen," £66; Illustrations of Young's "Night Thoughts," £50 10 s., and of the "Book of Job," £19 10 s.; a fine copy of "Arias Montanus," formerly belonging to Diana of Poitiers, brought (for its binding alone) £94 10 s.; the Giunta edition Boccaccio, 1527, £64.

THE sale of the original manuscripts of Charles

Dickens and Wilkie Collins, with some autograph programmes of private theatricals in which both took part, which begins in London in July, promises to be an interesting one. The entire original mss. of "No Name," "The Moonstone," and "The Woman in White" of Collins and the manuscripts of some of Dickens' poems are in this collection. The catalogue is illustrated with facsimiles.

I HAVE a book by Bishop Wordsworth (Master of Trinity) entitled "Who Wrote Eikon Basilike?" Some wit has pencilled on the fly-leaf:

"Who wrote Eikon Basilike?
The Master of Trinity,
With all his divinity,
He wrote, 'Who Wrote Eikon Basilike?'"

IN a sale by Evans, on November 16, 1836, a copy of the first edition of Walton's "Angler" described as fine and large brought £8. Mr. J. Bohn was the buyer. Quite recently copies have been sold for £180 and £185 respectively. What seems stranger, however, is the fact that there are many people here ready to pay even more than the above for a fine copy. I was fortunate in buying a copy at Sotheby's once for £23, but alas, it wanted a leaf!

IN Dibdin's "Library Companion" there is an index of "Books, Persons, and Things." The worthy doctor evidently thought that a book was not by any means a "thing" and indeed that it took precedence of a "person" "Gents," please take notice.

"AN interesting discovery has been made in Manchester," says the London Athenaeum. "Mr. J. E. Cornish, the well-known bookseller, possesses an extensive stock of old books and mss., including a collection from which there came, some years ago, the original score of Handel's 'Messiah,' now one of the treasures of Buckingham Palace. Mr. Cornish's hope of finding other Handel autographs has not yet been realized; but Dr. Henry Watson, in examining the musical mss., has come across several in the handwriting of Mozart. There are two of the concertos written in his childhood, and several numbers of 'Mithridate,' the opera which came into being when the musician was at Milan in 1770. These Mozart autographs, like the Handel mss., already mentioned, form part of the collection formerly owned by Mr. Thomas Kerslake, of Bristol."

MR. TINKER's books are to be sold by auction at Bangs' during this month. The sale will occupy three days at least, and comprises many choice and rare items including first editions of Dickens in fine state, also books by Thackeray in similar condition, Napoliana, very interesting autographs, etc. The late Mr. Tinker was one of the best known and best liked of the New York collectors, and his loss will be felt by many dealers as that of a personal friend. He was a generous buyer when satisfied that a book was "right," and his excellent taste in selection will no doubt be amply proved when the books come to the hammer. His death came as a rude and unwelcome surprise, for apparently Mr. Tinker enjoyed good health and looked like a man with many years before him. I had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Tinker several times, and can well understand the deep affection with which he was regarded by those on a footing of greater intimacy.

BIBLIOPHILUS.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

G. HEDLER, Grimmaischer Steinweg, 3, Leipzig, will publish shortly in book-form (in German) the list of libraries now appearing in the Export Journal. The list will include the libraries of England, Germany, Austria, Hungary, Switzerland, and North America.

HEREAFTER the Bulletin of the Boston Public Library will appear quarterly, beginning with April, 1890. In order to comply with the regulations of the United States Post-Office Department governing publications of this character, the sum of one dollar ($1.00) has been fixed upon as the price of an annual subscription. Subscriptions may be sent to Mr. Louis F. Gray, office Secretary Boston Public Library.

EDWARD HERON-ALLEN, author of "Violin-Making, as it was and is," "The Ancestry of the Violin," etc., has prepared a work entitled "De Fidiculis Bibliographia," being the basis of a bibliography of the violin and all other instruments played on with a bow in ancient and modern times, catalogue raisonné of all books, pamphlets, magazine and newspaper articles, book and dictionary extracts, dramas, romances, poems, methods, instruction books and theoretical and scientific works relating to instruments of the violin family, hitherto found in private or public libraries, or referred to in existing works on the subject." The work will be published by Messrs. Griffith, Farran, Okeden & Welsh, and is being issued by subscription. There will be two editions—a large-paper one and the ordinary one.

Catalogues of New and Second-hand Books.—Luzac & Co., London, Monthly list of Oriental books. (No. 3, 16 p. 16°.)—Alfred H. Maurais, London, Miscellaneous. (No. 9, 439 titles.)—Henry Sotheran & Co., London, Sotheran's Price Current. (No. 494, 80 p. 12°; contains a copy of the first folio edition of Shakespeare's works, 12<sup>5</sup>/<sub>8</sub> x 8<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> in., for £285.)—Catalogue of the library of the late J. W. Winans to be sold at private sale at 926 Clay St., San Francisco, Cal.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BOSTON, MASS.—The Mudie Library Company (W. H. Halliday, Manager), 52 Boylston Street, has become insolvent. It is said to owe $3559.59, of which $458.50 is preferred claims and $350 is secured on the library, which consists of about 4000 volumes.

BOULDER, COLO.—G. B. Blake, bookseller, has been succeeded by the Whitney-Blake Book and Drug Co.

CHICAGO, ILL.—Lyster & Coryell have dissolved partnership and sold their interest in the wood-pulp Webster's Dictionary to Jewell & Co. Mr. M. V. Coryell will continue to act as publisher's agent at 114 LaSalle St.

NEW YORK CITY.—Miss Sarah H. Leggett, formerly of 253 Fifth Avenue, has retired from business and sold to E. P. Dutton & Co. her entire stationery and engraving business, and has also transferred to them the card plates and dies left in her care.

NEW YORK CITY.—The executors of the estate of Robert Carter will put up at public auction (unless previously sold at private sale), in the auction-rooms of Bangs & Co., 739 and 741 Broadway, N. Y., on Tuesday, September 16, 1890, at 10 A. M., the stereotype plates—and in many cases the copyrights—books, bound and in sheets, comprising the entire stock of the firm of Robert Carter & Brothers. The printed catalogues will be ready on or about August 20, and may be had on application to the auctioneers. The business will be continued as heretofore till August 1, when the store will be closed.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Religio-Philosophical Journal, the well-known spiritualistic paper published in Chicago, has just celebrated its twenty-fifth birthday, and begun its new quarter century by inaugurating a new series, of which the first number is just issued. All interested in mental phenomena will find many new things from week to week in its pages.

GEORGE F. KELLY & Co., New York, announce the immediate appearance of the first number (for June) of a new art periodical, The American Etcher, a monthly, at 75 cents per copy or $6 a year. The announcement says: "The magazine will make a specialty of high-class American etchings, printed in édition-de-luxe style on soft Japanese paper, mounted at the four corners and enclosed in a mat, ready for framing. The size of the magazine, twelve by sixteen inches, allows a generous size of plate and margin. Besides the monthly plate, each number will have some letterpress of critical and practical value on topics connected with etchings and etchers. No. 1 will have an article by Fred'k Kepple, noting in detail 'What Etchings Are,' and he will be heard later again in an article on 'How to Frame an Etching.' The printing of the plates has been entrusted to Mr. G. W. H. Ritchie, of New York, himself an etcher of repute and therefore specially qualified for the task."

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will hereafter publish Samuel Hubbard Scudder's important work on "The Butterflies of the Eastern United States and Canada," formerly published by subscription by the author.

F. J. SCHULTE & Co., Chicago, announce a second edition of "Cæsar's Column," which will be issued in cloth and in paper covers, as the first of the series to be entitled Ariel Library. The first edition of two thousand copies was sold in five weeks.

THE seventeenth bound volume of the new series of The Century is now ready. The great "History of Abraham Lincoln," by John G. Nicolay and John Hay, comes to a conclusion in this volume, and "The Autobiography of Joseph Jefferson" is one of its leading features. Description and travel are represented by two papers by George Kennan on "Siberia and the Exile System," and three timely papers on the Congo by W. P. Tisdell and E. J. Glave; there are many contributions on art, three timely papers on the problems of modern society, excellent short and serial stories, many poems, and much instructive reading in the department of "Open Letters." The illustrations are innumerable and of the high standard of artistic merit in design and execution that distinguishes this magazine. The department of "Bric-à-Brac" is especially full of good jokes and well-selected poems.

THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT CO. will shortly publish "Travels in Africa," by Dr. William Juncker, translated from the German by Prof. Keane, with a large number of illustrations and maps; "Two Summers in Greenland: an artist's adventures among ice and islands in fjords and mountains," by A. Riis Carstensen, with illustrations by the author; an elementary text-book on the principles and practice of "Decorative Design," fully illustrated, by Frank G. Jackson, Master of Birmingham Municipal School of Art; "H. M. Stanley—his life, works, and explorations," by the Rev. H. W. Little; "Locke" in the Philosophical Classics series; and two new novels—"A Modern Zoroastrian," by Samuel Laing, and "The Jewel in the Lotos," by Mary Agnes Tincker. The Lippincotts have just published the fifth volume of the new edition of Chambers' Encyclopædia. This contains articles by R. D. Blackmore on Gardening, William Morris on Glass Staining, C. I. Elton, M.P., on Government, Alfred Nutt on the Holy Grail, Dr. Buchan on the climate of Great Britain and Prof. Geikie on its geology, Dr. Peile on Grammar, Groome on Gypsies, Dr. Collingwood Bruce on Hadrian's Wall, Prof. P. G. Tait on Heat, Mr. Budge on Hieroglyphics, Mr. Gladstone on Homer, M. Pasteur on Hydrophobia, the Rev. J. Julian on Hymns, and Prof. Huxley on himself. The memoirs of Orlando Gibbons and Handel are contributed by Sir George Grove, those of Goldsmith and Gay by Austin Dobson, of the four Georges by Fraser Rae, those of Greene and Heywood by A. H. Bullen, that of Hafiz by Mr. Clouston, of Hood by Canon Ainger, and of Victor Hugo by W. E. Henley. M. Gennadius furnishes the article on the Greek Church, and Sir Spenser St. John that on Hayti; while the Duke of Argyll writes on the Highlands, and Austin Dobson on Hogarth.

PERSONAL NOTES.

THE Brentanos have engaged Mr. Frank Allen, lately a member of the firms of White, Stokes & Allen and White & Allen, to take charge of their publishing department, to the development of which they will give special attention in the future. Mr. Allen possesses a large acquaintance both here and abroad, not only with the trade, but among authors and artists as well, and it is to be expected that with his assistance many valuable and attractive additions will be made to the already growing list of the Brentanos. Mr. Allen sails June 7 on the Umbria to look after the foreign interests of the department.

MR. WILLIAM BEV. HARRISON, who was connected for eleven years with the old Anderson School-Book Co. and the New York School-Book Clearing-House, of the latter of which he was the Secretary since its organization, has resigned his position to become purchasing agent on his own account. He is probably the best-posted school-book man in the country, being acquainted with it in every detail, which fact, coupled with his energy and enterprise, and his many good personal qualities, will, no doubt, enable him to carry out fully the plans which he is maturing. His address for the present will be at his old headquarters, No. 65 Duane Street, New York.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

Announce that they will publish in a few days the only authorized edition of the great theological sensation of the day in England,

LUX MUNDI.

1 vol., 12mo, cloth, gilt top, $1.75.

This edition of the work will contain the fac-simile authorization of the editor, Rev. Charles Gore, M.A., Fellow of Trinity College.

Twelve essays by eleven prominent writers. A wonderful coöperative production.

The Frank Acceptance of Evolution.

The Liberal Theory of Inspiration.

The Ungrudging Concessions to Modern Criticism of the Old Testament.

The Modification of Vital Doctrines.

All these have been advanced before, but never from such sources.

The book comes from what was considered the stronghold of English theological conservatism.

This book will be, in fact is already, the sensation of the age in theological circles. It glows with the ardor of conviction.

Its lucid and attractive literary style will attract thousands of readers who rarely open a theological treatise.

FUNK & WAGNALLS'

Announcement Extraordinary.

THE

Encyclopedia Britannica,

Complete for $38.00.

OUR EDITION IS NOT CHEAPLY BOUND, OR POORLY PRINTED. IT IS A FAC-SIMILE OF THE ORIGINAL, PAGE FOR PAGE, VOLUME FOR VOLUME, MARGINAL REFERENCES—ALL.

The entire 25 volumes are now ready.

You need not wait for the slow completion of volume after volume, with the attendant risks of that method of delivery. We guarantee satisfaction. If the purchaser is not satisfied for any reason, he can return the books within three days and money will be refunded. Remember, this is the same work exactly as the nine dollars per vol. ($225.00) edition, only it is not so expensively made.

A word as to international copyright: We have long favored such a law; in its absence, it has become well-nigh if not wholly impossible to do a successful book business and respect the wishes of the holders of foreign copyrights. Our books, again and again, are reprinted in England without so much as a thank you. If we make a market for a foreign book, it is straightway reprinted against us, at a less price, by some one who pays no royalty. We are forced by self-protection to adopt the following rule as the fairest, all around—that is practicable—to publish what we wish of foreign books and then pay the foreign copyright owners what we think to be a just share of the profits. This we regard as the nearest approach practicable to an equitable working plan until our Nation has recovered from its collapse of conscience on the International Copyright question. This rule we apply to our handling of the Encyclopedia Britannica.

We invite all to call at our store and examine our marvellously cheap edition of this wonderful work, or send money for a set.

Do not be misled by other offers. The advertisement of a cheap edition by a Philadelphia house is misleading. The edition so advertised is a cheap, hastily gotten up Chicago edition, of which only several volumes have as yet been published.

Remember, that we guarantee satisfaction and that the entire work is ready for examination and delivery.

THE
American Educational Catalogue

For 1890 [Twenty-first Year].

THE AMERICAN EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE, whose value to the trade is proved by the fact that it is now in its twenty-first year, claims to be the best practical aid to the dealer in or buyer of school-books.

With its alphabetical arrangement by authors, its separate class-index, carefully sub-classified to an extent not followed by any other catalogue, its completeness and accuracy, it is presented as the best finding-list, the most convenient order-list, and the most satisfactory class-catalogue for school use.

The catalogue has recently been remade, to omit books which have dropped out of use and to include all live books, and it adds all new books (ready or to be ready for the fall) in their proper alphabetical place.

The page giving the key to publishers will not be given in imprint editions unless specially ordered. The Telegraphic Code will not be continued, as the code plan is reported to us to give more trouble than it saves.

This Catalogue is specially planned to be of service for circulation by retailers among schools and private buyers. The imprint edition possesses not only temporary value, but will serve its purpose during the whole year. No imprint edition of less than 100 copies can be supplied. Orders for editions should be sent to us at once.

CASH TERMS.

*With sole imprint of ordering firm, and stitched, per 100 copies, $5.00 ;
per 1000, $40.00.*

There is no extra charge for printing name, business card, etc., on the imprint page; the last page is left blank at the disposal of the dealer, but any copy for that page, advertising special lines or general business, will be set up and printed thereon for $5.00, or $1.00 if plate is sent.

\.* Copy for imprint and shipping directions should accompany the order.*

The regular Educational Number of "THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY" will be supplied at 25 cents per copy, or five for $1.00, postpaid.

Office of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY,

FRANKLIN SQUARE (330 PEARL STREET),

P. O. Box 943.

APPLETONS' "TOWN AND COUNTRY LIBRARY." JOOST AVELINGH.

A DUTCH STORY. By MAARTEN MAARTENS. 12mo, paper, 50 cents.

NOTICES FROM THE ENGLISH PRESS.

The Academy says: "A book by a man who, in addition to mere talent, has in him a vein of genuine genius."

The Athenaeum says: "Unquestionably a good piece of work, with clear delineation, accurate pictures of life, and abundance of local color."

The Morning Post says: "So unmistakably good as to induce the hope that an acquaintance with the Dutch literature of fiction may soon become more general among us."

The Figaro says: "If all Dutch stories were as interesting and as well written as this one, there would be a considerable demand for them in this country."

Books for Summer Reading.

APPLETONS' "TOWN AND COUNTRY LIBRARY." 12mo, paper cover, 50 cents each; bound in red cloth, 75 cents each.

This Library contains more than fifty novels by eminent authors. Among other authors may be mentioned—EDNA LYALL, GEORGE MACDONALD, GRANT ALLEN, ERNEST DAUDET, JULIAN HAWTHORNE, WILKIE COLLINS, JUSTIN MC CARTHY and Mrs. CAMPBELL-PRAED.

NOTES IN SEASON.

PETER PAUL & BRO., Buffalo, N. Y., will publish shortly a book entitled "Voice Culture and Vocal Expression," by Prof. I. N. and Mrs. H. C. Beers. It will be handsomely printed on tinted paper.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish shortly Marion Harland's new story, entitled "With the Best Intentions." The scene of the story is laid at a summer watering-place in the region of the great lakes.

THOMAS NELSON & SONS announce for the fall a number of artistic monotint and color books ranging in price from 15 cents to $1. A number of these are in wreath, harp, and sail shape with appropriate selections from favorite authors.

APPLETON & Co. will publish at once "The Art of Authorship," literary reminiscences, methods of work, and advice to young beginners, being the opinions of many leading authors of the day, English and American, compiled and edited by George Bainton.

STREET & SMITH will publish at once in their Select Series a new story by Charlotte M. Braeme entitled "Weaker Than a Woman." They are now printing the fourth edition of "Denman Thompson's Old Homestead," which has had almost as great a success as the play. Sixty thousand copies have already been sold, and the publishers claim that they can see their way clear to rounding the hundred thousand point before the end of the season.

E. & J. B. YOUNG & Co. announce elsewhere in this issue a large list of handsome books for old and young, suitable for presentation purposes. Nearly all of them are in monochrome or colored. They have also under way an "Ingoldsby Calendar," selected and illustrated by Ernest Maurice Jessop; a "Komical" calendar, with humorous extracts, edited by Howard Paul; and two shaped calendars, "Star" and "Palette," with quotations from great authors, the quotations for Sundays being from the Bible.

RAND, McNALLY & Co. will publish shortly in their Globe Library "Looking Forward," by Richard Michaelis, editor Chicago Freie Presse. This volume, the publishers claim, "is not a book preying on the title of the well-known work of Edward Bellamy, 'Looking Backward,' but a strong, intelligent, and interesting answer by an author who for fourteen years, as editor of a well-known newspaper, has been defending the fundamental principles of American institutions against the communistic and anarchistic agitation in the United States."

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have just ready E. S. Brooks' new story, "A Son of Issachar," describing vividly life and experiences during the closing days of Christ's ministry, and which is, in reality, the romance of the son of the widow of Nain and the daughter of Jairus; "The Sayings of Poor Richard," being the prefaces, proverbs, and poems of Benjamin Franklin, originally printed in "Poor Richard's Almanacs," for 1733-1758, collected and edited by Paul L. Ford (in the Knickerbocker Nugget series; "The Civil War on the Border," a narrative of operations in Missouri, Kansas, Arkansas, and the Indian Territory during 1861-2, based on official reports, by Wiley Britton, formerly Regimental Commissary 6th Kansas Cavalry; "The English Novel in the times of Shakespeare," by J. J. Jusserand, translated from the French by Elizabeth Lee, revised and enlarged by the author; and in the Questions of the Day series—"American Farms, their Condition and Future," by J. R. Elliott, who has studied the problem in all its lights and shadows, and who has produced a work which will no doubt excite inquiry and produce healthful agitation. Next week the Putnams will publish the first volume of "The Writings and Correspondence of John Jay," edited by Prof. H. P. Johnston. The work will be in four octavo volumes uniform with their Franklin, Hamilton, and Washington.

The love-story is here subordinate to a higher purpose, and that is to illustrate the evils and sad effects in social life of religious bigotry. The author contrives to weave into the story in a natural, easy, and most effective way the legitimate effects of undue zeal for one's own creed and church, and of a narrow, bigoted, sectarian spirit and policy among Christians.

It was Lord Beaconsfield who said that the only event in modern history was the French Revolution. The reader who peruses this masterly volume will scarcely be inclined to dispute the statement. The charm of the story itself is heightened by a style of narration at once graceful, picturesque, and forcible—a style of which Mr. McCarthy is an acknowledged master. The causes of the Revolution are traced from the time of Louis XIV., and the first volume closes with the destruction of the Bastille.

a compact country like Great Britain. The relations of the business of the book publisher in the United States to the library system would be very difficult to determine. As far as the Century Company is concerned, we have limited data on the subject; but I think it will be found that American publishers regard the library system as a great ally, and not as a foe to their prosperity. The chief foe to the publication of books which will be bought, prized, and kept by the people—a state of affairs much to be desired—is the lack of stability in the book trade, due to the want of an international copyright law.

There are many towns in the country in which, twenty years ago, there was a local bookseller whose store was the centre of literary culture for the town, and who was, in fact, next to the minister and school-teacher, the most civilizing genius in the community. He was the 'guide, philosopher, and friend' of the settlement. Go into the same town now, and you will probably find that the energies of the bookseller have been largely absorbed in the sale of wall-paper and knick-knacks, while the community has found its purveyor of literature in a half-educated, ignorant newsboy, who keeps all the cheap pirated editions of foreign books and sells them mostly by their titles—a sort of train-boy literature, in fact. Certainly this system is a great foe to the purchase of books. These paper novels are bought and read and thrown away, and the last act is probably the best feature of the transaction. But were they replaced by good American literature, written by Americans and having American ideas, and printed in a substantial form at a cheap price, the bookseller would become again a valuable educational agency in the life of the American people. The passage of an international copyright law will do much to bring about this desideratum.

Mr. Charles Scribner said:

Such institutions, from the very fact that they multiply the number of readers, tend to increase the number of bookbuyers. They add materially to the number of those who wish to own books which they have become acquainted with in the libraries. It follows that every new library that is started is a good thing. I think that those books that have the largest circulation outside the libraries also have the largest circulation in the libraries. Take "Little Lord Fauntleroy," for instance; it has always had a very extensive circulation in the libraries, yet the outside demand from buyers continues undiminished, having doubtless been greatly stimulated by the libraries.

There is no book of our time more widely read than "Uncle Tom's Cabin." You can find it in every household, almost; yet the libraries continue to supply it to their readers as generously as ever, and its popularity has unquestionably been augmented by these institutions.

Perhaps, added Mr. Scribner, in the case of a new book like "Gen. Grant's Memoirs," if the libraries took a large number they might injure the sale a little at the outset; but every library doesn't take a large number. It is quite different in England, where the big libraries are nearly all kept up by subscription. People go to Mudie's and order their novels and other books, returning them when read. After six months the books are thrown back on the market and find their way to the second-hand bookstores. In our own country it is quite different. The free library doesn't want to go into the book business. A small number of the new books are taken, and the effect is to help the sales among the trade.

Clergymen, physicians, and the professors in the leading seminaries are among the best book-buyers, yet almost every book they purchase can be found in the libraries. With the exception, probably, of a certain class of novels, I do not believe any branch of literature suffers from library circulation, as far as the publishers are concerned. We have always regarded the libraries as an aid to our business.

WHY AND HOW A DICTIONARY CATALOG IS MADE.

BY C. A. CUTTER.

Extract from the forthcoming Index to the 2d edition of Cutter's Rules.

WE make a catalog to help people to find books. They usually (1) have in mind an AUTHOR (Shakespeare, Huxley, Emerson) and wish (a) a certain book by him or (b) to know what works by him the library possesses, or (2) they remember the TITLE of some book which they want ("Looking backward," "Pinafore," "Random recollections of courts and society"), or (3) they are interested in a SUBJECT (Evolution, Aurora borealis, Cataloging) and desire some book or books about it, or (4) they seek books in a given KIND OF LITERATURE (a novel, a play, a French book) or to look over and choose from what the library has in those classes.

To help the first class we make a list (in alphabetical order so that it can easily be consulted) of all the authors' whose works are in the library with a list under each of all the books written or supposed to be written by him. And as authors are sometimes known by more than one name we make memoranda under each of the names by which they are known.<sup>1</sup>

To help the second class we insert in the same alphabetical list such of the titles of our books as are likely to be remembered and asked for, arranging them by the first word not an article, with sometimes other references arranged by prominent words in the title.

To help the third class we insert in the same list the names of subjects, with a list under each of all the books—and parts of books, if we can afford the time to do so much—that there are about it in the library. And as subjects also often have several names we insert the synonyms in the list, referring from them to the name which we prefer.

To help the fourth class we insert in the list under the names of those classes of literature that are likely to be asked for lists of the books belonging to them in the library arranged in the order either (a) of the authors or (b) of the titles; or more frequently we make separate catalogs of these classes, that having proved to be the most convenient method.

Catalogs for the fourth class are hardly needed in those libraries in which the books are classified on the shelves and the public have access to them. But if there is no separate list of fiction under the authors and the books are arranged on the shelves by authors it is convenient to have a separate list of titles; and if the books are arranged by titles then it is well to have an author-list. Separate lists of drama and poetry are not so much needed, because those classes are not so much used.

HENRY B. DAWSON: AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY.

EDITED BY A. GROWOLL.

III.

DURING the same year, 1870, four historical papers, which had been printed in The Historical Magazine, were reprinted in book-form, with the same critical care which had distinguished his earlier productions, but not in that elegance of style which had made the others so widely known and coveted. The first of these, a production possessing peculiar merit, as a contribution to the history of the aborigines of America, was entitled "The National Legend of the Chata-Muskokee Tribes. By D. G. Brinton, M.D. Morrisania: 1870." The second copied from the original manuscript, preserved by the Crowninshield family, and loaned for this publication, was entitled "Oration in Commemoration of the Birthday of General Washington, delivered at Salem, Massachusetts, February 22, 1793. By William Bentley, D.D. Morrisania: 1870." The third, like the last-named, copied from the original manuscript, preserved by the Crowninshield family, and loaned for this publication of it, was entitled "Eulogy on the Occasion of the Death of George Washington, delivered at Salem, Massachusetts, January 2, 1800. By William Bentley, D.D. Morrisania: 1870." The fourth was entitled "George Henry Moore, LL.D. A Memoir. By Rev. Howard Crosby, D.D. Morrisania: 1870." A fine steel-plate portrait, engraved especially for the purpose, illustrated that little volume.

The Vermont Historical Society having published, in its volume of "Collections," what purported to be correct copies of the Minutes of those seditious meetings of the inhabitants of the eastern counties of the Colony of New York, which preceded the secession of those insurgents, and their organization of what is now the State of Vermont, Mr. Dawson sharply reviewed that publication, in The Historical Magazine for January, 1871, in the course of which he compared what the Society had thus published with the original manuscript records of the proceedings of those meetings, as written by the Secretary thereof, which were in his own library; pointed out the various errors and mutilations and interpolations therein, of which the Society was the author; and severely denounced the Society's doings. To that review, Hon. Hiland Hall made answer in a pamphlet entitled "Vindication of Volume I. of the Collections of the Vermont Historical Society from the attacks of the New York Historical Magazine. By Hon. Hiland Hall." That "vindication" was scattered broadcast, not only in Vermont, but over the entire country. Very promptly that "Vindication" was reprinted, entire, in The Historical Magazine; but it was accompanied with very elaborate notes, paragraph by paragraph, in which that "Vindication" was fully answered; and, in addition to that annotated reprint, and appended to it, was a letter, over his individual signature, addressed to the Hon. Hiland Hall, personally, in which he reviewed with unusual severity and precision, not only the averments of the Governor, contained in the "Vindication," but the entire early history of Vermont, closing with a vindication of himself from the personalities contained in Governor Hall's pamphlet, and with a personal challenge to meet that venerable and distinguished and pugnacious Vermonter, "on evidence to be adduced," for the honorable discussion, in writing, of the entire subject at issue, promising at the same time to print the same, entire, without limitation as to space, and without expense to his assailant. That reprint and the accompanying notes and letter and challenge and promise were subsequently printed in a small quarto volume of twenty pages, with the title "Vindication of Volume I. of the Collections of the Vermont Historical Society from the attacks of the New York Historical Magazine. By Hon. Hiland Hall. With illustrative Notes and a Letter, in response to Governor Hall, by Henry B. Dawson. Morrisania: 1871;" and in that form they were very widely circulated, especially throughout Vermont.

In The Historical Magazine for February, 1871, he published a very elaborate and exceedingly severe review of Hon. Charles Francis Adams' notable address, delivered before the New York Historical Society, on "American Neutrality." In that review he not only exposed the insufficiency of Mr. Adams' treatment of the general subject, but he traced the policy of "free bottoms making free goods" and the reciprocity of commerce throughout the earlier years of the Republic; the abandonment of that peculiarly American policy, in the interest of Great Britain and against that of France, by President Washington, guided by Alexander Hamilton; and the serious consequences of that abandonment. He expressly maintained that "non-intercourse" and "neutrality" are not equivalent terms, and that to demand and enforce non-intercourse with only one of two belligerents, while an unrestricted intercourse is maintained with the other, is not only not an establishment of "the rights of neutrality," but it is, on the contrary, fully equivalent to a positive disregard and denial of them. That review commanded a wide-spread attention, especially when the pending questions between Great Britain and the United States arising from the recent Civil War were being discussed. Even in Europe, it was particularly noticed—the German Government at Berlin ordering several copies of it through its local representative in New York. The inquiry for it was so extended that it was subsequently reprinted in separate form, in a small quarto of twenty-two closely printed pages, with the title of "A Struggle for Neutrality in America: an Address delivered before the New York Historical Society, at their Sixty-sixth Anniversary, December 13, 1870. By Charles Francis Adams. A Review, by Henry B. Dawson. Morrisania: 1871."

His ill-health becoming more and more severe, his literary labors diminished in a corresponding degree, and, for some years, they were almost entirely discontinued—only one small tract, edited and published by him between 1871 and 1886, having been found, that being "General Meade and the Battle of Gettysburg. An oration delivered before the Society of the Army of the Potomac, at its Reunion at New Haven, Connecticut, May 14, 1873, by Major-General Charles Devens, Junior. Morrisania: 1873." As we have said, the publication of The Historical Magazine became irregular, although its contents were not less valuable than they had been, while its editor was well and vigorous. In April, 1876, the publication was suspended. From that time until 1884, he was almost entirely withdrawn from the world, confined to his house, and, apparently, a permanent invalid. A series of papers, severely reviewing the second edition of Bolton's "History of Westchester County," which appeared in The Westchester Times; several articles on the Early History of American Methodism, which appeared in The Christian Advocate; and an occasional article in the local newspapers are all of his historical productions, published in any form, during that long period, which are now remembered.

Early in 1884, when proposals were issued by a Philadelphia publisher for the publication of a new "History of Westchester County," the inhabitants of the county—especially those of the older families therein, unto whom he had become so widely known, from his family connections, from his many years of residence in the county, and from his known acquaintance with the history of it generally—insisted, notwithstanding his persistent refusal to do so, that before they should subscribe for it, he should approve of the undertaking by participating in the preparation of the proposed work. So great was the pressure, that at length he consented to write a history of the county during the American Revolution, which might be used also for one of the chapters of the proposed history. After more than two years of intense toil, in which his health was still further seriously impaired, the first portion of that undertaking, extending to November, 1776, was published in a fine imperial octavo volume, of two hundred and eighty-eight pages, with the title: "Westchester County, New York, during the American Revolution. By Henry B. Dawson, Corresponding Member of the Massachusetts Historical Society, etc. Morrisania: 1886." This was reprinted, verbatim, as Chapter VI., of "The History of Westchester County," and has been pronounced the most ably-written of all his historical works. It was his last work, although he received before his death proposals from three different publishers, for writing or editing three other works.

It is proper that it should be stated, in this connection, that, like almost all authors, he expended much time and great labor, on more than one occasion, on historical papers possessing great interest, which have not been published. One of these entitled "The Nature and Effect of the Union between the States of the United States," was written in reply to one of Edward Everett's "Mount Vernon Papers," and was the result of great research and careful authorship, every assertion of fact having been fortified by references to the original authorities. It had been completed and needed only to be copied for the press, when Mr. Everett died, and nothing more was done with the manuscript. Another of these was a paper prepared for the Long Island Historical Society, and read before that body. It was entitled "The Battle of Long Island, August 27, 1776," and was prepared with all that care which characterized all his papers, the possibility and causes of the occupation of "The Bedford Pass," by the Royal troops, having been carefully examined and minutely described.

The last historical paper which he read before the New York Historical Society remains, also, unpublished. In that paper on which he expended immense labor in the examination of contemporary authorities, even for the minutest details, he described the city of New York, street by street, including the shipping at the wharves, on the Sunday succeeding the battle of Lexington, into the narrative of which he introduced the messenger bearing the intelligence of that eventful affair with the Royal troops, and described with more than ordinary minuteness and precision, the reception of that intelligence by the revolutionary party in the city. In the preparation of the historical portion of that paper, that relating to the revolutionary doings, on the arrival of the messenger from the eastward, he had been favored by the Right Reverend Bishop De Lancey with the use of Judge Thomas Jones' unpublished history of the events of that memorable day, a manuscript which had been carefully preserved among the family papers of that distinguished colonial family, and which had not been seen by any other modern historian. The paper for that reason, if for no other, attracted much attention from historical students. Many other historical papers, more or less complete, were laid away among his manuscripts, of which but three (which need only slight additions and to be copied for the press) need be mentioned in this sketch. The first of these, entitled "Prehistoric Methodism," examines the history of Methodism in America as it existed and flourished therein, many years before that, when, it is said by standard Methodist historians, it was originally introduced into America by the Emburys, the Hicks, et al. The second of these continues the story of early American Methodism, as it was not seen in the lives and doings of those Emburys and Hicks and their Irish-German associates, during many years after their exodus from Ireland and their advent in New York, giving minute and authentic descriptions of those so-called Methodist immigrants, in their characters, as linen-weavers supported by the charities of the benevolent, and as busy speculators not overnice in their morals; as sturdy loyalists, in their political relations, and quite as sturdy and active in their opposition to the great body of the colonists in the struggle of the latter for Independence. The third of these is devoted to a critical examination of the alleged life and military services of that celebrated early Methodist, "Captain" Webb, and to a portrayal of some of the real facts in his military and civil life in America, which have not been hitherto described, nor even noticed, by the standard historians of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

With the exceptions of the two newspapers and the magazine which he edited, his "Battles," the "Fæderalist," and two or three of his smaller publications, all of his works have been published in small editions (never exceeding two hundred and fifty, and sometimes as few as twenty-six copies generally in the finest style of American typography, and, very frequently, on both large and small papers. Works thus printed, of course, sold at prices always relatively high, generally very high; the circulation of them was confined to collectors, scholars, and the larger libraries; so that his publications, with the exception of "The Battles," "The Fæderalist," and The Historical Magazine, are not often seen, either on the shelves of booksellers or on those of ordinary libraries, public or private.

Of his qualifications for authorship in his chosen fields of labor; his authorial treatment of whatever subjects he undertook to examine and present to the world; and of the results of his literary labors among literary men, we leave others to judge. His reputation as a diligent student and faithful writer of American history, was attested to in the selection of him, without solicitation and in the face of active rivals, by the Regents of the University of the State of New York, to examine and report on the various disputes with the neighboring States, concerning the boundaries of New York, on the lines of New Jersey, Connecticut, and Massachusetts; asso. by the Vestry of Trinity Church, New York, to become the historian of that venerable parish. In neither of these, however, although he devoted a great deal of time and labor to the subjects referred to, for reasons which were satisfactory to himself, did he report the results of his inquiries and of his studies for publication.

He included among his correspondents and friends most of the historians and many of the prominent public men, military and civil, in the country, and was favored, to a remarkable extent, with the respect and confidence of the members of those old families in New York, whose stores of written memorials and unwritten family knowledge and traditions were to him among his most important sources of information, in matters connected particularly with the personal and political history of the country.

As he was not permitted to enjoy the advantages of a collegiate education, he was not noticed by any of the universities or colleges of the country, in their distribution of scholastic honors.* He therefore contented himself with being, as he styled himself, "one of the New York Public School Society's boys." He occupied a seat in the Board of Directors of the New York Lyceum with George Gifford, Cyrus Lawton, Doctor John Griscom, and other prominent professional gentlemen and merchants, until the Lyceum was dissolved, and was also for many years a Director of the Mechanics' Institute of New York. He was the Corresponding Secretary of the Baptist Historical Society during the entire period of the active existence of that body; one of the oldest members of the American Institute, of which he was elected a member in 1841; a member of the New York Historical Society and in the American Geographical and Statistical Society, both in the City of New York; corresponding Member of the Massachusetts, Vermont, Long Island, Oneida, Cayuga, Buffalo, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, Licking Co. (Ohio), Chicago, and Wisconsin Historical Societies; of the New England Historic-Genealogical Society and in the American Statistical Association, both of Boston; of the Worcester Society of Antiquity; and of the Albany Institute; and Honorary Member in the New England Methodist Historical Society, of Boston; of the Belles Lettres Society and the Union Philosophical Society, both of Dickinson College; of the Minnesota Historical Society, the Northwestern Literary and Historical Society, the Trinity Historical Society, and of Hyatt Chapter, Agassiz Association, of New York City.

Memoirs of him, generally containing estimates of his character and standing, as an editor and author, may be found in Duyckinck's "Encyclopædia of American Literature," second edition; in The Historical Magazine for December, 1868, which was edited by John Ward Dean, who wrote the "Memoir;" in Drake's "American Biographical Dictionary;" in C. C. Dawson's "Collection of Family Records of Various Families Bearing the Name Dawson;" in Scharf's "History of Westchester County;" and in the recent editions of Appletons' "Encyclopædia of American Biography."

* In May, 1889, the Board of Trustees of Syracuse University resolved to confer upon him the honorary degree of LL.D., and though the honor came too late—his death occurring May 23—the unsolicited tribute to his earning is none the less valuable.—A. G.

For nearly twenty-nine years he resided near the village of Morrisania, formerly within the county of Westchester, but now far within the corporate limits of the city of New York; and there, with his venerable and beloved wife, a daughter of Abraham D. and Esther [Whelpley] Martling, an old and highly respected family of Tarrytown, and with his youngest surviving daughter, respected by his neighbors and acquaintances, he busied himself in the disposition of his large and valuable work, library and other properties, until he was called home.

ALBERT COLBY.—IN MEMORIAM.

MR. ALBERT COLBY, whose death was briefly noted in our last issue, was born at Fryeburg, Mass., in January, 1827. His education had extended only to the academy in that town; but he was noted for keen scholarship, as a youth, and before he was 21 years of age he had taught a large number of district schools. As an evidence of the changed condition of New England thought, it may be mentioned that, in one of these districts, he was tried for blasphemy before a meeting of the citizens, because he had drawn a sleeping pupil from his desk with the playful words, "Lazarus, come forth!" Perhaps in justice it should be added that he was acquitted.

Having attained his majority, he went to Boston with a few dollars in his pocket, and began his independent career as a book-canvasser, for a firm there, in the manufacturing towns of Massachusetts, New Hampshire, and Maine. Having accumulated a small capital, he launched into the gift-book business on his own account, and for twenty years maintained large stores on Washington St., Boston, as headquarters, while he or his agents maintained branch stores in nearly every important city in the country. He had travelled in almost every State of the Union, and had visited Great Britain. He had written and published several books and many pamphlets, principally of a controversial nature on religious themes. Among the former are "The Ramrod Broken," "Roads to Heaven and Hell," "History of the Bible," and an autobiography entitled "Incidents of My Life."

Just before the outbreak of the rebellion he was in highly prosperous circumstances, living at Jamaica Plain. The war disturbed his business relations, and he lost much at the South and West, through the failure of those indebted to him. In 1860 he transferred his home to Lowell, Mass.; in 1863 he removed his family to Boston, and in 1864 he sold out his book business and retired to Andover, Me., where he fondly hoped to pass a long residue of days in literary leisure and religious activity. His fortune, though depleted, was still ample, and he invested heavily in farms and timber-lands. He leaves a widow, his third wife, formerly Miss Mary Murkland, of Lowell, a son by his first wife—John S. Colby, of Lowell—and a daughter by his second wife, about ten years of age. His only surviving brother is a prominent merchant in Chicago, Ill., and he has a married sister in Fryeburg.

Mr. Colby was a Free Mason of the 32d degree. He was widely known, and by those who could penetrate beneath a somewhat eccentric exterior, he was thoroughly esteemed for a good heart, a fine intelligence, and a lofty courage. His faults were sometimes conspicuous, his virtues often more concealed from view.

BENJAMIN S. TICKNOR'S SILVER WEDDING.

BENJAMIN S. TICKNOR and his wife celebrated their silver wedding on the evening of June 9, at their home in Jamaica Plain. From four till seven their house and grounds were thrown open to their friends. Mr. and Mrs. Ticknor received in the drawing-room, standing beneath an arch in which were woven in white on a green ground the words "1865-1890." They were assisted in receiving by their two daughters, Miss Ticknor and Miss Caroline Ticknor, and by the Misses Anderson. The ushers were Mr. Ticknor's two brothers and his brother-in-law, Mr. Anderson. The rooms were fragrant with masses of flowers, and the Germania gave well-chosen selections from time to time. On the lawn there were numerous chairs and a table, shaded by an immense, gorgeous Japanese parasol, where ices were dispensed. The space between the piazzas and the lawn was bright with gay toilettes and melodious with laughter all the afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Ticknor received very many presents from their friends in Boston and elsewhere, and from Mr. Ticknor's business friends. There were about 300 guests present. We offer post-festum our congratulations, adding our best wishes for future prosperity and happiness.

OBITUARY.

GEORGE EDWARD BRETT.

CLOSE upon the announcement of his retirement from business comes the news of the death on the 11th inst. of George Edward Brett at his residence, No. 337 Second Avenue, New York. Mr. Brett was born in Kent, England, in 1829. As a young man he entered the house of Macmillan & Co., and in 1869 accepted the task of establishing a branch office in America. From the first Mr. Brett met with success, which was helped on largely by his sagacity and indefatigable work. About a year ago his health began to fail, so that the larger part of the work fell upon the shoulders of his son, Mr. George P. Brett, and a few weeks ago he was obliged to give up even nominal leadership. Mr. Brett leaves a wife and six children—one son, who is now the manager of the American branch of Macmillan & Co., and five daughters, all grown up. The funeral took place from his home on the 13th, and the body was laid to rest in Woodlawn.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

GEORGE CARY EGGLESTON has finished in collaboration with Miss Dolores Marbourg a novel called "Juggernaut."

A NEW story by Mr. Bret Harte, entitled "Through the Santa Clara Wheat," will be commenced in Mr. Archibald Grove's periodical, Short Cuts, for June 14.

MRS. A. E. BARR has just finished a novel in which the American Navy takes part, entitled "She Loved a Sailor." She contemplates writing a story which will have socialism as a basis.

RICHARD HENRY STODDARD has in preparation a new volume of verse to be entitled "The Lion's Cub." Besides a poem in blank verse of that name, the volume will contain several shorter pieces. "The Lion's Cub" is a poetical version of an Eastern story, the English original of which is found in Sir William Jones' prose translation of Calidasa's "Sakontal, the Magic Ring," published in London in 1792. Charles Scribner's Sons will publish the volume in the fall.

"SLEUTH" is the pseudonym of Commissioner Harlan P. Halsey, of the Board of Education in Brooklyn. For many years he has written tales for boys about the wonderful doings of his patented hero, Old Sleuth, the detective. Possibly some reader may turn up a cultivated nose at the idea suggested by this sort of writing, but, nevertheless it has made Mr. Halsey a rich man. Only three salaried newspaper editors have a greater income than he has gained by his pen and Old Sleuth. Howells does not make so much; Halsey could buy out Julian Hawthorne, Henry James, and Sidney Luska. His income is, in short, about $15,000 a year, and has been as high during a long period of years. Hence the anxiety of Mr. Munro, the publisher, to protect the magic nickname."—Chatter.

"RIDER HAGGARD has addressed a letter to his American publishers and to the universe. His letter to The Times contains three sentences and three mistakes. His letter to Messrs. Rand, McNally & Co. is as badly written as his novels. But he seems to have a real grievance at the bottom of it. These publishers have, says Mr. Haggard, not only pirated, but edited, his recent novel. The editing seems to consist chiefly of omissions, which may conceivably be improvements. Mr. Haggard, however, does not think so, and he is entitled to be the judge in his own cause. He appeals to Messrs. Rand, McNally & Co. to cancel their edition, and desires every possible publicity for what he calls his letter of repudiation. If they have really published as Mr. Haggard's what is not his, they have committed a grave offence, and still more do the enemies of America scoff at American manners and customs."—G. W. S., in Tribune, June 8.

BUSINESS NOTES.

ALBION MICH.—J. F. Smiley, bookseller, has gone out of business.

BOSTON, MASS.—It may not have been generally known that Mr. Townsend MacCoun, formerly at 740 Broadway, N. Y., has associated himself with Silver, Burdett & Co., of this city. He has taken charge of the new Department of History, which, with the books already in control and others in view, he hopes to make a strong and successful feature.

CINCINNATI, O.—Fred C. Ziegler, the enterprising bookseller and stationer, now at 301 Central Avenue, will remove next month to his new building at 217 Central Avenue, three doors below Sixth Street (Warren's old stand). This is now being remodelled, and when completed will be one of the handsomest book and stationery houses in the city. With the additional room and facilities secured by this move he will be enabled to carry one of the most complete stocks of standard books, stationery, blank-books, etc., in the West.

FARMERSVILLE, TEX.—Seay & Seay, booksellers, have sold out.

FAYETTEVILLE, MO.—C. A. Mulholland, bookseller and stationer, has gone out of business.

GARNETT, KAN.—It is reported that J. W. Bronston & Co., booksellers and stationers, have sold out.

MADISON, WIS.—It is reported that Wm. J. Park & Sons, booksellers, have become insolvent.

NEVADA CITY, CAL.—H. H. Lennie, bookseller and stationer, has sold out.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

FLEMING H. REVELL has just ready two calendars for 1891, entitled "All the Year Through," selections from M. F. Tupper, and "Our Onward Way," with Scripture texts. They retail for 50 cents.

LEE & SHEPARD have in preparation another story by Ingersoll Lockwood, whose "Little Baron Trump" was so successful last year. It will be entitled "Wonderful Deeds and Doings of Little Giant Boab and His Talking Raven Tabib."

T. Y. CROWELL & Co. have in preparation new library editions of Dickens' works, Waverley novels, Thackeray, and other popular authors, printed from large-faced type cast expressly for these editions. This series will make a notable addition to their list of standard publications.

THE UNION SQUARE PUBLISHING COMPANY, 30 Union Sq., New York City, have just issued "The Captain of the Rajah," a sea novel by Howard Patterson, illustrated with nearly one hundred drawings by Warren Sheppard. The story is written by an enthusiastic sailor, and is full of adventure and descriptions of life on the waves.

OTTO ULBRICH, Buffalo, has recently published an interesting book for lovers of nature, entitled "The Blessed Birds," by Elbridge E. Fish. The author is an enthusiastic naturalist and charming writer, who shows the way to many pleasant nooks in fields and woods and "opens the doors to nature's most delightful sanctuaries."

THE PACIFIC PRESS PUBLISHING COMPANY, Oakland, Cal., and New York, will publish shortly "Siberia and the Nihilists—why Kennan went to Siberia." This work will contain William Jackson Armstrong's popular lecture on Siberia and the Nihilists, together with the correspondence between Mr. Armstrong and Mr. Kennan, showing why the latter made his second trip to Siberia. The work will be fully illustrated.

THE BURROWS BROS. COMPANY, Cleveland, O., have become sole selling agents for The Sandusky Crayon Co., which has just completed a new factory with appointments and machinery all that science and ample means can make them. An A1 grade of white and enamelled crayons, for school use, and of carpenter's chalk can be guaranteed, and jobbers' orders can be filled with despatch at surprisingly low prices. All orders, requests for quotations, etc., for the United States and all Europe should be addressed to The Burrows Bros. Company.

A. L. BURT, 56 Beekman St., N. Y., has nearly ready in his excellent series of Burt's Library "The Origin of Species," by Charles Darwin; Kingsley's "Hypatia;" "Past and Present," by Thomas Carlyle, with an introductory note by Robert Thorne; and "The History of Civilization in Europe," by F. P. G. Guizot, translated by William Hazlitt, with a biographical sketch of the author. Each volume will contain a portrait. These volumes are excellently gotten up and fill every requirement of a low-priced book for the people.

DE WOLFE, FISKE & Co. will publish shortly a new and interesting volume of short stories representing the work of twelve authors. It will be entitled "A Round Dozen," and has been compiled and prepared for publication by Frederick E. McKay, of Harvard University. The names of the contributing authors are Clinton Scollard, Clyde Fitch, Oscar Fay Adams, William Murray Graydon, Edward Irenæus Stevenson, Case Bull, Matthew White, Jr., William I. Moffat, Frederic Edward McKay, and Mabel Louise Fuller, Jane G. Austin, and Emma V. Sheridan.

THE SCIENTIFIC PUBLISHING COMPANY, New York, announce as in preparation a "Systematic Mineralogy Based on a Natural Classification," by Dr. T. Sterry Hunt. The same publishers have also acquired the copyright and plates of all Dr. Hunt's works, which comprise "Chemical and Geological Essays," second edition; "Mineral Physiology and Physiography;" and "A New Basis for Chemistry." Dr. Hunt is equally eminent as a geologist and chemist, and his volumes have the breadth which comes of the complete mastery of the two most important provinces of science. His style has the clearness which can only be won by a teacher in love with his subject.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. have made arrangements for the purchase of Messrs. Rivington's business. Mr. Francis Rivington, who since the withdrawal of his brother, last year, has been the sole proprietor, retires from business on July 1, and the entire interests of the oldest firm in the English book trade will thus be transferred to Longman & Co., who will from July 1 supply all books now published by the Rivingtons. The business dates from 1711, when Charles Rivington, succeeding Richard Chiswell, put up the sign of the Bible and Crown, some twelve years or so before Thomas Longman commenced publishing at the Ship and Black Swan, succeeding to the business of William Taylor (known to fame as the publisher of Robinson Crusoe). Both houses have had a connection with America: in 1760 James Rivington came over, and in Philadelphia started the Royal Gazette, which was removed to New York during the Revolution; and all through the last century the dealings of the Longmans with the American colonies formed a large part of their business.

FRANK F. LOVELL was married to Miss Julia Colt at Lockport, N. Y., June 10. Mr. Lovell is a member of the firm of J. W. Lovell Company, and the bride is the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leander Colt, well-known society people of Lockport. After a wedding lunch the bridal party left for Toronto by the Niagara River Line steamer Cibola.

New Books and New Editions.

Five Little Peppers Midway. Sequel to "Five Little Peppers and How They Grew."
By Margaret Sidney. Illustrated by W. L. Taylor. 12mo, $1.50.

Polly, Ben, Davie, Joel, and Phronsie all reappear in the new story, so do the Kings and the Whitneys, so does the "Little Brown House," so does the love that made the Peppers so happy there, so do the acts of self-sacrifice in which this love found vent.

A Real Robinson Crusoe. Edited at the narrator's dictation by J. A. Wilkinson. 12mo, $1.25.

The adventures of the original Robinson Crusoe, marvellous as they are, grow almost tame by the side of these, and yet these really happened. The man lives to whom they happened, and he vouches for the truth of them.

This new "Robinson" was also cast away upon a desert island, but he was not cast away alone. With an axe and his own ingenuity to help him, he carved out not one but six desert-island fortunes.

Hermit Island. By Katharine Lee Bates, author of the $1000 Prize Story, "Rose and Thorn."
Illustrated. 12mo, $1.25.

The book is preëminently a study of girlhood as manifested in two motherless sisters, two barefooted, unsophisticated island maidens. It may not be the fate of any of the boys and girls who read the story to dwell upon a barren island off the coast of Maine, with a hermit, a self-exiled defaulter, and a visionary for company, and a Go-as-you-please academy for a school. But life is life, the same always, the same everywhere, and the life problems of Hermit Island were the life problems of the great world outside.

Starting-Points. Compiled by Abbie Fairfield. 12mo, plain, $1; gilt edges, $1.25. Uniform with "Helps by the Way."

To make a book that is good for boys is one thing, to make one that they will care to read is another. The compiler of this book seems to have achieved both. Her selections are so varied they will suit many tastes and so bright, apt, and practical that the boys will enjoy them, while they get useful hints for manly living.

Go's Goings. By Mrs. S. R. Graham Clark, author of the "Yensie Walton Books." 12mo, $1.25.

The charming heroine, whose "goings" wrought such happy changes in her own life and others', furnishes the text for some very strong teachings on religion and temperance, which will make the book especially valuable for Sunday-school libraries.

The Story of Neesima. By Phebe F. McKeen. With introduction by Philena McKeen.
Illustrations from original photographs. 16mo, 60 cents.

Joseph Neesima, a Japanese boy educated in this country. His story is a marvellous recital, a signal example of what a soul on fire with a desire for truth will do and dare in Christian service.

A Chronicle of Conquest. By Frances C. Sparhawk, author of "Little Polly Blatchley."
12mo, cloth, $1.25.

A story of intense interest; what the Indian is and can be.

"It is well written. Its story is graphically told, and it has a moral as well as a literary interest for every humane and thoughtful reader. It will do good wherever it goes."—John G. Whittier.

The World's Greatest Conflict. By Henry Boynton. 12mo, $1.25.

By the "World's Greatest Conflict" is meant, of course, the world-struggle for popular rights, of which the French Revolution is very naturally considered the type; the volume is a cyclorama of the civilized world of a century ago, in which the central and absorbing piece is Paris in the turmoil of revolution.

The Following are Some of the Opinions of the Trade and Press:

"For the time that we have devoted to its examination, are well pleased with it."—ROBERT CLARKE & Co., Publishers and Booksellers, Cincinnati.

"You deserve well of the world till you die, and after, but the book trade is just as ungrateful as any republic, and although they may sling an occasional laurel wreath out your way, the silver buzzard and the golden eagle 'flieth not so fast nor so far.' There is but one Directory of the Book and Stationery Trade and that is Caspar's."—P. F. VAN EVEREN, New York.

"It is just splendid. The most complete book of the kind we have seen."—J. H. KURZENKABE & SONS, Harrisburg, Pa.

"I am greatly pleased with your Directory. It is the best work of the kind ever issued and deserves a large sale."—NATURAL SCIENCE PUBLISHING Co., New York.

"It seems more complete than anything of the kind I have seen before."—J. B. MARTINDALE, Chicago.

"We like it very much, and we don't know but what it is the best thing of the kind we have ever seen."—P. R. McCARGO & Co., Boston.

"Am very grateful to you for the conscientious care and painstaking effort in preparing so valuable and so complete a work. Be kind enough to enter my name, and mail me all addenda sheets in future, and do not fail to notify me of any new project in this line you may engage in."—Geo. H. COLBY, Bookseller, Lancaster, N. H.

"We have looked it over with great interest and appreciate the fact that it will be of great value to us."—W. O. DAVIS & Co., Booksellers, Cincinnati.

"I think your book a most valuable one and believe it will be better appreciated as it becomes better known."—WILL H. LYONS, Newport, Ky.

"Even a cursory examination of this important directory will convince any one of the thorough manner in which it has been put together and of the value of the completed work. Mr. Caspar has produced a work which, if properly kept up from year to year, will be the standard."—The American Stationer, New York City.

"The Appendix to 'Caspar's Directory of the American Book, News, and Stationery Trades' is a most valuable compilation, exhaustive and complete. The information it contains is absolutely unique and not to be procured from any other source. Hence it is of the first importance to every one in the trades. It is admirably arranged; the references are simple, and being grouped under special heads, makes consultation a matter of little or no difficulty. Such a work is really a great trade textbook, from which the initiated can feel the pulse of the whole book-publishing world. It is a monument of careful, painstaking and accurate labor, and is as reliable as it is extensive. . . . The preparation of this useful volume must have been a work of immense labor and patience, and Mr. Caspar must be congratulated on the success which he has achieved. It is a manual for publishers, booksellers, newsdealers, stationers, and libraries, indispensable to them all."—The American Bookseller.

One volume, large 8vo, 1450 pages, bound in half black cowhide, $12 net.

For the convenience of those who send out Travelling Agents, the publisher has had the Geographical Part bound separately in a handy shape, at $13 for the two volumes. These volumes will not be sold separately.

THE BEST KEY TO EDUCATIONAL BOOKS.

Imprint edition—without publishers' advertisements.

THE
American Educational Catalogue
For 1890 [Twenty-first Year].

THE AMERICAN EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE, whose value to the trade is proved by the fact that it is now in its twenty-first year, claims to be the best practical aid to the dealer in or buyer of school-books.

With its alphabetical arrangement by authors, its separate class-index, carefully sub-classified to an extent not followed by any other catalogue, its completeness and accuracy, it is presented as the best finding-list, the most convenient order-list, and the most satisfactory class-catalogue for school use.

The catalogue has recently been remade, to omit books which have dropped out of use and to include all live books, and it adds all new books (ready or to be ready for the fall) in their proper alphabetical place.

The page giving the key to publishers will not be given in imprint editions unless specially ordered. The Telegraphic Code will not be continued, as the code plan is reported to us to give more trouble than it saves.

This Catalogue is specially planned to be of service for circulation by retailers among schools and private buyers. The imprint edition possesses not only temporary value, but will serve its purpose during the whole year. No imprint edition of less than 100 copies can be supplied. Orders for editions should be sent to us at once.

CASH TERMS.

*With sole imprint of ordering firm, and stitched, per 100 copies, $5.00 ;
per 1000, $40.00.*

There is no extra charge for printing name, business card, etc., on the imprint page; the last page is left blank at the disposal of the dealer, but any copy for that page, advertising special lines or general business, will be set up and printed thereon for $5.00, or $1.00 if plate is sent.

\ * Copy for imprint and shipping directions should accompany the order.*

The regular Educational Number of "THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY" will be supplied at 25 cents per copy, or five for $1.00, postpaid.

READY NEXT WEEK:

The Writings and Correspondence of John Jay, first Chief-Justice of the United States. Edited by Henry P. Johnston, Professor of American History in the College of the City of New York. The set is to be complete in four volumes octavo, uniform in size and style to the editions already issued of the writings of "Hamilton," "Franklin," and "Washington." The edition will, like these, be printed from type, and will be limited to 750 copies. The remaining volumes will follow at intervals of about two months. Price, per volume, $5.00.

The limited editions printed of the "Hamilton" and "Franklin" were disposed of some months before the publication was completed, and the sets have accordingly very largely appreciated in value. A very large proportion of the edition of "Washington," now in course of publication, has been taken up in like manner, and but a small number of sets remain. Intending purchasers of the set of Jay's Writings should, therefore, have their orders placed on file at an early date.

This set is distinctive in one respect from the sets previously issued of the writings of the "Fathers of the Republic." The editor has found it desirable to include in it, in addition to the letters, journals, and decisions of Jay himself, a selection of the more important of the letters from his correspondents, and the work makes, therefore, a very interesting presentation of the noteworthy events and of the questions under discussion during the Revolutionary period and during the first years of the Republic. A large portion of the material included in it is also now for the first time published, and the set will therefore form a contribution of first importance for the history of the country, and for that of the city and State of New York.

NOW READY:

The Sayings of Poor Richard. Being the Prefaces, Proverbs, and Poems of Benjamin Franklin, originally printed in Poor Richard's Almanacs for 1733-1758. (No. XXVIII. in the Knickerbocker Nugget Series.) Collected and edited by PAUL LEICESTER FORD. $1.00.

The Civil War on the Border. By WILEY BRITTON, formerly Regimental Commissary 6th Kansas Cavalry. A Narrative of Operations in Missouri, Kansas, Arkansas, and the Indian Territory during the years 1861-2, based upon the official reports of the Federal commanders Lyon, Sigel, Sturgis, Frémont, Halleck, Curtis, Schofield, Blunt, Herron, and Totten, and of the Confederate commanders McCulloch, Price, Van Dorn, Hindman, Marmaduke, and Shelby. 8vo, with maps and battle-plans, and portraits of Generals Schofield and Lyon. Pp. xvii+465. $3.00.

A Son of Issachar. By E. S. BROOKS. A Romance of the days of Messias. 12mo, pp. vi+293, $1.25.

It is a stirring story of life and experiences during the closing days of Christ's ministry, and is, in reality, the romance of the son of the widow of Nain and the daughter of Jairus. As one of the three prize stories published by the Detroit Free Press, it has already created a profound impression in the columns of so thoroughly secular a journal, and its appearance in book-form will arouse an even wider interest in its dramatic situations, its strong character studies, and its vivid pictures of the communities which witnessed the career and heard the teachings of Christ.

The English Novel in the Time of Shakespeare. By J. J. JUSSERAND, author of "English Way-faring Life." Translated from the French by Elizabeth Lee. Revised and enlarged by the author. 8vo, $6.00.

The work is illustrated by six heliogravures by Dujardin, of Paris, and twenty-one full-page and many other smaller illustrations in the text, executed in fac-simile.

American Farms: Their Condition and Future. By J. R. ELLIOTT. (No. LXII. in the Questions of the Day Series.) 8vo, $1.25.

"He has studied the problem in all its lights and shadows, and has given the public a book which should excite inquiry, and produce healthful agitation. It should be read especially by those who are in public life and by all those who wish to know whither the country is drifting."—Charleston News.

George Eliot's Romola.

OUR magnificently illustrated two-volume holiday edition of this justly celebrated modern masterpiece will be one of the finest productions of its kind ever attempted in the history of American publishing.

- 1st.* It is printed from NEW electrotypes plates.
- 2d.* The photographs from which the illustrations are made were selected on the spot by a member of our firm when in Florence, nearly four years ago.
- 3d.* The photo-etchings, printed in a variety of delicate tints on a fine supercalendered plate paper made expressly for this edition, are made by our own famous process, which so successfully produced the magnificent illustrations for our holiday edition of "Lalla Rookh" and "Endymion."
- 4th.* It is printed in the best possible manner at the celebrated University Press, Cambridge, on a beautiful natural tint laid paper, manufactured for us by the well-known house of Tileston & Hollingsworth.
- 5th.* The binding, a superb example of Italian handiwork, stamped in gold and in colors, will be the height of the binder's art.

There will also be a large-paper édition de luxe, limited to 250 copies, with plates on imperial Japanese paper, bound magnificently in full vellum.

HOLIDAY SEASON, 1890.

E. P. DUTTON &amp; CO.,

Publishers, Booksellers, and Importers,

31 WEST TWENTY-THIRD ST., NEW YORK

THE attention of the Trade is called to the following list of attractive and elegant books, prepared for the coming season. The list embraces an almost endless variety, and is too extensive to be described within the limits of a single advertisement. Nearly all of the books of this list are printed in colors at the celebrated factory of E. NISTER, Nuremberg, which is a sufficient guarantee of the quality of the work, and they will be offered at the prices of our previous lines, printed in monotint only. The great favor with which our Books and Booklets have been received in the past, both by dealers and the public, has enabled us to produce them in editions sufficiently large to allow of the very finest workmanship, yet at the lowest prices. Our large experience in the retail trade in New York City enables us to use careful judgment in what is pleasing to the public, and we have in the past been most successful in selling to dealers a line of books that retail buyers would take most readily.

CALENDARS FOR 1891.

The growing demand for Calendars, which so many retail dealers last season found to sell better than Christmas cards, and at handsome profits, has led us into this new line for Christmas Gifts, and we have 36 different Calendars, at prices from 5 cents to $1.50. Nothing in any way approaching such a line has ever before been attempted. The attention of the Book and Stationery Trade is called to this, which will prove the money-making line of the year. Sample-Books are now ready.

Through the Year. A fine art calendar for 1891. Beautifully lithographed and printed in Nister's finest style ; containing 12 full-sized illustrations by our best artists, each appropriate to the season, and containing the calendar for the month, the page for each month made to turn over without injury, thus leaving the calendar intact at the end of the year, in a neat box.....$1.00 A neat and pretty Brass Stand for this Calendar.. 1.25	Mizpah. Scriptural selections.....$0.5 Brass Stand for each of the above, $1.00.
Smaller Calendar in Same Style.	Fan Calendar. In the shape of a fan, with 12 floral panels and appropriate poems on the back.$0.50
The Circling Year. With selections from Shakespeare .....$0.50 Brass Stand..... 1.00	Flat Calendars. { Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 4, each .. 15 { Nos. 5, 6, 7, and 8, " .. 20 These are all pictorial calendars.
	The Shakespearian Year. A block Shakspeare calendar. The cardboard represents Shakespeare's house .....$0.50
	Times and Seasons. A monthly calendar, with colored plates, all of devotional subjects; a very attractive calendar .....$1.50 Brass Stand for the above, $1.25.

In addition to these leading Calendars we have a large number of different styles and shapes, all of which are represented in our sample-book. These calendars are offered at prices lower than the same grade of Christmas cards. Our travellers will be early on the road with full line of samples and will call on dealers in different sections as rapidly as possible. We shall always be pleased to see the Trade at our sample-room in New York, where a full line will be on exhibition.

THE BEST KEY TO EDUCATIONAL BOOKS.

Imprint edition—without publishers' advertisements.

THE
American Educational Catalogue

For 1890 [Twenty-first Year].

THE AMERICAN EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE, whose value to the trade is proved by the fact that it is now in its twenty-first year, claims to be the best practical aid to the dealer in or buyer of school-books.

With its alphabetical arrangement by authors, its separate class-index, carefully sub-classified to an extent not followed by any other catalogue, its completeness and accuracy, it is presented as the best finding-list, the most convenient order-list, and the most satisfactory class-catalogue for school use.

The catalogue has recently been remade, to omit books which have dropped out of use and to include all live books, and it adds all new books (ready or to be ready for the fall) in their proper alphabetical place.

The page giving the key to publishers will not be given in imprint editions unless specially ordered. The Telegraphic Code will not be continued, as the code plan is reported to us to give more trouble than it saves.

This Catalogue is specially planned to be of service for circulation by retailers among schools and private buyers. The imprint edition possesses not only temporary value, but will serve its purpose during the whole year. No imprint edition of less than 100 copies can be supplied. Orders for editions should be sent to us at once.

CASH TERMS.

*With sole imprint of ordering firm, and stitched, per 100 copies, $5.00;
per 1000, $40.00.*

There is no extra charge for printing name, business card, etc., on the imprint page; the last page is left blank at the disposal of the dealer, but any copy for that page, advertising special lines or general business, will be set up and printed thereon for $5.00, or $1.00 if plate is sent.

\.* Copy for imprint and shipping directions should accompany the order.*

The regular Educational Number of "THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY" will be supplied at 25 cents per copy, or five for $1.00, postpaid.

NOTES IN SEASON.

GINN & Co. will publish at once a revised edition of Preble and Parker's "Handbook on Latin Writing." They have in preparation "Business Book-Keeping," a manual of modern methods in recording business transactions, by George E. Gay, Principal of the High School, Malden, Mass.

GEBBIE & Co., Philadelphia, have nearly ready a valuable and handsome book by Madame Dieulafoy, entitled "At Susa." It will give a graphic account of the famous excavations made at "Susa," and also a narrative of travel through Western Persia made by the Dieulafoy expeditions. The volume is very fully illustrated with fine engravings from drawings by some of the principal French artists of to-day, and altogether should prove a most interesting book.

THE LEW VANDERPOOL PUBLISHING Co., N. Y., announce that they have bought the right to A. C. Wheeler's (Nym Crinkle) first novel, "The Toltec Cup," for $10,000. All of the action and incidents of this story are laid in and about New York City; it having been Mr. Wheeler's purpose to ascertain whether an intensely dramatic and thrilling romance could not be made out of material more closely adjacent to the average reader than the solar system, or the heart of Africa. The book will be issued about the 25th of June.

BROMFIELD & Co. will publish in August, in two volumes, the "Life of Jesus Christ," by Henry Ward Beecher. The first volume of this work, it will be remembered, was published years ago by Ford & Co. Two-thirds of the second volume were written just previous to Mr. Beecher's death. Messrs. Bromfield & Co., who purchased from the original publishers the plates of the first volumes, have completed the work by compiling the material from Mr. Beecher's later sermons preached along the line of this subject. The work will be handsomely illustrated, including a fine lithographic reproduction of Munkacsy's "Christ Before Pilate." The second volume will be sold separately. Bromfield & Co. have also obtained control of the "Life of Henry Ward Beecher" formerly published by Charles L. Webster & Co.

THE JOHN W. LOVELL Co. have just ready Whistler's book, the full title of which is: "The Gentle Art of Making Enemies as Pleasingly Exemplified in Many Instances Wherein the Serious Ones of this Earth Carefully Exasperated have been Prettily Spurred on to Unseemliness and Indiscretion while Overcome by an Undue Sense of Right." The contents include most of the criticisms upon the author's works of art, with the court records of Whistler's suit against Ruskin for libel, the Ten O'clock Lectures, and some very spirited correspondence between the author and a few of his enemies. The broad margins of the pages Whistler has utilized for what he calls "Reflections" upon the material of the pages, and in this way he gets in some very sharp thrusts. The book is dedicated "To the rare few who early in life have rid themselves of the friendship of the many." They announce in press by special arrangement with the author "Notes from the Record" and "The Word and the Will," two new books by James Payn.

THE HISTORICAL PRINTING CLUB, 97 Clark St., Brooklyn, N. Y., have in press a "Revolutionary Orderly Book of General William Heath," edited by Worthington Chauncey Ford, and "The Harrisburg Convention of 1788," a study in popular government, by Paul Leicester Ford. They have begun a series entitled Winnowings in American History, to consist of original publications from MSS., reprints of rare tracts, and selections from old newspapers. Four numbers are in press, being "An Account of a Plan for Civilizing the North American Indians, proposed in the eighteenth century by John Daniel Hammerer," printed from the only known copy; "Report on the Management of Estates Sequestered in South Carolina, 1780-82, by John Cruden;" "A Short History and Description of Fort Niagara, Written by an English Prisoner, 1758;" and "Proceedings of a Council of War Held at Burke Jail, Georgia, 1779, with a narrative of the subsequent proceedings, and the Proclamation issued by Col. John Ingram." Only 250 copies of each are printed.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; in the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederic; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); (Q. 4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tl. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq. all nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Bainton, G.; comp. The art of authorship; literary reminiscences, methods of work, and advice to young beginners; personally contributed by leading authors of the day. N. Y., Appleton, 1890. 6+355 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The opinions of a number of prominent authors are gathered together and grouped under the following titles: Good writing—is it a gift or an art? Methods—conscious and unconscious; The influence of reading on literary style; The strength of simplicity; A protest against obscurity; Truthfulness to one's self; Index to contributing authors.

Balzac, Honoré de. Père Goriot; from the French by Mrs. F. M. Dey. N. Y. and Chic., Rand, McNally & Co., 1890. c. tr. '86. 2-212 p. D. (The Rialto ser., no. 21.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

Braeme, Charlotte M., ["Bertha M. Clay," pseud.] Weaker than a woman. N. Y., Street & Smith, [1890.] 4-272 p. 1 il. D. (The select ser., no. 45.) pap., 25 c.

Britton, Wiley. The civil war on the border, 1861-62. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1890. c. 15+465 p. por., map and battle plans, O. cl., $3.

A narrative of operations in Missouri, Kansas, Arkansas, and the Indian Territory during the years 1861-2, based upon the official reports of the Federal commanders Lyon, Sigel, Sturgis, Frémont, Halleck, Curtis, Schofield, Blunt, Herron, and Totten, and of the Confederate commanders McCulloch, Price, Van Dorn, Hindman, Marmaduke, and Shelby.

Brooks, Elbridge S. A son of Issachar: a romance of the days of Messiah. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1890. c. 7+293 p. D. cl., $1.25.

This story was first published in the Detroit Free Press as one of the three prize stories of the year 1889. The Son of Issachar is the son of the widow of Nain, who becomes a follower of the Rabbi Jeshua after he has been raised from the dead, and who after the crucifixion is also identified with the first martyr, St. Stephen. His life is described as that of "a brave yet uncertain, a desiring yet wavering soul." Herod's court, a fight with lions, and many customs of the East in the time of Christ are elaborately described. An element of romance enlivens the darker scenes. A plea is made for the motives of Judas Iscariot in his betrayal, founded upon his self-destruction, his sin and repentance being contrasted with the cowardice and after-commendation of Peter.

Brown, J. Mason. The political beginnings of Kentucky: a narrative of public events bearing on the history of that State up to the time of its admission into the American Union. Louisville, Ky., J. P. Morton & Co., 1889. c. '80. 3-260 p. por. Q. (Filson Club publications, no. 6.) pap., $2.50.

This work of Colonel Brown will vary the commonly received political history in Kentucky in more than one important direction. The author has gone to the bottom of what were known as Spanish, French, and British intrigues in the West, and righted the wrongs inflicted upon some of our best and wisest pioneers. To accomplish this desirable end he not only appealed to original authorities (printed and ms.) in this country, but secured from foreign archives copies of the official despatches sent by agents to their governments touching these transactions. The despatches of Dorchester, Miro, and Gardoqui have been especially laid under contribution.

*Campbell, W. J. W. J. Campbell's chronological list of the practising members of the Philadelphia bar, 2d ed., April 15, 1890. With an appendix cont. the bar of Camden, N. J. [Phil.] D. J. Gallagher & Co., pr., [1890.] c. 48 p. O. pap., 25 c.

*Cobbey, J. E. A practical treatise on the law of replevin as administered by the courts of the United States; arr. in three parts to facilitate ready reference. Beatrice, Neb., J. E. Cobbey, [1890.] c. 50+933 p. O. shp., $6.

Coppée, François. The days of my youth; from the French. N. Y., Belford Co., [1890.] c. 297 p. D. (The Belford American novel ser., v. 2, no. 3.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

Although the hero Amédée Violette is an imaginary person, Coppée admits that he has put some of his own life in his adventures, he "experienced life," he says, "as I experienced it, when I was a child and a young man." The scene is laid in Paris some thirty years ago. The hero loses his mother at an early age through consumption. While his subsequent life is full of ups and downs, it has as much brightness as shade in it. Literary and dramatic life are well introduced.

*Craig, Ja. A. Hebrew word manual, etymologically arranged. Cin., Rob. Clarke & Co., 1890. 120 p. 12°, cl., net, $1.

*Davis, Jefferson. A short history of the Confederate States of America. N. Y., Belford Co., 1890. 4°, subs., cl., $2.50; shp., $3.50; hf. mor., $4; full mor., $5.50.

*Davis, Mrs. Jefferson. Jefferson Davis, Ex-President of the Confederate States: a memoir, by his wife. N. Y., Belford Co., 1890. il. 8°, subs., cl., $5; $6.50; hf. mor., $7.50.

*Eben, C. Theo. Eben's sprachmeister: handbuch der englischen sprache für die schul und selbstunterricht. N. Y., S. Zickel, 1890. 432 p. 8°, hf. roan, $1.75.

Encyclopædia Britannica: a dictionary of art, sciences, and general literature. 9th ed. (American reprint.) V. 25. General analytical and topical Index; ed. by D. O. Kellogg. Phil., J. M. Stoddard Co., 1890. c. 991 p. map and il. Q. subs., cl., $5; shp., $6.

Franklin, B. The sayings of poor Richard; the prefaces, proverbs, and poems of Benjamin Franklin; originally printed in Poor Richard's almanacs for 1733-1758; collected and ed. by Paul Leicester Ford. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1890. 6+288 p. por. T. (Knickerbocker nuggets, no. 27.) pap., $1.

Fraser, Alex. Campbell. Locke. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1890. 8+230 p. por. S. (Philosophical classics.) cl., $1.25.

Besides an account of Locke's life, an exposition is given of his philosophy. An appendix gives his works in chronological order of publication.

*In this list, the titles generally are verbatim transcriptions (according to the rule of the American Library Association) from books received. Books not received are indicated by a prefixed asterisk and this office cannot be held responsible for the correctness of their record.

Gautier, Théophile. Juancho: the bull-fighter; from the French, by Mrs. B. Lewis. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1890.] c. tr. 3+208 p. D. (Cassell's sunshine ser., no 49.) pap., 50 c.

A brilliant description of a bull-fight at Madrid opens the story. The characters all meet here—the young bull-fighter who loves a beautiful Spanish girl, the Spanish girl and her duenna, and a rich, educated young Spaniard who sees the Spanish girl for the first time and becomes the rival of the bull-fighter. The story is full of incident and rich in color.

Gerhard, W: Paul. The disposal of household wastes. N. Y., D. Van Nostrand Co., 1890. c. 195 p. T. (Van Nostrand's science ser., no. 97.) bds., 50 c.

A discussion of the best methods of treatment of the sewage of farm-houses, isolated country houses, suburban dwellings, houses in villages and smaller towns, and of larger institutions, such as hospitals, asylums, hotels, prisons, colleges, etc., and of the modes of removal and disposal of garbage, ashes, and other solid house refuse.

Guimps, Roger de. Pestalozzi, his life and work; authorized tr. from the 2d French ed., by J. Russell, with an introd., by Rev. R. H. Quick. N. Y., Appleton, 1890. c. 18+438 p. D. (The international educ. ser., no. 14.) cl., $1.50.

Chapters on: Pestalozzi the child, the student, the agriculturist, the father, the philanthropist, the writer, etc.; also on his last years and last writings, his religion, philosophy, and elementary method, with personal recollections of the author. There is a list of Pestalozzi's works, and a list of books to consult on Pestalozzi.

*Guinness, Mrs. H. Grattan. The new world of Central Africa; with a history of the first Christian mission on the Congo. N. Y. and Chic., Fleming H. Revell, 1890. 535 p., maps, por. and il., 12mo. cl., $2.

James, H: The tragic muse. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1890. c. 2 v., 2+422; 2+423-882 p. D. cl., $2.50.

The central figures of the story are an English family of rank who have come to Paris for the annual opening of the Salon. The scene opens at the Salon, and the reader through many long conversations learns to know Lady Agnes Dormer, her two daughters Grace and Bridget, her son Nicholas, and the cousins of the Dormers, Julia and Peter Sherringham. On the same scene are introduced Mrs. Rooth and her daughter Miriam, whose first object in life is to become a great tragedienne, and a young literary man, Gabriel Nash. Around these people the story revolves, being chiefly told through conversations. There are two love affairs, "Nick" Dormer's electioneering experience in an English borough, in which his cousin Julia is his chief assistant, and Miriam Rooth's stage life, besides many minor incidents.

Jones, J: P. Money: speech of Hon. J: P. Jones, of Nevada, on the free coinage of silver, in the United States Senate, May 12 and 13, 1890. Wash., D. C., [Government Printing Office,] 1890. 2-116 p. O. pap.

Rathborne, St. G: Doctor Jack: a novel. N. Y., Street & Smith, [1890.] c. 5-299 p. 1 il. D. (Primrose ser., no. 3.) pap., 25 c.

A story of love and adventure in Spain, France, and the Orient. The characters are chiefly Americans.

Seymour, M. F. Trovata. N. Y. and Chic., Rand, McNally & Co., 1890. 4-208 p. D. (Globe lib., v. 1, no. 124.) pap., 25 c.

The heroine is a young girl brought up by an aunt. She has always believed her parents dead until her aunt's death, when she discovers that her mother is alive but had been disowned by her father's family because she had become a Catholic. The story tells of the heroine finding her mother, and of her own conversion to Catholicity. An English story.

*Southworth, E. W., and Jones, Dwight Arven. A treatise on the New York manufacturing corporation act of 1848, and business corporation act of 1875, together with said acts, as amended, extended, and modified to April, 1890; with forms and by-laws. 2d ed. N. Y., Baker,

Mr. Thomas Stevens, the author of "Around the world on a bicycle," was chosen by the New York World to lead an expedition sent out by them in 1888 to find Stanley. Although he did not find Stanley, he penetrated far into the heart of Africa, and had innumerable exciting and novel adventures. This volume gives them in detail.

Talmage, T. De Witt, D.D. The key-note of the temperance reform. N. Y., The National Temp. Soc. and Pub. House, 1890. 2-16 p. D. pap., 10 c.

Tincker, Mary Agnes. The jewel in the lotos: a novel. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1890. c. '83. 2-338 p. D. (Lippincott's ser. of select novels, no. 110.) pap., 50 c.

Tolstoi, Count Leo. The Kreutzer sonata. Chic., Sergel & Co., 79 Dearborn St., [1890.] c.

4-170 p. D. (Sergel's international lib., no. 1.) pap., 50 c.

Way (The) to do magic: a complete exposé of the so-called black art. N. Y., Street & Smith, [1890.] 2-60 p. S. (S. & S. manual lib., no. 3.) pad., 10 c.

*Weekly notes of cases argued and determined in the supreme court of Penn., the county courts of Phil., and the U. S. district and circuit courts for the eastern district of Penn., by members of the bar. V. 25. Dec., 1889, to April, 1890. Phil., Kay & Bro., 1890. c. 15+612 p. O. shp., $5.

Weyman, Stanley J. The house of the wolf: a romance. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1890. 5+278 p. D. cl., $1.25.

A modern English version of a curious French memoir or fragment of autobiography, apparently written about the year 1620 by Anne, Vicomte de Caylus. While the story is in a measure historical its human interest is its chief attraction. It tells a graphic tale of life in the 16th and 17th centuries.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JUNE 21, 1890.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

REVERENCE FOR LITERATURE AND ART.

THIS is the age of ambition. The countersign to commercial circles is push, energy, snap—words adapted to the occasion. The manner of accumulating wealth by years of industry, frugality and prudence, is no longer popular as lacking that element of risk which is gradually absorbing mercantile interests. Success must not be courted, but captured. Fortunes must be made quickly or not at all. Hesitancy or prolonged consideration of questions involving large interests is fatal to success. Competition, which should be the life of trade, is making the shrewd rich and the prudent poor. Combinations in trade concentrating capital are enriching the rich and wiping out the moderate. Progression is the trademark of the times. Those who have made fortunes in haste must be keen to keep them, and those struggling for a legitimate competence can only with difficulty gain recognition. There is no time to rest; to falter is to surrender.

While this spirit of unsatisfied ambition has brought compensation and developed an activity not to be ignored, it has nevertheless been at the expense of certain elements of character which should not be abused or uncultivated. Dignity is very often forgotten. There are no letters in the commercial alphabet that will spell courtesy. Each for himself—business is business, and those who cannot keep up with the race must fall behind.

Two prominent illustrations of this "business spirit" have lately been brought before the public. A recent contribution to literature in the department of fiction gained unusual recognition. Its success was established from inception. The book in question dealt with some of the most sacred and absorbing problems of the day, and after passing the critics picket guard was welcomed into the ranks of the general public. Its sale was unprecedented. Written for a purpose with a strong and scholarly hand it found favor and approbation, and no book within the last fifteen years had met with such unqualified success. This was the merchant's opportunity, and that book, which had made for itself a place in literature, was without hesitancy offered as a premium to the purchaser of a cake of soap. The book is dead—the soap is still alive—the merchant only waiting for another golden success in literature to boom his business.

Art offers a similar illustration. The "Angelus," which has created such public interest, and just closed a successful exhibition, has not escaped the merchant's attention. It was but a few days ago, standing in a grocery store, we were attracted by a cheap reproduction of this wonderful picture, encased in an elaborate gilt frame. Underneath the picture was a short inscription as to its merit and the wonderful price it had commanded, while in large bold letters the purchaser of a certain proprietary article was offered this elegant reproduction as a recognition of patronage.

These are but two of very many illustrations of business shrewdness and enterprise. Nothing that has met with public favor or success escapes the merchant's eye if he can in any way use it to advantage in advertising his business. Reverence and dignity are not conditions of trade. One of the most successful abettors to this spirit of irreverence and lack of dignity is the combination of certain trades. It is quite as incongruous for an art dealer to run a meat-shop in conjunction with his business as a linen-draper and haberdasher to run a book-store. You cannot sell books together with a line of corsets and gloves and do justice to your patrons. It is this "bazaar spirit" which has placed an undeserved indignity upon literature. Lower the tone of the individual and you lessen the dignity of national character.

If literature and art are to be treated as common merchandise, without any interest beyond what they will bring a pound or their value measured by a yard-stick, it will make commonplace the manners of our people and their intelligence restricted to the counting-room.

The defence of these "shrewd business-men" who advertise their wares in conjunction with literature and art will be that a taste has been cultivated for these things among a certain class that otherwise would be lacking—but if the literature of a home is to be dependent upon the purchase of a toilet soap, and the cultivation of art confined to the patronage of a proprietary article, the result will be a lack of dignity and respect for both.

Literature and art are the custodians of manners and morals, and the home, the individual, the educational interests both private and public will suffer just so far as a proper respect and reverence are lacking. The present flippant attitude of business towards literature and art is provoking that criticism and disapprobation which will finally redeem them, and will win back a dignity for literature and a reverence for art which will never again be lacking and be all the firmer and better established by the struggle through which they have passed.

ANOTHER misunderstanding seems to have arisen between two publishing houses as to which had the first right in the work of an English author. Last week Harper & Brothers and the John W. Lovell Co. both announced editions of James Payn's new novel, "The Burnt Million," Lovell claiming to have the only authorized edition. Messrs. Harper & Brothers, who have published Mr. Payn's novels heretofore and who are reported to have paid him over $10,000, say that their relations with him have undergone no change and that they have already sent him money for "The Burnt Million." A member of the firm of John W. Lovell Co. claims that their arrangement was with Mr. Payn direct; that they had a contract with him to publish his books in America, and that other publishers cannot print them in the future unless they do so without permission. We trust Mr. Payn will not delay his explanation of the matter.

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT.

W. E. SIMONDS DEFENDS THE INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT LAW.

ON June 14 the first exhaustive report on the international copyright bill was submitted to the House by Congressman W. E. Simonds, of Connecticut, the Chairman of the House Committee on Patents. The report sets forth that the intelligent voice of the whole country asks for the passage of a measure substantially the same as this, and authors, publishers, printers, music composers, colleges, educators, librarians, newspapers, and magazines join in the prayer. Clay and Webster favored such a thing in the past. Gladstone, Harrison, Cleveland, and Cardinal Gibbons favor it to-day. Our term of copyright is shorter than that sanctioned by the verdict of the civilized world. Substantially all the world, except Great Britain and the United States, treat foreigner and citizen alike in the matter of copyright. Great Britain permits copyright to foreigners on the same basis as citizens if the foreigner be at the time of publication on British soil; the Queen is empowered by law to establish reciprocity with us, if we will permit it, and we stand alone in rejecting and refusing overtures. A hundred international agreements have been signed; the name of the United States is on none of them.

Regarding the effect of international copyright upon American readers, the report says:

"The proposition that the story-reading public of America comprises many millions of people, and that the major part are youth, is easy of acceptance. That they are having offered to them an exhaustless stream of English stories, written by authors of no special repute, is equally plain. That these stories deal with kings and queens, orders of nobility, an established church, a standing army, monarchical institutions generally, and with English manners, scenes, customs, and social usages, is almost a matter of necessity. Probably a majority of these stories deal with some tale of seduction.

"The good stories of England were long since exhausted by the American reprinters, and, as a consequence, we are having poured out upon us an unstinted flood of printed stuff, often nasty, still oftener weak and silly, and always foreign in tone, sentiment, and description. In the aggregate these stories constitute a powerful means of undesirable education, as well as of vitiation of American taste; and this force is exerted more largely than otherwise upon minds and morals which are in the plastic and formative stage. It is entirely true that many of the cheap American reprints are not stories, and that many of the reprinted English stories are good stories, but these are an exception to the general rule, and such exceptions constitute a small percentage of the whole; the healthy part bears about the same ratio to the unhealthy that the nutritive element in a glass of strong beer bears to the baleful part. . . . Another of the ways in which our present practice hinders the "progress of science and the useful arts" in the United States is by barring out the really useful literature of England, a thoroughly healthy mental and moral pabulum. As regards works on law, theology, medicine, governmental science, political economy, physical science, art, biography, history, travel, language, education, and the like. England is probably more prolific in eminently useful books, in proportion to her population, than any other country in the world. Unlike many of her stories, these have no special tone which is foreign to American institutions. It would be a great practical blessing for the American people if the great mass of these publications were promptly reproduced in America. They are, however, precisely the kind of books which will never be reprinted here, except to a very small extent, without the protection of copyright. Almost every such work, separately considered, appeals to a limited class only. The republication of one of them involves, as a rule, a very considerable outlay. If reprinted at all, it must be in the shape of books well printed on good paper, well bound and fit for preservation in a library. No publisher dare undertake the necessary outlay—the publication of a book always being an experiment, financially—unless he is sure he can have the whole limited field to himself. One effect which may confidently be expected from the passage of such a bill as is now proposed is the republication here of the great volume of English books of the class now under discussion, which are now sealed books to the great mass of the American people."

Another way in which the present practice hinders the "progress of science and the useful arts" in the United States, Congressman Simonds argues, is by preventing the cheapening of the price of good and desirable books. International copyright between Great Britain and the United States will open the American book market to English authors and English publishers. This can mean nothing less than the addition of an enormous mass of competition to the existing competition in American book publishing. This added competition must, in the nature of things, cheapen the price of all books, those of American origin and those of English origin alike. It is the sure effect of competition to reduce prices. Mr. Simonds quotes an imposing list of authors, publishers, newspapers, magazines, printers, colleges, and societies who favor the bill.

FANNIE BEAN VS. G. W. CARLETON & CO.

THE suit of Miss Fannie Bean against G. W. Carleton & Co. for $2500 for breach of contract was decided in favor of the plaintiff, in the Supreme Court, June 18, the jury awarding her $1440. Miss Bean claimed that in December, 1877, she took to Mr. G. W. Carleton the manuscript of a novel entitled "Dr. Mortimer's Patient." He promised to publish it, send 100 copies to the newspapers, and advertise the book extensively. Miss Bean was to give Mr. Carleton $900 for publishing the book, and that amount was to be paid back to her after the first 2000 copies had been sold. The book was to come out on January 20, 1878, but it did not make its appearance until February 14. It was not advertised, the plaintiff claimed, nor was it placed on sale, except in Mr. Carleton's place. There were no copies sent to the newspapers. Mr. Carleton then told her that he did not intend to put the book on sale except to cash purchasers at his own place of business. As Miss Bean could not get an account from her publishers she determined to bring suit. At the trial of the case before Judge Barrett in Part I. of the Supreme Court, held in New York, June 17, John W. Lovell, O. M. Dunham of Cassell & Co., and David S. Holmes testified as to what is known in the trade as "putting a book on the market," and coincided in the opinion that Miss Bean's book was not properly handled.

Justice Barrett denied a motion to dismiss the complaint, and the evidence for the defence was confined to reading the testimony of George W. Carleton, given on the previous trial, and the examination of George W. Dillingham, who was, in 1877, when the contract with Miss Bean was made, a member of the firm of George W. Carleton & Co. Mr. Carleton's testimony was a denial that there were any stipulations made other than those expressed in the written contract. Mr. Dillingham testified that every effort was made to sell the book, but a list made up from the firm's books of the number of copies of Miss Bean's book sent out showed that Louisville, Detroit, and other large cities each received but one copy. Justice Barrett charged that if the jury believed Miss Bean's statement that Carleton agreed to print 2000 copies and to make every effort to sell the book and failed to do so, she was entitled to recover the $900 she paid, with interest from the date of the breach of contract. The jury was instructed to bring in a sealed verdict, which it did on the 18th inst. as noted above. Without counting interest, if this verdict be allowed to stand, the authoress will therefore receive only $540 as compensation for her work, owing to her publishers' alleged failure to live up to their part of the contract with her.

E. P. DUTTON & CO.'S HOLIDAY PREPARATIONS.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. have begun far ahead of former years in point of time, and have planned for a variety of publications for the gift season of which the bare names convey no inspiring idea, but an inspection of their samples will convince the most pessimistic and often "stuck" dealer that these things must please his most exacting customers.

From the rich fine art book to the little five-cent novelty almost all this infinite variety of temptation has been planned in America and executed at the celebrated factory of E. Nister, Nuremberg, two facts which are guarantees of fresh, live ideas and almost perfect workmanship. In illustrated gift-books the most important are "Golden Treasury of Art and Song," containing thirty-four pages of type and eighteen pages of monotint illustration, bound in every imaginable style of cloth, and also in Japanese calf; "Familiar London," twelve views of the best-known sites of London in full color; "Shakespeare's Home;" "John Bunyan's Home;" "The Beautiful World," etc., all as handsome as good taste and abundant means can make them. A special feature introduced into the art-books this year is the binding of the plates with linen back bands, which makes every book lie open like a portfolio, and adds greatly to the artistic appearance of the pages. A book specially suitable as a gift is "Time's Footsteps," a family record book with beautifully decorated leaves in which all the events that make family history are to be inscribed by the owner. "A Christmas Carol," by Phillips Brooks, and Dr. Sears' well-loved hymn, "It Came upon the Midnight Clear," are made into charming booklets with six color pages and ten pages of decorated type. The authors bear names to conjure with, and relying upon a vast demand, the artists have been allowed to do their part most generously. A 50 c. line of souvenirs, birthday-books and text-books is exquisitely gotten up, and 25 c. and 15 c. lines of shape booklets contain a bewildering variety of ideas and pictures in shapes of flowers, leaves, shells, and animals of every kind, among which a sedate old owl, a weary looking camel, a rationalistic chicken, and many more are quite irresistible to any one of any age blessed with humor and human sympathy. Miss Bennett has prepared a companion to her great successes, "When All Is Young" and "All Around the Clock," in "Old Father Time," which is fully up to her best work in the past.

There are innumerable 5 c. shape booklets to be used as school rewards, Sunday-school testimonials, or in any other well-known way to encourage little children.

This year the house has made a special feature of calendars and shows no less than forty entirely new designs for these popular souvenirs that are gradually crowding out the old Christmas card. They range in price from 5 c. to $1.50. Many of them are also furnished with brass stands. On these calendars some of Nister's finest work is seen. We briefly mention "Through the Year," "The Shakespearian Year," "The Circling Year," "The Fan Calendar," and "Times and Seasons" as specially notable.

OBITUARY.

WILLIAM RAE BURN JENKINS.

It is with extreme regret that we note the death of the young and enterprising publisher and bookseller, William R. Jenkins, of 851 and 853 Sixth Avenue, New York, on June 16. He was born in New York City in 1848, and after passing through the common schools he obtained a position in the office of the New York Herald. Working his way up into the editorial staff, he in time became the dramatic critic of the Evening Telegram, which position he held for nine years. About twelve years ago he opened a modest retail bookstore on Sixth Avenue. By hard work and a close study of the trade he succeeded in developing his store until in time it became not only the largest bookstore but the largest business of any kind in the neighborhood where he had settled. Recognizing the advantage of controlling a specialty, he began in 1884 the publication of veterinary text-books, in which line he was quite successful. Shortly after he began the publication of French and Italian text-books, which had a ready sale from the start. The book trade sustains a real loss in the death of Mr. Jenkins. He was a man in love with the profession, who in years to come would have become one of its mainstays. Young as he was his enterprise, fair dealing, and unselfish devotion to his calling carried his name across the country, and made it famous for qualities which we regret to say are becoming rarer from decade to decade.

The funeral took place on the evening of the 18th, at his home, 139 West Eighty-second Street. Besides his widow and three children there were many of his relatives and friends present. The service was conducted by the Rev. Anson B. Atterbury, pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Eighty-sixth Street and Tenth Avenue. The burial took place on the morning of the 19th, at White Plains.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MRS. A. D. T. WHITNEY has written a new story, entitled "Ascutney Street," which will be published in the autumn by Houghton, Mifflin & Co.

MR. J. H. SLATER, the editor of Book Prices Current, is busy on several works of an interesting kind. He has rewritten his "Library Manual;" he has prepared a treatise on "Book Collecting," for the Young Collector Series; and by the autumn he will have ready "The Romance of Fleet Street," tracing the literary history of that famous thoroughfare from the earliest times until 1820.

MR. WILLIAM H. GOODYEAR, 145 East 49th Street, New York, will shortly undertake the publication of a "Grammar of the Lotus," being a new history of classic ornament as a development of Sun worship, and including original discoveries of revolutionary importance in the archaeology and history of Egyptian, Phœnician, Assyrian, Greek, Etruscan, and American antiquity, based on the study of Cypriote vases. The publication will be in atlas form, including illustrations of about 2500 details and objects. The cost of publication will be borne by Mr. Jesse Haworth, Member of the Egypt Exploration Fund Society (England), who has no personal acquaintance with Mr. Goodyear, but whose interest and support, it is understood, have been secured by the mediation and influence of Miss Amelia B. Edwards. The artist for the plates will be John W. McKecknie, of the Architectural Department of the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

EDWARD ARBER, 35 Wheeley's Road, Birmingham, Eng., has completed the preparation of a "List, based on the Registers of the Stationers' Company, of 837 London Publishers (who were by trade printers, engravers, booksellers, bookbinders, etc.), between 1553 and 1640, A.D." This forms a master key to English bibliography during a period in which almost all authorized English books were printed in London, excepting principally a number which from 1584-85 onwards came from the University presses of Cambridge and Oxford. As much trouble has been taken to throw out the imaginary names of printers that never existed, as to include in it those of every London stationer or other person to whom a book was entered at Stationers' Hall; and besides these, the names also of about 80 persons who (with or without any special printing patent) avowedly published in the metropolis during that period, one or more texts, from a ballad up to a folio, without taking them to the Hall for registration.

PERSONAL NOTES.

MR. RIPLEY HITCHCOCK, whose scholarly art criticisms have long been familiar to readers of the New York Tribune, has become literary adviser of D. Appleton & Co. Mr. Hitchcock's refined taste, broad judgment, and thorough scholarship render him a peculiarly fit successor to Mr. O. B. Bunce.

CHARLES SOTHERAN, for many years the bibliographer of Geo. A. Leavitt & Co., having severed his business relations with E. F. Bonaventure, proposes to undertake on his own account book cataloguing, library arranging, and all matters pertinent to the profession of a book-expert. He may be addressed in care of the Press Club, 120 Nassau St., N. Y.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

MADAME JAMES DARMESTETER, who wrote in the last Quarterly on the French in Italy, will have an article in the Fortnightly for July on "The Bookmen of Paris in the Fourteenth Century."

THE Epworth League, a new denominational organization for the young people of the Methodist Episcopal Church, has now started a periodical to be published weekly by Cranston & Stowe in Chicago. It is entitled the Epworth Herald, and is edited by Joseph F. Berry, D.D. The name is taken from the Epworth parsonage in which the Wesley brothers were reared for their great work of improving their fellow-men.

The Passaic City Record and Freeman's Magazine have been amalgamated and will be edited and published by O. F. Freeman under the name of the first paper. It will be an eight-page paper, aiming to present real public sentiment and to advocate the best interests of the whole community, without fear or favor. The editor says he has been much encouraged by kind words, and the number before us shows a promising advertising encouragement also.

THE first number of the Annals of the American Academy of Social and Political Science—a new review of politics and economics—will shortly appear in Philadelphia. It will contain, among other interesting articles, one on Politics in Canada and the United States, by Dr. Bourinot; another on Decay of Local Government in America, by Professor Patten; and a third on Cheaper Railroad Fares, by J. J. Wetherell. The Annals is the organ of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, and will appear quarterly.

COUNT TOLSTOI will publish an article in the July Universal Review in response to numberless letters he has received concerning his latest work. He defends the morality of the "Kreutzer Sonata," and declares that "society rots through wrong ideas of love, of which the physical side, and not the spiritual side, is cultivated. Love's various developments," he says, "are not a fitting object to consume the best energies of men. Poets and romancers have exalted love to undue importance." He declares further that "service to God and humanity, to science and art, and to one's country is far beyond personal enjoyment."

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

STREET & SMITH will publish in their Select Series a novel by Charles J. Bellamy, entitled "A Moment of Madness."

ESTES & LAURIAT have in preparation a "Popular Natural History," by Prof. J. S. Kingsley, of the University of Nebraska, which will describe the various forms of animal life from the lowest up to man, illustrated with hundreds of cuts and plates; "The Pine Tree Coast," by Samuel Adams Drake, describing and illustrating the unrivalled scenery, quaint out-door life, and romantic story of hundreds of miles of Maine seaboard; also, "The Eve of St. Agnes," illustrated and illuminated with highly-colored decorations and borders, after the style of the curious missals of mediæval times. They have secured the balance of the English large-paper edition of the books of Jonathan Swift, in nineteen volumes, which they are offering at half price.

N. D. C. HODGES, 47 Lafayette Place, N. Y., has just published a volume entitled "Protoplasm and Life," by C. F. Cox, who was for some years President of the New York Microscopical Society. The author presents his view on the spontaneous generation theory and its relation to the general theory of evolution, and on protoplasm and the all doctrine. He will publish early in July a volume on "The Cherokees in Pre-Columbian Times," by Cyrus Thomas, who reverses the usual method of dealing with prehistoric subjects; that is to say, he commences with the earliest recorded history of the tribe as a basis and traces the chain back step by step by the light of the mounds, traditions, and other evidence, as far as possible. This work will be an important contribution to the literature of the Columbian discovery which will doubtless appear during the coming two years. They have in preparation "The Tornado," by H. A. Hazen, of the U. S. Signal Office; "Foods and Food Adulterants," by Edgar Richards, ex-President National Chemical Society; and "Color in Nature," by G. Brown Goode and others.

T. FISHER UNWIN, London, will publish shortly a volume, entitled "Japan and the Pacific," by Manjiro Inagaki, B.A. (Cantab.), a native of Japan. Commencing with a sketch of the commercial and political position of Japan, the history of the Eastern Question is traced from its genesis, long chapters telling of the Crimean and Russo-Turkish wars. In the last chapter, on Central Asia, Mr. Inagaki suggests a solution of his own. The work is dedicated to Prof. Seeley.

AT Stockholm will be issued soon a collection of the works of the King of Sweden, embracing four volumes. One volume is filled with the speeches of the King in the various languages in which they were delivered. King Oscar has made only twenty-four speeches during his reign. Of these eighteen are in Swedish, four in Norwegian, one in French, and one in English. Two of the other volumes contain poems and translations, and the third is made up of prose essays.

THE St. James' Gazette says that a complete set of the proofs of Henry M. Stanley's forthcoming work, "The Darkest Africa," were obtained in a mysterious manner by some person who offered copies to one English paper and to two papers published in the colonies. The copies were accepted by the papers, but the publication of the matter was thwarted by the issue of a circular by the house which is to publish the book, warning any person against publishing the work, and notifying any one who did so that he would be held responsible.

BUSINESS NOTES.

CHICAGO ILL.—We notice that our old friend Henry D. Chapin has established himself as a real estate agency at Room 75, Calumet building, 187 La Salle Street. His card bears this line: "(Reference—My 21 years' Record in the Book Trade.)" It is one our friend may be proud of.

HOLDREGE, NEB.—Samples & Mahaffie, booksellers and stationers, have dissolved partnership.

MONTAGUE, MASS.—F. H. Brown & Co., booksellers and stationers, have sold out.

NEW YORK CITY.—Wm. Bev. Harrison writes that his address will be at 6 Clinton Place, where he has taken an office. It is in the building where the Teachers' Publishing Co. has its headquarters.

SOUTH OMAHA, NEB.—G. Reuther, bookseller and stationer, has removed to Omaha.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

Announcement TO BOOKSELLERS.

In view of the recent changes which have been made in the lists of several houses who publish twelvemos and Red Line Poets, it is possible that the impression may have been given that similar arrangements had been made with us.

We deem it proper to state for the information of the trade that OUR LINE OF THESE PUBLICATIONS HAS NOT BEEN TRANSFERRED TO ANY OTHER PARTIES, OR CONSOLIDATED WITH THAT OF ANY OTHER HOUSE.

We are therefore prepared to fill all orders promptly for any of these publications that may be entrusted to us.

Our travellers will call upon the trade in a few days with a full line of samples of new and attractive bindings in Red Line Poets, new Publications and Novelties for the Fall Season.

Please defer placing your orders until you have inspected our samples.

LUX MUNDI.

Edited by Rev. CHARLES GORE, M.A.

12mo, cloth, gilt top, $1.75.

"A volume of thoughtful and well-written essays. They are an attempt to show that between theology rightly interpreted and the best modes and results of modern philosophy there is no real discrepancy. The task is noble, and the writers are well qualified to essay it, and to all thoughtful readers the book will be one of deep interest. In the way of devout treatment and reverent handling of great themes, all these essays leave nothing to be desired."—Record.

A SOUTHERN PLANTER.

By SUSAN DABNEY SMEDES. 4th Edition, 12mo, cloth, 341 pp., $1.50.

The fourth thousand, now ready, contains a fac-simile of Hon. W. E. Gladstone's letter of enthusiastic praise to the author, dated October 12, 1889.

"The most interesting book that has ever been written about the South."—Joel Chandler Harris.

"The writer leads us into a new field—the daily life and experiences of a Southern gentleman living with his large family of sons and daughters in the midst of his slaves. It furnishes a picture of the life of a Southern country gentleman of from 30 to 40 years of age complete and accurate in detail. It is the life of a proud, guileless, and honorable gentleman—such a character as Thackeray loved."—St. Louis Republican.

by buying the cheap phototype reprints of an obsolete "Webster" now being foisted upon the market. From A to Z they are all alike, being poor reproductions of the Dictionary of over 40 years ago. Announcements concerning them are very misleading; for instance, the supplement of 10,000 so-called "new words" was compiled by a gentleman who has been dead over thirty years, and was published before his death. Other so-called additions are reprints of a like nature. These books are all comparatively valueless. The Latest and Genuine Edition of

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE HARRIS PUBLISHING Co., 10 Warren St., N. Y., will publish at once "The Salmon Fisher," by Charles Hallock, a work both practical and anecdotic.

THE WORTHINGTON COMPANY will publish at once another novel by Heimburg entitled "Lucie's Mistake," describing in a charming manner German family life. It has been translated by Mrs. J. W. Davis, and is tastefully printed with a number of fine illustrations.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. have just issued a story translated by Aline Delano from the Russian of Vladimir Korolenko. It is a pyschological study of the inner life of the blind, entitled "The Blind Musician," to which George Kennan has written an introduction, and for which Edmund H. Garrett has furnished some very delicately executed illustrations.

THE AUTHORS' PUBLISHING Co., 55 Worthington St., Springfield, Mass., will publish July 1 "Were They Sinners?" by Charles J. Bellamy, a study of the limitations placed by the accepted institutions of society on the passion of love. The author regards it as a sort of complement to "An Experiment in Marriage," which described an imaginary state of society where there were no limitations of the sort.

STREET & SMITH publish this week in their Handbook Library a volume of "Select Recitations and Readings." The volume contains among interesting selections "The Loan of a Lover," and altogether makes a readable addition to this class of books. They will publish at once No. 47 of their Select Series—"Sadie the Rosebud," by Julia Edwards, whose previous novels have met with considerable success.

C. W. BARDEEN, Syracuse, N. Y., will publish July 8 "A Pocket Handbook of Biography," containing over ten thousand names of celebrities in every sphere of human action, showing their nationality, rank or condition, profession or occupation, the dates of their births and deaths, etc. The book has been compiled by Henry Frederick Reddall, associate editor of the "People's Cyclopædia" and author of "Fact, Fancy, and Fable," etc.

It is definitely announced by the Scribners that Stanley's new book, "In Darkest Africa," will be published on the 28th instant, simultaneously in the United States, England, Germany, and other countries. No copy of the ten-guinea édition de luxe can now be obtained from the trade in London for less than fifteen guineas, and it is expected to fetch £20 by the time the work is issued. Mr. Stanley will himself sign each of the 250 copies of the édition de luxe.

THE AMERICAN ECONOMIC ASSOCIATION, Baltimore, Md., will publish at an early day a monograph on Canals, consisting of two parts entitled: I. "The Canal and the Railway, with a Note on the Development of Railway Passenger Traffic," by Prof. E. J. James; II. "Canals and their Economic Relations to Transportation," by Prof. L. M. Haupt. Prof. James treats of the economic aspects of the canal question, and Prof. Haupt considers it from the engineer's point of view. The monograph is a timely one and is one of the most thorough and accurate presentations of the subject that has appeared in recent years. To practical politicians, shippers, economists, engineers, and to all others interested in canals, the work will be of great value.

D. LOTHROP COMPANY have just ready "A Real Robinson Crusoe: edited at the narrator's dictation," by J. A. Wilkinson, a curious book, detailing the adventures and strange experiences of a company of castaways on a Pacific island; "Starting-Points," a practical and helpful guide to good reading, uniform with "Helps by the Way;" "Hermit Island," by Katherine Lee Bates, a story of girl life on a North Atlantic island; "Five Little Peppers Midway," by Margaret Sidney, a sequel to "Five Little Peppers;" "The World's Greatest Conflict," by Henry Boynton, a history of the beginnings of the world's struggle for liberty; "In the Riding School" (chats with Esmeralda), by Theo. Stephenson Brown, practical and minute papers on horseback riding for ladies; "U. S." (Curious things in United States History), by M. Townsend, a collection of curious facts that every one wants to know.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; in the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given names, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederic; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. 4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tt. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl. nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Barnum, Phineas T. Funny stories told by Phineas T. Barnum. N. Y., G: Routledge & Sons, [1890.] c. 17+376 p. D. pap., 50 c.

A collection of amusing anecdotes based upon actual occurrences in the life of P. T. Barnum, the great showman.

*Beach, E: S. Digest of the decisions of law and practice in the patent office from 1880 to 1890. Bost., G: B. Reed, 1890. c. 12+203 p. O. shp., $3.

Beecher, H: Ward. The crown of life; from the writings of H: W. Beecher; ed. by Mary Storrs Haynes; with introd., by Rossiter W. Raymond. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., 1890. c. 15+346 p. D. (Spare minute ser.) cl., $1.

The selections cover a wide range, and illustrate all the salient qualities of the author's style, thought, and feeling. Rossiter W. Raymond's introduction tells how the great preacher's mind worked and tells it clearly. A carefully prepared index makes it easy for the reader to turn to thoughts along any special line he may have in mind.

Bellamy, C. J. A moment of madness. N. Y., Street & Smith, [1890.] c. 4-235 p. D. (The select ser., no. 46.) pap., 25 c.

Ora Castle and Joseph Darley are the principal characters. She is a struggling young actress. He is a pawnbroker by heritage from his father, but is a generous, manly young fellow, whom fate has relentlessly placed in this uncongenial position. The actress from some mad impulse or other robs Darley one night by snatching one thousand dollars from his hand as he stood under a lamp-post counting his money. Ignorant that the actress is the thief Joseph falls in love with her and there are the usual scenes of remorse and regret and final confession.

Ephraim Cutler was the eldest son of the Rev. Manasseh Cutler, whose life was also issued by this firm. His life supplements the latter work, and is also historical from beginning to end. It deals largely with the early history of Ohio. Ephraim Cutler was a member of the second Territorial Legislature and of the convention which formed the first constitution of Ohio. It was to his influence that the clause prohibiting slavery was introduced into the constitution, and others relating to religion and education. Many interesting sketches are given of men prominent in the early days of the Territory and State.

Goode, G. Brown. The origin of the national scientific and educational institutions of the United States. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1890. c. 2-112 p. O. (Papers of the American Historical Assoc., v. 4, pt. 2.) pap., $1.

*Harris, A. L. Mine own familiar friend: a tale of a secret society. N. Y., F: Warne & Co., 1890. 8°, (Warne's notable novels.) pap., 20 c.

*Henning, Crawford D., ed. Quiz cases on pleading at common law. Phil., W: J. Campbell, 1889. c. 26 p. O. pap., 50 c.

Hucker, Annie M. Nearly lost: a novel. N. Y., G: W. Dillingham, 1890. c. 4-255 p. D. pap., 50 c.

*Hugo, Victor. The hunchback of Notre-Dame. N. Y., F: Warne & Co., 1890. 8°, (Warne's notable novels.) pap., 20 c.

Kobbé, Gustave. Heath House guide, Schooley's Mountain Springs. N. Y., Gustave Kobbé, [1890.] c. 3-24 p. map and il. S. pap., 10 c.

*Lever, C: Arthur O'Leary. N. Y., F: Warne & Co., 1890. 8°, (Warne's notable novels.) pap., 20 c.

Lynch, Lawrence L. The lost witness; or, the mystery of Leah Paget. Chic., Laird & Lee, 1890. c. 557 p. D. (Lib. of choice fiction, no. 1.) pap., 50 c.

The scenes are mostly confined to New York City. The disappearance of Leah Paget ushers in the story; the solving of this mystery at first takes the entire attention, then it becomes blended with a crime that involves a double murder; here everything else gives way to the finesse of a noted English detective, who succeeds in clearing up the sensational mysteries, and bringing about an unexpected ending to an intricate detective story.

McNeill, Rev. J: Sermons. V. I. Introduction by Rev. G. T. Pierson, D.D. N. Y. and Chic., Fleming H. Revell, 1890. 416 p. 12°, cl., $1.50.

*Palmer, Harry. Stories of the base-ball field: the national game's great exponents and their methods, together with the national playing rules governing all clubs party to the national agreement. N. Y. and Chic., Rand, McNally & Co., 1890. 210 p. 16°, pap., 35 c.

Robinson, J. H. The house of silence: a tale of New Orleans. N. Y., Street & Smith, [1890.] c. 4-232 p. D. (The sea and shore ser., no. 20.) pap., 25 c.

Runeberg, Johan Ludwig. Nadeschda: a poem in nine cantos; from the Swedish by Mrs. J: Shipley, [Marie A. Brown.] N. Y., J: B. Alden, 1890. c. 79. 103 p. D. cl., 50 c.

Runeberg was born in Finland, 1804; he is a poet of the people, his poems singing of their lives and of the legends of the country.

Serrao, Teodoro. Brushes and chisels: a story. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1890. c. 3-213 p. D. cl., $1.

Artist life in Rome is attractively described. The story relates to the love of a young Spanish painter for a mysterious young Russian lady, an amateur musician of no little excellence. There is a second courtship having for its heroine and hero an impulsive young American woman and an Italian sculptor. Many interesting conversations on painting, sculpture, and music are scattered through the book. Bound in the Italian colors—red, green and white.

Shipley, J. B. The full significance of 1492. N. Y., J: B. Alden, [1890.] 28 p. D. (The Elzevir lib., v. 9, no. 445.) pap., 5 c.

OBITUARY.

SYLVESTER K. ABBOTT, Boston's oldest bookbinder, died suddenly at his residence in Malden, Mass., June 20, of heart failure. Mr. Abbott was born in Bedford 58 years ago and has resided in Malden 26 years. It was some 30 years ago that he started a bookbinding establishment in Boston, at 93 Federal Street, which at the present time is one of the largest in New England and probably the largest pamphlet bindery in the world, employing 275 hands.

E. J. McDONNELL, of McDonnell Bros., subscription booksellers, of Chicago, is reported to have been killed in a railroad accident.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

Is there any penalty for copyrighting a reprint of a foreign publication? I. N. QUIRY.

[Any book or pamphlet, foreign or domestic, ancient or modern, may be copyrighted in this country. The Librarian of Congress acts only as a recording officer, and has no authority to discriminate. Of course, there would be no validity in the copyright of a reprint of a foreign book.—ED. P. W.]

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JUNE 28, 1890.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE DICTIONARY WAR.

APROPOS of the so-called "dictionary war," we learn that the Messrs. Merriam have brought suit against a number of firms who, it is alleged, resort to questionable means in pushing the sales of the reprint of Webster's Dictionary. Although the original publishers of the reprint took the precaution of setting forth distinctly the nature of their publication, a number of their patrons, it seems, were unable to resist the temptation of taking advantage of the ignorance of the general public regarding the work, and adopted a system of advertising which may not be regarded as having always travelled closely along the edge of truth. In fact, it appears that many who were induced by the advertisements of the parties against whom suit is brought, believed they would obtain a substantial copy of Webster's Dictionary such as is currently published by the Merriams. Letters shown us from some of those who have availed themselves of the inducements offered them do not encourage us in thinking that they were satisfied with their bargains, and if many of these induced subscribers have the sentiments of the authors of these letters we should suppose that the parties offering it and the "original edition" of Webster's Dictionary would soon part company. We take satisfaction in noting the fact that the larger part of the book trade was self-respecting enough not to handle the book at all—its sale having been restricted to bazaars, green-grocers, and to the premium lists of country newspapers.

As the Merriams, unfortunately, cannot prevent the publication of the reprint, the only resource open to them is to prevent its being foisted upon the public as the book now published by them. If the name of "Webster's Unabridged Dictionary" has in the last few years become such a household word that the public are easily deceived by the very name itself, and that only on a careful examination—such as purchasers rarely give so large a book—can the deception be discovered, some one is certainly justified in stepping in and affording ordinary protection to the public.

THE POSTMASTER-GENERAL AND THE STATIONERS.

THE Postmaster-General has gotten into trouble with the stationers of New York over the letting of contracts for supplies for the department for the ensuing year. When proposals were asked for supplying stationery for the use of the Post-Office Department some of the specifications were drawn in such a way that many dealers found themselves unable to bid. Various quantities and qualities of pens, for instance, were specified, and then bidders were asked to name an "average price" at which they would supply them. This was something quite out of the usual order of business, and dealers as a rule were not inclined to enter upon such an innovation. The matter was brought to the attention of the Postmaster-General by a number of New York dealers in stationery. After some delay the Postmaster-General replied that he did not propose to be dictated to. If they wanted to know anything more about the specifications they might come over to Washington and see the samples. He became less arbitrary toward the end of the letter and said that fresh bids might be made for pens, pencils, and one or two other articles, and that he would talk with any committee the New York stationers might send over to see him.

The members of the trade were naturally a good deal incensed over this communication, and a meeting was held on the 24th inst., at the Stationers' Board of Trade, at which it was proposed that this call for bids should be ignored by New York members of the trade. On motion the President of the Board was empowered to appoint a committee to consider the matter. A resolution was also passed and forwarded to the Postmaster-General, asking that the specifications shall be drawn in the same manner as is customary by the Treasury Department in advertising for similar bids. Quantities and qualities are exactly specified and prices are named for each class of goods furnished in bidding on Treasury Department supplies.

A HINT TO BYRON COLLECTORS.

From the Publishers' Circular.

THE first edition of "English Bards and Scotch Reviewers" was published, as every collector knows, by James Cawthorn, in March, 1809, but with no date on the title-page; the second followed in October of the same year; the third in 1810; and the fourth in 1811; practically there was no fifth. Writing to Dallas, dating from the "Volage Frigate, at Sea, June 28, 1811," Byron said: "My Satire, it seems, is in a fourth edition, a success rather above the middling run, but not much for a production which, from its topics, must be temporary, and of course be successful at first or not at all. At this period, when I can think and act more coolly, I regret that I have written it, though I shall probably find it forgotten by all except those whom it has offended." On his return to England, however, a fifth edition was prepared for the press by himself, with considerable care; but, on the eve of publication, orders were sent to Cawthorn to commit the whole impression to the flames. One copy seems to have escaped, and was discovered by Byron in 1816, who scribbled annotations in its margins. The first of his MS. notes appears on the fly leaf, and runs thus: "The binding of this volume is considerably too valuable for the contents; and nothing but the consideration of its being the property of another prevents me from consigning this miserable record of misplaced anger and indiscriminate acrimony to the flames." From this rescued copy of the burnt fifth edition was taken the text of the poem as it appeared in the Complete Works of Byron, issued by Murray. We have reason to believe that Cawthorn did carry out the wishes of Lord Byron, and that the new edition was destroyed; but we doubt very much that the sale of the Satire was in any way stopped. It would rather appear, from the evidence before us, that a great number of copies subsequently found their way to the public from Cawthorn's shop, ostensibly as remainders of previous editions, but in reality new books fresh from the press. The sale of "English Bards and Reviewers" was presumably discontinued in the early part of 1812, at the express orders of its author. This date it will be well to bear in mind in considering the following. The top Byron volume on the table before me as I write is, to all appearances, a veritable first edition of the Satire. The text and printing are those of the genuine first issue on paper bearing the water-mark "E. & P., 1805;" but, holding the leaves of this book to the light, we find "S. & C. Wise, 1812," evidence that the paper was not manufactured till after the sale of the book was stopped, in fact, not till three years after the book was supposed to be printed. Next come four copies of the "third" edition, all bearing Cawthorn's name on the title-page, together with the date 1810. The water-marks in the paper are, respectively, "Ivy Mill, 1808," "Pine & Thomas, 1812," "Ivy Mill, 1817," and "J. & R. Ansell, 1818;" so that out of the four, only one has any claim to be rightly considered an actual third edition. The remaining copy is a "fourth," with Cawthorn's name still, and the date 1811. The paper is marked "W. Pickering & Co., 1816." And yet Cawthorn wrote to Byron in 1814 that they were publishing "English Bards" in Ireland; whereupon the author requested Murray to inquire into the matter, "because it must be stopped." Perhaps Byron collectors would do well to examine the water-marks in their fourth editions of "English Bards and Scotch Reviewers," and not to depend altogether on the variations of the text!

NIGHTMARES.—"I dream my stories," said Hicks. "How you must dread going to bed!" exclaimed Cynicus.—Sun.

A DECISION AGAINST THE REPRINT OF THE ENCYCLOPÆDIA BRITANNICA.

As we go to press we learn that Judge Shipman, in the United States Circuit Court on the 26th inst., handed down decisions adverse to the defendants in the three suits brought against the Henry G. Allen Company, publishing a reprint of the "Encyclopædia Britannica," ninth edition. In two cases Adam and Charles Black, the Edinburgh publishers of the Encyclopædia, were the complainants, and in the other Charles Scribner's Sons sued. The suits were based upon two articles upon American history, one by Francis A. Walker and the other by the late Prof. Alexander Johnston, which were written for the Encyclopædia, but were copyrighted in this country by their authors before being used abroad, and upon eight maps taken by the Blacks, by permission, from an atlas printed and copyrighted by the Scribners. Demurrers were entered to all the suits. In the cases involving the Walker article and the Scribner maps the demurrers were overruled, and in the case based upon the article by Prof. Johnston, while the demurrer was sustained upon a technical point, leave was given the plaintiffs to amend their complaint. We will give in our next issue a full report of the proceedings in the case, the decision in which is the most important rendered in half a century.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

SIR EDWIN ARNOLD telegraphed from Yokohama on the 21st inst. to the Associated Press as follows: "I have sold all American rights in my new poem, 'The Light of the World,' to Mr. Henry Deakin."

A MEETING was held on the evening of the 23d inst., in the Long Island Historical Society Building, Brooklyn, N. Y., to discuss the existing relations between author and publisher and to take action toward the formation of an Authors' Protective Union. The meeting was presided over by the Rev. Dr. E. P. Ingersoll. It was decided that a second meeting should be held in October, when the report of the committee who are to work up the details of such a society as has been proposed will be entertained and debated.

FRANK MOORE, the author of several well-known works on the War of the Rebellion, began a suit in the United States Circuit Court on the 23d inst. to recover $5000 as damages from P. F. Collier. Mr. Moore claims that he wrote "Anecdotes, Poetry, and Incidents of the War, North and South, 1860-1865." Several years ago he sold the plates of the work, but not the copyright, to R. Worthington. Mr. Collier is now publishing a book under the title "The Civil War in Song and Story" which Mr. Moore says is the book written by him. The plaintiff asks for an injunction to restrain the further sale of the book.

OLD BOOK CHAT.

I NOTICED an article on "Appreciation and Depreciation in Book Values" the other day in an English paper. The subject is an interesting one and leads a conscientious inquirer into strange and unthought-of paths of thought. The writer recognizes that really good books, or rather really scarce and interesting books, must become much appreciated in price at an early time. But his remedy is as comic a one as could well be imagined. He thinks it is "the republication of all literature which has permanent value in a permanent form. This can be done in the princely style of the Roxburghe club, or other private societies, . . . or if the matter be of local rather than general interest, by insertion in the columns of the local newspaper." Now this is really very funny, and I wonder that any person capable of thinking at all should in apparent soberness put forward such a proposition. The great "G. W. S." could not do better himself. Speaking of the demolition of old material for re-making into paper, the smart young man (he must be very young) says "the suffering is less than might have been expected, being confined to the gradual extinction of scarce tracts and sermons, and ephemeral literature generally." Tracts and sermons and ephemeral literature generally! Well, well, round men do get into square holes, and in a kindly spirit I would advise the budding genius who penned the above lines to seek a more congenial atmosphere than is afforded him in the columns of a paper (in mercy I withhold its name) devoted to the interest of the English book trade.

SOTHEBYS seem to have an inexhaustible store of books for sale. By every mail, almost, I get their catalogues, and each sale seems to surpass the former in interest and excellence. By the way, several well-known New York book-dealers are on their way to Europe this week. All have big rolls and express a determination to—from a bookman's point—buy the place—if they like it.

BUSINESS NOTES.

ANACONDA, MONT.—Crockett & King, booksellers, have dissolved partnership.

BOSTON, MASS.—A. A. Waterman, superintendent of the Harvard Co-operative Society, Cambridge, Mass., announces that his connection with that society will end at the conclusion of the present fiscal year, August 31, 1890. Mr. Waterman has accepted a position in charge of the advertising for the retail store of Horace Partridge & Co., Temple Pl. and Washington St., Boston, where he will also oversee the business of the stationery department—retail and wholesale.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.—Edwards & Mercer and Chalmers & Doran, booksellers and stationers, have dissolved partnership.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—Thode & Mart, booksellers, have dissolved partnership.

NEW YORK CITY.—F. Hartley Woolfall, for many years associated with the publishing trade in this country and in England, will continue the publication of the works hitherto issued by the Practical Publishing Company of New York, and has taken into partnership Mr. Edmund Clark and Mr. Albert H. Zugalla, of the firm of Clark & Zugalla, the well-known printers of this city. They will carry on the business of publishers and printers at 119 and 121 Nassau Street, New York City, trading under the firm-name of Woolfall, Clark & Zugalla.

NEW YORK CITY.—A. J. Bowden, for some time with Sotheran & Co., London, and lately with W. E. Benjamin, and George Smith, for six years with W. E. Benjamin, have combined forces and opened a bookstore at 8 Astor Place. The name of the firm will be Bowden & Smith. They will make a specialty of old and rare books, autographs, and other literary curiosities. Mr. Bowden, a thorough bookman, well posted in antiquarian literature, is ably seconded by his partner, who has also had considerable experience in the book business. We feel confident that the new firm will speedily make a name for itself in the American book market for intelligent service and enterprise.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—George McConnell, as already noted, has purchased the book and stationery business of the W. W. Brier Co. He has consolidated it with the stock of the Bible Society, of which he is the depositary, and will conduct the business under his personal management at 757 Market Street (not Montgomery Street as before stated). He will represent among other houses the California Bible Society, the Presbyterian Board of Publication, the Congregational S. S. and Publishing Society, F. H. Revell, Chicago, A. D. F. Randolph & Co., E. & J. B. Young & Co., and A. J. Holman & Co., and will make a specialty of church and Sunday-school supplies of all kinds.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—Samuel Carson & Co., booksellers, have filed papers in insolvency and their business has been turned over to the custody of the sheriff. The cause of the failure of the firm is due to the fact that the store was attached by The Sather Banking Company for $10,000. The firm was started ten years ago and from the first encountered considerable opposition. Mr. Carson states that owing to the demoralization in the book trade in San Francisco during the past twelve months his firm was compelled to carry over the holiday season a stock of goods valued at $20,000. "The failure of Belford, Clarke & Co., followed by other failures of local booksellers since January 1, also crippled our houses as all of them owed the latter firm different amounts, and their notes were discounted at the Sather banking house. . . . It has required all our surplus to take care of the insolvent paper, and still we were unable to meet it all. Our merchandise creditors granted us time, but the bank refused an extension. We hope to be able to make arrangements to go on with the business. We do not owe $500 all told in San Francisco outside of the insolvent paper at the Sather Banking House."

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE JOHN WILKINSON Co., of Chicago, publish "The Amateur Photographer's Handbook," by Arthur Hope, an excellent book of instructions for the beginner.

THE price of "Go's Goings," by Mrs. S. R. Graham Clark, published by D. Lothrop Company, is $1.50 instead of $1.25, as inadvertently advertised in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, June 14.

THE AMERICAN SUNDAY-SCHOOL UNION, Philadelphia, will publish, in September, a novel entitled "Aimee's Marriage," by William H. Hirst, describing complications arising out of a marriage of a Protestant to a Roman Catholic.

READERS of "Robert Elsmere" will be interested to find in Dr. G. P. Fisher's "Nature and Method of Revelation," just issued by the Scribners, a chapter devoted to the discussion of the religious views of Matthew Arnold as advocated by Mrs. Humphry Ward in her novel.

WOOLFALL, CLARK & ZUGALLA, New York City, will publish shortly "The Complete Practical Type-Writer," written by well-known experts on all the leading machines. The work is designed for beginners, graduates and teachers, showing how to do good work and how to avoid bad, with about 200 examples of good and bad work from actual practice.

A. LOVELL & Co., New York, announce "Northern Studies," by Edward Gosse, a new volume in Walter Scott's Camelot Series. Among the contents are two essays on Henrik Ibsen's poems and social dramas that were originally published in magazine form. Lives of Robert Browning and Lord Byron have just been added to the Great Writers' Series, also published by Walter Scott.

A. C. ARMSTRONG & SON announce that the new volume of the Book-Lover's Library will be on "Newspaper Reporting in Olden Time and To-day," by John Pendleton. It indicates the growth of newspaper enterprise and gives an account of the birth and development of shorthand, indicating its utility in journalism in the past and present; but it deals chiefly with the reporter—with his journalistic life and work from the earliest times. This volume should be specially attractive to the book-lover, for it contains many references to ancient MSS.—to the literature of the past, to literary effort long before the time of the daily newspaper, etc.

GINN & Co. will publish, this summer, a "Complete Lexicon of the Latinity of Cæsar's Gallic War," by E. G. Sihler. The famous Index of Holden has been exhausted in the preparation of this work. The aim—suggested to the author of the book by the eminent lexicographer, Professor H. Drisler, of New York—was not to duplicate the extant Latin-English vocabularies but to elaborate a book presenting the Latinity of Cæsar. The student will receive an exhibit of the absolute frequency of word and phrase, of every shade of synonymical variation, of all combinations, syntactical or phraseological, entered into by every word, and incidentally an exhibit of Cæsar's Syntax which will supplement and afford copious material for extant grammars. Full citations of book, chapter, and paragraph are added in each case.

THE SHAKESPEARE SOCIETY, of New York, will immediately begin the publication of a "Second Series" to consist of unexpurgated reprints of the old English miracle plays, mysteries, and moralities, as illustrating the growth of the drama up to Shakespeare, besides the least known and edited English plays contemporary with Shakespeare's own work. These and all other publications of the Society will hereafter appear in the scholarly and attractive style of the "Bankside Shakespeare." Two hundred and fifty copies only of this series will be printed and the type will then be distributed. The first volume of the series will be "Iacke Drvm's Entertainment, or the Comedie of Pasqvill and Katherine, as it hath beene sundry times plaid by the children of Powles. Newly corrected, London, printed by W. Stansby, for Philip Knight, and are to be sold at his shop in Chancery Lane ouer against the Roles. 1616. (With notes, and Introduction touching the origin, growth, and decadence of the Children's Companies)."

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

VIEWS AND REVIEWS:

Essays in Appreciation—Literature. By W. E. HENLEY. Elzevir, 16mo, gilt top, $1.00.

Mr. Henley is the well-known author of "A Book of Verses," and is recognized as a singularly accomplished critic of literature and art. These brief essays relate to some of the great figures of the French and English literary world, and reveal a style at once light, graceful, and trenchant.

FAMOUS WOMEN OF THE FRENCH COURT.

MARIE ANTOINETTE AND THE END OF THE OLD REGIME. Translated from the French of IMBERT DE SAINT-AMAND, by T. S. PERRY. With portrait. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

The culmination of the gay and brilliant life of the French court and of the French nobility, of which Marie Antoinette was the central figure, during the last years before the revolutionary storm broke, is described in this volume with a fascinating vivacity and picturesqueness.

ALREADY ISSUED :

THE HAPPY DAYS OF THE EMPRESS MARIE LOUISE. With portrait. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

THE WIFE OF THE FIRST CONSUL. With portrait. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

"He writes con amore of the splendor and glitter of the First Empire. He brings before the reader a gay and changing series of social sketches, vivacious and animated on every page."—Christian Union.

THE WRONG BOX.

By R. L. STEVENSON and LLOYD OSBOURNE. 12mo, paper, 50 cents.

"The plane occupied is that of farce or very light comedy. Realism is cast to the winds. Quaintness, paradox, the unexpected and preposterous, are encountered at every turn."—N. Y. Tribune.

THE BEST KEY TO EDUCATIONAL BOOKS.

Imprint edition—without publishers' advertisements.

THE
American Educational Catalogue
For 1890 [Twenty-first Year].

THE AMERICAN EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE, whose value to the trade is proved by the fact that it is now in its twenty-first year, claims to be the best practical aid to the dealer in or buyer of school-books.

With its alphabetical arrangement by authors, its separate class-index, carefully sub-classified to an extent not followed by any other catalogue, its completeness and accuracy, it is presented as the best finding-list, the most convenient order-list, and the most satisfactory class-catalogue for school use.

The catalogue has recently been remade, to omit books which have dropped out of use and to include all live books, and it adds all new books (ready or to be ready for the fall) in their proper alphabetical place.

The page giving the key to publishers will not be given in imprint editions unless specially ordered. The Telegraphic Code will not be continued, as the code plan is reported to us to give more trouble than it saves.

This Catalogue is specially planned to be of service for circulation by retailers among schools and private buyers. The imprint edition possesses not only temporary value, but will serve its purpose during the whole year. No imprint edition of less than 100 copies can be supplied. Orders for editions should be sent to us at once.

CASH TERMS.

*With sole imprint of ordering firm, and stitched, per 100 copies, $5.00 ;
per 1000, $40.00.*

There is no extra charge for printing name, business card, etc., on the imprint page ; the last page is left blank at the disposal of the dealer, but any copy for that page, advertising special lines or general business, will be set up and printed thereon for $5.00, or $1.00 if plate is sent.

*.* Copy for imprint and shipping directions should accompany the order.

The regular Educational Number of "THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY" will be supplied at 25 cents per copy, or five for $1.00, postpaid.
